SINATRA CRITICAL OF SOME USO UNITS

NEW YORK, July 10 — (AP) Frank Sinatra said today he would "eat every paper" the Army publication Stars and Stripes could print if it could prove that his criticism of USO camp shows and the Army's special services was unfounded.

"I talked to thousands of guys over there, some on the staff of the Stars and Stripes," said Sinatra, just returned from a USO tour of the Mediterranean. "They asked me to beef about the shows they'd been getting. If the Stars and Stripes can prove that what I said wasn't well founded, I'll eat every paper they can print."

The Army publication quoted the crooner as saying the shows sent overseas underrated the soldiers' intelligence, and said he was 'hardly an authority on either the military or the workaday show business."

"I may not be an authority or know a thing about military matters," Sinatra said, "but anyone who want to match wits with me in show business knows where they can find me. I'll be waiting."

Sinatra said he wanted to make clear that he had in mind only a few individuals in the special service division when he said they underestimated the soldiers' intelligence.

FOOD AND FUEL WORKERS ADD TO STRIKE IDLE

Additions to Labor Dispute Roster Bring Nation's Total to 52,447.

GAS IS CUT IN SIX STATES

Rochester Bakers and Detroit Dairymen Quit—Miners Out in Two Districts.

By Associated Press.

A wave of strikes, heretofore confined principally to war production, extended today to affect food consumers and fuel gas users.

Additions to the labor dispute roster, with a national total of 52,447 idle, included a strike at the United Fuel Gas Company, serving six States; a Detroit dairy strike, and a stoppage among bakers in Rochester, N. Y.

The gas utility strike, affecting 1,600 employes in West Virginia and Kentucky, shut off supplies in some areas and limited the flow to domestic users and hospitals in six States, a C. I. O. Oil and Gas Workers Union officer said.

All compressing plants in West Virginia and Kentucky closed at midnight. A limited supply continued to flow to consumers in southern West Virginia and parts of Ohio, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Virginia and New York.

The third day of a work stoppage by 420 bakers in Rochester saw many restaurants rationing bread to patrons. The strike closed the General Baking, Continental Banking and National Biscuit Company plants which normally supply 60 per cent of the city's bread. A company spokesman said all issues were before the War Labor Board.

3,316 Miners Quit.

In Pennsylvania all four Jones & McLaughlin Steel Corporation coal mines were closed and 3,316 miners were idle. A company spokesman said refusal to rehire a returned war veteran without a physical examination caused one mine to suspend.

At Bellaire, Ohio, Taylor Roy, superintendent of the Cambria Mining Company's Webb mine, said 475 United Mine Workers quit in protest against a fine of $1 a day for three days for refusal to work June 25, 26 and 27.

Six thousand employees of the National Cast Iron Pipe Company plant in Birmingham, Ala., halted production of 155mm. shells in a dispute a company spokesman said was over a change in supervisory personnel.

New Detroit Strike.

As one Detroit strike ended two others started. One thousand employees of the Detroit Creamery Company and Ebling Creamery Company, halted delivery of milk to about 30 per cent of Detroit homes and stores and also affected the company's plants in Dearborn and Pontiac.

The second stoppage at Detroit kept idle 1,000 employees of the Dodge truck plant body department. They were sent home after a strike by eleven paint sprayers, C. I. O. United Automobile Workers in a dispute over longer relief periods. Earlier, 824 Graham-Paige Motors Corporation workers ended their stoppage.

Other disputes were of a week or longer duration and there was no immediate indication of settlement. The largest single stoppage was the 16,500 C. I. O. United Rubber Workers at the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company in Akron, Ohio, Today the union was ordered to show cause to the National War Labor Board in Washington why the ten-day strike has not ended.

Columbia Record Strike.

Cutting of all recordings at the Columbia Recording Corporation offices in New York, Chicago and Hollywood was halted today for the third day by a wage dispute.

Kenneth Raine, company counsel, said nineteen engineers and cutters in the three cities failed to report for work early Sunday morning, after the union, Radio Broadcast Engineers' Union 1212, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (A. F. of L.), had refused to accept a 10 to 20 per cent wage increase.

Charles A. Calame, union business agent, said twenty-one employees left their jobs after contract negotiations begun in February broke down. He said I. B. E. W. engineers, in a sympathy gesture, had refused to play Columbia recordings over Columbia Broadcasting Company radio stations.

BY RELMAN MORIN

PARIS, JULY 10-(AP)-TWO GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS, WHO CLAIM TO KNOW GEN. DE GAULLE'S INTENTIONS, SAID TODAY THAT HE WOULD NOT BE A CANDIDATE FOR THE NEW NATIONAL ASSEMBLY WHICH THE FRENCH WILL SELECT AT A GENERAL ELECTION OCT. 14 AND EXPRESSED DOUBT WHETHER HE WOULD ALIGN HIMSELF WITH ANY PARTY.

POLITICAL CIRCLES CONSIDERED IT LIKELY, HOWEVER, THAT THE NEW ASSEMBLY WOULD EXERCISE ITS POWER TO "DRAFT" DE GAULLE, THE PRESIDENT OF THE PRESENT PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT, FOR OFFICE.

THE FATE OF THE BI-CAMERAL SYSTEM OF GOVERNMENT IS EXPECTED TO BE AT STAKE IN THE GENERAL ELECTION, THE FIRST IN FRANCE SINCE BEFORE THE WAR, WHEN THE VOTERS DECIDE WHETHER THEY WISH TO DISCARD THE CONSTITUTION OF 1875, UNDER WHICH THE THIRD REPUBLIC WAS ESTABLISHED.

THE VOTERS WILL NAME 600 REPRESENTATIVES WHO WILL COMPRISE THE NEW ASSEMBLY. THIS BODY THEN WILL SELECT HIS CABINET MINISTERS. WHO IN TURN WILL SELECT HIS PRESIDENT. THE PRESIDENT NEED NOT COME FROM THE ASSEMBLY ITSELF SINCE THE SYSTEM PROVIDES FOR COMPLETE FREEDOM OF SELECTION.

CONSEQUENTLY DE GAULLE MIGHT BE CHOSEN TO HEAD THE NEXT GOVERNMENT EVEN IF HE DOES NOT HAVE AN OFFICIAL POSITION FOLLOWING THE ELECTION. IN ANY CASE IT IS CONSIDERED REASONABLY CERTAIN THAT HE WOULD BE ONE OF THE NEW GOVERNMENT'S MINISTERS.

THE ELECTION PROBABLY WILL SHOW HOW JUST HOW FAR--IF AT ALL-FRANCE HAS DRIFTED TO THE LEFT IN RECENT YEARS. A GREAT MANY OF THE BEST FRENCH POLITICAL ANALYSTS BELIEVE THAT THE COMMUNIST AND SOCIALIST INFLUENCE IS NOT AS GREAT AS SUPERFICIAL EVIDENCES HAVE INDICATED.

VIRTUALLY ALL FRENCH POLITICAL GROUPS ARE AGREED ON THE NECESSITY OF CHANGING ONE ASPECT OF THE OLD CONSTITUTION WHEREBY A GOVERNMENT

AUTOMATICALLY FELL WHEN IT LOST ITS MAJORITY IN THE CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES. THE RESULT HAS BEEN AN INSTABILITY OF GOVERNMENTS IN TIMES OF CRISIS. IN THE LAST 89 YEARS THERE HAVE BEEN 109 FRENCH GOVERNMENTS.

THE FRENCH APPARENTLY ARE AIMING AT SOMETHING COMPARABLE TO THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENTAL SYSTEM WHERE A PRESIDENT'S TENURE IN OFFICE DOES NOT DEPEND ON CONGRESSIONAL APPROVAL OR DISAPPROVAL OF HIS PROPOSED LEGISLATION.

THE DECISION TO CALL THE ELECTION WAS REACHED BY GEN.DE GAULLE'S COUNCIL OF MINISTERS YESTERDAY AT A SIX-HOUR MEETING AND PLACED A DEFINITE LIMIT ON THE TENURE OF THE PRESENT PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT.

UNDER THE ELECTION PROCEDURE LAID DOWN BY THE COUNCIL, THE VOTERS WILL BE GIVEN AN OPPORTUNITY TO ELECT A NEW NATIONAL ASSEMBLY IN ADDITION TO DECIDING WHETHER THEY WISH TO RETURN TO THE CONSTITUTION OF 1875.

IF THE OLD CONSTITUTION IS VOTED DOWN, THE ASSEMBLY WILL UNDERTAKE THE TASK OF FRAMING A NEW CONSTITUTION. IF THE VOTERS UPHOLD THE OLD CONSTITUTION, THE ASSEMBLY WILL BECOME THE CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES AND SENATE WILL BE ELECTED IN THE USUAL WAY.

(ELECTION OF THE FRENCH SENATE IS BY INDIRECT VOTE, BEING COMPOSED OF DELEGATES CHOSEN BY THE MUNICIPAL COUNCIL OF EACH COMMUNE AND BY THE DEPUTIES, COUNCILLORS-GENERAL AND DISTRICT COUNCILLORS OF EACH DEPARTMENT.)

THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY ALSO WILL BE CHARGED WITH THE APPOINTMENT OF A PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT TO SERVE DURING ITS TENURE, WHICH IS LIMITED TO SEVEN MONTHS. THE PRESIDENT WILL NAME HIS OWN MINISTERS.

IN ADDITION THE ASSEMBLY WILL BE EMPOWERED TO PASS UPON THE NATIONAL BUDGET, CONCLUDE TREATIES WITH OTHER NATIONS AND REGULATE THE ECONOMIC LIFE OF THE COUNTRY.

DETAILS CONCERNING THE PROCEDURE FOR ELECTING THE NATIONAL ASSEMBLY WERE NOT ANNOUNCED, BUT IT WAS SAID VOTING WOULD BE ON THE BASIS OF "UNIVERSAL SUFFRAGE." IT WAS PRESUMED DE GAULLE AND MEMBERS OF HIS CABINET WOULD BE CANDIDATES FOR THE ASSEMBLY, THUS MAKING THE ELECTION A TEST OF HIS POPULAR SUPPORT.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL ISSUE WAS EXPECTED TO HINGE ON THE QUESTION OF WHETHER FRANCE SHOULD RETAIN TWO LEGISLATIVE BODIES--COMPARABLE TO THE AMERICAN SENATE AND HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES--AS PROVIDED IN THE CONSTITUTION OF 1875.

A BITTER BEHIND-THE-SCENES STRUGGLE ON THIS ISSUE HAS DEVELOPED RECENTLY BETWEEN DE GAULLE AND THE EXTREME LEFTISTS, WHO HAVE ADVOCATED A UNI-CAMERAL SYSTEM. POLITICAL OBSERVERS EXPRESSED BELIEF THE LEFTISTS STAND WAS BASED ON A HOPE THEY COULD MORE EASILY CONTROL A SINGLE CHAMBER.

DE GAULLE HAS HELD OUT FOR A DOUBLE CHAMBER. BY ITS ACTION YESTERDAY, THE COUNCIL DECIDED TO PUT THE ISSUE SQUARELY UP TO THE PEOPLE.

AGITATION FOR A NEW CONSTITUTION AND UNI-CAMERAL LEGISLATURE WAS EXPECTED TO DEVELOP AT AN "ETATS GENEREAUX" (STATES GENERAL) CONVENTION SPONSORED BY THE COUNCIL OF NATIONAL RESISTANCE, WHICH OPENS HERE TODAY WITH 3,000 DELEGATES IN ATTENDANCE. LOCAL CAUCUSES AMONG THE DELEGATES YESTERDAY INDICATED THERE WAS STRONG FEELING IN FAVOR OF THE REFORM.

THE IMMEDIATE PURPOSE OF THE CONVENTION IS TO UNIFY RESISTANCE LEADERS AND FIGHTERS, WHO GRADUALLY DRIFTED INTO OTHER PARTIES AND GROUPS AFTER FRANCE'S LIBERATION, INTO A POWERFUL LEFT-WING POLITICAL FACTION.

BERLIN, JULY 10-(AP)-- A 15-YEAR-OLD CRIPPLED AMERICAN BOY, WHO LIVES AS A REFUGEE IN A UNITED STATES DISPLACED PERSONS CAMP HERE, DECLARED TODAY THAT A VAST MIGRATION OF GERMANS IS TAKING PLACE UNDER RUSSIAN AND POLISH DIRECTION FROM THE PROVINCES OF GERMANY EAST OF THE ODER RIVER.

BLOND, SLENDER NICHOLAS PETERSDORF, WHOSE FATHER, WILLIAM, WAS LAST REPORTED RESIDING (AT 233 EAST 77TH ST.) IN NEW YORK, WAS SENT TO BERLIN IN AN EVACUATION TRAIN FROM HIS GERMAN MATERNAL GRANDMOTHER'S HOME NEAR LANDSBERG, 30 MILES WEST OF THE PRE-WAR GERMAN-POLISH FRONTIER.

YOUNG PETERSDORF SAID HE PERSONALLY KNEW HUNDREDS OF FAMILIES WHICH WERE EXPELLED FROM BRANDENBURG AND POMERANIA THE WEEK BEFORE HE WAS REMOVED LAST FRIDAY.

HE ADMITTED HE COULD GIVE NO OVERALL PICTURE OF THE MIGRATION, BUT ASSERTED THAT IT AFFECTED HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF GERMAN NATIONALS.

THE BOY EXPLAINED THAT HIS MOTHER BROUGHT HIM TO GERMANY SHORTLY BEFORE THE OUTBREAK OF THE EUROPEAN WAR IN 1939 ON A BRIEF VISIT, WHICH LENGTHENED INTO SIX YEARS. WHEN HE ACCIDENTALLY BROKE HIS ARM, AN OVERWORKED

CHUNGKING, JULY 11-(AP)-CHINESE FORCES HAVE RECAPTURED THE FORMER AMERICAN AIR BASE OF SINCHENG IN KIANGSI PROVINCE AND ARE ADVANCING NORTHWARD TOWARD ANOTHER FORMER AIR BASE AT KANHSIEN, 210 MILES NORTHEAST OF CANTON, THE CHINESE HIGH COMMAND ANNOUNCED TODAY.

CHINESE TROOPS ALSO RECAPTURED NANKANG, ON THE KIANGSI-KWANGTUNG HIGHWAY 15 MILES SOUTHWEST OF KANHSIEN AND WERE HOTLY PURSUING JAPANESE FLEEING TOWARD THE FORMER AMERICAN AIR BASE CITY, THE CHINESE SAID.

SINCHENG WAS THE FIFTH FORMER AMERICAN AIR BASE TO BE RECOVERED IN THE NEW CHINESE DRIVE. IT WAS ABANDONED BY MAJ. GEN. CLAIRE L. CHENNAULT ON JAN. 29. OTHER LIBERATED AIRBASES ARE THOSE AT SUICHWAN, YUNGNING (NANNING), LIUCHOW AND TANCHUNG.

AS

IN KWANGSI PROVINCE, MEANWHILE, CHINESE TROOPS DRIVING ON THE FORMER AMERICAN AIR BASE AT KWEILIN HAVE CAPTURED CHUNGTU, 30 MILES NORTHEAST OF LIUCHOW ON THE LIUCHOW-KWEILIN HIGHWAY, THE CHINESE SAID.

OTHER CHINESE FORCES 130 MILES TO THE SOUTHEAST STRUCK EASTWARD FROM RECENTLY LIBERATED TENGYUN AND ADVANCED TOWARD THE IMPORTANT INLAND PORT OF WUCHOW, 40 MILES TO THE EAST ON THE KWANGTUNG-KWANGSI BORDER, THROUGH WHICH THE JAPANESE FUNNELLED THEIR INVASION FORCES FROM KWANGTUNG TO KWANGSI LAST YEAR.

THE ENEMY WAS CLEARED FROM CHUNGTU, THE CHINESE SAID, AND IN THE TENGYUN AREA THE JAPANESE WERE CARRYING OUT A STRATEGIC CONTRACTION OF THEIR LINES IN THE DIRECTION OF CANTON, A LITTLE MORE THAN 110 MILES SOUTHWEST OF WUCHOW.

COUNTERATTACKING JAPANESE TROOPS IN KIANGSI PROVINCE STRUCK NO. WESTWARD FROM A POINT 12 1/2 MILES NORTHWEST OF KANHSIEN, THE CHINESE SAID, WHILE ANOTHER ENEMY COLUMN PUSHED NORTHWARD FROM KANHSIEN ALONG THE HIGHWAY LEADING TO THE RECOVERED AIR BASE CITY OF SUICHWAN, AND WERE ENGAGED BY THE CHINESE.

KANHSIEN, WHICH USED TO BE THE SEAT OF THE MODEL SOUTHERN KIANGSI DISTRICT ADMINISTERED BY THE GENERALISSIMO'S ELDER SON, CHIANG CHING-KUO, WAS COMPLETELY CUT OFF BY CHINESE SEVERANCE OF COMMUNICATIONS WITH KUKONG, ON THE CANTON-HANKOW RAILROAD 125 MILES NORTH OF CANTON.

THE HIGH COMMAND BELATEDLY ANNOUNCED THAT CHINESE TROOPS ON JULY 1 CAPTURED A POINT FOUR AND ONE-HALF MILES WEST OF ANOTHER FORMER AMERICAN AIR BASE, PAOCHING, WHICH GUARDS THE WESTERN APPROACHES TO THE VITAL RAIL JUNCTION CITY OF HENGYANG.

BY PRESTON GROVER

NEW DELHI, JULY 10-(AP)-JAPANESE FORCES ARE WITHDRAWING SO RAPIDLY FROM THEIR SOUTHERN ASIA SPHERE THAT A SURVEY FROM THIS VANTAGE POINT SUGGESTS THAT A HARD-PRESSED ALLIED CAMPAIGN DURING THE COMING FALL AND WINTER WOULD RECOVER THE ENTIRE AREA.

ALREADYTHE JAPANESE APPEAR TO HAVE CONCEDED THE LOSS OF THIS AREA BY ALLOWING THE CLOSING OF THE HENGYANG CORRIDOR IN CHINA THROUGH WHICH GARRISONS IN FRENCH INDO-CHINA COULD HAVE ESCAPED. IN BURMA, SCATTERED JAPANESE ARE FIGHTING THEIR WAY EASTWARD, EVIDENTLY TRYING TO ESCAPE INTO THAILAND. BORNEO IS NOW HOTLY ATTACKED BY AUSTRALIANS AND AMERICANS. ADMIRAL LORD LOUIS MOUNTBATTEN'S SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HAS BEEN ASSIGNED THE TASK OF RECONQUERING SUMATRA AND MALAYA AND SINGAPORE AT THE TIP OF THE PENINSULA.

THE JAPANESE WITHDRAWAL AT THE MOMENT IS EXTENDING OVER A FAR GREATER AREA THAN THE GERMAN RETREAT INTO THE CENTRAL EUROPEAN BASTION AND MEANS THAT PERHAPS WITHIN SIX MONTHS VAST AREAS LONG UNDER JAPANESE DOMINATION MAY HAVE AN OPPORTUNITY TO BEGIN A RETURN TO NORMALCY."

THE WHOLE AIM OF THE JAPANESE ASIATIC CAMPAIGN SEEMS DIRECTED TOWARD CONCENTRATING THEIR MAJOR FORCES IN THE AREA NORTH OF THE SHANGHAI-HANKOW LINE. BOTH THESE CITIES ARE CERTAINLY INCLUDED IN THE DEFENSE AREA, BUT SOUTHERN CHINA, SAVE FOR THE CANTON-HONGKONG AREA, EVIDENTLY ALREADY IS BEING EVACUATED.

WHILE HONGKONG AND SHANGHAI REMAIN IN JAPANESE HANDS THEIR DEFENSIVE POSITIONS ARE STILL STRONG, SINCE THERE ARE NO MAJOR PORTS ALONG THE CHINA COAST IN BETWEEN. NORTH-SOUTH COMMUNICATION IN SOUTHERN CHINA IS SO LIMITED AS TO MAKE AN ALLIED INVASION OF THIS AREA ONE GREAT AGONY OF EXTENDED SUPPLY LINES. THE THREAT FROM THE WEST AND SOUTHWEST, WHERE THE CHINESE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT FORCES ARE CONCENTRATED, BECOMES LESS AS SUPPLY LINES FROM BURMA INTO CHINA BECOME LONGER AND LONGER WITH EACH JAPANESE WITHDRAWAL FROM SOUTHERN CHINA.

IT SEEMS CERTAIN THAT THE JAPANESE WILL FIGHT SUICIDE DELAYING ACTIONS IN EVERY MAJOR ZONE, INCLUDING SUMATRA, JAVA, BORNEO, SINGAPORE, MALAYA PENINSULA AND INDO-CHINA. EVIDENCE OF ENEMY DETERMINATION TO KEEP DELAYING FORCES IN PLACE IS GIVEN IN THE MOVEMENT OF ONE JAPANESE FORCE IN NORTHEASTERN INDO-CHINA. THIS FORCED MOVED IN THE DIRECTION OF CANTON ALONG THE COAST, AS IF TO ESCAPE, AND THEN ABRUPTLY REVERSED ITS MARCH AND RETURNED IN THE DIRECTION OF HANOI.

IT IS ESTIMATD 60,000 JAPANESE SOLDIERS--OUT OF AN ORIGINAL TOUGH FORCE OF MORE THAN 200,000--REMAIN IN BURMA, BUT THEY ARE WITHDRAWING IN AS ORDERLY FASHION AS POSSIBLE IN THE DIRECTION OF THAILAND. THEIR CASUALTIES HAVE BEEN HEAVY. IN ONE POCKET IT WAS ESTIMATED THAT 7,000 ENEMY TROOPS ARE BLOCKED IN BETWEEN THE IRRAWADDY AND SITTANG RIVERS.

MOST OF THE ENEMY TROOPS IN BURMA ARE CLASSED AS SERVICE TROOPS AND NOT AS FIRST QUALITY COMBAT TROOPS. THEY HAVE A THIN CHANCE OF GETTING BACK HOME. BOAT ROUTES THEY COULD HAVE USED SIX MONTHS AGO ARE NOW GONE BECAUSE AMERICAN AIRMEN FROM THE PHILIPPINES ARE PATROLLING THE INDO-CHINA AND SOUTHERN CHINA COAST LIKE TERRIERS WATCHING RAT HOLES. AS A RESULT MOST OF THE MOVEMENT NORTHWARD FROM MALAYA INTO INDO-CHINA IS ALMOST WHOLLYBY ROAD OR RAIL AND EVEN THAT MOVEMENT IS CONSTANTLY HARRIED.

JAPANESE FORCES THROUGHOUT, HOWEVER, ARE APPARENTLY WELL-SUPPLIED WITH EQUIPMENT AND AMMUNITION FROM STOCKPILES ACCUMULATED IN THREE YEARS OF OCCUPATION, DURING WHICH FOOD SUPPLIES WERE TAKEN FROM THE COUNTRY.

THE CHINESE HAD MOPPED UP ENEMY REMNANTS IN THE VICINITY OF THE RECAPTURED RAILROAD TOWN OF LOJUNG, 20 MILES NORTHEAST OF LIUCHOW, AND FORWARD ELEMENTS PASSED THROUGH LUCHAI, EIGHT MILES FARTHER UP THE RAILROAD.

UNITS STABBING ALONG THE HIGHWAY LAID SIEGE TO CHUNGTU, 30 MILES NORTHEAST OF LIUCHOW, THE HIGH COMMAND SAID.

CHINESE FORCES INFLICTED MORE THAN 200 CASUALTIES IN A FLANKING ATTACK ON JAPANESE LANDING PARTY TROOPS FROM AMOY, WHICH HAD CAPTURED CHIHHU, 25 MILES SOUTHWEST OF AMOY, AFTER LANDINGS ON THE FUKIEN COAST. TWENTY-FIVE JAPANESE WERE TAKEN PRISONER.

CHINESE OBSERVERS SAID THE LANDINGS WERE EITHER INTENDED TO SAFEGUARD THAT JAPANESE POCKET OR TO DETERMINE IF THE CHINESE IN THE AREA WERE IN STRENGTH, SUGGESTING JAPANESE APPREHENSION OVER THE POSSIBILITY OF AN AMERICAN LANDING.

A CHINESE ARMY SPOKESMAN, MAJ. GEN. KUO CHI-CHIH, SAID TODAY THAT JAPANESE ABANDONMENT OF THE CORRIDOR TO INDO-CHINA, WHICH BEGAN WITH THE WITHDRAWAL FROM YUNGNING (NANNING), VIRTUALLY OPENED THE SOUTH CHINA COAST -- PARTICULARLY THE AREA BETWEEN INDO-CHINA AND LIUCHOW PENINSULA, A STRETCH OF SOME 120 MILES -- TO THE CHINESE ARMIES.

THE JAPANESE HAD A HIGHWAY CONNECTION BETWEEN INDO-CHINA AND CANTON, BUT THIS HAD BEEN VULNERABLE FOR SOME TIME AND WAS OF MORE THEORETICAL THAN ACTUAL VALUE. SO LONG AS IT EXISTED, HOWEVER, CHINESE PASSAGE TO THE GULF OF TONKING WEST OF LIUCHOW PENINSULA OR THE SOUTH CHINA SEA EAST OF THE PENINSULA HAD BEEN BARRED.

THIS ENEMY LINK HAS BEEN SEVERED AT TWO MAIN POINTS WITH THE CHINESE RECAPTURE OF YAMHSIEN, 60 MILES SOUTHEAST OF YUNGNING, AND FAHSIEN, SOME 130 MILES FARTHER EAST IN THE MIDDLE OF THE NECK OF LIUCHOW PENINSULA

GENERAL KUO SAID THE JAPANESE COULD REOPEN THE LINK ONLY BY RETAKING AND HOLDING THE TWO POINTS, BUT THAT THEY WERE FIRMLY IN CHINESE HANDS AND THE EMPLOYMENT OF CONSIDERABLE ENEMY FORCES WOULD BE REQUIRED FOR THE OPERATION.

HE SAID THE ONLY CONNECTION THE JAPANESE NOW HAVE BETWEEN CHINA AND INDO-CHINA IS JUNK TRANSPORT, WHICH IS FORCED TO CREEP IN AT NIGHT THROUGH HAINAN STRAIGHT AND HUG THE COAST TO AVOID ALLIED AIR ATTACK.

THERE HAD BEEN NO JAPANESE ATTEMPTS AT OVERLAND MOVEMENT BETWEEN INDO-CHINA AND CANTON EVEN BEFORE THE RECOVERY OF YAMHSIEN AND FAHSIEN, HE SAID, SINCE THIS ROUTE HAS ALWAYS, EVEN IN THE BEST CIRCUMSTANCES, BEEN EXTREMELY DIFFICULT.

BRITISH PATROLS WERE ACTIVE OVER THE WHOLE AREA FROM PEGU, EASTWARD TO THE SITTANG RIVER. TEN MILES WEST OF WAW, 15 MILES NORTHEAST OF PEGU, 500 JAPANESE TROOPS WERE SEEN MOVING EASTWARD.

THE OFFICIAL BRITISH VIEW OF THE JAPANESE COUNTER-ACTIONS IN THE SITTANG RIVER BEND IS THAT THE ENEMY LAUNCHED THE ATTACKS TO KEEP THE BRITISH OCCUPIED AND AID THE EASTWARD ESCAPE OF THOUSANDS OF JAPANESE

TRAPPED FARTHER NORTH, APPARENTLY IN THE THAZI AREA.
THE JAPANESE THRUST ON THE SITTANG RIVER BEND TOOK THE FORM OF A SERIES OF SMALL SCALE BUT FEROCIOUS ATTACKS IN WHICH BAYONETS WERE USED FREELY IN HAND-TO-HAND COMBAT IN WAIST-DEEP MUD AND THICK, SHOULDER-HIGH ELEPHANT GRASS, WHICH ITSELF CUTS LIKE A KNIFE.
AIRCRAFT OF THE EASTERN AIR COMMAND HAVE MAINTAINED CONSTANT ATTACKS ON JAPANESE WHO HAVE TRIED TO CROSS TO THE EAST BANK OF THE SITTANT RIVER. IN THE 26 DAYS ENDED JUNE 6 SPITFIRES DESTROYED 75 RIVEGKJAFT AND RAKED 300 OTHERS LOADEDWITH TROOPS AND EQUIPMENT.

THE FIRST RAID ON THE KURILES WAS MADE JULY 10, 1943, BY EIGHT ARMY MITCHELL BOMBERS FLYING FROM THE RECAPTURED BASE AT ATTU. SINCE THEN, NORTH PACIFIC COMMAND FLIERS IN MITCHELLS, LIBERATORS, CATALINAS, VENTURAS AND HARPOONS HAVE ATTACKED THE JAPANESE BACK DOOR FLYING ONE OF THE WORLD'S MOST HAZARDOUS AIR ROUTES.
NAVAL SURFACE UNITS OF THE COMMAND HAVE PATROLLED THE FOG-SWEPT SEAS UNTIL JAPANESE SHIPPING, INCLUDING THE VITAL JAPANESE FISHING INDUSTRY, HAS BEEN SWEPT FROM THE AREA. THREE SMALL SHIPS WERE SUNK AND 22 DAMAGED. THE KAWANISHI PLANT WAS LEFT AFLAME AND HANGARS ON TWO AIRFIELDS ALSO WERE FIRED. THIRTEEN VGROUNDED ENEMY PLANES WERE DESTROYED, FIVE DAMAGED, AND ONE SHOT DOWN.

IN SIX STRIKES IN SEVEN DAYS AGAINST HONSHU AIRFIELDS, THE MUSTANGS HAVE DESTROYED 85 JAPANESE PLANES AND PROBABLY DESTROYED OR DAMAGED 91 OTHERS.

THREE MUSTANGS WERE LOST IN THE KOBE SWEEP BUT TWO OF THE PILOTS WERE RESCUED.

WITH ADMIRAL HALSEY'S THIRD FLEET OFF TOKYO, JULY 10-(AP)-THE THIRD FLEET'S FAST CARRIER TASK FORCE STEAMED CONTEMPTUOUSLY CLOSE TO JAPAN'S MAIN ISLAND OF HONSHU TODAY AND SPRANG MORE THAN 1,000 PLANES OFF FLATTOP DECKS AGAINST TOKYO.
THE FIRST PLANES TOOK OFF ABOUT 4 A.M. IN THE CLEAR CRISP DAWN AND HOURS LATER THE STRIKE WAS STILL CONTINUING WITH INDICATIONS THERE WOULD BE NO RESPITE FOR THE ENEMY'S DEVASTATED CAPITAL UNTIL NIGHTFALL.
IT WAS THE FIRST CARRIER ASSAULT ON TOKYO SINCE LAST FEBRUARY. BUT THE CITY HAS TAKEN A MERCILESS POUNDING FROM SUPERFORTRESSES, THE LATEST LAST NIGHT. (DISPATCHES FROM GUAM TOLD OF STRIKES BY 550 SUPERFORTS ON FIVE OTHER JAPANESE CITIES TODAY BUT MADE NO MENTION OF TOKYO OR B-29 ATTACKS LAST NIGHT.)
BOMBING WEATHER OVER THE TARGET WAS REPORTED PERFECT WITH VISIBILITY UNLIMITED. THE CHIEF OBJECTIVES OF THE RAIDS WERE AIRFIELDS. THERE ARE BETWEEN 72 AND 80 AIRDROMES IN THE TOKYO AREA.
PILOTS ALSO WERE INSTRUCTED TO HUNT OUT ENEMY AIRCRAFT BUT PRELIMINARY REPORTS INDICATED NOT MANY WERE SEEN.
PILOTS RETURNING FROM EARLY STRIKES REPORTED NO FIGHTER OPPOSITION AND SAID THAT ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE WAS SCANTY AND CAUSED THEM LITTLE TROUBLE.
DESPITE THE FACT A HUGE ELEMENT OF THE FLEET WAS WITHIN SHORT CARRIER PLANE RANGE OF TOKYO WHEN THE STRIKES WERE LAUNCHED, NO ENEMY PLANES CAME OUT BY 10 A.M. TO CHALLENGE AMERICAN OWNERSHIP OF THIS OCEAN.

ADM.WILLIAM F. (BULL) HALSEY'S AIRMEN ARE TRYING TO PIN-POINT SMALL INDUSTRIES WITH WHICH JAPAN ABOUNDS AND WHICH THE SUPERFORTS IN THEIR BLUDGEONING BLOWS ARE UNABLE TO GIVE INDIVIDUAL ATTENTION.

FIVE HOURS AFTER THE ATTACK BEGAN, THE ENEMY HAD GIVEN NO ANSWER BY SEA OR AIR.

PARTICIPATING IN THE ATTACK WERE FIGHTERS, FIGHTER-BOMBERS, TORPEDO PLANES AND DIVE BOMBERS CARRYING 500 POUND GENERAL PURPOSE BOMBS. AFTER DROPPING THEIR LOAD, PILOTS STRAFED TARGETS OF OPPORTUNITY.

RETURNING TO VICE ADM.JOHN S.MCCAIN'S FLAGSHIP, MCDOWELL WAS INTERVIEWED BY JACK MANN OF MUTUAL BROADCASTING CO.

THE AERIAL OBSERVER, WHOSE WIFE MRS.MARTHA MCDOWELL LIVES AT (601 MARSHALL ST.) TURLOCK,CALIF., REACHED THE TARGET, AN AIRFIELD ABOUT 20 MILES NORTHEAST OF TOKYO, AT ABOUT 9 A.M.

"WHEN WE REACHED THE TARGET, SMOKE GENERATORS AT EACH END OF THE FIELD STARTED ROLLING OUT SMOKE BUT AN EAST WIND SPREAD IT OUT TOO THIN TO BE EFFECTIVE."

NONE IN GERALD'S GROUP WAS HIT ALTHOUGH PLANES IN OTHER GROUPS WERE HIT, MCDOWELL REPORTED. HE SAW NONE OF THE U.S. PLANES SHOT OUT OF THE AIR.

ABOUT 50 TO 65 PLANES WERE ON THE GROUND AND THEY WERE STRAFED.

"THE TARGET WAS COVERED FROM END TO END AND MANY FIRES WERE STARTED," REPORTED MCDOWELL.

"BUILDINGS WERE HIT AND FIRED AND THERE WASN'T MUCH LEFT OF THE PLACE," HE SAID.

MCDOWELL SAID HE SAW NO ENEMY FIGHTERS IN THE AIR BUT HIS FIGHTER ESCORT DID. THE FIGHTERS HAD BEEN OVER THE FIELD FOR TWO HOURS.

RETIRING FROM THE ACTION, MCDOWELL SAID HE SAW FIRES BURNING ON ANOTHER AIRFIELD.

THE OBSERVER WAS OVER THE JAPANESE MAINLAND AN ESTIMATED 16 MINUTES.

British Carrier Planes Hit Sebang Off Sumatra; Japs Fear New Assaults

JUL 12 1945

ENEMY SHIPS HIT WITH ROCKETS BY MARINE FIGHTERS

Task Force Has 'Withdrawn for Fear of Our Special Attacks,' Japs Say.

RAIDERS HIT KYUSHU

Radio Silence Shrouds Next Move of Third Fleet Carrier Planes.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11—(AP) Tokyo radio tonight broadcast an unconfirmed report that more than 200 planes from two carriers of a British task force attacked Sabang off the northern tip of Sumatra Island Wednesday morning at 10:30 a.m. Japanese time (9:30 p.m. Tuesday, Eastern War Time).

The report placed the blow a day after the acknowledged day-long assault by 1,000 carrier planes of the U. S. Third Fleet Tuesday on the Tokyo area.

Japanese broadcasters said the Third Fleet task force has "withdrawn for fear of our special attacks" but reported new air blows on Kyushu.

Admit Tokyo Raid

GUAM, Thursday, July 12—(AP) While radio silence shrouded the next move of the big U. S. Carrier Task Force 38, a Japanese military commentator said over Tokyo radio today that "without being able to resist this (mounting air) challenge, we cannot annihilate the enemy on the home land."

Tokyo radio said about 1,200 carrier planes participated in Tuesday's assault, that it lasted 12 hours and that, in all, 1,940 American planes of all types were over Honshu island that day.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, disclosing night air attacks Tuesday night off Honshu, said no additional word had been received from the task force since when he reported [illegible] and destroyed or damaged 154 enemy air craft, all but two on the ground, up to noon Tuesday.

NIGHT

Tuesday night, Nimitz said, "a number" of enemy ships were hit with rockets by Marine aircraft south of Honshu.

Nimitz said "strong forces" of Corsair fighters and Avenger torpedo bombers followed up the Tuesday attacks by hitting enemy airfields on Kyushu and in the northern Ryukyus Wednesday. They blasted hangars, shops and buildings at Miyazaki airfield on Kyushu.

Previously it was reported from Okinawa that 200 American airmen hit the Kyushu coast, Korea and the China coast Tuesday.

Nimitz said yesterday's raiders bombed and rocketed Inujo airfield on Tanega island, south of Kyushu.

Additionally, he announced that search Privateers of Fleet Air Wing One set three cargo ships afire off the China coast that day and that enemy airfields in the northern Ryukyus were cratered Monday and Tuesday.

The enemy radio said that "due to our tactical opposition, practically no Japanese planes or warships were damaged."

What he meant by "our tactical opposition" was not clear unless it was withdrawing and hiding their planes and refusing to fight in the air.

Reports Another Force Near

Tokyo radio's discussion of the Third fleet attack made another ambiguous reference to a task force operating east of the Kanton plain area and also to the southeast.

The whereabouts of the armada of battleships and carriers has been a mystery since it unleashed 1,000 planes at Tokyo's airfields Tuesday, but the Japanese said it still was "in the vicinity of our homeland."

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz promised the Japanese that navy and Marine aircraft would keep raining blows on their homeland in preparation for "further amphibious assaults."

The Tokyo radio reminded listeners that the last time carrier planes struck the Japanese capital Iwo Jima was invaded and said the same tactics might be expected now with landings somewhere else.

Maintained From Okinawa

Another enemy broadcast said the aerial assault on the home islands was maintained Wednesday by 150 fighters from Okinawa which struck airbases on the east and south coasts of Kyushu.

The whereabouts of the hoarded Japanese air force likewise was a mystery, for it refused to accept the challenge flung down by Admiral William F. Halsey's carriers cruising daringly close to Japan.

From that standpoint, Tuesday's heavy strike at Tokyo's ring of 70 airbases was a disappointment, for of 154 enemy planes destroyed or damaged, only two were caught in the air.

These were not interceptors, such as the Japanese are known to be saving against the day of invasion, but reconnaissance planes that got too close to the American fleet.

Contrast To Prior Raid

This was in contrast to the even larger carrier raid on Tokyo last February 16 and 17, when 332 enemy planes were shot from the skies, 177 destroyed aground and 150 probably destroyed.

That strike was also made in co-ordination with Superfortress raids and covered the landings on Iwo Jima by keeping the Japanese air force tied down at home.

Reports continuing to filter in ed toward 2,000 the number anes which were in action over Japan and Japanese-held territory Tuesday.

In addition to the 1,000 carrier planes raiding Tokyo, and the more than 500 Superfortresses that struck five Japanese cities, nearly 200 bombers and fighters attacked from bases on Okinawa.

JUL 12

Suicide Bases Hit

They hit two suicide bases on Kyushu and raided Korea and the Chinese coast, setting three medium freighters afire and attacking three destroyers.

An undisclosed number of Mustangs from Iwo Jima hammered unopposed at the port of Kobe on Japan's Inland Sea, shooting down 1 enemy plane, destroying 11 others on the ground and sinking or damaging 25 ships.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communiqué told of fresh heavy bomber and fighting raids on Formosa, and sweeps along the Asiatic coast as far south as Indo-China in which a freighter was sunk or damaged.

Says Jap Ships Escaped

The enemy radio said that "due to our tactical opposition, practically no Japanese planes or warships were damaged."

What it meant by "our tactical opposition" was not clear unless it was withdrawing and hiding their planes and refusing to fight in the air.

Tokyo Radio's discussion of the 3d Fleet attack made another ambiguous reference to a task force erating east of the Kanto plain ea and also to the southeast.

Tokyo was followed promptly by landings on Iwo Jima.

Admiral Nimitz reported a regrouping of growing American air power in the Ryukyus giving Gen. Douglas MacArthur command of all Army planes there—and added that his own Marine and Navy aircraft will continue their strangling blockade of Japan "preparatory to further amphibious assaults."

Slim Pickings for Yanks.

Preliminary reports for the morning half of Tuesday's carrier plane assault showed that only two of the 154 Jap planes destroyed or damaged were airborne. Both were reconnaissance craft snooping too near the United States Third Fleet circling offshore. None of the warships including the biggest type carriers and battleships, was attacked, Nimitz said. With no indication of air opposition, the heavily armed Helldivers, Avengers, Hellcats and Corsairs evidently were free to spend the whole day battering Tokyo's once-great web of seventy-odd airports.

A simultaneous strike of Iwo Jima based Mustangs at Kobe, a major port of Honshu on the Inland Sea, found virtually no aerial opposition there either. One enemy plane was shot down; eighteeen knocked out on the ground. The raiding pilots turned to shipping and ground targets,

FLEET RAID ON TOKYO STIRS INVASION TALK

Nimitz Speaks About Future Landings—Enemy Radio Also Speculates on Next Move—Task Force Under Blackout.

Guam, July 11 (A. P.).—Both Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz and the Tokyo radio spoke openly of future American invasion moves today, as a fragmentary assessment of Tuesday's 1,000-plane carrier assault on Tokyo accounted for only 154 enemy planes. The defending enemy air force clearly was absent—or reluctant.

DAY

Tokyo Radio speculated that the American carrier strike presaged an invasion, and recalled that the last carrier force blow at burning an aircraft plant, ravaging two airfields and sinking or damaging twenty-five vessels. Fleet aircraft and Southwest Pacific planes hit sixteen other enemy ships.

Fleet Fades Into Blackout.

There was no indication today from Fleet headquarters whether Vice-Admiral John S. McCain's powerful Task Force was continuing its search for targets around Tokyo or had moved elsewhere in its search for the last of Japan's air power.

[Tokyo Radio said today that the Task Force has withdrawn in fear of suicide plane attacks. Tokyo reported there had been no raids by carrier-based aircraft today but expressed belief that the "enemy task force is still in the seas in the vicinity of our homeland." The enemy broadcast was monitored by the FCC.]

The enemy's remaining combat aircraft either were remaining hidden for invasion day use, or had been moved—for safety—too far from Tokyo to rally quickly to that city's defense.

The New Air Set-up.

The shift in American air commands in the Ryukyus will result in three powerful commands all operating within striking distance of the Japanese homeland:

1. Far Eastern Air Forces under MacArthur's air chief, Gen. George C. Kenney, now including the Okinawa-based Seventh Air Force as well as the Fifth and Thirteenth Air forces.

2. Fleet and Marine aircraft in both Okinawa and Iwo Jima, under Admiral Nimitz's command.

3. The newly designed strategic Air Force command of Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, which will include the strategic-bombing B-29s of the present Twentieth and future Eighth Air forces in the Pacific. Presumably it will also include the now-independent Seventh Fighter Commany on Iwo, whose Mustangs escort B-29s and frequently make their own strategic strikes at the empire.

Indicating the stranglehold of the American aerial blockade of Japan, Nimitz reported planes of Fleet Air Wing eighteen alone have sunk 50,000 tons of enemy shipping and damaged 57,000 tons, all in enemy waters, since April. Fourth Marine Aircraft Wing planes sank 5,000 tons and damaged 50,000.

Tokyo Reports No Damage.

San Francisco, July 11 (A. P.).—Tokyo said 1,200 carrier aircraft raided airdromes around the capital for twelve hours yesterday. Propagandists made the usual claim that there were almost no damages inflicted upon their airfields, airfield facilities, warships and ships. The radio claimed that twenty-six raiders were shot down and a considerable number of others damaged.

Tokyo said that 150 American fighters continued the steady pounding of airfields on the home island of Kyushu. It said that P-47 Thunderbolts and P-51 Mustangs from Okinawa raided fields in the Miyazaki plain on Kyushu's east coast, as well as the Osumi and Matsuma peninsulas in the south. The planes were over their target for two hours, the broadcast said.

TOKYO SAYS FLEET QUIT

Claims Fear Of Suicide Flyers Caused Withdrawal

San Francisco, July 11 (AP)—Japanese broadcasters today claimed the United States 3d Fleet task force which sent 1,000 planes to raid Tokyo airfields yesterday has "withdrawn for fear of our special attacks," but reported new air blows on Kyushu Island, southern Nippon.

Western and southern Kyushu airfields were hit by 150 Okinawa-based fighters following night scouting visits by a few Superfortresses and Liberators over Kyushu and the western coast of Honshu Island, said the Tokyo radio in broadcasts heard by the FCC.

Building Up Food Supply

The Tokyo radio also said the Japanese Government had taken new steps to build up the nation's food supply and strengthen its railroad system, preparatory to an expected invasion.

The broadcasts added that the raid on Tokyo airfields yesterday by Vice Admiral John S. McCain's air fleet had caused "extremely small" damage. While United States sources said 1,000 planes made the attacks, destroying or damaging 152 enemy aircraft, Tokyo raised the number of raiding planes to 1,200. The enemy said the raids lasted twelve hours, from 5 A.M. to 5 P.M., and claimed, without confirmation, that 26 American planes were downed.

Notes Absence Second Day

Noting the absence of Yank carrier aircraft over Tokyo today, one broadcaster concluded it was "apparent that the enemy task force has withdrawn after the raid for fear of our special attacks."

The New Delhi (India) radio said a Japanese broadcast heard in Melbourne, Australia, reported that Allied planes were attacking the "east coast of Honshu." This is where Tokyo and Yokohama are situated. FCC monitors heard no such report.

Self-Sufficiency Of Basis

The Japanese Cabinet's new food program, reported by the board of information, called for securing the nation's food supply by "speedily bolstering district self-sufficiency as a basic principle."

It urged the use of hitherto unused material for foodstuffs; dispersion of the population "according to supply conditions"; improvement of the soil, and greater production of fertilizers and farming tools.

Nippon's railways, already militarized, have been put under a state of emergency for two months on a Government order, to expedite the transportation of vital foods and "specified arms" required to meet an invasion.

Look To Camphor For Fuel

The Government also launched a "major drive" for a 600 per cent increase in the production of camphor, to bolster the nation's dwindling supply of aviation fuel. The Japanese claimed the camphor would provide a "high quality" fuel for their planes.

The Nipponese previously had announced plans to extract aircraft fuel from pine tree roots.

Domei reported that a "technicians task force" has been formed by the Japanese welfare ministry to repair bomb-damaged production facilities and reconstruct devastated factories, and to maintain the flow of military supplies.

SURVEY RUINS OF 3 JAP CITIES

Flyers Find Towns at Least 40 P. C. Destroyed.

Guam, July 11 (A. P.).—At least 40 per cent of three more Jap industrial cities was burned out or damaged by the Superfortress incendiary raid on July 7, the Twenty-first Bomber Command reported today. Reconnaissance photographs showed:

Kofu—64 per cent burned out.

Shimizu—50 per cent of the built up area in the port and industrial center damaged.

Chiba—43 per cent of the railroad terminus razed.

In addition, the photos show heavy damage to three industrial targets of the Chigusa factory in Nagoya arsenal district, the Tachikawa army arsenal and the Utsube River oil refinery. The Chigusa factory was already struck by several demolition and incendiary attacks and now has 77 per cent of its roof damaged. A producer of heavy ordnance equipment and other ordnance material, the factory has thirty-three of its buildings partially burned out. The Tachikawa army arsenal now appears 50 per cent destroyed.

The southern section of Kofu, one of Japan's largest inland cities, is almost completely destroyed and 50 per cent of the buildings in the railroad yard have been wiped out.

The entire urban section of Shimizu, about eighty-five miles southwest of Tokyo, has been wiped out with the exception of the extreme north and south sections and a small part of the waterside. Forty-three per cent of the dock area was destroyed.

The damage to Chiba, twenty miles east of Tokyo, was concentrated in the heart of the city.

AUSSIES HAMMER THREE MILE HOLE IN NIP DEFENSES

Searing Fire Bomb Strikes by U. S. Fliers Aid Borneo Advance.

FLEET SHELLS LINES

Enemy Fiercely Battles Along Sambodja Oil Field Approach.

MANILA, Thursday, July 12 (AP) Australian Seventh division troops, aided by searing fire bomb strikes of U. S. 13th air force Lightnings, Monday drove a three mile wedge into Japanese outer defense lines guarding smashed "stone Ridge," inland from Balikpapan, on east Borneo.

A headquarters communique today supported the gain which brought leading elements through densely forested hinterland north of Australian-occupied Balikpapan to within a half mile of enemy-held fortifications on a 200-foot rise called Mt. Batochampar by the Malayans.

Mines Slow Advance

The advance was impeded by mine fields and moderate resistance of the entrenched Nipponese.

Jellied gasoline bombs were dropped by low-flying P-38s, scorching a path for the advancing foot soldiers over a 12-mile radius.

At the same time, Seventh fleet warships and other 13th air force planes hammered the enemy line of resistance northeast of Manggar airdrome. They softened it sufficiently to enable the Aussies there to score a three-quarter mile breakthrough Monday. Fiercely fighting Japanese naval personnel is defending that approach to the Sambodja oil fields, and still replying with artillery and mortars to the combined sea-air-ground attacks.

The Japanese attempted their third counterattack in two days, with the latest thrust coming three miles inland from the Seppinggang Ketjil river in the center of the Aussie lines. The attack was repulsed, a spokesman said, with Seventh division infantrymen streaming through the broken enemy defenses.

Tokyo radio broadcast a front line report from a Domei correspondent in the Balikpapan area which declared Japanese special attack units (Kamikaze) on the ground have been particularly active since July 4 and claimed the destruction of three Matilda tanks. There was no Allied confirmation.

Infiltration Fails

Yesterday's communique reported smashing of two night infiltration attempts north of Aussie-held Manggar air field.

Gains were counted in yards along the coastal highway which swings inland through hilly forested country five miles beyond Manggar. The Aussies gained 1,000 yards in that sector. Six miles north of Balikpapan the Diggers were slugging it out with a strong Japanese resistance point on the slope of Mt. Batochampar.

Other Australian elements made an overwater hop and landed unopposed at Djinabora, on the west side of Balikpapan bay, giving the Allies complete control of the vast ship anchorage. Dutch colonials held the other side of the bay.

Die-hard Japanese remnants in Balikpapan's northern refinery sector were liquidated, giving the Allies complete control of the port. Capture of the war-wrecked city, however, has no immediate military significance.

Ground operations were closely supported by Allied airmen.

Patrols of the Ninth Australian division advanced south of the Miri oil field on Borneo's northwest coast, but met no opposition. To the south Allied fliers sank three freighters off Kuching, site of a big air field only 400 miles from Singapore.

Aussies Gain Near Balikpapan

Whole Broad Harbor Now Dominated by Allies—Troops Press On for Oil Fields.

Manila, July 11 (A. P.).—Australians, by a new shore-to-shore movement in southeast Borneo, have completed the capture of the Balikpapan Bay area, including terrain commanding all of the fine broad harbor and also have invested the fiercely defended Pandansari refinery area.

With the enemy still in control of all major fields which formerly supplied the port with pure bunker fuel and the refinery machinery wrecked, the capture of the port has no immediate military significance.

Beyond Balikpapan, once the greatest oil refining and shipping port of Borneo, other Australians of the Seventh Division attacked Jap resistance on the low slopes of Mount Batochampar, six miles to the north. Northeast of the bay on the road to the great salt marsh oilfields, Aussies advancing slowly beyond Manggar Airfield crushed two Jap infiltration attempts Saturday night.

The Aussies gained a thousand yards along Highway 5, which the enemy has attempted to block with drums of blazing oil. The highway swerves inland over rolling forested hills at Taritip, about five miles beyond Manggar, but the fighting thus far is still in the flatlands under native cultivation along the coast.

Final control of the area around the big Balikpapan anchorage, which will handle unlimited shipping, was affected by a small-boat landing of Australians at Djinabora, four miles north of previous positions at Cape Penadjam on the west shore of the bay. Just across the bay Dutch troops held Cape Teloktebang.

American Liberators and Mitchells continued to closely support ground operations by blasting enemy gun positions, transport and buildings. In northwest Borneo, Aussie Ninth Division patrols were active but failed to find any Japs south of the Miri oil-field area. Supporting aircraft sank three enemy freighters off Kuching, a major Borneo airfield which is slightly more than 400 miles east of Singapore.

Blamey Cites Aussies' Gains On New Guinea

San Francisco, July 11 (AP)—The Melbourne radio today quoted the Australian army commander in chief as declaring that the Aussies fighting on bypassed New Guinea "have already achieved more than half their objective."

The broadcast, reported by the FCC, quoted General Sir Thomas Blamey as telling newsmen in Adelaide of progress of the fight on New Guinea. He spoke of fierce Japanese opposition on Bougainville with the Nipponese attempting to outflank the Aussies on the Mibo River line.

The General said that while the Japanese as a whole were showing less "fight-to-the-death" spirit unless cornered "there was no evidence that enemy morale, especially in the homeland, has weakened."

FORMOSA POUNDED BY PLANES AGAIN

Jap Ground Defenses Slacken After Steady Battering from Air.

MANILA, Thursday, July 12—(AP) Slackening ground fire against planes daily hammering the Japanese fortress base of Formosa was reported by headquarters today.

More than 40 Fifth Air Force Liberators spilled fragmentation bombs Monday on three west coast airfields, without drawing the heavy ack ack encountered previously.

Simultaneously, A-26 attack bombers hit the enemy's east central coast base of Karenko, destroying buildings and starting fires.

On the coast of French Indo-China, where headquarters has reported communication networks virtually paralyzed by sabotage and air attacks, four Seventh Fleet Liberators damaged two locomotives and a string of box cars and bombed a hangar at Bien Hoa Monday.

Australian - manned Liberators and Catalinas worked over enemy air fields in eastern Java and Dutch Celebes. Other bombers and fighters swept the Banda Sea and Halmahera, where 30,000 Japanese have been isolated for more than a year.

Far East Air Force headquarters disclosed that Dutch-piloted Kittyhawks, based on Schouten island, also are hitting Halmahera and the Vogelkop peninsula of Dutch New Guinea while Australian Beauforts support ground actions near Wewak, British New Guinea.

TRUCE ALLOWS YANKS TO SWIM

Jap Major Won't Surrender but Holds His Fire.

Okinawa, July 11 (A. P.).—A weird truce has been arranged with a Japanese major commanding a garrison on an island off Okinawa whereby he permits Americans to swim and hunt shells on the beach but refuses to surrender "as long as there are no orders from the Emperor or his representative."

The truce negotiations with the Japanese, who shall be known in this account as Major Watanabe, started June 13 when an LCI broadcast an appeal to the island garrison to surrender.

Giving the word to the Japanese were Lieut. (j. g.) Henry C. Norton and Lieut. (j. g.) Osborn, Japanese language officers, and two captured Japanese officers (known in this account as Lieut. Abe and Lieut. Nomura.)

Lieut. Osborn volunteered and swam ashore, planting three white flags with instructions that one flag was to be left standing if no negotiations were wanted and two left standing if a personal interview was desired.

Next day two flags were flying. The Japanese commander sent a sergeant to meet one of the captured Japanese officers on the beach.

The sergeant was told that one of Watanabe's Japanese military academy classmates was wounded and held as prisoner.

Sees Wounded Classmate.

Watanabe agreed to talk with his wounded classmate.

The Americans returned June 26 bearing the wounded officer, known in this account as Major Hirakatsu, on a stretcher.

Watanabe arrived in full dress uniform to meet Lieut.-Col. George A. Clark of Galeton, Pa., a Marine officer commanding a nearby island. Clark emphasized that Watanabe and his staff could help rebuild a peaceful Japan if they chose to live.

As a gesture of good faith, Osborn and Norton accompanied the Japanese commander to his headquarters unarmed.

Amiably enough, Watanabe signed their Short Snorter bills.

After lunch, the American returned to the beach.

Next day a messenger appeared at the beach to report that Watanabe had decided not to surrender without word from the Emperor.

A yellow memorandum signed by the Japanese commander told Clark:

"We will refrain from harming any parties engaged in non-military pursuits such as swimming, picnicking and shell gathering on the shores of the island."

Heat Over Japan Hurls Bombs Back Into B-29

JUL 12 1945

Erickson

Tinian, Marianas Islands, July 11 (A. P.).—Thermal air currents generated by fires B-29s started in Wakayama yesterday were so strong that they shoved the incendiaries right back into one Superfort through its own bomb bay.

Major Robert H. Langdale of Houston, Tex., said today that just after his bombardier had released all incendiaries, fused and ready to burst into flame, the hot air sent them crashing upward into his B-29. They tore away a bomb bay door and hit the plane's horizontal stabilizer, but fell out again without doing any major damage to the plane.

Climaxing the eerie experience, powerful updrafts of scorching hot air flipped the Superfort over on its back in a half loop, heading the plane back over the burning targets.

The plane was flying belly up for several seconds until Langdale brought it under control and back on its course for a safe return to Tinian.

Like a Horror Film.

"Turmoil sure raged inside the plane," Lieut. Richard C. Baskett of Holton, Kan., said, "when the bombs bounced up into the bomb bay. Water flasks and loose equipment were floating around in the air and sometimes hit us when we weren't looking. It was just like actually being in the middle of one of those horror motion pictures."

But then the backflip turned the plane over so suddenly, said Lieut. Louis Avrami of Atlantic City, "that when I looked down through the bomb bay, expecting to see fires, I saw stars and the moon because I was actually looking up."

"Then," he said, "I turned my head and thought I was looking upward but I saw fires. For a brief moment I wondered if I were dead."

Yamashita Said to Have Sneaked From Luzon

JUL 12 1945

With United States Forces on Northern Luzon, P. I., July 11 (A. P.).—The report that a lone Jap airplane sneaked into northern Luzon and rescued the No. 1 Jap in the islands—Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita—from the jaws of a closing American trap is repeatedly encountered here.

In a tour of all American fighting fronts on northern Luzon Island the story is the most repeated of any single rumor. It is based on a swelling number of reports from Filipino guerrillas and civilians and American Army officers themselves.

The story is that when Balete Pass, entrance to the Cagayan Valley, was taken and the key junction of Santa Fe fell thirteen days later, the way was open for a lightning dash through the broad valley. The veteran Thirty-seventh Division moved so fast the Japs were unable to organize an effective defense, and it became apparent the battle of northern Luzon was lost.

So, according to the story toward which a majority of American officers lean, a single Jap plane flew into the Cagayan Valley at night and landed on one of the new airstrips still remaining in Jap hands even as the Thirty-seventh drove down the Tuguegardo Road. Yamashita, nicknamed the Tiger and former commander of the vaunted Japanese Kwantung Army in Manchuria, climbed aboard and sneaked off home.

It was announced in Tokyo that Jose Laurel, head of the puppet government the Japs set up in the Philippines, arrived in Japan on June 29. It was known that Laurel had sought refuge at Baguio with the Jap commander in chief.

Yamashita was named commander of the Japanese in the islands just twenty days after American invasion forces under Gen. Douglas MacArthur landed at Leyte last October.

ARMY SHOW ON SAIPAN

Saipan, July 11 (A. P.).—At home or on this Pacific Island it's still the strip tease that wows 'em, the Saipan opening of Irving Berlin's "This Is the Army" demonstrated.

Seven thousand appreciative soldiers, sailors and Marines sat in unsheltered seats through three light showers and a drenching downpour at last night's local premiere. Their cheers went to Sergt. Julie Oshins of New York city for his burlesque of stripper Gypsy Rose Lee.

The troupe is scheduled for three months in the Pacific Ocean areas. After three weeks in Saipan the company will go to Tinian and Guam before heading for Honolulu. Berlin left the show in Manila to return to the United States.

COURTS-MARTIAL UPHELD

Guam Commander Confirms the Convictions of 43

GUAM, July 11 (AP)—Court-martial convictions of forty-three soldiers attached to naval supply base companies as a result of shootings last Christmas night have been confirmed and are final, Maj. Gen. Henry Larsen, island commander, announced today.

The sentences against the defendants, all Negroes, varied from four months to four years. Another defendant confined to a hospital is still to be tried on one or more of the charges, which ranged from leaving an assigned area without permission to using Government property and riot and unlawful assembly.

In the disorders a white military policeman was wounded in the leg and stores of stolen weapons were recovered. Testimony established that early last Christmas night, twenty-five to thirty soldiers took two trucks without leave from the naval supply depot and drove toward Agana. Negro masters-at-arms and white military police assigned to the depot law enforcement detail apprehended them.

Geiger Given Gold Star For Taking Palau Islands

Pearl Harbor, July 11 (AP)—Marine Lieutenant General Roy S. Geiger was awarded the Gold Star today in lieu of a third Distinguished Service Medal for "brilliant leadership, gallantry and resolute tenacity" during the capture of the Southern Palau Islands last August through October.

The presentation was made by Vice Admiral John H. Towers, deputy commander in chief of the Pacific Fleet. Geiger was in command of the 3d Marine Amphibious Corps during the Palau operation. He was recently named commander of all Marine forces in the Pacific.

Blind Japs Get Invasion Task.

San Francisco, July 11 (A. P.).—Because of the "urgent national situation" blinded Japanese war veterans will load freight cars, push carts and transport ammunition in the event of an invasion, Radio Tokyo said today in a broadcast monitored by the Federal Communications Commission.

Polish Commander Asks Loyalty to Exile Regime

Appeal to Troops Puts Support of Britain to Test

LONDON, July 11 (AP).—The Commander of the Polish 1st Armored Division in occupied Germany has appealed to his troops to remain loyal to the exiled Polish government, asserting that "we shall return to Poland—but only with arms in hands," Polish armed forces headquarters here reported today.

NIGHT

The 1st Armored Division is part of 250,000 Polish troops abroad serving under British operational command. The order raised the question whether the British could continue to support an armed force many of whose officers are antagonistic to the new Polish government in Warsaw, without straining Britain's relations with Warsaw and Moscow.

The headquarters made public an order of the day by the divisional commander, General Klemens Rudnicki, which declared: "We shall always remain faithful to our soldier's oath and continue obedience to the highest commander of our armed forces, President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz (of the exiled regime)."

A British Foreign Office spokesman declined to comment immediately on Rudnicki's order.

If a number of major officers continue loyal to the exiled regime, it appeared likely that Polish units would be withdrawn from the field and its members given the choice of returning home or becoming private citizens under the British flag.

Scene Of Big 3 Meeting, Shows Changes

JUL 12 1945

Potsdam, Since—

London, July 11 (AP)—The agenda of the Big Three's approaching talks at Potsdam, as reported in reliable diplomatic quarters, makes the meeting the most important diplomatic conference since Versailles.

More than a score of important issues, including reparations and relief, await the attention of President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

Three officials with important roles in the conference figured in developments today. Joseph E. Davies, former American Ambassador to Russia, arrived in London; the Russian Embassy disclosed that Ambassador Feodor Gusev left for Moscow to confer with Stalin; the British Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden, talked with King George, believed to be a sign of Eden's imminent departure to join Churchill, now resting in southern France.

The Chief Issues

Diplomats rated these as chief issues for Big Three consideration:

1. Co-ordination of the occupation policy in Germany, involving fraternization, re-education of the Germans and the extent to which political parties and trade unions will be allowed to function.

2. Recognition of Italy as a member of the United Nations, preliminary to her consideration by the world security league.

3. The Anglo-American request to Stalin to reopen eastern Europe in order to remove misunderstanding and eliminate criticism here and in the United States.

4. Anticipated demand by Stalin for an Allied economic "squeeze play" to force the fall of Franco's Spanish Government.

5. Russia's request for participation in conferences on the return of Tangier to international status.

6. Counter-request from Britain to participate in any discussion on future control of the Dardanelles.

7. An attempt to agree on a tentative outline of the future map of Europe—a job involving more than 30 territorial changes affecting nearly every country.

8. Survey of progress in plans to try major war criminals this summer.

9. Possibility of establishing a unified police force to maintain peace in Europe.

10. Methods for hastening rehabilitation of Europe by giving UNRRA greater powers and responsibilities.

POLISH GENERAL BACKS EXILES

Tells Troops He Recognizes Only London Regime.

London, July 11 (A. P.).—Headquarters of the Polish armed forces abroad announced today that Gen. Klemens Rudnicki, commander of the First Polish Armored Division, had issued an order of the day to his troops declaring his continued allegiance to the Polish exile regime in London.

"We shall always remain faithful to our soldier's oath and continue obedience to the highest commander of our armed forces, President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz," Rudnicki was quoted as saying. "We shall return to Poland—but only with arms in hand."

Raczkiewicz is head of the exiled administration from which Britain and the United States withdrew recognition last week after placing their stamp of approval on the newly formed Provisional Government of National Unity in Warsaw, created in accordance with the Crimea charter. The First Armored Division now is serving with the British forces of occupation in Germany, and is part of the 250,000 Polish troops abroad whose disposition has been a matter of some speculation since withdrawal of recognition from the exile Government.

Will Carry Out Orders.

While voicing allegiance to Raczkiewicz, Rudnicki declared that he and his troops would continue to carry out the task assigned to in Germany.

"We shall long for our country," he said, "but we shall wait patiently. Our task as a division of occupation on German soil, which was trampled by us, has been assigned to us by our superior authorities, and we shall carry out this task loyally and honestly."

The British Foreign Office declined to comment immediately upon Rudnicki's order of the day, in which he informed his troops that Britain and the United States had withdrawn recognition from "the legal government of the Polish republic." Rudnicki's statements, however, underscored the potentially grave situation now confronting the British in determining the future of the Polish armed forces under their operational command.

Ticklish Question for Allies.

It raised the question of whether the British and American governments can continue to support on foreign soil an armed force directed by officers many of whom are outspokenly antagonistic to the new Warsaw Government without straining relations with Warsaw and Moscow.

Rudnicki was quoted as telling his men:

"We shall never give up the fight for the freedom of Poland and of other countries deprived of freedom in accordance with our traditional motto—for your freedom and ours. And in this fight we shall not remain alone. Soldiers, this is our attitude and our will.

"We shall return to the Poland which we longed for in our dreams during five years of continuous battle, to a free and truly independent Poland. We shall wipe the tears of our women and children and ultimately realize that right and not foreign might shall govern our country."

INDIA ISSUE SEEN GROWING BRIGHTER

London, July 11 (A. P.).—The All-India radio said today Mohammed Ali Jinnah, president of the Moslem League, which declined to nominate representatives to the British-proposed new national government, would meet at Simla this afternoon with the Viceroy, Field Marshal Lord Wavell.

The broadcast said encouraging signs were seen in today's developments. It quoted Jinnah as saying he and other league delegates to the Indian-British conference on Wavell's proposals would be present when it reconvenes Saturday.

The league has demanded the right to name all Moslems in the proposed government as a condition of participation. Previously the Congress party, largely Hindu, demanded and obtained the inclusion of its Moslem president, Maulana Kalan Abul Azad, in the present Simla conference.

Greece's Premier On Border Tour

London, July 11 (AP)—Yugoslavia tonight renewed assertions that Macedonians were fleeing from Greece "before an organized terror" as Greece's Prime Minister, Admiral Petros Voulgaris, rushed to Salonika for a personal investigation of danger-fraught border troubles.

Before leaving Athens, Voulgaris formally appealed to Britain and the United States to protect the Greek population in northern Epirus, along the Albanian border, until frontier disputes in that region could be settled at the international peace conference.

Tito's Speech

The Yugoslav Ministry of Information declared that Greeks from western Thrace, the Athens area and Salonika, as well as Macedonians, were fleeing from the alleged terror.

Premier Voulgaris's trip to Salonika apparently was inspired by Marshal Tito's assertion in a speech at Belgrade last week that "Greek reactionaries" were firing across the Yugoslav border in an attempt to provoke Yugoslavs to retaliation. Tito said at that time that Yugoslavia would not be provoked by the reported incidents, but would not demobilize her army as long as other nations remained armed.

The Yugoslav news agency declared last night that the total of refugees fleeing from Greece had passed the 20,000 mark.

Tanjug, Yugoslav press agency, quoted a Salonkia newspaper as declaring that more than 600 persons had been killed in Greece.

GREEKS ACCUSED ANEW BY SLAVS

London, July 11 (A. P.).—A Yugoslav Telegraph Agency dispatch from Belgrade said today the Yugoslav Ministry of Information had issued a statement charging that more than 20,000 refugees from Greek terrorism have sought protection in Yugoslavia.

The dispatch said the statement was issued in reply to a denial by the Greek press undersecretary of charges by Marshal Tito of a reign of terror against Slavs in Greek territory.

"The statement reaffirms the fact," said the telegraph agency, "that groups of refugees from the part of Macedonia under Greek sovereignty are escaping daily across the frontier into Yugoslavia, many of them beaten up and all fleeing from an organized terror and leaving behind their devastated homes."

Turks Dissociate Russ Pact, Straits

London, July 11 (AP)—The Turkish Foreign Minister, Hassan Saka, said today that revision of the Turko-Soviet friendship treaty and the future administration of the Dardanelles were questions which must be treated separately.

Although refusing to discuss proposals reportedly submitted to the Turkish Government by Russia for revision of the Russian pact, Saka told a press conference that questions of frontier revision and territorial concessions have not arisen.

Concerning the Dardanelles, he said that because the straits are now regulated by the Montreux Convention of 1936, any modification of their administration must be determined by international agreement, adding there was "no conceivable juridical basis for settlement by bilateral agreement between any two powers."

Territorial integrity and free and unconditional self-determination are the basic conditions for future relations between the U.S.S.R. and Turkey, said Saka, who conferred earlier in the day with the British Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden.

Berlin-Paris-London Air Route Planned

London, July 11 (A. P.).—A spokesman for the Air Transport Command disclosed today that the ATC is planning regular air service between Berlin, Paris and London.

Inauguration of the flights is awaiting completion of repairs to Tempelhof Airdrome, which has been taken over by the United States occupation troops in Berlin, the spokesman declared.

BRITISH DENY HARMONY ON AUSTRIA OCCUPATION

LONDON, July 11—(AP) A British Foreign Office spokesman described today as "entirely untrue" a published report that complete agreement had been reached among the Allies on the occupation of Austria.

The question is still before the European Advisory commission, he said.

The chief difficulty blocking final agreement, it was understood, is the question of sub-dividing Vienna.

750,000 Britons For Jobs This Year

London, July 11 (A. P.).—A Ministry of Labor prediction that despite gradual demobilization not more than 750,000 new workers would become available to civilian industries this year drew expressions of alarm today from London newspapers.

LAST OF U.S. EIGHTH BOMBERS HEAD HOME

AIR TRANSPORT COMMANDER BASE, Wales, July 11. — (AP) The last of a once mighty fleet of Britain-based U. S. Eighth Airforce bombers stared homeward today at the rate of one every 20 minutes.

An official tabulation disclosed that 2,110 four-engined bombers carrying 41,500 Eighth AAF personnel had been re-deployed to the United States.

Altogether, more than 60,000 troops, or the equivalent of four infantry divisions, have flown home since the third week in May, with 20,000 more due to go this month.

EIRE CALLED A REPUBLIC

JUL 12 1945

De Valera Says So; British Term It Dominion

Dublin, July 11. (AP)—Premier Eamon de Valera today declared that Eire is a republic, but refused to elaborate on his assertion. The British Government takes the position that Eire is a dominion.

The opposition leader, James Dillon, a persistent critic of de Valera's policies, asked the Prime Minister at a session of the Dail whether the country was a republic or not, adding, "nobody seems to know."

"It's a republic," de Valera replied.

"This is a republic," Dillon commented, "that's the greatest news I've heard for a long time. Now we know where we are and the League of Nations at San Francisco knows. Can anybody tell me when did this happen?"

'You'll Hear . . . Later'

"You'll hear about it later," de Valera answered, closing the argument.

Eire itself by an act of the Dail has authorized the King of England to act for it in the international field 'so long as Eire is associated with . . . Canada, Great Britain, New Zealand and South Africa and so long as the King is recognized by those nations as a symbol of their co-operation and continues to act on behalf of each of those nations . . . for the purposes of appointment of diplomatic and consular representatives and the conclusion of international agreements."

No Constitutional Mention

Eire's Constitution of 1937 does not include the term "republic," although it provides all the machinery for one. Neither does the constitution mention the King in connection with internal affairs of state.

The constitution declares that Eire's national territory consists of the whole island of Ireland, its islands and territorial seas. The British position is that Eire does not include Northern Ireland but only the southern counties formerly known as the Irish Free State.

A Joke?

De Valera's statement created a sensation in Dublin. The newspapers gave it prominent display but appeared to be unable to assess its meaning.

The Irish Independent, under a headline "Mystery of the Republic," commented: "If de Valera were noted for a sense of humor the people naturally would take his statement for a joke . . . The thing could be very amusing if it did not makes the Irish people look so ridiculous."

It is generally expected that de Valera will provide further explanation when Parliament meets again Thursday.

Churchill And French To Confer, Report Says

St. Jean de Luz, France, July 11 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, vacationing at this picturesque little Basque seaport, is expected to have an informal diplomatic conference with French officials possibly tomorrow.

The Prime Minister took advantage today of the first excellent weather since he arrived to go sailing and spent most of the afternoon painting from the deck of the small sardine fishing vessel.

His daughter, Mary, spent the day beside the Bay of Biscay as usual in a red bathing suit.

Mrs. Churchill, although suffering from an infected toe and a broken tooth, both incurred during her vacation, spent the morning walking around the grounds of their chateau.

A Churchill aide said he probably would go directly to the Potsdam conference of the Big Three while his family returned to London.

The U... States, Great Britain and Brazil have marked two direct paths across the ocean with chains of ships, stationed like beacons to guide planes along the way and help any which may be forced down.

Brig.-Gen. Earl S. Hoag, commander of the European division of the United States Air Transport Command, described the mass movement of men and machines today as the "greatest aerial elevator of all times." Of 4,157 Flying Fortresses, Liberators, two-engined bombers and transports starting across the Atlantic, only two have been lost without trace.

60,000 Flown Home Up to Now.

More than 60,000 troops have been flown home since April 20. Another 20,000 will fly home this month, most of them battle veterans with enough points for discharge, or specialists en route to the Pacific. In August 30,000 will fly home.

The Eighth, Ninth and Twelfth air forces are moving en masse. Many bombers which survived rough raids over Germany are headed for Japan. Although combat veterans, flying long water stretches usually is new to bomber pilots. They are given brief instructions in celestial navigation, and the chains of ships stand out as traffic signals along the way. Naval men say the ships have been important psychologically.

Much of the air-sea rescue system still is secret. The number of ships cannot be disclosed but a third are British, a seventh Brazilian and the rest are American. The Brazilian cruiser Bahia sank last week while on air-sea duty, presumably after hitting a floating mine. In mapping the routes and allowing them to be made public, officials displayed contempt for any attempt of Jap submarines to venture into the Atlantic.

The Two Air Routes.

Two evacuation routes have been marked. The northern passage begins at the British Isles and passes through Iceland or the Azores to Newfoundland. The southern route starts at Marseilles, carries to Casablanca across the hump of Africa over Ascension Island to Natal, Brazil. It swings through the Caribbean to the United States.

Ships standing watch have a tedious job, broken only by exchange signals and greetings to the homing air crews. Unlike the old anchored weather stations along the United States Atlantic Coast, naval ships in the trans-Atlantic chains move over a small area on patrol. They keep in constant touch with planes overhead, giving weather instruction or sounding alerts.

Long range land planes such as the American Catalinas and British Sunderlands stand ready on both sides of the Atlantic and on islands in between to speed to the scene of any crash.

Naval and Air Force officials said the idea of a "trans-Atlantic chain" of ships would not be very practical in peacetime because of expense. The safety element already is high in regular commercial ocean flights, they said. The present redeployment requires special precautions, however, because the majority of planes involved are fighting craft rather than transports, and the type of flying is strange to pilots whose training has been for combat.

FRENCH HAW HAW SENTENCED TO DIE

Paris, July 11 (A. P.).—A four-man jury of the Paris Court of Justice tonight convicted Paul Ferdonnet of treason and sentenced him to death for having broadcast Nazi propaganda over the Stuttgart radio.

Defense counsel filed an appeal. If that is rejected Ferdonnet's only recourse would be to ask clemency from Gen. de Gaulle.

The alleged "French Lord Haw Haw," correspondent and author of a pro-German and anti-Semitic book, had lived in Germany since 1927 and is married to the daughter of a Berlin journalist.

He was equipped with papers identifying him as a Belgian refugee, on the strength of which he had opened a canteen, when French troops arrested him at Tuttlingen on June 4. His attorney said he would deny broadcasting for the Germans.

Meanwhile, the State prosecutor indicated the treason trial of Marshal Petain was expected to open between July 19 and 24 and would last about two weeks. More than 200 foreign correspondents and 100 French newspapermen have applied for seats. The Attorney-General issued a summons yesterday for all witnesses in the trial and ordered lodgings in the courthouse for the 89-year-old former Vichy Chief of State.

14-year-old Boy Hitch-hiked Through War

Paris, July 11 (A. P.).—Fourteen-year-old Freddie Pets, who thumbed his way across Europe through five years of war, is now trying to get back to the United States the same way—but wearing an American Army uniform which is his only suit of clothes.

The stocky little four-footer is togged out in a battlejacket and light field trousers and sports an airborne patch, glider pilot's wings and a European Theater ribbon with three battle stars. He has been mascot and general handyman for the First Armored Division in Italy, the Tenth Armored Division in Germany and the Sixty-fifth Infantry in Austria.

At Linz, according to Freddie, his claim to American citizenship was checked. The Red Cross brought him to Lyons and then to Paris, where he nas been adopted by the 436th Troop Carrier Group in hopes of a ride back home.

Freddie's father was a trapeze performer who traveled in a tent circuit in New York and Massachusetts and was killed in a fall during a performance in 1936. Freddie then went with his mother to her native Switzerland, where she died in an automobile accident when Freddie was 7 years old.

Since then he has "just traveled about." He has been in Spain, Germany, Italy, France, Austria and Hungary. Through most of the German occupation he was in Hungary and Austria.

"No one cared if I had a passport," Freddie explains. "I was just a little boy in dirty clothes. If they asked me questions I ran away."

He doesn't know of any relatives.

Petain Trial To Open July 23

Paris, July 11 (AP)—Attorney General Andre Mornet said tonight that July 23 had been accepted by both the prosecution and defense as the date for the opening of the trial of Marshal Henri Philippe Pétain.

ALLIED GENERALS TAKE OVER TASK OF RULING BERLIN

Lochner

BERLIN, July 11—(AP) Four generals upon whom devolves the task of governing the defeated German Reich's bomb-cratered capital today constituted themselves Berlin's "Kommandantur" and announced they would take over the city at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

Their names soon will be household words in Berlin—Col. Gen. Alexander V. Gorbatov of Russia, Maj. Gen. Gloyd L. Parks of the U. S., Maj. Gen. L. O. Lyne of Britain, and Maj. Gen. Geoffrey de Beauchesne of France.

In what Lyne, as spokesman for the "Kommandantur" or commandery, described as an "atmosphere of "great friendliness," the four met in Gorbatov's headquarters in Berlin's veterinary college only a short distance from Hitler's ruined chancellery. The Soviets had raised the banners of the four victorious nations in the huge building's courtyard, leaving a large red and gold star hammer and sickle atop the building to indicate this was Russian occupied territory.

The conferees sat at a T-formed table with Gorbatov at top. He will head the "Kommandantur" at first, after which other members will rotate on a 15-day basis.

Lyne admitted great difficulties lie ahead, but said 17 subcommittees of experts were working out details and added "I cannot believe there is any problem which cannot be solved."

For the present, each Allied occupied sector will be responsible for supplying its troops as well as civilians, but there will be interchange and possibly a pooling of commodities to insure unified supply and distribution. French officials and troops are continuing to live as guests in the British sector, meanwhile studying their occupation tasks.

Lyne said proclamations will be issued tomorrow to Berliners informing them that in broad outline the set-up hitherto designed by the Russians will be continued and advising them the "Kommandantur" now is the supreme governing body which will direct the Berlin mayor and the city council what to do.

ALLIES IN HARMONY IN BERLIN MEETING

Berlin, July 11 (A. P.).—The four-Power authority for governing Berlin agreed unanimously on all points discussed at its first meeting today "in an atmosphere of great friendliness," the British representative, Major-Gen. L. O. Lyne, said. Col.-Gen. Alexander V. Gorbatov, commandant of the Russian occupation zone, presided.

Meeting with Gorbatov were Major-Gen. Floyd L. Parks, commander of the American zone in Berlin, representing the United States; Gen. Lyne and the French representative, Major-Gen. Geoffrey de Beauchesen.

The session was held at the former Tieraerztliche Hochschule or veterinary college at 58 Luisenstrasse, northern extension of the Wilhelmstrasse, and located in the Russian zone of occupation.

HAS NO WORD OF GOERING KIN

Wife Thinks Husband Was Taken to Moscow.

Berlin, July 11 (A. P.).—Mrs. Herbert Goering said today she felt convinced that her husband, who is a cousin of Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering had been taken to Moscow as a specialist, but explained her information was based only on hearsay.

For many years Herbert Goering was the right hand man of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, former Minister of Economics, and later became a liaison man of the Vereingite Stahlwerke steel trust to the gigantic Hermann Goering Werke, Nazidom's principal heavy industry concern.

Mrs. Goering said her husband was arrested by the Russians on May 3 and was permitted to see her every second day. She said he told her that the Russians wanted him to co-operate in post-war reconstruction, but the final decision depended upon the arrival of some one from Moscow.

She said the Russians came to their home again on May 8 without her husband and that she had not seen him since.

Told of New Hearing.

Toward the end of May, she said, her husband sent word to her that he had been subjected to another hearing, as a result of which the Soviets were anxious to have him work for them in Moscow. Mrs. Goering said she later heard from a friend that "he had been flown to Vienna and thence to Moscow."

Herbert Goering and his wife were arrested by the Gestapo on August 30, 1944, for alleged defeatism as an aftermath of the attempt on Hitler's life.

They had separate cells in the Albrechtstrasse Gestapo headquarters, but after Mrs. Goering was released September 11, 1944, they were permitted to communicate by letter once a week and she was allowed to take food there for her husband. He was not released until April 4, 1945. She was rearrested last March 15 and held until April 21.

Alcohol Kills 3 G. Is

BERLIN, July 11 (AP).—Three American soldiers have died and two others suffered permanent impairment of vision after drinking alcohol obtained from unauthorized channels in Berlin, officials disclosed today. Troops of the United States 2d Armored Division were instructed not to buy alcoholic beverages from private vendors, but to wait until unit commanders obtained supplies from distilleries authorized by the Allied Military Government.

Reich Has Freedom Of Speech Even If Not Freedom Of Press

Munich, July 11 (AP)—Freedom o fthe press has not been restored to Germany, but the Germans certainly have been allowed freedom of expression.

The press department of the American Military Government in Bavaria has a staff of German newspaper men circulating among the population, gathering items of interest. Frequently they have written bold criticism of the Russians and even the Americans.

These releases have been passed on to Allied correspondents with the notation: "Attached was written by a German newspaperman working under supervision of the press, radio and public relations officer of Bavaria. It is not to be construed as an official release."

Movie Star Speaks Out

A recent sample was an interview in which the German movie star, Hans Albers, was quoted as saying:

"I am still a proud German and abhor those who crawl around the Americans tryying to get in their good graces. I hate National Socialism, but as it seems there never was a Nazi German, I don't want to be classed among those who run to the Americans professing their innocence.

"The Americans have disappointed me. They continually reiterated on teh radio and in the press that National Socialism must be wiped out. I would gladly have offered my services for this work, but one fears there are worse rascals still around and one just can't believe anything.

Not All Strong Enough

"If the Americans are not more friendly, we will all become Bolsheviks. One shouldn't keep on telling us that we are all to blame. Not every German was strong enough to end up as a corpse in a concentration camp. I don't think an American would have acted more heroic under the same circumstances."

Officers explained that the idea of such a release is to obtain a candid cross-section of German public opinion.

RUSSIA PLANNING CARS FOR PEOPLE

Moscow, July 11 (A. P.).—Pravda announced today that the Soviet Union is preparing to launch a grandiose program of automobile manufacture under which new factories will turn out cars and trucks, old factories will be rebuilt and every branch of the automotive industry will be expanded on a broad scale. New plants will be opened at Dniepropetrovsk, Kutais, Ulyanosk and other cities, the announcement said.

The big Stalin plant in Moscow is turning out cars and trucks which were described as the last word in contemporary automobile construction. Such expansion indicates that cars may be on their way to the Russian people for private use. Very few individuals own cars.

Red Flyers Train in Germany

MOSCOW, July 11 (AP).—A dispatch to the Soviet Army organ "Red Star" from "an airdrome in Germany" said today that Red Army flyers were undergoing combat training there under conditions approximately those of actual battle. Said to be part of a large-scale Red Army battle-training program, the practice was described as arousing great interest among Soviet airmen and "bringing them big benefits."

Balkan Air Force Disbands

Flyers From Seven Nations Made Spectacular Missions

ROME, July 11 (AP).—The Balkan Air Force, which accomplished some of the most spectacular missions of the war, has been disbanded, an order of the day from Air Marshal Sir Guy Garrod, the commander, disclosed today. The Balkan Air Force is composed of flyers from Great Britain, the United States, Russia, Poland, Greece, Yugoslavia and Italy.

The flyers dropped arms and supplies to Partisans in Warsaw, central France and the Balkans and evacuated many hundreds of Allied wounded and civilians from Partisan territory. It battered enemy strongholds repeatedly in Yugoslavia, Greece and Albania.

VAL D'AOSTA AUTONOMY

Italian Cabinet Grants New Status to Border Area

ROME, July 11 (AP)—The Italian Cabinet today granted "local autonomy" to the Val d'Aosta region of northwestern Italy in the first step of a move apparently intended to meet French, Yugoslav and Austrian territorial demands at the peace conference.

The Val d'Aosta region along the French frontier was occupied briefly after V-E Day by French troops, who later withdrew.

The Cabinet announcement said all "foreign-origin" persons residing in Italian territory would have complete economic, commercial and educational equality.

Nisei Regiment Assigned

442d Infantry Outfit to Become Part of Strategic Reserve

ROME, July 11 (AP).—The United States 442d Infantry Regiment, composed of Americans and Japanese descent who fought with distinction in Italy and France, will become part of the strategic reserve when it returns to the United States, Army headquarters announced today.

The announcement was made to correct a previous report that the 442d, which will be one of the last American units to leave the Mediterranean theater, would become part of the tactical reserve for the Pacific war. (The tactical reserve is held in close support for combat duty.)

ROME, July 11 (AP)—Three United States Army divisions—the Thirty-fourth, Forty-fifth and Eighty-eighth—which fought in the United States Fifth Army in Italy have been cited by the French Government "in recognition of feats of arms by these great units during the Italian campaign." The citations, signed by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, carry with them the award of the Croix de Guerre with palm.

DUCE'S WIFE CALLS HIM 'INTELLIGENT'

Says He Was One Of Brainiest Men Who Ever Lived

New York, July 11 (AP)—Donna Rachele Mussolini, widow of the late Italian dictator, was quoted in a broadcast from Rome tonight as declaring that her husband was "one of the most intelligent men who ever lived."

Clete Roberts, Rome correspondent of the American Broadcasting Company, said Signora Mussolini told him in an interview at an internment camp about 60 miles from Rome that Mussolini has been treated unjustly.

"They blame him for everything," Roberts quoted her as saying. "The blame should be placed on other people, from Badoglio to the King."

Has Started A Book

Signora Mussolini said she has started to write a book, the story of her life with Mussolini. "After living with him for 36 years I know him very well," Roberts said she told him. "Only I can write the book."

The correspondent said the dictator's widow, as she started to leave the room after the interview, turned back and shouted: "Mussolini was a very intelligent man. Some day you will realize it."

Roberts said Signora Mussolini's eyes flashed when he asked her about Claretta Petacci, Mussolini's mistress who was executed with him.

"They have done well to hang her," she shouted, pounding the table.

'I Was The Only One'

Still pounding the table, she told Roberts: "Mussolini never had anything to do with any woman. He never let them have any influence over him. All that propaganda they put out just to ruin him. . . . I was the only one he thought anything of and I was the only woman who thought something of him."

Signora Mussolini said she had been with her husband in northern Italy only eight days before he was captured by partisans. She said he talked with her by telephone only six or seven hours before he was shot in the back in Milan, telling her to try to get to Switzerland but if she had any trouble with the guards to give herself up to American military authorities.

She was picked up later in the same region where Mussolini was captured, near Lake Como, and was brought to an internment camp by British authorities. Roberts said the British do not regard her as a very important enemy. They are holding her only in protective custody, along with two of her children, 16-year-old Anna Maria and 17-year-old Romano.

Say Frank Stole Czech's Cash

Prague Papers Accuse Nazi Chief Now Held by Americans

PRAGUE, July 11 (AP).—Prague newspapers published documents today indicating that Karl Hermann Frank, rated by the Czechoslovaks as the No. 1 living war criminal, took personal possession of most of the Czech National Bank's free currency before he attempted to escape. The money has been recovered.

Frank, Hitler's minister for the protectorate, is in American custody, but may be extradited for trial here.

Frank was said to have mailed the bundle of money with a letter to an International Red Cross official then in Prague, asking him to safeguard it. Instead, the official returned the money to the government, the newspapers said.

14 Young Werewolves Arrested By Czechs

Prague, July 11 (AP)—Czech security police have arrested fourteen young Germans in the border towns of Broumov and Falknov, charging the young men boasted they were members of the Nazi Werewolves underground organization.

The police found light machine guns and other weapons in their possession.

Police said the youths testified at a hearing that they had been trained in sabotage methods in small groups in Germany and predicted the Werewolves would undertake widespread activity.

DENIES LEOPOLD SUMMONS REGENT

Brussels, July 11 (A. P.).—It was announced today on good authority and then denied that King Leopold had summoned his brother, Regent Prince Charles, to his Bavarian villa at Salzburg.

The denial was issued in the name of the Government by Adolphe van Glabbeke, Minister of the Interior, after Brussels newspapers had carried an official Belgian News Agency report of plans for Prince Charles to depart tomorrow. However, the belief prevailed in some well-posted quarters that Charles would go to see his brother and that the denial was issued because the Government did not want to publicize the fact.

The report that Charles and Robert Gillon, president of the Senate, and Franz van Caufelaert president of the Chamber of Deputies, would visit the King had created the impression that Leopold had reached a final decision on whether to abdicate.

Van Glabbeke's statement did not deny that the heads of the two parliamentary chambers had been summoned to the King's villa.

Plan to Rid Spain of Nazis.

Madrid, July 11 (A. P.).—Well informed sources said today Allied authorities were drafting a plan to send home most Germans now in Spain, before the end of summer if possible. The plan would affect about 10,000 Germans.

British Appoint Temporary Body to Replace Council

JERUSALEM, July 11 (AP)—The appointment of a temporary commission of five British officials to head Jerusalem's administration in place of the Municipal Council, which has been reduced to less than a quorum through resignations, was announced today by the Palestine High Commission.

The commission also announced that as a result of the breakdown of Jerusalem's municipal administration Chief Justice Sir William Fitzgerald would study the situation and make recommendations for a new organization. The Government proposed last March 21 that the Municipal Councilors rotate the Mayoralty among Christians, Moslems and Jews, but none of the three groups accepted the proposal.

Former Postmaster General G. H. Webster was named chairman of the temporary commission.

Fifth Former U. S. Airfield Is Recaptured by Chinese

JUL 12 1945

Troops Push to Within 15 Miles of Another Abandoned Base.

Moose

CHUNGKING, July 11 — (AP) Chinese troops, driving 32 miles in three days, have recaptured a fifth abandoned U. S. air base and pushed to within less than 15 miles of Kahnsien, site of still another major American airfield lost to the enemy, the Chinese high command announced today.

This offensive, striking toward Kahnsien from the southwest, overran Sincheng—where the U. S. 14th air force abandoned a base last Jan. 29—and then drove on 17 miles and recaptured Nankang, 15 miles from Kahnsien, on Tuesday afternoon, the high command said.

Japanese in Flight

It declared the Japanese were fleeing toward Kahnsien, 240 miles north of Hong Kong, with the Chinese in pursuit.

Sincheng, fifth base to be liberated, is 32 miles from Kahnsien. It was retaken Monday. The Chinese on Saturday captured Tayu, 47 miles southwest of Kahnsien, and in three days have driven 32 miles up the Kwantung-Kiangsi highway toward Kahnsien, by Chinese account. The fall of Tayu had isolated the city.

Other Chinese troops are fighting six miles east of Kahnsien, headquarters here said, while the Japanese are sending two columns north and northwest of Kahnsien. One of these is 12 1-2 miles northwest of Kahnsien. The other struck out north of the city toward Suichwan, and was engaged by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's forces, the Chinese said.

The high command also belatedly announced that Chinese forces on July 3 captured a point only four and one-half miles west of Shaoyang (Paoking), site of a seventh air base given up by the Americans last year. Shaoyang is 225 miles northwest of Kahnsien, and guards the western approaches to the prime rail junction of Hengyang.

Besides Sincheng, the other recaptured American air bases are Suichwan, Yungning (Nanning), Liuchow and Tanchuk.

Other Chinese to the southwest in Kwangsi province captured Chungtu, 30 miles northeast of Liuchow, and about 60 miles southwest of Kweilin, where Maj.-Gen. Claire L. Chennault once had a bomber base. Chungtu was captured at 11 p.m. Monday, a Chinese communique said.

On the West (Si) river front southeast of Liuchow, Chinese troops pushing eastward along the river are advancing upon the once-thriving former river treaty port of Wuchow on the Kwangtung-Kwangsi border, the Chungking bulletin said.

Nip Contract Lines

It did not state how far the Chinese were from Wuchow, the funnel through which the Japanese invaded Kwangsi from Kwangtung last year. The Japanese in this area have been contracting their lines in the direction of Canton, 110 miles east of Wuchow.

An American communique announced that "for the first time in months, 14th air force fliers encountered air opposition when a mission of P-38s was attacked by four Japanese fighters at Linh Cam, southwest of Vinh in French Indo-China, yesterday. One enemy plane was damaged."

Fighter planes, supporting the Chinese push on Kahnsien, damaged 25 buildings and destroyed one in that city, the communique said. Other missions wrecked two warehouses near Wuchang on the Yangtze river, and destroyed 13 and damaged 10 more river craft in the Hengyang area. In Indo-China, B-25s hit railroad shops north of Hanoi. All the U. S. planes returned.

In Kunming, General Chennault declared in an interview that the Japanese "are in pretty bad shape and getting in worse shape daily. They are not in shape to fight a long continued war."

The 14th air force commander said "there is always the possibility the Japs will surrender, but in my opinion the chances are better than 50-50 that they will not." If the Allies exploit their advantages, he added, "I don't think it is necessary to fight two more years to lick the Japs."

CHINESE RETAKE U. S. AIR BASE

Sincheng Is Fifth Field Recovered From Foe.

Moose

Chungking, July 11 (A. P.).—Chinese forces have recaptured the former American air base of Sincheng in Kiangsi province and are advancing northward toward another former air base at Kahnsien, 210 miles northeast of Canton, the Chinese High Command announced today.

Chinese troops also recaptured Nankang on the Kiangsi-Kwangtung highway, fifteen miles southwest of Kahnsien, and were pursuing Japs retreating toward the former American air base city, the Chinese said.

Sincheng was the fifth former American air base to be recovered in the new Chinese drive. It was abandoned by Major-Gen. Claire L. Chennault on January 29. Other liberated air bases are those at Suichwan, Yungning (Nanning), Liuchow and Tanchung.

In Kwangsi province, meanwhile, Chinese troops, driving on the former American air base at Kweilin, have captured Chungtu, thirty miles northeast of Liuchow on the Liuchow-Kweilin highway, the Chinese said. Other Chinese forces 130 miles to the southeast struck eastward from recently liberated Tengyun and advanced toward the important inland port of Wuchow, forty miles to the east on the Kwangtung-Kwangsi border, through which the Japs funneled their invasion forces from Kwangtung to Kwangsi last year.

The enemy was cleared from Chungtu, the Chinese said, and in the Tengyun area the Japs were carrying out a strategic contraction of their lines in the direction of Canton, a little more than 110 miles southwest of Wuchow.

Counter-attacking Jap troops in Kiangsi province struck northwestward from a point twelve and one-half miles northwest of Kanhsien, the Chinese said, while another enemy column pushed northward from Kanhsien along the highway leading to the recovered air base city of Suichwan, and were engaged by the Chinese.

Kanhsien, which used to be the seat of the model southern Kiangsi district administered by the Generalissimo's elder son, Chiang Ching-kuo, was completely cut off by Chinese severance of communications with Kukong, on the Canton-Hankow railroad 125 miles north of Canton.

The High Command belatedly announced that Chinese troops on July 1 captured a point four and one-half miles west of another former American air base, Paoching, which guards the western approaches to the vital rail junction city of Hengyang.

Jap Air Force Stirs In Indo-China

Chungking, July 11 (A. P.).—For the first time in months Japan's battered Southeast Asia air force has put up air opposition to American planes, Lieut.-Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's headquarters reported today. A mission of United States Fourteenth Air Force P-38 fighters was attacked by four Jap fighters yesterday at Linh Cam, southwest of Vinh in French Indo-China. One enemy plane was damaged, Wedemeyer's communique said.

CHENNAULT SEES JAPS FIGHTING ON

Kunming, China, July 11 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Claire L. Chennault told a press conference yesterday: "There is always the possibility the Japs will surrender, but in my opinion the chances are better than 50-50 they will not."

Asked for comment on a recently published remark by Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell that the war might last another two years, the United States Fourteenth Air Force commander said that if the Allies exploited their advantages, "I don't think it is necessary to fight two more years to lick the Japs. They are in pretty bad shape and getting in worse shape daily. They are not in shape to fight a long continued war."

The Japanese have been moving planes from the home islands to Manchuria since the heavy American raids on Japan, Gen. Chennault said.

BRITISH WIPE OUT JAP STRONGPOINT ON SITTANG RIVER

Kelly

CALCUTTA, July 11—(AP) British troops have wiped out a Japanese strongpoint in the lower Sittang river area of Burma, and have repulsed two enemy attacks near Toungoo, 100 miles to the north, the Southeast Asia command announced today.

The Japanese still are moving troops westward toward the lower Sittang bend in apparent efforts to ease the plight of trapped enemy forces attempting to cross the river farther upstream and escape eastward toward Thailand, headquarters said.

The destroyed enemy stronghold was on the railway between Abya and Nyaungkashe, 25 miles northeast of Pegu. The British only yesterday announced their withdrawal from Nyaungkashe.

British mortars broke up the two enemy charges against positions on the Toungoo-Maachi road, and Japanese casualties were believed heavy, a communique said.

Some 120 miles fartehr north of Toungoo, British forces which captured Heho on the Thazi-Taunggyi road made contact with the enemy seven miles of Heho, the bulletin added.

Liberators of the air command yesterday bombed the Bankok railway stations in Thailand, headquarters said, gutting repair sheds and damaging many warehouses. Spitfires raked Japanese positions in the Sittang river bend, and other planes attacked Japanese troops northwest and southeast of Toungoo.

(In London, Lt.-Gen. Sir William Slim, commander of the British 14th army in Burma, declared at a homecoming celebration that his army had advanced 1,500 miles in six months, but he warned that victory in the Far East "requires an effort not less than that needed to defeat Germany."

BRITISH ROUT JAPS IN 7-MILE DRIVE

Calcutta, July 11 (A. P.).—British forces pursuing Japanese fleeing eastward toward Thailand in the area about ninety miles southeast of Mandalay have advanced seven miles in the rough country between Thazi and Taunggyi and established contact with the enemy east of Heho, Southeast Asia Command Headquarters said today.

Some 120 miles to the south, Japanese troops attacked British mortar fire which caused heavy casualties.

Some 7,000 enemy troops are believed to be trying to make their way eastward in the region between the Heho and Toungoo combat areas.

Farther south, in the Sittang River Bend area seventy miles northeast of Rangoon, the Japanese continued to hold several villages, including Nyaungkashe, from which the British withdrawal under fire was reported yesterday, and Myitkyo. However, an enemy strongpoint of light machine guns in the Nyaungkashe area was destroyed.

SEEKS OPERATION IN U. S.

South African Asks Ship Space for Son With Throat Ailment

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa, Thursday, July 12 (AP)—The father of a dying 5-year-old boy appealed to the South African Minister of Transport today for space on a ship to take his son to America for a delicate throat operation.

A shipping jam has delayed the departure of little Weymouth Pedlar, son of a Kingwilliamstown planter, who is slowly wasting away in a hospital here.

The boy's only breath for months has come through tubes inserted in his windpipe after his larynx closed following operations to remove growths from his vocal cords. Doctors say that the operation to correct his condition cannot be performed here, and that Dr. Chevalier Jackson of Philadelphia is the only man in the world who can save him.

Sympathizers here and in Kingwilliamstown have raised most of the $4,000 needed to send Weymouth to America, but so far his father has not been able to obtain passage on a ship.

U-Boat Mystery Remains Unsolved

Buenos Aires, July 11 (AP)—The mystery of where the Nazi U-boat 530 spent her time cruising between V-E day and her surrender here yesterday remained unsolved tonight, but the Argentine Navy Ministry declared the submarine had nothing to do with the sinking of the Brazilian cruiser Bahia.

The Bahia sank in the South Atlantic five days ago, apparently after striking a mine. Navy authorities pointed out the submarine could not have navigated within that time the distance from the scene of the sinking to Mar-Del-Plata, where Nazi Commander Otto Wermoutt surrendered his craft and 54 crewmen.

Argentine inspectors said the U-boat was undamaged and carried no munitions. Her fuel supply was nearly exhausted and her crew had gone hungry during the weeks Wermoutt sought a refuge.

4 U. S. SAILORS LOST ON BRAZILIAN SHIP

Recife, Brazil, July 11 (A. P.).—Four United States Navy sound technicians were among the missing aboard the Brazilian cruiser Bahia, which went down a week ago today in a series of explosions near the middle of the south Atlantic.

The missing men of the United States Navy are Emmette Peter Bale, William Joseph Eustau, Andrew Jackson Pendelton and Frank Benjamin Sparks (home addresses unavailable).

The loss of the 3,150-ton cruiser was the greatest disaster in Brazilian naval history. Of its 366 officers and men, only thirty-one had been landed here. Thirteen rescued men died en route to Recife.

The ship, apparently the victim of a floating mine, sank within three minutes after the first explosion.

Buenos Aires, July 11 (A. P.).—The Navy Ministry asserted today that the German U-boat 530 which surrendered yesterday at Mar Del Plata carried no munitions, Nazi politicians or military officials and had landed no such individuals before entering the Argentine submarine base. The Ministry said also that it had established that the U-530 was not responsible for the sinking of the Bahia.

Mexico City, July 11 (AP)—Ezequiel Padilla said tonight that he had resigned as Foreign Secretary of Mexico. He hold a press conference that he would remain home and rest for a period and that his future plans would be decided later.

Padilla indicated that recent criticisms of Mexico's foreign policy under his direction were the chief cause of his resignation and said he wished his supporters to cease conducting a presidential campaign in his favor.

Padilla held the Foreign Office portfolio for four years and seven months. Under Secretary Manuel Tello will be acting secretary pending appointment of a successor.

Padilla did not elaborate on the attacks against his foreign policy, but it has frequently been criticized as being too friendly to the United States.

It also has been suggested that he might become Mexico's representative in the United Nations Security league.

Balloon Explodes Over Mexico

QUERETARO, Mexico, July 11 (AP).—State government officials said today they had been advised that a strange cigar-shaped balloor. exploded late yesterday shortly after passing over Cadereyta de Montes, fifty-five miles northeast of here, at a considerable height. Queretaro military authorities have ordered an investigation to determine if possible whether the balloon was of Japanese origin.

TRUMAN HOLDS CONFERENCE ON THE AUGUSTA

Works With Byrnes and Leahy on Documents for Several Hours.

NO PLAN FOR FRENCH VISIT

Trip to London After Meeting With Churchill and Stalin Is Still Tentative.

Aboard Cruiser Augusta, July 11, (A. P.).—President Truman began whipping into final form today a mass of data he will present to the Big Three meeting at Potsdam next week.

He called Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and Admiral William D. Leahy into the Augusta's admiral's cabin, where former President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill held most of their Atlantic Charter conferences in the ominous days of 1941. There, for several hours, the three, assisted by diplomatic and military experts, worked over an accumulation of documents.

Plans for a visit to London after the meeting with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill still are tentative. The President has no plans at all for visiting France.

Accompanying the Augusta, a battle-tested veteran, is the equally famous cruiser, the Philadelphia, which acted as Gen. George S. Patton's mobile artillery support when he moved from Palermo into Messina to end the Sicilian campaign. She shot up bridges, knocked down planes and even took out enemy tanks with her big guns. The Augusta served as the flagship of Rear Admiral Alan Kirk's Normandy task force on D day.

Meets Sailor Cousin.

Strolling around her decks yesterday, the President came across a third cousin, Lawrence Truman, Owensboro, Ky., fire control man, second class, who introduced himself and established their kinship. The President invited the sailor up to his cabin for another talk this afternoon.

It was disclosed today that several British men of war will form an escort for the American ships when they reach the British Isles and remain with them until the President arrives at a northern European port from which he will fly to the conference scene in the big C-54 plane which he likes to call "the Sacred Cow."

The Augusta, moving northward now, is running into steadily cooler weather. The President put on a fall suit for his 6 A. M. stroll and topped it with a salt-and-pepper hat.

He is going into the conference without prior consultation with Churchill, apparently with a view to assuring the Russians he has no intention of making any independent agreements, even of a tentative nature.

Landing Place Still Secret.

Correspondents aboard the Augusta still are not permitted to disclose the President's disembarkation port or the time of his likely arrival there.

In October, 1942, the Augusta set out for Casablanca carrying the flag of Rear Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, who was in command of Moroccan invasion forces. When an armistice was arranged with the French, the Augusta was the first ship to enter Casablanca harbor. She had Gen. Omar N. Bradley aboard when she headed for the invasion beaches of Normandy.

The Augusta picked up President Roosevelt in Buzzard's Bay from the Mayflower when he journeyed to meet Prime Minister Churchill off Newfoundland for the start of the Atlantic Charter parleys.

After witnessing gunnery practice yesterday, the President visited the deck in the afternoon to watch shuffleboard play. Later he attended a movie.

TRUMAN TO AVOID PRE-PARLEY TALKS

President Seeks to Assure Stalin No Independent Pacts Planned.

ABOARD CRUISER AUGUSTA WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN, July 11—(AP) President Truman intends to go into the Big Three meeting in Berlin next week without talking before hand with Prime Minister Churchill.

The idea apparently is to assure Premier Stalin that the American President has no thought of making any independent agreements, even of a tentative nature.

Landing Port Secret

It still is not permitted to say where or when Mr. Truman will disembark from the Augusta. But it was disclosed that British men of war will escort Mr. Truman's two-cruiser force from the British Isles to a northern European port.

From this port, it was said, Mr. Truman will be flown to the Potsdam meeting with Messrs. Churchill and Stalin. The plane in which he will make the journey is the big C-54 transport plane variously known as the "Flying White House" or "The Sacred Cow."

In preparation for that meeting, the President called in Secretary of State Byrnes, Admiral William D. Leahy and experts on Europe. They were gathered for hours today in the Augusta's admiral's cabin.

It was in this setting that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill met in 1941, when they formulated the Atlantic charter principles.

The Augusta, which left Newport News, Va., Saturday, is now running into cooler weather as it plows northward. Up early as usual this morning, Mr. Truman strolled about the ship at 6 o'clock, wearing a brown fall suit and jaunty gray cap.

Meets Third Cousin

Yesterday, fire controlman 2-c Lawrence Truman of Owensboro, Ky., introduced himself to the President and established their relationship as third cousins. Lawrence got an invitation to the President's cabin.

Mr. Truman is having the opportunity of learning at close range the history of some of the ships of the great fleet he commands as commander in chief of the Army and Navy.

The Augusta was the first ship to enter Casablanca harbor in the 1942 invasion of North Africa. She was the flagship of Rear Admiral Alan Kirk's Normandy task force on D-Day, carrying General Omar N. Bradley at the time.

Along with the Augusta on this journey is the cruiser Philadelphia, which shot up bridges, knocked down planes and even blasted enemy tanks when General George S. Patton made his drive up the northern coast of Sicily from Palermo to Messina.

Truman Is Urged to Act On Palestine at Parley

Appeal Sent by Representative Before President Sailed

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP).—President Truman has been urged by Representative James C. Auchincloss, Republican, of New Jersey, to seek solution of the Palestine question at the forthcoming meeting of the Big Three.

Representative Auchincloss said he wrote the President, now en route to the meeting, but received no reply before Mr. Truman's departure.

Asking Mr. Truman to take up the Palestine problem with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin, the Congressman wrote: "The San Francisco Conference has resulted in a long step toward establishing international peace and understanding, but as yet no workable and acceptable solution of the settlement of Palestine by the Jews has even been proposed."

He said the American people favor the establishment "of a Jewish home in Palestine," in accordance with the Balfour Declaration, and declared "it is high time" that their will be consummated.

A year or more ago many Congressmen urged this policy, said Representative Auchincloss, but they "were necessarily restrained because of the statement of the authorities that serious military and diplomatic questions were involved."

"A lot of water has passed over the dam since then and now is the time to grapple with the problem and solve it. Further delay would be too late."

CHARTER'S FOES AIR THEIR VIEWS IN SHORT TALKS

First Witness, a Woman, Is Led From Stand Shouting for Revolution.

CULBERTSON GIVES OWN PLAN

DuBois Calls Race Clause Weak —Several Protest Speed of Senate Hearings.

Washington, July 10 (A. P.).—Opponents of the United Nations Charter trooped before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today as Chairman Connally expressed confidence that any restrictive amendments would be beaten down.

The first opposition witness, Mrs. Agnes Waters of Washington, D. C., was escorted from the committee table by policemen when she attempted to continue after her allotted time had expired.

"What we need is a good old-fashioned American revolution," Mrs. Waters shouted as she left.

Mrs. Waters, a familiar figure at congressional committee hearings, said she represented the National Blue Star Mothers. She denounced the charter as an "international fraud."

Other opposition witnesses included Mrs. Cecil Broy of Arlington, Va., representing Americans United, Inc., who said the charter will lead to "empire rule," and the Rev. J. Paul Cotton of Cleveland, representing the World Peace Forum, who declared there was "something sinister" in the speed of Senate action on the pact.

Culbertson for Arms Cut.

Ely Culbertson, bridge expert, submitted a statement declaring that the only effective way to prevent aggrssion is to establish a worldwide limitation on heavy armament, and an international police force.

Connally held a watch on each witness to make sure every one got his fifteen minutes, but no more.

One of the opponents, David Darrin, was questioned by the chairman about his designation as representing the United Nations of Earth, Associated. Darrin said there wasn't any such organization, he simply used the name and it didn't have any members.

"That is a rather unique situation," commented Connally. "You are, for the purposes of this hearing, the whole United Nations of Earth Association."

Said Senator Barkley (D.-Ky.): "There is no reason why a man can't associate with himself."

Sees Perpetual War in Pact.

Darrin said the charter would lead to "perpetual war." He said he had bundles of exhibits pointing out what he thought was wrong with it but wouldn't submit them unless Connally guaranteed they'd go into the record. The chairman said they might be "too ponderous" so Darrin walked off with them. As he left the stand, Connally said:

"Thank you, Mr. Darrin. I hope you'll report to the association."

Mrs. Grace Keefe of Chicago, representing the Women's League for Political Education, said she wondered whether it was "decent" to "rush this charter through the Senate" in the absence from the country of many members of the armed forces. She said the charter in effect "is an instrument insuring our involvement in all future wars."

W. E. B. DuBois, an official of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the charter is "contradictory" in its pledges of race equality. He urged clarification through a Senate reservation. He contended that the United States delegation to the San Francisco conference "aligned itself repeatedly with the great colonial powers."

Libby Fears for Neutrals.

Frederick J. Libby, representing the National Council for the Prevention of War, testified that the San Francisco Charter "wipes out" the right of neutral nations "to stay out of other people's wars." He added: "The present charter seems to me to be an attempt to combine a military alliance of three rival imperialist Powers and an international organization that claims to be on the basis of the soverign equality of the member states. It is my conviction that these two ideas can no more mix than oil and water."

Mrs. C. P. Baldwin, who said she was a grandmother representing herself and the other women, told the committee that if the Senate ratifies the charter it will be "signing away America's sovereign rights."

"American women do not intend to send their sons to fight another war not of their making," she declared. "Under this charter we delegate to five men, not chosen by the people, not known to us and whom we may not trust, the power to take us into war."

Mrs. E. F. Johnson of New York city, who said she represented the public, questioned the constitutionality of the charter.

ARMY IS CRITICIZED ON SLOW RELEASE OF 7,000 DOCTORS

JUL 12 1945

WASHINGTON, July 11 — (AP) Senator Johnson (D.-Colo.) accused the Army today of taking "a leisurely attitude" toward releasing doctors who he said are urgently needed to minister to civilians.

Other members of a military affairs—sub-committee also complained that the Army has a surplus of doctors and that it should speed up their return to regular practice.

Brig. Gen. Robert W. Berry, representing the War department, disclosed plans to release 7,000 doctors by next May but he insisted, under committee prodding, that he was unable to guarantee earlier demobilization of all of them.

Some sort of priority might be worked out to hasten their return from Europe, he said, pledging to "do all we can to get them out as soon as possible."

He cautioned, however, that a tremendous logistics problem is involved in the transfer of troops to the Pacific and said the Army has "to keep the pressure on Japan."

Johnson, demanding the "prompt release of these 7,000 doctors," declared that "the leisurely attitude of the Army toward this problem is something that this committee ought not to accept lying down."

While Berry denied that the Army's approach was "leisurely," Johnson said that was "the right word" and complained that "nothing has happened" since V-E day to bring about the doctors' release.

Senator Downey (D.-Calif.), committee chairman and sponsor of the probe of comparative Army and civilian medical services, said testimony that "the Army is way overstaffed with doctors in Europe" will be presented later.

He asserted that medical service for civilians is "totally inadequate" that doctors in civilian practice are "suffering from fatigue and strain" and that people are dying because of inability to obtain doctors.

Testimony at the hearing brought out that the Army, Navy and Veterans Administration now have about 60,000 doctors compared to 74,000 in active civilian practice.

General Berry said that on June 27 the War department radioed the commanders in the European and Mediterranean theaters suggesting they could spare some doctors in view of the "reduced load" after V-E day.

The commander of the European theater, he said, replied in effect that he could see no "possibility of giving us these additional people immediately." Berry added, however, "we are not going to accept that as a final reply."

Transport Dickerson Lost

Had to Be Scuttled Off Okinawa After Blows by Jap Bombers.

Washington, July 11 (A. P.).—The Navy today told how three Japanese fighter-bombers damaged the transport Dickerson so badly off Okinawa on April 2 that she had to be sunk the next day.

Loss of the 25-year-old Dickerson, with fifty-one killed or missing and fifteen wounded, had been announced previously. The craft, a high-speed converted destroyer, carried a crew of approximately 150. Among the men lost were the Dickerson's captain, Lieut. Commander Ralph E. Lounsbury of Seattle, and the executive officer, Lieut. Alexander G. McEwen of Duluth, Minn.

The trio of two-engined Jap planes attacked at 6:30 P. M. and within two and one-half hours the Dickerson was a charred, useless hull. While one of the enemy planes loosed its bombs from overhead, another sped on from the stern, clipped the No. 1 stack, tore a gaping hole in the No. 2 stack and crashed into the bridge, killing all the men in the forecastle and knocking out the forward guns.

"The ship was ruptured in several places, the bridge was destroyed and serious fires spread," the Navy said. "Gas and flames quickly swept the bridge and well deck, causing explosions from the ready ammunition boxes."

Officer Blown to Deck.

Lieut. (j. g.) James D. Ebert, a gunnery officer on the flying bridge, was blown to the deck—a quirk that saved his life. Elbert, a resident of Charleroi, Pa., and two fire controlmen went over the side of the ship and were picked up later by a destroyer transport. Lieut. (j. g.) Lafayette G. Howard Jr., engineering officer of Gasconade, Mo., was below in an engine room at the time of the crash and to him "it felt like we had hit bottom."

While the Dickerson was still moving at a ten-knot speed, Fireman 1/C William F. King of Royal Oak, Mich., single-handedly launched a lifeboat from a broken davit, a task that ordinarily would require five or six men. When the Dickerson finally stopped dead in the water the order to abandon ship was given.

The Dickerson was towed to Kerama, where an inspection showed she was beyond salvage, the Navy said. The following morning guns of other ships sent her to the bottom.

The Dickerson was built at the New York Ship Building Company yards in Camden, N. J., and was commissioned September 3, 1919.

Stassen Doubts Japanese Will Be Beaten Soon

On Way to Rejoin Staff of Halsey, He Warns Home Front of Long, Hard Job

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11 (AP).—Navy Commander Harold E. Stassen, a veteran of war and of world efforts to prevent it, said today Japan probably would not be defeated without a long, bitter struggle, and asked the home front not to let up in backing the fighting men.

The thirty-eight-year-old former Republican Governor of Minnesota, on his way to rejoin the staff of Admiral William F. Halsey's Tokyo-smashing 3d Fleet, expressed confidence at a press conference that the "superb forces" battling Japan, augmented by man power from the European theater, would win final victory.

Warns Against Let-Down

"But any let-down on the home front costs lives on the fighting front," he said. "Any delay in ship repairs, in turning out supplies like rockets, in transport of new divisions—all this means that at a crucial time there will be deficiences."

Commander Stassen, a member of the United States delegation to the recent United Nations Conference here, saw a "definite possibility" of unanimous ratification of the world peace charter by the United States Senate.

He warned, however, that the war with Japan may not end as soon as some predict.

"I think we have to count on a long and bitter fight before the war is concluded," he said. "The only thing that would stop it would be unconditional surrender. That would be the wisest thing they (the Japanese) could do."

Japanese Outfoxed

Commander Stassen, who has seen the Japanese suicide pilots in action, feels certain Admiral Halsey's 3d Fleet will overcome the Kamikazes "with a minimum of casualties." After all, he added, American forces have been outfighting and outfoxing the Japanese for three years.

Admiral Halsey's "dirty trick department" probably cooked up some aspects of the latest 3d Fleet slap at Tokyo, Commander Stassen said. Commander Stassen is a member of the department.

As assistant chief of staff to Admiral Halsey, Commander Stassen is among the exclusive group of planners who delight in outguessing the Japanese—like steaming through a Pacific typhoon to deliver a surprise blow at the enemy.

FOOD SHORTAGES MAY LAST 2 YEARS

JUL 12 1945

'America Can't Feed World,' Anderson Says in Speech.

NEW YORK, July 11—(AP) Secretary of Agriculture Anderson said today that food shortages in the United States "could easily last from one to two years after the end of the Japanese war."

"We would be short of some foods—such as sugar, fats and oils—even if the war ended tomorrow," he said at a press conference.

Anderson said earlier in a speech before the Advertising Federation of America that "America can't feed the world," and added:

"We've got to make that clear and positive from the outset, or we are inviting an awful lot of misunderstanding, trouble and ill-will. Even if we were to ship across the oceans every pound of food we produce, we couldn't feed the world."

END OF RATIONING OF CARS FORECAST

WPB Co-Ordinator Believes Step Likely By January

Washington, July 11 (AP)—The likelihood of increased passenger-car production quotas this year and an end of automobile rationing by January was held out by the War Production Board today.

Industry executives at a closed "working meeting" with governmental officials were told also that the WPB would decide "within a few weeks" whether to give automobile manufacturers permission to start a multi-million dollar factory-expansion program.

The automobile-industry advisory committee, made up of presidents and executives of the ten companies now re-entering production, requested that they be authorized immediately to expand and build new plants for full postwar output of 4,000,000 cars or more a year.

Need Of Early Action Seen

Henry P. Nelson, WPB co-ordinator of automotive reconversion, acknowledged that action must be taken "some time this summer" to insure full postwar employment.

He asked the industry to submit estimated cost and location of the proposed new plants and branch factories, but said no priority aid would be granted if approval is given. The industry now has priority help for "bottleneck" construction required to produce only two million cars a year, half the prewar rate of output.

By the first of next year, production should reach a level at which rationing to essential drivers can be eliminated, Nelson told a news conference, after the session with the industry committee.

Prospect For Materials

Although he prefaced the news conference with an apology that it might contain no news, Nelson reported these developments of prime interest to automotive centers.

1. That the WPB will relax its controls over all the materials—except five particularly critical ones—used in making passenger cars. The five excepted items, in order of importance, are tin, cadmium, antimony, burlap and chromic acid.

2. That the ceilings on passenger-car output—about 245,000 in the next six months and about 450,000 in the first quarter of 1946—will be increased as soon as materials loosen up. "We expect the next 60 days to make a great change in the materials picture," he added.

Question Of New-Car Prices

3. That the industry spokesmen declared it was "high time something is done" about fixing prices on new cars, and that James Brownlee, deputy OPA administrator, has made arrangements to see each management individually, starting next week, to arrive at new price levels.

4. That some companies are complaining of inability to get bottleneck machine tools and plant equipment for resumed production with their AA-3 priority rating. Nelson said the WPB would not raise the priority but would give individual help to any company which ran into a genuine equipment problem.

Elliott Roosevelt Loan Studied

Investigators of Internal Revenue Bureau Explore Its Angles, Doughton Says.

Washington, July 11 (A. P.).—Representative Doughton (D.-N. C.) said today that "further angles" in the financial dealings of Brig.-Gen. Elliott Roosevelt and John Hartford are being "explored in several parts of the country."

The House Ways and Means Committee chairman issued a formal statement after the Bureau of Internal Revenue had given the committee, behind closed doors, a partial report on its investigations.

The committeemen declined to disclose any of the information in this preliminary statement by the bureau.

The investigation was ordered by Doughton on reports that Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, loaned Roosevelt, second son of the late President, $200,000 and reported $196,000 of it as a bad debt deduction in his 1942 income tax return.

In his formal statement Doughton said the bureau advised that "the Hartford-Roosevelt tax matter is still under intensive investigation."

Representative Knutson (R.-Minn.), senior Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, said: "There is no disposition on the part of the Ways and Means Committee to act as a prosecutor. We just want to make sure that Government revenues are protected."

Doughton's statement said:

"Officials of the Bureau of Internal Revenue appeared before the Committee on Ways and Means this forenoon, at the request of Chairman Doughton.

"They advised that the Hartford-Roosevelt tax matter is still under intensive investigation. It was pointed out that certain phases of this investigation have been completed, but that there are further angles yet to be explored in several parts of the country.

"Bureau officials further advised that statements are now in the process of being taken from the principals concerned in this matter, and that a complete report on the Hartford loan will be submitted as soon as possible.

"It will possibly be some days before the bureau is ready to submit its findings to the committee."

Senator Urges GlobalNetwork For U. S. News

JUL 12 1945

McFarland Says System Is Needed to Help Achieve World Press Freedom

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP).—Senator Ernest W. McFarland, Democrat, of Arizona, called today for an independent, world-wide American communications system as an implement toward achievement of world freedom of the press.

Such a system also is necessary if American commerce and business are not to operate at a disadvantage in the post-war world, the Senator said in a statement.

Senator McFarland, a member of the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, recently visited Europe with Senators Burton K. Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, and Thomas E. Capehart, Republican, of Indiana, to study communications. The survey, he said confirmed his opinion that "there can be no adequate freedom of news in the world without an effectively unified American communications system."

"I am a firm believer in the creed so ably expressed by Mr. Kent Cooper, of The Associated Press; Mr. Hugh Baillie, of The United Press, and numerous outstanding newspaper publishers that freedom of news—the right to send news everywhere and the right to pick up news everywhere without artificial restraints — would be one of the greatest deterrents to war," he stated.

"We shall not achieve that goal by declarations in peace treaties alone—it must be implemented by a vigorous and practical policy of establishment of a free, strong and independent American communications system operating all over the world."

Senator McFarland added that it appears clear that if such a system cannot be speedily established, other steps will have to be taken.

"It has been suggested, for example," he continued, "that the Army and Navy systems, now virtually world-girdling and unquestionably the finest in the world, be used at least temporarily as a basis for a world-wide system which would be under American control and operating for the best interests of American diplomatic, commercial and strategic needs. Advocates of such a proposal point out that it is an operating system now and that some means should be devised whereby it could be operated commercially in the post-war world."

Regarding the great networks of communications and transport systems which she has thrown up over the world, America should "exercise immediately a fair, equitable but hard-headed diplomatic policy for our own advantage," Senator McFarland argued.

"To lose all that, either by yielding our hard-won rights or giving it away or junking it, wouuld be a colossal blunder for our own interests and outrageously unfair to the taxpayers."

AIRCRAFT PLANT LAYOFFS ON GAIN

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP) Layoffs in the aircraft industry jumped from 14 workers per thousand in April to 51 in May, reflecting the end of the European war, the Labor department reported today.

The rate rose from 17 to 28 in the aircraft parts and engines industry.

A lay-off rate of 12 per one thousand was reported for all industries, the highest since June 1942.

Layoffs in munitions factories increased from 11 to 17 per one thousand. For the fifth consecutive month the highest rate was shown in the transportation equipment group, 36 per one thousand. Ship building which has been tapering off since January, still had a rate of 31.

The department said that for every 1,000 workers on factory payrolls in May, 47 quit, six were discharged, 12 laid off and four left to enter the armed services, for a rate of 69 per one thousand for all separations.

However, the department reported accession rate of 49 per one thousand for the month, which was slightly above April but almost 25 per cent below that of last year. The rise over April was ascribed as to increased employment in the non-munitions group.

"Workers laid off because of cutbacks in munitions production," the department said, "are creating a labor supply for civilian goods, industries which have suffered from a labor shortage since the war began.

BONUS IS STRIPPED FROM G.I. MEASURE

Liberalized Veterans' Bill of Rights Is Approved by House Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 11—(AP) The House Veterans committee approved a liberalized G. I. bill of rights today—but first stripped it of a bonus provision which would have given each veteran $1,040.

That proposal, sponsored by Committee Chairman Rankin (D-Miss) would have applied to every discharged veteran regardless of whether he has a job. Under the present bill unemployed veterans can get $20 a week assistance for one year.

Committee members offered no explanation for voting down the bonus plan. It can be brought up later as a separate measure.

Meanwhile, another committee-approved measure—to permit veterans to take jobs in "closed shops" without joining the union—prompted two controversies on the House floor.

Representative Green (D-Pa.) sharply criticized Rankin for "reporting the bill out without hearings or more consideration" and asked unanimous consent that it be sent back to the committee.

Rankin Blocks Move

Rankin blocked the move by objecting and told Green "any member present (at the committee meeting) could have demanded a roll call vote, but they didn't."

Green responded that "only 12 members were present, and I'm informed the vote was only four to three for the measure."

The other dispute occurred when Representative Celler (D-NY) declared that a veteran who sought to appear against the bill was "cuffed and taken into custody" in Rankin's office yesterday. Rankin shouted that the charge was a "deliberate attempt to smear me."

He denied the veteran was manhandled, but he did say an ex-serviceman caused such a commotion in his office that one of his stenographers called a policeman.

Today's bill broadening terms of the G. I. assistance act of last session would:

Liberalize loan provisions eliminating the present requirement that loan applications be approved by the Veterans Administration.

Permit veterans to take correspondence courses as well as regular college training.

Increase the subsistence allowance for schooling of veterans.

Rankin said he hopes to get the bill to the House floor next week.

CELLER AND RANKIN ROW OVER VETERAN

Washington, July 11 (A. P.)—Representative Celler (D.-N. Y.), declared in the House today that an overseas veteran was mistreated yesterday when he sought a hearing before the House Veterans' Committee. Celler's accusation brought an immediate rejoinder from the committee's chairman, Representative Rankin (D.-Miss.), who jumped to his feet shouting that the statement was "false and slanderous . . . an attempt to smear and discredit me."

Celler, making a speech opposing a committee-approved bill to excuse veterans from union contracts in post-war jobs, identified the veteran as Reuben Schaefer of 4109 12th street, Long Island City, N. Y. He said that Schaefer, an honorably dscharged sergeant who served in North Africa, the Middle East and in Europe, went to the committee asking to be heard on the union bill. Instead, Celler declared, Schaefer was "cuffed around and taken into custody."

"No veteran was cuffed around in my office," shouted Rankin. He termed Celler's speech a "deliberate, false attack upon me." Rankin said that a veteran came to the committee room yesterday while the committee was in executive session. He said that the man demanded a hearing and after the committee meeting broke up: "He followed me into my office. He screamed and raised so much sand that one of the stenographers called a policeman and he was taken away."

FEPC ACTION IS REVERSED

House Group Votes Funds For Agency Fought By South

Washington, July 11 (AP)—The House Appropriations Committee about-faced today and recommended a $250,000 fund for continued and unrestricted operation of the Fair Employment Practice Committee.

It did so at an afternoon session less than three hours after it had voted FEPC $250.000 to liquidate.

The latest action left both sides in the six-week fight over FEPC somewhat bewildered, and assured a record House vote tomorrow that may jar loose the $752,000,000 national war agencies supply bill that has been riding a parliamentary merry-go-round since June 1.

Funds Of 16 Agencies Tied Up

The deadlock has tied up funds for sixteen home-front war agencies, many of them facing payless pay days until it is broken. All are operating now under special legislation allowing them to incur obligations but spend no actual money.

The joy of Southern foes of FEPC over the committee's morning action quickly died down after the afternoon results were announced. Conversely, backers of FEPC who condemned the morning proceedings finished the day praising them.

"This is just what we wanted," commented Representative Marcantonio (Am. Lab., N.Y.) after the final session. "No amendment is necessary now. We have the votes to give effect to the committee's recommendation."

Burden Now On Opponents

Only a few hours earlier, Marcantonio assailed the committee action as "no compromise at all" and announced he would seek to amend it.

The burden of carrying an amendment now rests with FEPC's opponents. They indicated they would seek to eliminate the Appropriation Committee's final recommendation that the $250,000 fund be made available for normal FEPC functions until such time as Congress enacts specific legislation dealing with that agency. A measure to create a permanent FEPC is pending. Authorization for the present agency, created by executive order by President Roosevelt, expired June 30.

Wording Is Confusing

The wording of the recommendation approved this morning was confusing to some committee members, who sought a quick opinion from the Comptroller General. On the basis of that opinion the committee held a second meeting and made it clear that, although the fund was intended "for completely liquidating" the FEPC, it could be used for normal operations until the agency "is continued by an act of Congress."

The $250,000 recommended is the same amount voted by the Senate last month and is less than half the $599,000 in the FEPC's budget estimates for the fiscal year that started July 1. However, supporters of the agency said they were willing to accept the pared fund on the theory they later could obtain an additional allotment in a deficiency bill.

P.A.C. LISTS SIX ISSUES AS BASIS FOR LABOR FIGHT

WASHINGTON, July 11—(AP) The C. I. O. Political Action committee today chose six major legislative issues on which to wage a campaign in opposition to what it called the "forces of reaction."

It said these forces are sharpening their attacks against labor and the people generally.

C. I. O. President Philip Murray and C. I. O.-P. A. C. Chairman Sidney Hillman said after a meeting there is danger that these groups may try to prevent full implementation of the United Nations charter, oppose the Bretton Woods agreement and continue efforts to deprive the peoples of other nations "of their opportunity to enjoy economic and political democracy."

Emphasizing it will act as an "independent, non-partisan political force and never as an adjunct of any political party," the statement said the C. I. O.-P. A. C. will intensify its educational campaign to achieve:

1.—Wage adjustments to meet increased living costs.

2.—Amendment of the fair labor standards act to provide an immediate minimum wage of 65 cents an hour. This is now fixed at 40 cents.

3.—Legislation providing supplementary federal unemployment compensation benefits and extending such protection to federal and maritime workers and others not now covered.

4.—Adequate appropriation for the FEPC and making this agency per-

DOOMED G. I.'S APPEAL FOR AID

Two Privates Sentenced in Chinese Woman's Death.

Washington, July 11 (A. P.).—The War Department is investigating the case of two Army privates in China who have written home that they were condemned to die for the death of a Chinese woman.

The soldiers are Pvt. John V. Brennan, West Hartford, Conn., and Pvt. James Cooper, Norwood, Ohio. A letter from Brennan to an aunt telling of his court-martial was turned over to Senator McMahon (D.-Conn.), who asked Under-Secretary of War Robert Patterson to investigate.

Cooper's case was turned over to the War Department June 16 and the department said Monday that "full information in reference to his court-martial is en route here by courier mail (carried by an officer) and should be received within the next few days." It was assumed that Brennan's report accompanied it.

McMahon said Brennan's letter related that he and Cooper mounted a water buffalo at a Chinese village "intending to take a ride and have a little fun." Chinese villagers tried to pull them from the animal's back and a 71-year-old woman succeeded in pulling Brennan off, McMahon said. Brennan fell on her and the woman died three hours later, the Senator said.

Brennan wrote that they were court-martialed late in May and sentenced to be shot. At their trial, McMahon quoted the soldier's letter as saying, two peasants testified that the soldiers beat and pummeled the villagers after they were pulled from the buffaloes. Cooper, it was learned, complained in two letters that he had no interpreter.

Since a review of court-martial death sentences in Washington is necessary, it was assumed here that the sentences have not been carried out.

U. N. R. R. A. Plans to Buy 25,000 Trucks in U. S.

Vehicles Are To Be Used in Europe and China

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP).—The United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration is trying to buy more than 25,000 motor trucks in this country before the end of the year.

The number probably will be increased by acquisitions from Army surpluses.

This was announced today by Roy F. Hendrickson, acting director of the U. N. R. R. A., who said most of the trucks will be used in the liberated nations of Europe which are receiving U. N. R. R. A. financial assistance—Poland, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Greece and Albania. Some will go to China where, he said, relief needs are increasingly urgent.

Mr. Hendrickson cited figures to show that the countries have lost most of their usual transport facilities, such as railways, coastal vessels and inland waterway craft.

The trucks, he said, are vital both to transport relief supplies inland from ports and to distribute to distressed areas food stocks being raised within the countries.

The U. N. R. R. A. "is hopeful," Mr. Hendrickson said, that an additional 3,700 trucks allocated to it in the United Kingdom actually may be acquired at an early date.

BAN RACE HORSES FROM RAILROADS

Transportation by Motor Carriers Also Prohibited by ODT.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP) Horse racing suffered a new blow today as the government prohibited transportation of racing and show animals by railroad and common or contract truck carriers.

The effect is to confine the "sport of kings" to tracks now operating, except in cases where arrangements can be made to move the horses by means not falling under the ban.

The orders were issued by the Office of Defense Transportation and the Interstate Commerce Commission as a result of a wartime transportation crisis. The ban became effective at 6 p. m., eastern war time, today and will expire July 1, 1946, unless modified or lifted in the meantime.

Immediate reaction of racing officials was varied. Some felt that they could carry on without serious consequences while others said the orders would put them out of business.

The situation appeared to be that racing can continue indefinitely at tracks where horses are now quartered but that other tracks such as those in Florida and in New Orleans may be hit hard, if not shut down altogether.

May Use Own Trucks

The ODT explained that the ruling does not apply to privately-owned trucks, making it possible for owners to move horses from track to track in such vehicles.

Nor is there any provision prohibiting owners from attaching trailers to their automobiles and hauling their horses.

These conditions apparently will enable some shipment of horses, especially between tracks not too far apart, such as in New York state.

It was also explained that horses may be returned to home stables by rail or truck if the owners sign affidavits that they will not be raced or exhibited.

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, ODT director, said the restrictions prohibitions on the billion dollar sport which was completely shut down for four months, January through April, will make a considerable volume of equipment available for other transportation purposes.

ODT officials emphasized that "this is not a slap at racing," but merely a result of the mounting transportation emergency in which "every type of rolling stock in the country must be utilized."

Brazil Moves A Mountain

WASHINGTON, (AP)—With American technical cooperation Brazil is moving a mountain of iron ore from the interior to the seacoast for shipment to the steel furnaces for Great Britain's war industry, says the Office of Inter-American Affairs.

The scene of the effort is the Rio Doce Valley, a region with an incredibly rich and almost inexhaustible deposit of iron ore at one end, a small but adequate port at the other, and a 330-mile railroad connecting the two.

The ore is important to the United Nation's war effort for its amazingly high quality and its abundance. The highest possible yield of metallic iron from haematite ore is 70.4 per cent, and a considerable part of this Brazilian deposit has a content of 69.7 per cent. By comparision, the best-known U. S. ore—from the Lake Superior region—contains about 51 per cent. The Brazilian ore also has a phosphorous content averaging not more than one per cent—phenomenally low, says the OIA.

The source of this ore extends over an area five miles long and one mile wide. It includes four mountain peaks which are roughly estimated to contain a total of 300,000,000 tons of high grade, low phosphorous ore, plus almost limitless reserves of lower grades The part now being worked is Caue, about 4,600 feet high—surface mining which extends down the mountainside to about 3,500 feet.

The region, called Rio Doce (Sweet River) for its main stream, contains about 25,000 square miles. Other assets there in addition to iron are gold, manganese, bauxite, nickel, mica, rock crystal and semi-precious stones. Scores of waterfalls on the larger river have been surveyed to determine their adaptability for a development on the model of United States' TVA.

Itabira, the site of the mine, and Vitoria, the outlet on the coast, are on virtually the same latitude about 300 miles north of Rio de Janeiro.

The job of harnessing this out-of-the-way component to the Allied war machine has devolved almost entirely on Brazilian and American officials and technicians, with the British furnishing the shipping and the market for the ore.

BOND DRIVE SET NEW HIGH MARK

JUL 12 1945

26 Billion Raised in Nation —Only E Loan Under Goal.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (A. P.).—The $26,313,000,000 Seventh War Loan has gone down in history as the biggest financing operation of any war. There will be another bond drive this year, starting perhaps in November.

Final figures were announced last night by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. Although sales of E bonds fell $24,000,000 short of making the $4,000,000,000 quota, new records were set in each category. Here are the statistics:

Total sales, $26,313,000,000. Quota, $14,000,000,000. Previous record, $21,621,000,000 in the Sixth War Loan.

Individual sales, $8,681,000,000. Quota, $7,000,000,000. Previous record, $6,351,000,000 in the Fifth War Loan.

E bond sales, $3,976,000,000 (included in the individual total). Quota, $4,000,000,000. Previous record, $3,187,000,000 in the Fourth War Loan.

Corporate sales, $17,632,000,000. Quota, $7,000,000,000. Previous record $15,739,000,000.

The Wall Street Broker-Dealer Syndicate, composed of members of the Stock and Curb exchanges and other investment groups, sold bonds aggregating $1,192,627,328 in the Seventh War Loan drive, sufficient to purchase 1,988 Superfortresses. The syndicate had set as its quota one billion dollars, or enough to buy 1,600 B-29s. Leading the field of broker-dealers in the drive was Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, with 3,635 sales.

Raiser of Iwo Flag Gets Stamps Picturing Event

3c Issue Sets a Precedent by Portraying Living Persons

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP).—One of three survivors of the group of six men who raised the American flag on Mt. Suribachi, Iwo Jima, stood silently at brief ceremonies today which opened the sale of postage stamps depicting the event.

In a colorful ceremony, Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan presented the first sheet of the new green three-cent stamp, honoring th Marine Corps and bearing a reproduction of Associated Press photographer Joe Rosenthal's famous picture of the flag raising, to General A. A. Vandegrift, Marine Corps commandant.

Pharmacist's Mate First Class John Bradley, of Appleton, Wis., rose quietly from his seat as Mr. Hannegan lauded the courage of him and his five comrades.

Then, with only a "thank you," he stepped forward and accepted a sheet of the stamps.

Five Marine veterans of the Iwo Jima fighting, all now patients in the naval hospital here, were given first-day stamp covers.

Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Democrat, of Wyoming, a former Assistant Postmaster General who first suggested that the Rosenthal picture be reproduced on a stamp, was given a sheet of the new stamps.

Mr. Hannegan said the stamp sets a precedent by portraying living persons. He added that "we honor the individuals here depicted, who by God's mercy still live among us. But they are not represented on this stamp as individuals. In the glorious tradition of the Marine Corps, they submerged their identities, giving themselves wholly to the United States of America."

The new stamp was sold only in Washington today. It will be placed on sale at other postoffices tomorrow.

BRIDES PROTEST P. W.'S' TRANSFER

San Francisco, July 11 (A. P.).—Three American girls, who secretly married Italian prisoners of war near here within the last month and a half, are indignant at the War Department over an abrupt separation from their husbands.

"It isn't fair," protested Mrs. Norma Scorza, 23, of San Francisco. "If the Army doesn't want the boys to get married, they shouldn't let them go out to dances and parties like they do. The fellows are young and good looking and of course they fall in love."

Their three Italian soldier husbands, who violated War Department regulations by marrying while they were stationed at Camp John Knight in Oakland, are en route to an Arizona prisoner of war camp.

They are Guiseppe Bertolotti, 24; Maurizio Scorza, 22, and Frederico Mazzonchini, 23. Antioch, Cal., Methodist Church records show that Bertolotti wed Mildred Circo, 26, of that city June 3, and that a double ceremony there June 17 united Scorza and Norma Romeo, 23, of San Francisco, and Mazzonchini and Virginia Panfili, 21, also of San Francisco. The three girls are cousins.

The brides said many Italians at Fort McDowell, Camp Knight and the Monterey camp had taken American wives. The trio's marital status was discovered when the men were picked up by Military Police for overstaying leaves.

3 PARATROOPERS DROWN IN GULF

Seven Others Missing After Test Jump Over Island Off Florida.

CAMP GORDON JOHNSTON, Fla., July 11—(AP) Three young paratroopers were drowned and seven are missing after a simulated combat jump today at Dog island in the Gulf of Mexico.

Five-mile-long Dog island is four miles off Carrabelle, Fla.

Names of the soldiers will be announced later by the public relations office at Fort Benning, Ga.

Paratroopers, students in advanced specialist training, were part of a group of 116 who flew from Fort Benning today to jump over the island. More than 1,000 paratroopers previously made the jump at Dog island as part of their preparatory training.

Eyewitnesses said several of the men, who jumped at 800 feet from troop carrier planes, landed in the water neighboring the island. Crash boats rescued several who missed the jump field.

EIGHT STATES RECEIVE APOLOGIES FROM OWI

WASHINGTON, July 11 — (AP) The Office of War Information went into large scale distribution of regrets today, covering eight states with individual apologies for giving a false picture of them to Russia.

Director Elmer Davis wrote letters to each senator and representative from the Prairie and Mountain states concerned.

The letter said that the OWI publication "America Illustrated," distributed in Russia, erred regrettably in an article which stated that "industry is almost non-existent" in the region described.

The apology belt includes Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota, Wyoming, Montana, Colorado and Utah.

IMPROVED FIRE BOMBS ROUT JAP COLUMNS

WASHINGTON, July 11—(AP) Improvised "bellytank" fire bombs dropped by 13th Air Force fighter planes helped drive the Japanese from the beaches during the landings on Borneo, a fighter group leader reported today.

Colonel Leo F. Dusard, Jr., 29, commander of the "Sunbusters" fighter group of the 13th, told a news conference the Japanese "just couldn't take it" from the fire bombs. In his opinion, the bombs will be "tremendously valuable" in any invasion of the Japanese homeland.

The bombs are made, he related, by filling a fighter plane's spare gasoline tank with a jellied gasoline mixture which on hitting the ground throws out a huge ball of fire covering an area 100 by 125 feet.

$25,000,000,000 in Treasury

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP).—For the first time in history, the cash balance of the Treasury is over $25,000,000,000. The daily Treasury statement issued today shows that on July 9 the balance on hand was $25,010,512,191. The high figure was caused by the Seventh War Loan drive. Only a month ago the balance was less than $10,000,000,000.

U. S. Refuses to Clear Spain Steel Rail Order

Country Is Last on List for Hard-to-Get Supplies

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP).—Foreign Economic Administration officials said today Spain is at the end of the list of countries which may buy hard-to-get supplies in the United States.

The comment was made in partial explanation of an F. E. A. refusal to approve a 100,000-ton shipment of steel rails to Spain.

A United States exporter of steel inquired informally whether a formal request for approval of such a shipment had any chance of acceptance.

That was on June 15, officials said, and the steel company was told there was "not a chance" for approval. The explanation given is that the supply of rails is below the demand both in this country and abroad, and that American and Allied military and civilian requirements must be filled before those of neutrals.

This principle governs all exporting of short supply materials, it was said. Among the neutrals, officials added, Spain stands at the end of the list.

This policy does not hold on commodities which are in ample supply in this counthy, F. E. A. officials said, and Spain may purchase such supplies in the open market without special permission and ship them in its own vessels.

President Reveals His Favorite Songs

HOLLYWOOD, July 11 (AP).—Before departing on a United Service Organizations tour, Kay Kyser, band leader, asked the White House for President Truman's favorite songs with the view of playing them for troops overseas.

The President's favorites, as reported by William D. Hassett, Presidential secretary, are "Over There," "Pack Up Your Troubles," the Toreador song from "Carmen," the sextets from "Lucia" and "Floradora" and Mendelssohn's "Songs Without Words."

De Gaulle's Son at Chapel Hill

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., July 11 (AP).—Thirty French Naval officers, including Lieutenant (j.g.) Philippe H. X. de Gaulle, twenty-three-year-old son of the French leader, General Charles de Gaulle, have reported to the Navy preflight school here for a four-weeks course of instruction in the preflight phase of the United States Naval Aviation Program. This is the second group of French officers to undergo training here, although French cadets have been receiving instruction at this pre-flight school since May, 1944. The first contingent of twenty-nine officers has just completed their training at Chapel Hill and has proceeded to the Naval Air Station, Memphis.

THEY SPOT MITSCHER

Hillsboro, Wis., July 11 (A. P.).—Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, the Navy's Task Force commander, had planned to slip into the town of his birth for an overnight visit with his mother and leave without any fanfare, but it appeared today that for once his strategy had failed.

Nearly every one knew Mitscher and his wife were due to arrive by automobile some time tomorrow, including a citizens' committee which was going ahead with plans to present the town's famous son with a gift. But the Admiral's mother, Mrs. Oscar A. Mitscher, insisted quietly but firmly that everything be kept as informal as her son intended his visit to be.

The committee was willing to go along with Mrs. Mitscher's request for no public demonstration, but members said they they thought the city would be remiss if it did not show its esteem by presenting the gift. They wouldn't say what it was to be.

Disabled Soldier Drivers To Get Ford Devices Free

By The Associated Press.

DETROIT, July 11—Henry Ford announced today that his company would provide free of cost special equipment to enable disabled soldiers to drive Ford-built automobiles.

"No man who lost a limb in the armed services of our country in this war," Mr. Ford said, "is going to have to pay anything extra to drive a Ford automobile. The least we can do for these men is to be sure that they get an even break with men who come back without major disabilities, and we do not want any profit incentive to enter into this picture."

The auto industry, through the Society of Automotive Engineers, recently developed appliances making it possible for men with amputations to drive automobiles. The work was undertaken at the request of the Surgeon General's office. Variations were developed to compensate for every known combination of amputations. The equipment can be installed in new or pre-war model cars.

Slain Hero's Mother Gets Medal of HonorPrivately

Mrs. Rose Agerholm 'Couldn't Stand Thought of Publicity'

RACINE, Wis., July 11 (AP).—The widowed mother of a marine hero killed in the battle of Saipan disclosed today that she had received the Congressional Medal of Honor over a week ago in the privacy of her own home because she couldn't bear the thought of a public presentation.

"I have had such a sorrow I just couldn't stand the thought of publicity, ceremonies or pictures," Mrs. Rose Agerholm, mother of Private First Class Harold Agerholm, told reporters.

"The admiral (Vice-Admiral Arthur S. Carpenter, commandant of the 9th Naval District, Great Lakes, Ill.) read the paper to me and handed me the star. It was very nice. If Harold had been here it would be different, we miss him so much."

34,000 SOLDIERS REACH NEW YORK ON 8 TRANSPORTS

NEW YORK, July 11 — (AP) More than 34,000 war-hardened troops — the largest number to return here in a single day—arrived today aboard eight transports.

Leading the flotilla were the former luxury liner Queen Mary with 14,747 passengers, and the West Point, the Navy's largest transport which carried 7,607 soldiers.

Navy planes, a blimp and a helicopter met the ships in the lower bay. A New York City fireboat sent up sprays of water in salute. Whistles and horn sounded a continuous din.

Aboard the West Point, in addition to the troops, were 33 Japanese diplomats taken into custody in Europe. In the group was Hiroshi Oshima, Japanese ambassador to Germany. They will be placed in quarantine and then interned.

Hanging over the starboard side of the vessel were banners of the 87th division, carrying the legend, "On to Tokyo,' and of the 347th infantry and the Fifth corps.

The Queen Mary carried 8,452 American troops, 88 American nurses, 11 Navy personnel, 10 American Red Cross officials, two American civilians and 33 British shipping officials in addition to 6,086 soldiers of the famed Canadian First army, 49 Canadian nurses and 16 women members of the Canadian army.

Approximately 4,000 of the Canadian troops have volunteered for Pacific duty. After 30-day furloughs they will return to the United States to form a new Canadian Sixth army which will serve under American leadership in the war against Japan.

Other ships arriving were the James Parker, carrying 3,011 members of the 22nd regiment of the Fourth division and the John Ericsson with 7,493 soldiers of the 414th and 415th infantry regiments.

Also the Andrew Hamilton with 359 men aboard; John Stevens, 368; Thomas Page, 363, and the Alfred Moore, 412.

Seven Transports Are Due Today

NEW YORK, July 11 (AP) Seven transports, bearing 5,360 U. S. troops, including the 12th Infantry regiment of the Fourth (Ivy) division, will arrive in New York tomorrow.

The 12th regiment will arrive on the transport Sea Bass, which is carrying 3,376 troops.

The other transports arriving are: A. P. Hill, carrying 359 reassignment troops; Jonathan Grout, bearing 361 casual troops, George W. Campbell, with 378 troops, including 53 liberated American war prisoners; Thomas Cresap, with 408 troops; William Cushing, with 361 troops of the Eighth Air Force, and Henry Middleton, with 387 rotational troops and liberated prisoners.

"I WANTED TO PAINT THIS SCENE EVER SINCE I FIRST SAW IT 20 YEARS AGO," EXPLAINED CHURCHILL, WHO IS RESTING HERE BETWEEN HIS STRENUOUS GENERAL ELECTION CAMPAIGN AND THE POTSDAM MEETING OF THE BIG THREE.

CHURCHILL IS AT HIS EASEL EVERY AFTERNOON, GUARDED BY SIX HUSKY PLAINCLOTHESMEN FROM SCOTLAND YARD WHILE 500 OR MORE CURIOUS FRENCHMEN WATCH FROM 50 FEET AWAY.

IT IS THE FIRST TIME HE HAS BEEN ABLE TO INDULGE IN HIS FAVORITE HOBBY SINCE HE WENT TO MARRAKECH, FRENCH MOROCCO, IN 1943 TO RECUPERATE FROM ILLNESS.

MEANWHILE HIS WIFE AND DAUGHTER SPEND THEIR AFTERNOONS ON THE BEACH.

THE PRIME MINISTER HAS BEEN SLEEPING UNTIL 9 A.M. INSTEAD OF RISING AT 6 AS HE DID IN LONDON. HE SPENDS MOST OF THE MORNING READING LONDON NEWSPAPERS AND MAIL FLOWN BY FAST NEW MODEL SPITFIRES FROM ENGLAND TO BORDEAUX AND RELAYED HERE BY A SMALLER PLANE AND THEN BY AUTOMOBILE.

HE HAS RECEIVED NO VISITS FROM INTERNATIONAL GUESTS OR PROMINENT FRENCH FIGURES. BRIG.GEN.W.W.TORR, MILITARY ATTACHE TO THE BRITISH EMBASSY AT MADRID, PAID A CALL YESTERDAY.

THE TOWN IS STAGING A BASQUE FESTIVAL THURSDAY IN CHURCHILL'S HONOR. HE ALSO HAS BEEN ASKED TO TAKE PART IN THE UNVEILING OF A STATUE TO QUEEN VICTORIA BUT NO DATE HAS BEEN SET.

BERLIN, JULY 11-(AP)-THREE MONTHS AGO THEY WERE PROSPECTIVE CANDIDATES FOR HITLER'S "UNION OF GERMAN GIRLS."

THANKS TO SOVIET SPEED IN REORGANIZING BERLIN THEY SAT AT THEIR SCHOOL DESKS NOW AND SANG A NUMBER OF SONGS IN ENGLISH WHILE A GERMAN ARRESTED BY THE NAZIS AS "POLITICALLY UNRELIABLE" SMILED PROUDLY FROM THE ROSTRUM.

THIS CLASS FOR 10-YEAR-OLD GIRLS IN BOMB-DAMAGED RUECKERT IS IN A SECONDARY SCHOOL A LITTLE MORE THAN A MILE FROM THE REICH CHANCELLERY.

IT IS AN EXAMPLE OF THE SOVIET POLICY OF REOPENING SCHOOLS URGENTLY TO GET CHILDREN OFF THE STREETS -- REGARDLESS OF WHETHER PURGED TEXTBOOKS

ARE READY -- WHICH HAS HELPED FAMILY LIFE BACK TOWARD NORMALCY IN THE WRECKAGE SHAMBLES OF THIS METROPOLITAN BATTLEFIELD.

DR.OSKAR SCHAEFER, 59-YEAR-OLD EDUCATOR WITH A JEWISH WIFE, WHOSE DAUGHTER ESCAPED TO GUATEMALA IN 1939, APOLOGIZED TO VISITING AMERICAN CORRESPONDENTS FOR THE LACK OF FACILITIES IN THE SCHOOL.

"BUT OUR CHILDREN ARE LEARNING USEFUL THINGS AGAIN, YOU CAN SEE THAT," HE ADDED.

JUL 12 1945

THE RUECKERT SCHOOL, LIKE THE OTHERS, OPENED JUNE 1, WITHIN ONE MONTH OF BERLIN'S CAPTURE.

DR.FRITZ HUHNE, ELDERLY INSTRUCTOR, WAS PROMOTED TO DIRECTOR, REPLACING A NAZI PARTY MEMBER.

SOVIET INVESTIGATORS APPEALED TO LONG-PENSIONED TEACHERS TO RETURN TO DUTY AND FILL THE GAPS LEFT OPEN BY THE PURGE OF NAZIS, BUT WHERE STILL ARE

VACANCIES. NONE HAVE RECEIVED ANY SALARY YET FROM THE CITY GOVERNMENT.

RUECKERT HAS 12 TEACHERS AND 200 PUPILS RANGING IN AGE FROM 10 TO 18.

WITH SUBJECTS EMBRACING LITERATURE, MATHEMATICS, FOREIGN LANGUAGES, ART AND MUSIC. ENGLISH IS COMPULSORY FOR STUDENTS UP TO 15. HIGHER CLASSES TAKE FRENCH WITH RUSSIAN AS AN ELECTIVE.

PRAGUE, JULY 11-(AP)-SIX FORMER CABINET MEMBERS IN THE PROTECTORATE GOVERNMENT OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA UNDER GERMAN OCCUPATION DECLARED TODAY THAT HITLER ONCE THREATENED TO EXECUTE EVERY TENTH CZECH AND SEND THE REST TO SIBERIA.

THE SIX FORMER MINISTERS, TESTIFYING AT A HEARING PRELIMINARY TO THEIR TRIAL ON CHARGES OF HIGH TREASON, SAID HITLER MADE HIS THREAT TO THEM AFTER THE "PROTECTOR" OF BOHEMIA AND MORAVIA, HANGMAN REINHARD HEYDRICH, HAD BEEN KILLED BY CZECH PATRIOTS IN 1942.

THEY SAID HITLER TOLD THEM AFTER VISITING AT HEYDRICH'S BEDSIDE THAT HE WAS CONSIDERING DEPORTING ALL CZECHS NOT EXECUTED TO THE UKRAINE, AND THAT SIBERIA WOULD BE THEIR NEXT DESTINATION AFTER THE DEFEAT OF RUSSIA.

THE SIX MINISTERS MADE WHAT APPEARED TO BE A PRE-ARRANGED EFFORT TO SHIFT ALL RESPONSIBILITY FOR COLLABORATION WITH THE NAZIS ON TO HITLER'S PUPPET PRESIDENT OF THE PROTECTORATE, EMIL HACHA, AND HIS PROPAGANDA MINISTER, BOTH OF WHOM ARE NOW DEAD.

THE SIX MINISTERS INCLUDE RICHARD BIENERT, WHO BECAME PREMIER OF THE GERMAN-SPONSORED GOVERNMENT OF CZECHOSLOVAKIA LAST JANUARY, AND DR. YAROSLAV KREIJCI, WHO RESIGNED AS PREMIER IN JANUARY BUT REMAINED IN THE CABINET. OTHERS ARE FORMER MINISTERS OF AGRICULTURE HRUBY, KAMENICKY OF TRANSPORT, KALFUS OF FINANCE AND KLIMENT OF JUSTICE, WHO ALSO HEADED THE PROTECTORATE SUPREME COURT.

THE PEOPLES COURT WHICH WILL TRY THEM MAY IMPOSE DEATH SENTENCES OF TREASON CHARGES, BUT THE DATE OF THE TRIALS HAS NOT YET BEEN SET.

STOCKHOLM, JULY 11-(AP)-SWEDISH CELLULOSE MANUFACTURERS HAVE RESERVED 900,000 TONS OF WOOD PULP FOR AMERICAN BUYERS BUT DELIVERY TO THE UNITED STATES IS UNCERTAIN BECAUSE NO AGREEMENT ON PRICES HAS YET BEEN REACHED.

THE PRICE CEILING ON CELLULOSE SET BY THE OFFICE OF PRICE ADMINISTRATION IS SOMEWHAT LESS THAN WHAT SWEDISH MANUFACTURERS CAN COMMAND IN THE WORLD MARKET. AGAINST THIS IS THE FACT THAT IN PRE-WAR YEARS 45 PERCENT OF SWEDEN'S CELLULOSE EXPORT WENT TO THE UNITED STATES AND MANUFACTURERS NATURALLY WISH TO PRESERVE THE MARKET.

FOR THE PRESENT, SAYS THE INDUSTRY'S TRADE MAGAZINE, NEGOTIATIONS WITH AMERICAN OFFICIALS HOLD LITTLE PROSPECT FOR BETTER PRICES. THEREFORE, THE MAGAZINE CONTINUES, IT IS UP TO PRIVATE MANUFACTURERS TO DECIDE TO WHAT EXTENT THEY WISH TO ACCEPT AMERICAN PRICES. IT IS POINTED OUT THAT THE PRICE OFFERED FOR KRAFT PULP IS RELATIVELY THE LEAST UNFAVORABLE.

UNTIL THE END OF MAY FOREIGN COUNTRIES HAD CONTRACTED FOR 550,000 STANDARDS OF SWEDISH LUMBER FOR DELIVERY DURING THE PERIOD TO MARCH, 1946. WHETHER THIS IS POSSIBLE DEPENDS ON THE AMOUNT OF SHIPPING WHICH THE ALLIED SHIPPING POOL WILL RELEASE TO SWEDEN FOR THIS PURPOSE. THE POOL ALREADY HAS MADE AVAILABLE SUFFICIENT SWEDISH TONNAGE TO PERMIT SHIPMENT OF 50,000 STANDARDS OF LUMBER OR WOOD PRODUCTS TO ENGLAND DURING JUNE.

BRITAIN'S PAPER CONTROL BOARD HAS BOUGHT 50,000 TONS OF CHEMICAL PULP AND AROUND 125,000 TONS OF MECHANICAL PULP BUT THE YEAR'S FINAL CONTRACT HAS NOT YET BEEN CONCLUDED. HOLLAND HAS PURCHASED SMALL QUANTITIES OF PULP FOR DELIVERY AT THE EARLIEST POSSIBLE DATE AND THE NEWS SWEDISH-BELGIAN TRADE TREATY CALLS FOR DELIVERY OF 23,000,000 KRONOR WORTH OF CHEMICAL PULP AND 7,000,000 KRONOR OF MECHANICAL. SWEDISH PAPER EXPORT DEPENDS ALMOST EXCLUSIVELY ON THE FUEL SITUATION. MANY ORDERS ALREADY HAVE BEEN TURNED DOWN BECAUSE OF THE THREATENED CRITICAL FUEL SITUATION AND NO IMPROVEMENT CAN BE EXPECTED UNTIL COAL IMPORTS ARE ASSURED.

NEW DELHI, JULY 11-THE IMPASSE BY PARTISTAN OPPOVER, THAT THE CONFERENCE OF INDIAN LEADERS AT SIMLA WILL FAIL TO WORK OUT A COLLABORATIVE GOVERNMENT HAS CAST GLOOM OVER SOME SECTORS OF THE GOVERNMENT AND IN MANY INDIAN QUARTERS.

THE FIRST ANNOUNCEMENT NEARLY A MONTH AGO OF THE PLAN TO DRAW REPRESENTATIVES OF MOHANDAS K.GANDHI'S CONGRESS PARTY AND MAHOMED ALI JINNAH'S MOSLEM LEAGUE INTO THE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT, COUPLED WITH THE RELEASE OF IMPRISONED CONGRESS WORKING COMMITTEE MEMBERS, BROUGHT AN UPSURGE OF OPTIMISM.

AT LAST, IT SEEMED TO MANY INDIANS, A REAL EFFORT WAS TO BE MADE TO END THE LONG DEADLOCK. IT HAD BEEN APPARENT TO OBSERVERS IN INDIA FOR MANY MONTHS THAT THERE WAS A REAL PUBLIC DEMAND FOR THE TWO MAJOR POLITICAL PARTIES TO PUT THEIR POINTS OF DISAGREEMENT ASIDE AND COOPERATE IN FORMING A GOVERNMENT OF WIDE POPULAR APPEAL.

DEVELOPMENTS AT THE CONFERENCE TO DATE, HOWEVER, INDICATE THAT THE CONFLICTS WHICH SEPARATED THE TWO GROUPS IN TIMES PAST REMAIN AS STRONG AS EVER, IF THEY HAVE NOT ACTUALLY GROWN STRONGER.

JINNAH AND THE MOSLEM LEAGUE HAVE PERSISTED IN THE CONTENTION THAT THEY ARE ENTITLED TO NAME ALL MOSLEM MEMBERS ON THE PROPOSED NEW VICEROY'S COUNCIL BECAUSE THEY ARE BY FAR THE LARGEST MOSLEM ORGANIZATION.

THE CONGRESS PARTY HAS REFUSED TO CONCEDE THIS POINT, EVEN ON A TEMPORARY BASIS WHILE A NEW GOVERNMENT IS BEING FORMED. ITS CONTENTION IS THAT SUCH A CONCESSION WOULD BE AN ADMISSION THAT THE CONGRESS NO LONGER IS THE TRUE ALL-INDIA PARTY, BUT SIMPLY A PARTY PREDOMINANTLY OF HINDUS AND WITHOUT A MOSLEM FOLLOWING.

THE PRESENT GLOOMY ATMOSPHERE IS ACCENTUATED ON THE INDIAN SIDE BY REALIZATION THAT WORLD OPINION MIGHT BEGIN TO ACCEPT THE BRITISH VIEWPOINT THAT THE INDIANS ARE UNABLE TO GOVERN THEMSELVES BECAUSE THEY ARE UNABLE TO BURY THEIR RELIGIOUS DIFFERENCES.

IF THE PRESENT ATTEMPT OF VICEROY LORD WAVELL TO BRING ABOUT AN AGREEMENT FOR A NEW GOVERNMENT FAILS, IT WILL MARK THE FOURTH SUCH FAILURE WITHIN THREE YEARS.

SHOULD TOTAL FAILURE RESULT FROM THE SIMLA CONFERENCES, MANY OBSERVERS LOOK FOR A RAPID RISE OF SOME THIRD PARTY TO TAKE OVER THE INDIAN LEADERSHIP.

JUL 12 1945

THERE IS MUCH TALK THAT THIS MAY BE THE COMMUNIST PARTY, WHICH MIGHT COUPLE WITH THE SOCIALIST WING OF THE CONGRESS PARTY.

MADRID,JULY 11-(AP)-WELL INFORMED SOURCES SAID TODAY THE ALLIED CONTRO[L] COMMISSION WAS DRAFTING A PLAN TO SEND HOME MOST GERMANS NOW IN SPAIN, IF PRACTICABLE BEFORE THE END OF SUMMER, IF POSSIBLE.

THE PLAN WOULD AFFECT ABOUT 10,000 GERMANS LEADING THE LIVES OF IDLE RICH, INCLUDING FORMER EMBASSY STAFF MEMBERS, AS WELL AS SEVERAL THOUSAND MORE INTERNED OR LIVING LESS OPENLY, AMONG THEM 1,500 GERMAN SOLDIERS WHO ESCAPED FROM FRANCE IN 1944 AND NOW ARE IN CONCENTRATION CAMP.

THE SPANIARDS HAVE MADE NO OFFICIAL STATEMENT OF THEIR POSITION ON REPATRIATING THE GERMANS, BUT THESE INFORMANTS SAID ALLIED REPRESENTATIVES EXPECTED NO GREAT DIFFICULTIES IN REACHING A SATISFACTORY SOLUTION FOR THE MAJORITY OF CASES.

MOST OF THE DIFFICULTIES PROBABLY WOULD CONCERN GERMANS LATELY NATURALIZED AS SPANISH UNDER VARIOUS LAWS, ONE OF WHICH EXTENDED THE RIGHT OF CITIZENSHIP TO THOSE WHO PERFORMED SIGNAL SERVICES TO THE REGIME DURING THE CIVIL WAR, INCLUDING MEMBERS OF THE CONDOR LEGION OF GERMANS WHO FOUGHT ON GEN.FRANCISCO FRANCO'S SIDE.

(400) (ADVANCE FOR AMS OF THURSDAY JULY 12)

(ADVANCE) WASHINGTON, JULY 11-(AP)-SUGAR-SHORT AMERICANS ARE ASKING WHETHER THEY AREN'T GETTING A RAW DEAL UNDER A "SHARE-THE-SUGAR" ARRANGEMENT WITH THE UNITED KINGDOM AND CANADA.

THE QUESTION WAS PROMPTED BY NEWS THAT THE UNITED STATES HAS BOUGHT THE BIG CUBAN SUGAR CROP AND IS TURNING A GOODLY PORTION OF IT OVER TO OTHERS.

THE ANSWER GIVEN BY FOOD OFFICIALS IS A DETAILED AND EMPHATIC "NO."

IN AN EFFORT TO MEET MILITARY REQUIREMENTS OF THE VARIOUS FIGHTING ALLIES AND MINIMUM NEEDS OF THEIR CIVILIANS, THIS COUNTRY, THE UNITED KINGDOM AND CANADA HAVE MAINTAINED WHAT MIGHT BE CALLED A POOLING ARRANGEMENT ON SUGAR SINCE THE WAR STARTED.

UNDER THIS PLAN, ALL SUGAR AVAILABLE TO THESE COUNTRIES WERE, FOR THE PURPOSE OF DIVISION, THROWN TOGETHER. THEN FROM THIS TOTAL SUPPLY, MILITARY AND CIVILIAN NEEDS OF THESE COUNTRIES WERE MET, AND SOME WAS SENT TO RUSSIA.

THIS POOLING ARRANGEMENT WAS PROMPTED LARGELY BY THE FACTS THAT SOME IMPORTANT PEACETIME SOURCES OF SUPPLY--PARTICULARLY THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS AND THE DUTCH EAST INDIES--WERE LOST TO JAPAN, AND BY THE MILITARY NECESSITY OF KEEPING ALL ALLIED COU TRIES SUPPLIED.

WITHOUT SUCH AN ARRANGEMENT, OFFICIALS EXPLAIN, THE ALLIED COUNTRIES WOULD HAVE BEEN FORCED TO ENGAGE IN PERHAPS SERIOUS "CUT-THROAT" COMPETITION.

BRIEFLY, THIS IS HOW THE POOLING ARRANGEMENT OPERATES:

FOOD AUTHORITIES OF THE THREE COUNTRIES GOT TOGETHER HERE EARLY THIS YEAR AND ESTIMATED THAT SURPLUS SUGAR-PRODUCING AREAS WITHIN ALLIED REACH WOULD BE ABLE TO PLACE ABOUT 10,600,000 TONS OF SUGAR IN THIS POOL. THIS QUANTITY IS EQUIVALENT TO ABOUT 30 PER CENT OF A NORMAL YEAR'S PRODUCTION FOR THE WORLD.

THIS SUGAR WAS THEN ALLOCATED AMONG VARIOUS COUNTRIES NEEDING SUPPLIES FOR MILITARY AND CIVILIAN PURPOSES AND OTHERS NORMALLY DEPENDENT UPON THESE PRODUCING AREAS FOR SUGAR.

OFFICIALS DETERMINED THAT ABOUT 1,900,000 TONS WERE NEEDED TO MEET THE "MOST CONSERVATIVE" NEEDS OF LIBERATED AREAS, RUSSIA, THE NEUTRAL NATIONS (WHICH INCLUDES SPAIN) AND THE MIDDLE EAST.

THIS LEFT ABOUT 8,700,000 TONS FOR DIVISION AMONG THIS COUNTRY,

THE UNITED KINGDOM AND CANADA.

THE ALLIED FOOD AUTHORITIES AGREED UPON THE GENERAL PRINCIPLE THAT THE CIVILIAN CONSUMPTION OF THE THREE COUNTRIES DURING THE LAST NINE MONTHS OF THIS YEAR SHOULD BE AT THE SAME AVERAGE RATE--THAT OF 70.8 POUNDS. IN MAKING THIS DECISION, THEY WERE INFLUENCED BY THE FACT THAT PRE-WAR CONSUMPTION WAS ABOUT THE SAME FOR ALL THREE. THE PRE-WAR PER CAPITA CONSUMPTION WAS SAID TO BE ABOUT 97 POUNDS FOR THE UNITED STATES, 104 FOR THE UNITED KINGDOM AND 95.5 FOR CANADA.

IF THIS PRINCIPLE IS TO BE CARRIED OUT, IT WILL BE NECESSARY FOR THIS COUNTRY TO MAKE A PART OF THE CUBAN CROP AVAILABLE TO CANADA AND THE UNITED KINGDOM.

B-29'S STRIKE FIRST BLOWS AT 4 MORE JAPANESE CITIES; BIG 3 MEETING DUE MONDAY

B-29S FOLLOW UP HEAVY ATTACK BY MARINE CORSAIRS

Superforts Rain Demolition, Fire Bombs on Nip Industries.

NAVAL STATION HIT

Four Japanese Industrial Cities Attacked for First Time.

GUAM, Friday, July 13—(AP) More than 500 B-29s spilled 3,000 tons of fire and demolition bombs before dawn today on a Tokyo bay oil center and four Japanese cities after Marine and Navy planes had battered a big air station, factories and rail lines at the south end of the daily-pounded enemy homeland.

Shortly after the 21st Bomber command disclosed the Sixth Superfortress strike in 13 days at Nippon, Fleet headquarters reported a "strong flight" of Marine Corsairs tore into the Kanoya naval air station on Kyushu the day before. On the same day, Navy search planes destroyed a factory, damaged another and wrecked rail traffic on eastern Kyushu.

Truman in Touch with Fleet

A dispatch from the Cruiser Augusta taking President Truman to the big three conference said the chief executive was in touch hourly with the powerful U. S. Third fleet off Japan. This hinted at possible new blows, for the fleet has been under a security blackout since its big strike at Tokyo Tuesday.

Along a 180-mile strip from the southern island of Shikoku northward to an industrial city 60 miles north of Tokyo, the sky giants dumped their cargoes of destruction, bringing to nearly 18,000 tons the weight of bombs they have unloaded on Japan since July 1.

The big Kawasaki oil center on a reclaimed island in Tokyo bay, previously hit in an April raid, was the target of demolition bombs.

Raid Cities First Time

The four industrial cities, all raided for the first time, were showered with incendiary bombs in the same sort of saturation attack that has been erasing Japan's war industries one by one.

They were:

Utsonomiya, industrial city of 80,000 population 60 miles north of Tokyo.

Ichinomiya, west of Tokyo and nine miles northwest of the often-bombed munitions city of Nagoya.

Tsuruga, 55 miles northwest of Nagoya on the coast of the main home island of Honshu.

Uwajima, on the west-central coast of the southern home island of Shikoku.

The blows on the home islands coincided with new successes by U. S. air blockaders in the Yellow sea and came close to the heels of heavy strokes at the empire climaxed by a 1,000 carrier plane raid on Tokyo's air fields.

Convoys Flee Back to Post

Two heavily-gunned enemy convoys trying to run Nipponese troops from China to invasion-menaced Japan were driven back into port by the U. S. air blockade that is steadily throttling the island empire.

This operation, announced yesterday, underscored the words of a Japanese military commentator who declared that unless the aerial challenge to Japan could be met it would be impossible to repel the expected invasion.

Rear Adm. John Dale Price, retiring commander of the Fleet Air Wing One, said the troop-laden convoys put out from Shanghai into the Yellow sea, once the main link between Japan and its conquests in China.

They were jumped by bombers and rockey-firing fighters. The convoys threw up a curtain of anti-aircraft fire that prevented effective bombing attacks but not a ship reached Korea.

Presumably, the convoys, which turned back, put into the former German port of Tsingtao, more than 300 miles north of Shanghai.

(Late enemy broadcasts heard in San Francisco by the Federal Communications Commission said 180 fighters and bombers from Okinawa raided air fields on the southern home island of Kyushu Thursday and 18 Superfortresses flew over the main island of Honshu.)

The aerial blockade of the Yellow Sea and the straits between Korea and Japan has been extended to northern Korea itself, where an important supply railway line has been cut by bombers.

With the Yellow Sea unsafe, the Japanese have been trying to route men and supplies up through northern Korea and thence across the Sea of Japan, which also now is being swept by American air power

Coast Cruise Alternative

The alternative has been to run small vessels around Korea's coast, hiding by day in the thousands of small islands that dot the coastal waters and slipping across to Japan by night.

But even this is becoming hazardous, and American crews skimming low in attacks on such shipping have seen Koreans applauding them, waving and throwing their caps into the air, Price reported.

Price is retiring to take command of Okinawa as an operating base. He will be succeeded by Rear Admiral John Perry, of Greenville, South Carolina.

The course charted by Admiral William F. Halsey's 3d Fleet since its attack on Tokyo's guardian airfields Tuesday remained a mystery.

Pound Kyushu And Islands

Without mentioning the fleet, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced that "strong forces of Corsair fighters and Avenger torpedo bombers" from land bases Wednesday pounded Kyushu and the strategic northern Ryukyu Islands.

Today's communiqué from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported a score of Liberator and Mitchell bombers pounded factory and warehouse targets at Bokushi, on Formosa's west coast. Three grounded planes were destroyed at Tainan.

A small freighter laden with oil was sunk and three other freighters were damaged in attacks on Suo Bay on the northeast coast of Formosa.

Incendiaries Fire Mako Base

Fires visible for 30 miles were started by a single bomber that dropped incendiaries on Mako naval base, in the Pescadores west of Formosa.

Other sweeps were made from Indo-China to Malaya in the Dutch East Indies and eastward to the northern Celebes.

The fleet communiqué today said the search planes attacking eastern Kyushu yesterday blew up a railroad bridge and burned a passenger train and two locomotives.

Other search planes of the same Fleet Air Wing 1 destroyed a small coastal cargo ship near the China coast.

The night before, a search Mariner of that wing made four low-level attacks on shipping in the Whangpoo River near Shanghai but could not observe the results. The raiders drew no ground fire.

200 Miles North Of Tokyo

Fleet Air Wing 18 search planes, flying nearly 200 miles north of Tokyo to the area of Sendai, a recent B-29 target, damaged two picket craft off Honshu Wednesday and strafed fishing craft off Yokosuka.

The communiqué did not elaborate on the powerful attack by the Marine Corsairs on the Kanoya area.

On the approaches to Japan, Avenger torpedo planes damanged airstrips and bombed storage areas on Kikai Island in the Amami group of the Ryukyus, north of Okinawa, Wednesday.

3000 Tons of Fire and Explosive Bombs Are Dropped in Widespread Attack—Oil Target Blasted in Tokyo Bay.

Guam, Friday, July 13 (A. P.).—An air fleet of from 500 to 550 Superfortresses poured more than 3,000 tons of flaming and explosive bombs before dawn today on four Japanese cities and one important oil storage center in Tokyo Bay. The cities were spread over 480 miles of the home islands of Honshu and Shikoku.

The raiders struck from Uwajima, on the west central coast of Shikoku, to as far east as Utsunomiya, a city of 80,000 lying sixty miles north of Tokyo on the north Tokyo Plain.

Other cities hit along the way were the munitions center of Ichinomiya, nine miles northwest of Nagoya on a main double track mail line between Nagoya and Gifu, and Tsuruga, which lies on the west central part of the main home island of Honshu. They showered incendiaries on the cities and demolition bombs on Kawasaki, a petroleum center on a reclaimed island in Tokyo Bay.

Site of Great Oil Plants.

Kawasaki was bombed before, on April 16, but today's was the first raid for all the other places. The reclaimed island in Tokyo Bay is the site of facilities of the Nippon Oil Company the Standard Vacuum Oil Company, the Rising Sun Petroleum Company and the Mitsui Storage Depot.

It was the forty-ninth fire raid carried out by the Superfortresses, and brought to thirty-eight the number of Japanese cities they have attacked.

The blow was struck today after lighter bombers and fighters had carried the air war to the Japanese homeland in quick succession to Tuesday's great 1,000 carrier plane raid on Tokyo airfields.

Prior Devastation Estimated.

Meanwhile, today headquarters of the Twenty-first Bomber Command announced that 43.5 per cent of the industrial city of Akashi and 95 per cent of the Maruzen oil refinery have been knocked out. Only five large tanks and a few smaller structures remain intact at the refinery, which is thirty-five miles from Osaka.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today that "strong forces of Corsair fighters and avenger torpedo bombers" raided Kyushu and the northern Ryukyus Wednesday. They bombed, rocketed and strafed hangars, shops and buildings at Miyazaki airfield on southeast Kyushu, the Inujo airfield on Tanega Island to the south and installations in the Amami Group, northern Ryukyus.

Nimitz, however, had nothing further to report on the powerful blast Tuesday by more than 1,000 carrier planes of Vice-Admiral John S. McCain's Task Force 38 at a network of more than seventy airfields in the Tokyo area.

[In Washington, Undersecretary of the Navy Artemus L. Gates said Navy and Marine planes alone already have destroyed more than 17,000 Jap planes since the outbreak of the war.]

Tokyo radio said the carrier assault continued for a 12-hour period during which augmenting land-based planes, including more than 500 Superfortresses, pushed to beyond 1,900 the number of American raiders over Honshu that day.

Foresees Decisive Battle.

"Enemy propoganda on the intensifying air assault cannot be ignored," a Japanese military commentator said over Tokyo radio to his people. "Future attacks from the air undoubtedly will be the prelude to the decisive battle on the homeland. Without being able to resist (this air) challenge, we cannot annihilate the enemy on the homeland.

[Previous enemy broadcasts had emphasized to the Japanese that American air mastery did not necessarily assure a successful invasion.]

Nimitz said Marine aircraft scored rocket hits Tuesday night on "a number" of enemy ships of unidentified category off the south coast of Honshu. During the day, Navy search planes set afire enemy small cargo ships off the China coast.

In Manila, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's spokesman disclosed that Jap anti-aircraft fire on the fortress island of Formosa is diminishing under the daily pounding given it by Fifth Air Force bombers. Crewmen of more than forty Liberators which dropped fragmentation bombs Monday on three Formosa west coast airfields said the light ack ack was in sharp contrast with recent heavy ground fire.

Other MacArthur theater planes further paralyzed rail traffic along the French Indo-China coast and shot up airfields on Dutch Celebes and Java.

JAP HOMELAND HIT BY 500 SUPERFORTS

Truman Nears Europe; Long Parley Expected

Aboard the Cruiser Augusta, July 12 (AP)—President Truman neared Europe tonight for a conference which will cover so many problems that it may last longer than any previous Big-Three session.

It was revealed aboard this warship that the conversations with Prime Minister Churchill and Generalissimo Stalin in conquered Potsdam will get under way next Monday or Tuesday.

The President was reported convinced that the meeting on Berlin's outskirts will outlast those of Quebec, Tehran and Yalta. The Yalta meeting lasted eight days.

Talks With Byrnes, Leahy

Except for the date of the meeting itself, Mr. Truman's schedule still was kept secret for security reasons.

Mr. Truman, in thickening weather, stuck today to the admiral's cabin aboard the Augusta, immersed in discussions on the great issues to come up for decision at Potsdam.

Participating in the talks were James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, and Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's personal chief of staff.

Such matters as territorial adjustment, occupation policies, the feeding of freed and occupied areas, are only a few of the many subjects expected to be discussed. They are all bound up with the future course of world history.

May Visit London

Opinion aboard the presidential warship was that some of the big questions lend themselves to speedy settlement, but nobody in Mr. Truman's party showed any interest in fixing a time limit on the discussions of the heads of state.

Another indicator of possible long talks at Potsdam was the information that the President has declined to commit himself to any positive engagements in Europe afterward.

A "tentative" label was put on a reported visit to London, and there was no indication that Mr. Truman would see Gen. Charles de Gaulle in France on this trip.

Hears Of 3d Fleet's Strikes

Through the powerful communication facilities linking the presidential cruiser with the home Government, as well as with the American advance party at Potsdam, the Chief Executive kept in constant touch with latest developments in the war against Japan.

News of the 3d Fleet strikes, fitting so well into his consuming interest in early victory at a minimum cost in lives, was kept constantly up to date for him, on charts duplicating in reduced scale the White House maps of the Orient.

Commander John A. Tyree, assistant naval aide, brought the maps along and revised them hourly.

The first rain and rough weather since the Augusta sailed from Newport News last Saturday forced postponement of a routine launching of the Augusta's observation planes for Mr. Truman's inspection. It also threatened a smoker planned by the crew in the Augusta's well-deck tonight.

TRUMAN HAS OLD OUTFIT AS GUARD

Brussels, July 12 (A. P.).—President Truman, whose arrival in Europe is expected shortly, will have an honor guard from the Thirty-fifth Infantry Division in which he served as an artillery officer in the first world war.

The 137th Regiment of the Thirty-fifth Division arrived in Belgium today from France to meet the President when the cruiser Augusta puts in, probably at Antwerp or Amsterdam.

It was at the President's request that doughboys from the Thirty-fifth were tapped for the honor guard. The tr[illegible] with brightly polished h[illegible] and in spick uniforms, [illegible] from Reims.

Potsdam Parley Expected To Outlast Previous Talks

Truman Prepares for Long Conference With Stalin and Churchill—Keeps in Hourly Touch With Successes of Third Fleet

By the Associated Press.

ABOARD THE CRUISER AUGUSTA, July 12—The Big Three's meeting will begin next Monday or Tuesday, it was learned today amid indications that it would be prolonged. President Truman prepared for the possibility of a long conference while keeping in hourly touch with the Third Fleet's successes off Japan.

As this veteran warship edged closer to the British Isles and its ultimate destination in North Europe, it ran into low-hanging clouds and scattered showers for the first time since it left Newport News on Saturday morning.

Remaining in the Admiral's cabin, the President went over with Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy agenda covering a worldwide range suggested for discussion by the United States, Britain and Russia at the Potsdam meeting opening next Monday or Tuesday.

A review of the suggested topics, including proposed territorial adjustments, feeding, occupation and scores of others, was said to have convinced the President that his first major power conference might outlast those of Yalta, Teheran and Quebec. The Yalta meeting took eight days.

Elated Over Pacific News.

The President's major concern for the moment is speedy victory over Japan in the interest of saving thousands of American lives.

Opinions here are that there is hope that some of the Big Three questions can be adjusted speedily, but no one is interested in attempting to fix a deadline on the deliberations.

Elated over reports that the Third Fleet air forces now dominates the sea as well as the air over Japan, Mr. Truman followed the new and most powerful Pacific operations through detailed sea charts covering all the waters of the Pacific, kept constantly up to date by Commander John A. Tyree, assistant naval aid.

Tyree brought along smaller editions of all the White House maps and new developments are posted hourly.

The President is in constant and instantaneous communication by powerful radio with the White House, State, War and Navy departments as well as advance units of the American delegation to Potsdam, now at the site of the conference, with SHAEF headquarters and with European embassies.

The presumption is that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will join other members of the joint chiefs of staff at the Potsdam meeting.

Other Trips Uncertain.

Because of the uncertainty over the length of the conference, the President has not finally committed himself to any side trips following its conclusion. Even a reported visit to London is classed as tentative and there is no prospect that the President will visit France to talk with Gen. Charles de Gaulle on this trip.

A chief steward, who fought two years in the Philippines as captain of a guerrilla band without harm, suffered his first injury since then today. Benjamin Le Licodo, emptying waste baskets in quaters assignad to a member of the party, cut his finger on a razor blade inadvertently thrown into the basket.

Le Licodo, who serves on the presidential yacht Potomac and has been in the Navy for sixteen years, left Corregidor with Gen. Douglas MacArthur shortly before its fall in a P-T boat, but remained at Mindanao when the general and his family flew on to Australia. He was one of the men who served under Commander John D. Bulkley and helped evacuate the late Filipino President Manuel Quezon.

Weather Is Rough.

The rough weather forced a postponement of plans for a routine launching of observation planes for the President's inspection and there was a possibility that a smoker arranged by the crew for the well of the ship tonight also would have to be delayed.

The President talked again today with Lawrence Truman, his third cousin, a fire control man from Owensboro, Ky.

He was disclosed to have started preparations for his first meeting with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Church immediately upon succeeding to the presidency.

An escort of British men-of-war will meet the party as it nears the British Isles.

TRUMAN'S FORMER UNIT WILL GREET HIM IN ANTWERP

President May Arrive in Belgium During Government Crisis.

REACHES PORT SUNDAY

Entire 137th Regiment of Midwesterners Reach Arrival Port.

By EDWARD D. BALL

ANTWERP, Belgium, July 12—(AP) President Harry S. Truman, who is scheduled to reach Antwerp Sunday on his way to the Big Three meeting, will be greeted by present-day soldiers of the outfit he fought with in the first World War.

The honor guard when the President steps ashore from the Cruiser Augusta will be the entire 137th Infantry Regiment [illegible] 35th Infantry Division, which includes many men from his native midwest. The regiment reached Antwerp today after a 317-mile journey by truck from Neustadt, near Mannheim in western Germany.

The possibility that the President's arrival may coincide with a crisis in Belgium's long-drawn-out governmental controversy also arose today, when Regent Prince Charles flew from Brussels to King Leopold's villa near Salzburg, Austria. The King is reported by the anti-Leopold press in Belgium to be working out the last details of his abdication.

Edge Worn Off

However, there was no indication that anything unusual might happen if the President should arrive simultaneously with an abdication announcement. The edge has worn off the controversy in progress for weeks and Belgians were going about their business. Big transports coming to take doughboys home from the war were nosing into the docks of Antwerp's great harbor, where sweating stevedores were laboring.

When Mr. Truman steps onto one of those docks, he will see the familiar Santa Fe shoulder patch of his old outfit, with which he served as a captain in the 128th Artillery regiment in the last war, but there won't be a single familiar face.

The only old-timer who served with the 35th Division when he was in it—Mess Sgt. Paul "Chung" Hill of Holton, Kansas—left for home recently for treatment for ulcers. Sgt. Hill had been a member of the Division since 1917.

Cousin in Command

The 35th Division once was commanded by the President's cousin, Maj. Gen. Ralph Truman, but he left it for another assignment in September, 1941. The honor guard 137th Regiment is commanded by Col. William S. Murray of Nogales, Ariz. It is the only regiment of the 35th which served with the division in the last war, the others having all been parcelled out to other divisions.

A close friend of the President, Maj. George Hogg, Jr., of Springfield, Mo., the regimental surgeon, left for home three days ago. But there will be a lot of Kansans and Missourians on hand in the honor guard.

One from close to home will be Pvt. Willard T. Smith, who lives six miles from Mr. Truman's home town of Independence, Mo., and who voted for him the last time he ran for senator. Also among those present will be Lt. Frank A. Bratkovic of Kansas City, Kans., who used to see Mr. Truman around Kansas City. "I think he's swell," said Bratkovic. "In fact, I think all Kansans and Missourians ought to be president."

AUSSIES ADVANCE IN VIOLENT FIGHT

Dutch Help in Attempt to Encircle Nip Positions Near Balikpapan.

MANILA, Friday, July 13—(AP) A violent battle beyond Balikpapan was reported today with Australian and Dutch troops wielding flamethrowers in an attempt to encircle formidable Japanese [illegible] positions north of the captured Borneo oil port.

At the same time, a one-mile advance [illegible] Balikpapan was scored by Australian troops fighting along Borneo's east coast toward the rich Sambodja oil fields.

Infantrymen of the Australian Seventh division, supported by Dutch Colonial troops, were closing in on the core of enemy resistance north of Balikpapan, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique announced.

Paced by tanks and flamethrowers, they blasted their way through tough resistance in a two-mile advance and closed in on "Smashed Stone Ridge," keystone of the enemy's positions.

Aussies, Dutch Join

Meanwhile Dutch forces farther east, pushing along Kariango peninsula, joined another Australian column and swung northeast, attempting to encircle the ridge.

The Australian forces driving along Borneo's east coast sent back word that Japanese resistance had begun to slacken as they advanced two and a half miles beyond Manggar airdrome, 13 miles east of Balikpapan.

The gain was ground out only after a week of heavy fighting, during which a number of enemy guns, mortars and light machine-guns were captured.

The advance placed the Australians about a dozen miles from Sambodja, pipeline control point and administrative center in the oil field.

A dispatch broadcast by Tokyo claimed without Allied confirmation that at least 1,500 Allied troops had been killed or wounded in the fighting around Balikpapan.

Across the big island along the northwest coast, Australian troops in a 10-mile advance drew within 30 miles of Jesselton in an unopposed march up the Jesselton-Beaufort railroad. An enemy strongpoint in the rubber plantation forests east of Beaufort was destroyed.

Another Australian force in one of its amphibious leaps along Borneo's west coast also reached a point 30 road miles from Jesselton, arriving at the village of Andus.

Kenney Moves To Okinawa, Base Of Enlarged Air Force

Manila, Friday, July 13 (AP)—Gen. George C. Kenney, whose then-slender aerial resources stopped a Japanese invasion convoy in the Bismarck Sea in March, 1943, became top tactical army air commander today in the 'round-the-clock bombing campaign against the Japanese homeland, with his advanced headquarters on Okinawa.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, commander in chief of army forces in the Pacific, announced that the United States Army 7th Air Force had been made an integral part of Kenney's Far Eastern Air Forces, which already included the 5th and 13th Air forces.

Deployed To Forward Bases

In announcing the new command two days after Admiral Chester W. Nimitz had disclosed that control of the 7th Air Force was passing to the Army, MacArthur said the central Pacific force of Liberators and Mitchells was "in the process of deployment to forward bases to participate in the air saturation of Japan."

The 7th Air Force includes the 7th Fighter Command, whose Iwo Jima-based Mustangs have been steadily striking Japan for weeks past and providing escorts for Superfortresses.

The Superfortresses of the 20th Air Force and the 8th Air Force of European fame already have been designated as the strategic air forces under Gen. Carl A. Spaatz.

Kenney, whose 5th and 13th Air forces were the spearhead of MacArthur's advance from New Guinea to Luzon after beating off the Japanese New Guinea reinforcement attempt in the Bismarck Sea, said:

"As soon as we are in position, we will attack Japan from 10,000 feet and from ten feet, with fire and explosives, with bombers and fighters—and we will do it 24 hours a day.

"The 7th has come from the east, the 5th from the south and the 13th from the southeast.

Learned With Every Move

"Okinawa is a long way from Hawaii, from Port Moresby and the Solomons, but we have learned something with every move.

"We have pulled the long-range 'snooper' out of our hats, and the long-range fighter; we have developed the attack bomber, the para-frag bomb, the fire bomb, and we have got still more tricks up our sleeve."

Kenney, who will be 56 on August 6, has been MacArthur's air commander since the earliest days of the long fight back from Australia and New Guinea. He has been a flyer since World War I, when he served in Europe with the old 91st Aero Squadron.

Already Represented

The 7th Air Force now under his command is led by Brig. Gen. Thomas D. White, of Springfield, Ill. It already is represented on Okinawa with a force of Liberator heavy bombers and Mitchell mediums.

White, who recently took command of the 7th from Maj. Gen. Willis D. Hale, previously served as deputy commander of Kenney's 13th Air Force, the so-called "jungle air force," under Maj. Gen. Paul B. Wurtsmith.

2 Convoys Trying to Reinforce Japs on Borneo Are Destroyed

The forward digger elements, in driving a three-mile wedge into the Jap positions, moved to within a half-mile of the ridge, Mount Batochamoar, a 200-foot hill feature on which the Nipponese are well fortified.

On the central sector, other Aussies repulsed Jap counter-attacks three miles inland from the mouth of the Sepinggang Ketjil River, where the perimeter guards the Sepinggang airfield. Associated Press War Correspondent Russell Brines reported the captured Sepinggang field within ten days of completion and its Japanese built asphalt runways capable of extension to 1,200 feet. Dutch airmen, piloting Mitchell medium bombers are ready to go into operation from the field as soon as it is completed.

On the right flank, the Australians fighting along the highway five and a half miles northeast of captured Manggar Airfield received both naval and aerial support to smash Jap artillery and mortar fire. Melbourne radio reported they had reached the Adjeranden River.

Jungle Fighters Battling Jap Rear Guard in Drive Toward Rich Oil Fields.

DAVIS

Manila, July 12 (A. P.).—Australian Seventh Infantry and Dutch colonial troops advanced slowly today on Borneo's rich Sambodja oil fields despite the tough delaying action being fought by beached Jap naval personnel in the steaming, rained-soaked equatorial forests.

Some six miles north of Balikpapan, the Aussies, their path cleared by Lightning fighters which sprayed a twelve-mile area with jellied gasoline, breached the outer lines of the Jap hinterland defense in an advance on "Smashed Stone" Ridge.

Homeland From Shanghai, Says Admiral John Price

ERICKSON

By The Associated Press.

GUAM, July 12—Japanese attempts to run two troop-laden convoys of soldiers from Shanghai to bolster homeland defenses against an American invasion were apparently broken up by blockading United States naval aircraft, Rear Admiral John Dale Price reported today.

One of the ships in the second convoy looked like the former Italian liner Contessa de Savoia, 28,000-ton pre-war luxury ship.

[Lloyd's shipping register does not list a Contessa de Savoia. The Conte di Savoia was reported under German control at Venice in November, 1943.

[Admiral Price is relinquishing command of Fleet Air Wing I to become commander of the advanced naval operating base on Okinawa.]

Admiral Price said none of the transports in the two troop convoys was sunk in the combined attack by Fleet Air Wing 1 Mariners and Privateers and strafing Thunderbolt fighters, but none of the transports got across the Yellow Sea to Korea or through the Korean Straits to the Sea of Japan.

The convoys were presumably driven into the former German port of Tsingtao, churning yellow mud in the shallow water.

Heavy anti-aircraft fire from the convoy prevented effective bombing attacks, but rockets from Thunderbolt fighters started fires lasting about twenty minutes on one ship.

The plain-spoken, Arkansas-born Admiral, who is 53 years old, is relinquishing command of Fleet Air Wing One to become commander of the Okinawa operating base. In this assignment Price will direct the development of Okinawa as an advance naval operating base. The best potential harbor on Okinawa is Buckner Bay, which the Japs used as a fleet anchorage when it was known as Nakagusuku Wan.

Price is being succeeded as Fleet Air Wing One commander by Rear Admiral John Perry of Greenville, S. C.

Price's new assignment was announced simultaneously with the award to him of the Navy Cross by Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz for directing the Fleet Air Wing's operations from Okinawa in which 159 seagoing ships, aggregating 145,000 tons, were sunk, and 194 other vessels, totaling 138,000 tons were damaged.

Price said Fleet Air Wing One is able to maintain a patrol over Korea and Tsushima Strait more than sixteen hours daily. The Japs can't get started on a run across from the continent to Japan without being detected and are forced to use small 80-ton "sugar dog" freighters almost exclusively.

Blockade Stops Traffic.

The aerial blockade of the Yellow Sea and Korea Strait has virtually stopped what used to be a fast and safe three-day ship run between Shanghai and the homeland, Price said. Presumably the Japs are trying now to make the transshipment over a three-week route—by rail into northern Korea and then across the Sea of Japan. Planes of the air wing have broken the rail line. Shipping is getting scarcer to find, and Jap anti-aircraft fire more accurate.

Privateer crews making water-skimming runs on ships in Korea's maze of inlets have seen Koreans applauding their work, tossing their caps in the air and waving their arms.

"That's right in front of the Japs, too, you know," Price said.

JAPANESE PLATOON FIGHTS ON OKINAWA

GEISER

OKINAWA, July 12 (AP)—A heavily armed Japanese platoon was wiped out in a two-hour battle with alert American troops today after it had sneaked within 200 yards of American Twenty-fourth Corps headquarters in the first organized attack since the Okinawa campaign officially ended.

The Japanese were moving toward the headquarters of Gen. John R. Hodges when surprised by a patrol led by Sgt. Lynn Bullen of Mason, Mich. In the two-hour fight twenty-four of the enemy were killed. It was not known if any escaped.

Sergeant Bullen discovered two Japanese machine-gun positions as he was taking the patrol through heavily wooded, hilly country near Nakagusuku Castle, former headquarters of a portion of the enemy's Okinawa forces.

Both machine-gun positions were manned and Sergeant Bullen ordered his men to open fire.

Lieut. Anthony J. Bogaards of 625 Front Street, Long Beach, L. I., who was at near-by headquarters, assembled the remainder of the patrol's platoon and rushed to the scene of action. There were only twelve men in the original patrol and six were wounded.

The Japanese used machine guns and knee mortars from behind rocks and trees. Lieutenant Bogaards' inspection of equipment carried by the dead showed it to be of both American and Japanese manufacture, with American carbines and food apparently stolen from stores. Six sabers indicated the presence of officers.

A number of other Japanese had been killed near by recently, one after he ran through the American camp tossing grenades.

NATURE WITHDRAWING JAP WEATHER DEFENSES

GEISER

OKINAWA, July 12.—(AP) Nature is withdrawing Japan's weather defenses, observers reported today, and during the next couple of months American airmen may expect generally clear skies for bombing and strafing missions.

This is true, the weather men explained, despite the fact the period will also be one of increasing typhoons and electrical storms. These violent disturbances occur only occasionally, three or four a month at the most.

Okinawa is the only weather observation post the United States ever had near the center of the oriental weather "cradle." It will greatly augment observations at Saipan, Guam and other stations.

S/Sgt. Floyd C. Smith of Long Beach, Calif., an aerologist, said the oriental cradle extends on a line roughly from Shanghai, China, several hundred miles northeastward through the Japanese cities of Kobe, Sasebo and Tokyo.

Along this line the warm air from the tropical Pacific strikes the cold mass from northern Asia. This produces fogs and rains over Japan from February to July.

PREMIER SUZUKI CALLS CABINET TO DISCUSS FOOD

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12—(AP) Premier Kantaro Suzuki—confronted with a tightening U. S. air blockade and a rising clamor of home front criticism—convened his cabinet and a phalanx of "elder statesmen" today to consider the home islands' "worsening food situation."

Suzuki first called on Emperor Hirohito, then went into conference with his cabinet and such former premiers as Gen. Hideki Tojo, architect of the Pearl harbor attack, and Prince Fumimaro Konoye, who was sidetracked to private life when Japan took its fateful decision to war on the United States.

They listened to an explanation of the food situation—which has prompted recent cuts in rations—from Motoi Yukawa, agriculture and commerce vice-minister, said a Tokyo home front broadcast picked up by the Federal Communications Commission.

Shakeup Cabinet Posts

Suzuki later announced a wholesale shakeup of 27 lesser cabinet positions. He also called a conference for Monday of all regional administrators, recently empowered to act independently in event of an invasion.

The so-called dean of the Japanese press declared the cabinet should do better than hold routine meetings and accused it of doing nothing "while the empire is confronted by its most serious crisis."

This critic is 82-year-old Ichiro Tokstomi, who recently has been quoted in enemy broadcasts as demanding that the government tell the people about the seriousness of repeated military reverses in the Pacific.

A Domei dispatch questioned the adequacy of the defenses in middle and small cities now under "increasingly fierce bombing attacks every day."

It reported that in such bombed cities as Yamagata in north central Honshu, civilian "deserters from the defense front" were trying to flee instead of digging badly-needed bomb shelters.

Domei claimed that Japanese aircraft factories had been moved underground and were working night and day "utterly oblivious of the air raid alarms above" to turn out planes to meet American air power.

Describes Hidden Plant

Domei described one hidden airplane factory as a 572-acre area "towered by a deep mountain fastness on its surface" where "thousands of workers silently produce planes."

Other Japanese broadcasts showed growing concern over what was about to happen to Nippon's now largely-isolated conquests far to the south.

One said 210 planes from two British aircraft carriers raided Sabank off the northern end of the Dutch East Indies island of Sumatra yesterday.

The Japanese speculated that the British soon might land on Bar Nicobar island, 450 miles north of Sumatra, a logical stepping stone to the Malay peninsula and Singapore.

Domei said that last month "enemy secret agents" landed on Tanahmasa island, off Sumatra's south coast, set up two bases, but both were wiped out.

SUZUKI ASSAILED BY TOKYO EDITOR

San Francisco, July 12 (A. P.).—As the constant blasting of Allied bombs tore at Japan's home soil today, a leading Nipponese journalist accused the Suzuki Cabinet of doing nothing "while the empire is confronted by its most serious crisis," Radio Tokyo reported.

DAY

Eighty-two-year-old Ichiro (Soho) Tokutomi, dean of the Japanese press, exhorted the Cabinet to do better than hold routine meetings in the Premier's residence, said the enemy broadcast heard by the FCC. Earlier Tokutomi severely criticized the Government for not telling the people the truth about the seriousness of military setbacks in the Pacific.

Tokyo radio's broadcasts today brimmed over with fear for the future. They included:

Worry that Admiral William F. Halsey's Third Fleet was still on the prowl and soon would launch another huge carrier plane attack.

Disclosure that Jap civilian "deserters from the defense front" are attempting to flee bombed cities such as Yamagata in north central Honshu instead of "digging-in."

A report that 210 planes from British aircraft carriers struck Sabang off the northern end of distant Sumatra yesterday.

Speculation that the British intend to land on Nicobar Island, 450 miles north of Sumatra, west of the Malay Peninsula.

The Sumatra area reports are linked with the earlier Jap decision to evacuate unnecessary civilians from Singapore at the tip of the Malay Peninsula, where the Nipponese expect an invasion in the next few months.

Tokyo Admits Fires Started by Bombers

SAN FRANCISCO, July 12—(AP) A Tokyo broadcast acknowledged tonight the announcement from Guam of a new Superfort strike on Japan before dawn Friday (Tokyo time), saying the raid "continued for about three hours." The FCC monitored the broadcast.

"As a result of the enemy raid, fires broke out in and around Utsunomiya (60 miles north of Tokyo) and also parts of the Keihin (Tokyo-Yokohama district," a Domei news agency dispatch said.

It claimed most of the fires "have been brought under control by dawn."

JAPANESE FISHING HIT

Industry Shattered by Bombers, Commerce Department Says

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP)—The Allies' advance has "shattered" the Japanese fishing industry, which led the world before the war, the Commerce Department said today.

"As the far-flung fisheries of the Japanese fade," the department said, "opportunities for other peoples may mount."

A press release said:

"United States and Allied aircraft have destroyed untold numbers of these fishing vessels in Japanese waters and, as the tempo of the Pacific war increases and operations expand from Okinawa and other captured islands to supplement the constant bombing by our B-29's, fishing will become a more and more hazardous operation for the Japanese."

Guam Priest Who Aided Yank Beheaded By Japs

Chicago, July 12 (AP)—A native priest who helped George Ray Tweed, 43-year-old navy radio man, evade the Japs on Guam for 31 months, was beheaded for his actions, a navy lieutenant said today in a letter to the Chicago Times.

Lieut. (jg) B. F. Muirheid, serving aboard the U.S.S. Luzon in the Pacific, wrote to the newspaper that the priest was one of three Chamorros beheaded by the Japs on Guam "because they loved the United States too much."

EXILES TRYING TO KEEP ARMY

London Poles Open Campaign To Hold Forces Out Of Poland

Singleton

London, July 12 (AP)—An apparently organized campaign by the high command of Poland's armies on foreign soil to block the repatriation of Polish troops was indicated today in an order of the day by Lieut. Gen. Wladislaw Anders protesting Allied recognition of the new Warsaw Polish Government.

Anders recently was appointed by the exiled Polish Government as commander-in-chief of all Poland's land, sea and air forces abroad. His order was made public by Polish forces headquarters here just one day after Maj. Gen. Kemlens Rudnicki, commander of the Polish 1st Armored Division in occupied Germany, asked his men in a similar order to remain loyal to the London group of Poles.

The Fait Accompli

Anders, now in Italy, declared Allied recognition of the Warsaw Government was a "heavy blow," and asserted "the powers of the world trample over our constitution, over our rightful authorities. For the temporary sake of convenience, they accept the fait accompli which was imposed on Poland by foreign might.

"All of us will be the object of attack, of insidious agitation. They will call on us for a so-called free return to our country—a return which we know is cloaked with uncertain consequence.

A Favorable Change

"They will search among Polish soldiers for men of feeble will and nerves. This work will be facilitated by the fact that our legal Polish authoritics have been deprived of all means of public relations serving the Polish cause, even in the form of broadcasts from London."

The order declared "return is impossible for the time being. We must remain in disciplined and closed ranks, awaiting a favorable change of conditions."

Anders did not say what would constitute a "favorable change of conditions."

Britain Frees P. W. Of Murder Charge

London, July 12 (A. P.).—One of seven German prisoners of war accused of killing another prisoner was acquitted and discharged today. Findings regarding the others will be announced later.

The court of six British officers discharged Herbert Wunderlich. He had testified that he signed a statement under coercion asserting that he helped drag the body of the murdered man, Sergt. Major Wolfgang Rosterg, to a lavatory where it was hanged. The accused men are said to have killed Rosterg on December 23 because he was anti-Nazi.

BRADLEY CHIDES OFFICERS

Warns Against Monopolizing Time of USO Performers

LONDON, Friday, July 13 (AP)—The Stars and Stripes, Army newspaper, said today that Gen. Omar N. Bradley had directed Army officers to cease monopolizing the time of USO performers and permit them to entertain the GI's as they are supposed to do.

The paper said the directive was issued while General Bradley was acting Commander in Chief of the European Theatre in the absence of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

In the directive, the paper said, General Bradley pointed out that the USO shows "are intended primarily for enlisted soldiers" and suggested that entertainment of the performers by officers often resulted "in monopolizing all free time of th eartists."

"Instead of entertaining the performers personally, the commanders might well encourage them to visit the clubs, messes, dances and other assembly points of enlisted personnel to a maximum extent," the directive was quoted as saying.

More Liquor Is Reserved For Non-Coms in Europe

LONDON, July 12—(AP)—Part of the liquor supplies in the European theater of operations are being reserved for non-commissioned officers under a new policy prescribed by Gen. Eisenhower, the Army publication Stars and Stripes reported in a Paris dispatch today.

Heretofore liquor has been reserved only for officers. As a result of the new policy, the dispatch said, officers are finding their July ration smaller than usual.

No provision was made for privates or Pfcs, however the dispatch said. Neither does the order apply to the United Kingdom, since no supplies are available for any ration, although officers clubs are receiving a limited amount from British sources.

De Valera Moves To Quell IRA, 14 'Terrorists' Taken

Dublin, July 12 (AP)—Prime Minister Eamon de Valera invoked emergency powers today to quell what he termed plans for a terrorist campaign and his order was followed by the arrest of fourteen men whom the Government described as leaders of the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

"They formed the hard core of the IRA," a government spokesman said, "and were perparing to carry on acts of terrorism again."

[The Daily Sketch in London reported that leaders of the Irish Republican Army had voted death sentences for de Valera and other top government officials and had sent to each a foolscap order for a summary execution.

[Each order, promulgated by "courts-martial" which sat in secret hideouts, carried a priority number for execution, the newspaper said, with the Prime Minister marked as No. 1 on the death list.

[The newspaper said that it was "considered possible" in Dublin that de Valera's statement yesterday that Eire is a republic was made to placate the IRA.]

The Dail (Parliament) adjourned at midnight without de Valera having an opportunity to make his expected explanation of his statement that Eire is a "republic."

With the gallery packed with visitors awaiting de Valera's explanation, the opposition kept the house busy discussing minor matters throughout Thursday's session.

14 Irishmen Arrested As Illegal Army Leaders

De Valera Says Action Ordered to Quell Terrorist Plans

DUBLIN, July 12 (AP).—Fourteen men whom the government described as leaders of the illegal Irish Republican Army were arrested today after Prime Minister Eamon de Valera invoked emergency powers to quell what he called plans for a terrorist campaign.

The arrested men were among 300 Irishmen released recently from internment. They had been in custody during the war, under emergency powers to protect Eire's neutrality.

"They formed the hard core of the I. R. A.," a government spokesman said, "and were preparing to carry on acts of terrorism again."

The seized men were taken to "the Curragh," where 262 Germans still are interned. All Allied service men interned during the war have been released.

GEN EISENHOWER BACK IN FRANCE

Paris, July 12 (A. P.).—Gen. Eisenhower returned by plane last night to the continent his leadership helped free from the Nazi grasp, and today began the last steps leading to final dissolution of his supreme command.

[Only day before yesterday Eisenhower was in the United States. On that day he placed a wreath on President Roosevelt's grave at Hyde Park.]

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force will be dissolved at 12:01 A. M. on July 14, it was announced today soon after Gen. Eisenhower's return. The American, British and French forces which served under the Supreme Commander will then revert to national control.

The SHAEF announcement of its imminent dissolution contained no details.

The mighty Allied forces will revert to their own national control and Eisenhower will step over to the command of the Americans and to his place on the Interallied Control Council for defeated Germany.

FRENCH TO DECIDE GOVERNMENT FORM

De Gaulle Says Issue Is Up To People Only

Paris, July 12 (AP)—Gen. Charles de Gaulle said in a broadcast tonight that the issue of the kind of government France is to have must be decided by the French people alone.

He said that the future of France depends to a great extent upon what the voters do on October 14, when the country's first general election since before the war is scheduled to be held.

The election will combine balloting for seats in a national assembly and a referendum on whether France is to go back to the constitution of 1875, which was ditched by the Vichy government during the German occupation, or draft a new constitution.

'This Hellish Cycle'

De Gaulle expressed confidence that the proposed interim government while framing a new constitution, would have sufficient stability to rule "during the difficult conditions of next winter and the following spring." He also expressed his own opposition to a single legislative house, favored by Leftist parties, saying it would "absorb all power without any limit to its prerogatives."

De Gaulle declared that he feels the constitution of 1875 needs at least revision "to correspond to the exigencies of this difficult era." He reminded his listeners that France has had thirteen different constitutions in the last 150 years, plus innumerable governments and political disorders, and more than one coup d'etat.

"This hellish cycle," he said, "has given our pubic life the character of interruption, disturbance and improvisation which was disastrous in the sum total. . . . The manner wherein we rebuild our institutions will decide in large measure the future of France."

35TH DIVISION STARTS REDEPLOYMENT TREK

PARIS, July 12 (AP)—Advance units of the Thirty-fifth Division reached the Reims assembly area today and the main body of this latest group to be redeployed will arrive by July 18 on its way west for embarkation in August, Supreme Headquarters announced today.

The order to return home reached the Thirty-fifth Division exactly one year after it had started combat in France. It fought at St. Lô, helped to break the German counter-attack at Avranches, captured Nancy, breached the Roer River line, crossed the Rhine, wiped out a German pocket at Wesel and drove into the Ruhr to Dortmund. When Germany surrendered, it was occupying Hanover.

The redeployment status of other divisions follows:

104th—Mostly in the United States, the rest at sea.

Fourth, Eighth and Eighty-seventh—All at sea.

Forty-fourth—In the United Kingdom awaiting reshipment home.

Second—Advance units sailed from Le Havre on June 30, rest clearing port today.

Fifth—Advance units sailed from Le Havre on June 30; main body expected to sail today.

Thirteenth Armored—Advance units sailed from Le Havre on June 30, the rest at port for shipment July 13-19.

Twentieth Armored—Advance units will sail from Le Havre tomorrow; main body now en route to port for embarkation.

Twenty-eighth—Advance units expected to sail from Le Havre today; main body still at assembly area.

Thirtieth—Advance party left assembly area yesterday for Le Havre.

Thirty-fifth—Advance party arrived at assembly area today, rest due there July 18.

LYON, France, July 12 (AP)—Approximately 500 United States Army trucks were turned over to French military authorities today for the transportation of food from agricultural areas to the civil population of Lyon and environs. Western Allies Destroyed 161 Nazi Divisions

Twelfth Army Group Headquarters, Germany (A. P.).—The Allied juggernaut that destroyed German power in western Europe destroyed at least 161 enemy divisions or similar major units between D Day, June 6, 1944, and May 9, 1945.

Many were annihilated on their first contact with American or British arms. Others were mauled beyond recognition and their elements absorbed into other divisions. Some, like the famed Panzerlehr division, were wiped out time and again, only to reform and fight on until finally crushed in the Ruhr. A few fought all the way across France into Germany and still were on their feet when the remnants of the Wehrmacht surrendered unconditionally. But the over-all picture is one of destruction never before equalled by English-speaking armies.

The 353d German Infantry Division was the first to be destroyed. It was hit by the American First Infantry Division and 116th Infantry Regiment of the Twenty-ninth Division on Omaha Beach on D Day in one of the most terrific fights in the Normandy campaign.

The 353d had moved into position only the day before the invasion and for six hours after the landings the beach was in such peril that some correspondents thought the invasion had failed. Later developments showed, however, that in this fight the 353d was all but wiped out and had to be reformed. It reappeared later at Aachen, where it received another beating. Its remnants finally were absorbed by the 175th Infantry Division, which in turn was destroyed in the Ruhr.

"Destroyed in the Ruhr" is the tagline that ended the career of more than twenty German divisions. No single pocket yielded a greater bag of prisoners to the Allied armies. A First Army spokesman originally estimated that the pocket held 125,000 enemy front-line combat troops. This figure later was contested by SHAEF, which suggested there were no more than 35,000 trapped there. But the final count showed 327,000 Germans in the bag. The Hartz pocket and the Black Forest were other windfalls that contributed tens of thousands of prisoners to Allied cages.

Nazis Defeated West of Rhine.

The real core of the German army, however, was destroyed west of the Rhine. From Normandy straight across France on one side and from the Riviera up through the Vosges Mountains on the other, Allied armies supported by overwhelming air superiority broke the back of the Wehrmacht so that when it tried to make a stand east of the Rhine it had nothing left with which to fight.

The graves of its crack divisions are to be seen along almost every road in France from Bordeaux to Strasbourg, and the record of their demise reads like an official mortician's report—"Seventy-seventh Infantry Division destroyed in Normandy"; "226th Infantry Division destroyed in Brest and on Crozon Peninsula;" "331st Infantry Division destroyed west of Seine"; "462d Infantry Division destroyed south of Seine."

In the final weeks of the campaign the Allied armies were taking prisoners in excess of 100,000 daily. The high mark came April 16, when 180,000 surrendered to the Twelfth Army Group.

20 BERLIN AREAS SHIFT

U.S., Britain Take Over, Begin Examining Appointees

Berlin, July 12 (AP)—The United States and Britain took over control of twelve of Berlin's twenty boroughs from the Russians today and American counterintelligence officers immediately began examining Soviet-appointed German administrators and policemen to weed out possible Nazis.

The American officers indicated that effiecient Russian-named civil servants would be retained regardless of whether they were Communists or Social Democrats or had other non-Nazi affiliations.

United States units which had been waiting since midnight of July 4 to take over moved into their occupation zone at 9 A.M., and British officers assumed control at noon. American truck convoys were organized to feed 750,000 Berliners, while the British accepted responsibility for 900,000 in their zone.

Zhukov Decorated

The inter-Allied commandatur for Berlin announced that all existing Soviet orders and regulations would be continued until "special notice."

In the British sector, Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, who led the Soviet armies to Berlin, received Britain's high Order of Grand Commander of the Bath from Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery at a formal military ceremony in front of the Brandenburg Gate.

Montgomery also bestowed the Order of Knight Commander of the Bath upon Polish-born Russian Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky, and the Order of Knight of the British Empire upon Gen. Vassily Sokolovsky and Col. Gen. Mikhail Malinin.

Guard Of Honor

One hundred grenadier guardsmen, 24 tanks of the 8th Hussars and a squadron of the 11th Hussars' armored cars formed an honor guard for the Soviet commanders.

Anglo-Soviet military police blocked off Unter Den Linden and Charlottenburger Chaussee, so the only Germans who witnessed the presentation were five policemen. Montgomery flew to Berlin especially to make the presentations.

Soviet Orders Govern Berlin

Inter-Allied Chief Announces All Existing Rules Stay in Force Pro Tem.

Berlin, July 12 (A. P.).—The Inter-Allied Kommandatur of Berlin announced today that all existing Soviet regulations and orders would be continued in force until special notice.

The announcement came a few hours after the Red Army authorities had formally relinquished control of twelve of Berlin's twenty boroughs to the Americans and British. There was no observable change in the Russian pattern of rule.

ing facilities and were surprised to find nearly everything except a linotype machine. They rounded up enough men to start the paper by hand.

The result was presented proudly today by Capt. D. C. Wallace of Minneapolis.

Wallace and Corporal Patrick Brogan of Buffalo got out the first Hell on Wheels with a duplicating machine early in 1943. They decided Berlin would be a cinch compared to that.

There are no reports yet of any English-language competitors preparing to appear soon.

Life Goes on Undisturbed.

United States detachments which had been waiting since midnight of July 4 took over authority in the American zone at 9 A. M. The British began legal occupation at noon.

American truck convoys were being organized to feed 750,000 Berliners in the United States sector, from western Germany, and the British also assumed responsibility for 900,000 city dwellers.

Berlin's outward life went on undisturbed. Soviet-authorized schools were open, Communist party district headquarters were as active as ever, bucket brigades of civilians were still picking up rubble stone by stone, and "fraternization" cafes were ready for the midafternoon rush of Allied and German patrons.

In American run boroughs military government officers frankly said they would "not change any previous important Soviet directive" unless the multi-Allied command for Berlin so decided. British officers also were expected to follow this general policy.

So, temporarily at least, the British and American governments in Berlin differed radically from those in western Germany.

American counter-intelligence officers are now screening Soviet appointed German administrators and policemen for possible Nazis, but it was indicated that none have turned up yet. It was also indicated that if these civil servants are regarded as efficient they will be retained in office regardless of whether they are communists, Social Democrats or any other non-Nazis.

G. I.'s Initiate Paper.

Berlin's first American newspaper rolled from shrapnel-scarred presses today in a journalistic triumph for five G. I.'s and twenty-five German craftsmen. It was the latest weekly edition of the Second Armored Division's Hell on Wheels, four pages, tabloid size.

Wife Blames Versailles Studies For His Broadcasts

JUL 13 1945

Berlin, July 12 (AP)—American-born Frederick Kaltenbach became a tool of Nazi propaganda through a whim that led him to study Germany's alleged sufferings under the Versailles peace, his wife said today.

Kaltenbach, from Dubuque, Iowa, was indicted in Washington in 1943 on treason charges accusing him of making broadcasts over the Nazi radio.

His wife said he was arrested by Russian officers June 14 and that she had not heard of him since. The former Dorothea Peters, of Koeslin, Pomerania, she married Kaltenbach in 1939 when she was a secretary in the office of a German aviation magazine.

Book Is The Key

"I think you will understand why Fred did what he did if you read this book," she said, taking from the library shelf in the Kaltenbach's uptown Berlin apartment a paper-wrapped volume entitled, "Self-Determination 1919, a Study in Frontier-making between Germany and Poland."

Kaltenbach, 50-year-old historian-author who held a master of arts degree from the University of Chicago and a doctorate of philosophy from the University of Berlin, specialized on affairs of Germany where both his parents were born.

"Fred was pro-German but he never joined the National Socialist party," Mrs. Kaltenbach declared. "Nor was I a Nazi, although American newspapers have called me that.

50 Or 60 Marks A Program

"Before the war, Fred did things like reading scripts for film travelogues of the Reich railway system as well as studying and working at the Berlin radio. As the war progressed, he relied principally on radio work to support us, but he never had a contract and was free-lancing all the time.

"I think he got 50 or 60 marks for a broadcast—perhaps more—depending on the length. He stayed on in Germany, I believe, because of me. I could not have legally gone with him when he was repatriated—I didn't have American citizenship."

The wife said Kaltenbach grew increasingly unhappy in the half world in which they lived suspiciously with other aliens. She said once at a club in Berlin they met William (Lord Haw Haw) Joyce, and that Kaltenbach had called him a "Fascist." She asserted they barely knew Robert Best and Hilary Day, two former American newspaper men who also broadcast on Goebbels's programs.

She presented no substantiation that her husband had sometimes bitterly opposed the Nazis during the last two years of the war, but said she felt he could prove it if given the opportunity. She also claimed Kaltenbach had worked secretly on biographical material of the anti-Nazi pastor, Martin Niemoeller, and had befriended anti-Nazi religious elements associated with Niemoeller.

RED [illegible] GIRLS, G.I.'S DANCE AT BERLIN BALL

BERLIN, July 12—(AP) Red Army girls and GI's danced happily together tonight in an old mansion on Berlin's Kaiser Wilhelmstrasse.

Tall, blue-eyed Lt. Alexandra Mikhailovna Matitsina and Brig. Gen. S. Rmhinds of Nashville, Tenn., led off the Russo-American ball while the band of the Second Armored division's combat team "B" got in the groove.

Cpl. Jack A. Melnik of Chelsea, Mass., was in charge of linguistic liasion, when he wasn't cutting a rug with petite, dimpled Sgt. Valentina Semenova Bespalova, whose home is somewhere on the Volga.

Pfc. Paul Zofchak of Trenton, N. J., who was born in the Carpatho-Ukraine which recently became part of the Soviet Union, also acted as an interpreter.

Twelve Soviet girls, all in neat blue berets, tan blouses and high black boots, came to the American tankers' party.

Permission was granted by Col. Gen. Alexander Gorbatov, military governor of Berlin.

LOCHNER INJURED

GEN. EISENHOWER BACK ON THE JOB

FRANKFURT ON THE MAIN, Germany, July 12—(AP) General Ike was back at work today—and associates said they had never seen the general "in higher spirits or looking so well."

There was no fanfare for General Eisenhower's return from the United States, which gave him such a resounding hero's welcome. He greeted his friends, chatted with them for a while and then plunged into the work which had piled up during his absence.

"I've known the general ever since he came to England to take over the supreme command of Allied forces," one British officer said. "And I don't believe I ever saw him in better health."

The general and his party left the United States shortly after he stopped at Hyde Park to lay a wreath on the grave of President Roosevelt. His plane stopped in Newfoundland to refuel and then flew direct to Frankfurt, where he was greeted at 4:40 p. m. yesterday by a small group headed by his chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Walter Bedell Smith.

"The trip was entirely without incident," said the general's aide, Col. Tex Lee. "We just got in the plane in Newfoundland and 15 hours later we were in Frankfurt."

Tomorrow night will be a historic moment in General Eisenhower's career—for at the stroke of midnight the organization through which he directed Allied forces to the defeat of Germany, SHAEF will be dissolved.

No official ceremonies are planned for the event and SHAEF will slide into history with as little fanfare as accompanied the general's return to his desk.

DANZIG JOINED WITH GDYNIA

Poles Create Single Harbor District 14 Miles Long.

Danzig, July 12 (A. P.).—The Baltic ports of Danzig and Gdynia have been joined into a single harbor district fourteen miles long, and ship traffic moved haltingly today among the wrecks, including those of the German battleships Gneisenau and Schleswig-Holstein, sunk in the channel entrance.

Both cities are in ruins. The Poles, who expect to win Danzig at the peace conference, have renamed the former free city Gdansk, as it was known in medieval times. The Russians still exercise authority in these regions, from which 500,000 Germans are gradually moving.

The harbor, which is destined, the Poles say, to become one of the greatest in Europe, had its first business since the war last Sunday when coal arrived from Silesia and the Russian service ship Vishera steamed into the Vistula which meets the sea at Danzig. Swedish ships are outside the roads.

Months of Work Ahead.

It will be many months before the port is back in peacetime working order. The Germans wrecked the Polish-hewn Gdynia harbor facilities—its ten great basins behind a massive sea wall, its modern wharves and cranes and quays. Great gaps are blown in the sea wall every 100 feet.

Besides the warships, five transports and many small ships were sunk as channel blocks. At Danzig, several scuttled German submarines protrude partly from the water, their wreckage topped by the Russian flag. The greatest hazard, however, is mines. Some sixty-four magnetic mines are known to be in the waters but no ranking German officers were taken among the prisoners in this area and no one knows their precise location.

The center of Danzig is as thoroughly destroyed as Warsaw. Gangs of Hitler Youth burned the city during its last days under Nazi rule. The Poles estimated that it would require 10,000,000 truck days just to carry away the debris. Their main efforts now are concentrated on reopening two port basins in Danzig and two in Gdynia.

Typhus Epidemic Hits Royal Family

Berne, July 11 (A. P.).—The Swiss newspaper Der Bund said today that eighty persons, including two children of Italian Crown Princess Maria Jose, had been stricken by typhus at Glion. Three deaths were reported. The epidemic was attributed by the newspaper to sewage pollution of part of the Glion water supply.

SOONG SEES HARRIMAN

Moscow, July 12 (A. P.).—Chinese Premier T. V. Soong conferred with United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman today following Soong's fifth conversation with Premier Stalin last night.

Diplomatic circles said the Chinese-Russian discussions were reported in an advanced stage.

Harriman postponed his departure for the Big Three meeting in Potsdam for a short period.

The Soviet Government newspaper Izvestia said that lasting peace could be achieved by preserving "complete unity between five great Powers—Russia, the United States, England, France and China."

This inclusion of China among the "great Powers" was interpreted in diplomatic quarters as a good augury for the conversations between Stalin and Soong.

Details for the return of 250,000 Yugoslavs in SHAEF territory, were worked out at a conference in Belgrade last week.

Of a total of 26,500 Yugoslavs cared for in Middle East camps, 19,400 will have been returned by July 31, according to Jack Fastau of Newark, N. J., chief of the displaced persons division in Belgrade.

Brenner, known also as Gershon Gradowsky, was arrested in Jerusalem in January of 1944 and later was deported to the Sudan.

CHIFLEY GETS CURTIN POST

Becomes Prime Minister By Choice As Labor Head

Canberra, Australia, July 12 (AP). Joseph Benedict Chifley, a former locomotive engineer, today became Prime Minister of Australia with his election to leadership of the dominant Labor party.

Chifley, son of a blacksmith, progressed to the highest office in his country on a platform of social reform for the little man. He had been Acting Prime Minister in recent months during the illness of Prime Minister John Curtin, who died July 5.

Head In Forde Absence

The new Prime Minister, who will be 60 September 22, gained impressive political stature while serving as acting head of the Government during the absence of Francis E. Forde, Deputy Prime Minister, at the United Nations conference in San Francisco.

Chifley, ardent advocate of Australian-American peacetime co-operation in the Pacific, easily won the Labor party leadership in party caucus balloting which chose Forde as deputy leader. The other candidate for the post was Norman John Oswald Makin, minister of navy and munitions.

The Duke of Gloucester, Governor General of Australia, will commission Chifley to form a new ministry. It was authoritatively reported that there was little likelihood of change in the Government, except that a place will be made for Herbert Victor Johnson, president of the Australia Workers' Union.

To Fill Vacancy

The Labor party chose Johnson to fill the vacancy in the ministry created by Curtin's death.

Chifley has been treasurer of the Labor government and was the closest friend and confidante of Curtin.

Six-foot, pipe-smoking, ruddy Chifley is little known to the average Australian. However, he did impress the rank and file of all parties as a leader in recent months.

In an exclusive interview with the Associated Press just before his election was established, Chifley spoke feelingly of his plans for improving the standards of living of the "little man" of Australia.

To Keep Pacific Peace

He pointed to a large wall map as he answered a question about the future of American-Australian relations.

"You'll find the answer in that map," Chifley said. "America is the dominating Pacific power bound to keeping the peace in this vast area. Australia is a Pacific power. The people of the two countries will and must work side by side."

He remarked that circumstances, aided by wireless and air communication, had brought Australia as close to the United States as is Canada.

Chifley speaks with a harsh Australian accent that worries his advisers because it doesn't favor him at the microphone. However, his folksy humor is bound to make him one of Australia's most popular Prime Ministers, political leaders declared.

He is a sincere left-wing leader with concrete plans for social reform. When debate becomes bitter he neutralizes the opposition by the Lincolnian method of telling a story.

"How far left am I?" Chifley drawled. "Well, opponents to the right call me Communist and on the extreme left they call me conservative. The truth lies somewhere in between."

Chifley Is Premier of Australia

Elected Leader by Labor Party to Succeed Curtin—Defeats Forde in Caucus.

Canberra, Australia, July 12 (A. P.).—J. B. Chifley, Treasurer and Minister of Post-War Reconstruction, today was elected Prime Minister of Australia, succeeding the late John Curtin.

Chifley defeated acting premier Francis M. Forde by winning leadership of the Labor party, formerly held by Curtin. Selection as Prime Minister followed automatically.

The former locomotive engineer and son of a blacksmith will be 60 years old in September. He has been treasurer of the Labor government and was Curtin's closest friend and confidant.

He won a commanding lead in caucus balloting over Forde and Norman John Oswald Makin, Minister of Navy and Munitions. The Labor party chose Forde as deputy leader.

The vacancy in the ministry created by Curtin's death was filled by election of Herbert Victor Johnson, president of the Australia Workers Union. It was learned authoritatively that present portfolios are not likely to be changed except to give Johnson a post.

His Popularity Grows.

Six-foot, pipe-smoking, ruddy Chifley is little known to the average Australian. However, he did impress the rank and file of all parties as a leader in recent months when he served as acting Prime Minister. He acted when Curtin was ill and Deputy Prime Minister Forde was attending the United Nations conference in San Francisco. It was during this period that Chifley's popularity grew in labor circles.

In an exclusive interview with the Associated Press just before his election was established, Chifley spoke feelingly of his plans for improving the living standards of living of the "little man" of Australia.

He pointed to a large wall map as he answered a question about the future of American-Australian relations.

"You'll find the answer in that map," Chifley said. "America is the dominating Pacific Power bound to keeping the peace in this vast area. Australia is a Pacific Power. The people of the two countries will and must work side by side."

Sees Australia Close to U. S.

He remarked that circumstances, aided by wireless and air communication, had brought Australia as close to the United States as is Canada.

Chifley speaks with a harsh Australian accent that worries his advisers because it doesn't favor him at the microphone. However, his folksy humor is bound to make him one of Australia's most popular Prime Ministers, political leaders declared.

He is a sincere left-wing leader with concete plans for social reform. When debate becomes bitter he neutralizes the opposition by the Lincolnian method of telling a story. Private banker and small capitalist to him are just "ordinary blokes" who will in due course embrace socialism and like it.

"How far left am I?" Chifley drawled. "Well, opponents to the right call me communist and on the extreme left they call me conservative. The truth lies somewhere in between."

When the depression brought ruin, starvation and unemployment to many of his fellow workers "Chif" dedicated his life to improving the workers' lot. His greatest monument thus far is liberalization of banking laws.

Chifley works from early morning to midnight. He once told critics of the Government's wartime austerity program that he and his wife lived on $8 a week. As Prime Minister his salary will be about $70 a week after taxation.

One formation operating along the rugged peaks and spurs of the range behind Wewak killed 1,300 Japs in the last four weeks. It also has thrown the enemy from most of the high positions dominating the inland tracks and the coastal area.

On southern Bougainville Island counter-attacks launched by the Japs on the west side of the Mivo River early this week have lost momentum.

CHINESE TROOPS PASS LIUCHOW IN DRIVE FOR YUNGFU

MOOSA

CHUNGKING, July 12 — (AP) Chinese troops pushing beyond Liuchow—recovered U. S. bomber base which was turned into a mammoth booby trap by the retreating Japanese — are driving toward Yungfu, 30 miles from Kweilin, site of another abandoned air field, the Chinese command said today.

"The "most elaborate mining and booby trapping of the whole eight years of war in China" was found at Liuchow's airfield, indicating that "the further the Japanese retreat toward their chosen major battle position, the rougher the pursuit will become," an Associated Press dispatch from Liuchow declared.

NIGHT

Japs Take Tinpak

Chinese headquarters meanwhile announced a setback on the south China coast where the Japanese captured Tinpak, 170 miles southwest of Canton. The Chinese also said enemy forces at Dong Dang just inside the Indo-China border had made repeated attacks against Chinese frontier positions 75 miles northeast of Hanoi, but asserted these thrusts were repulsed.

The high command said its troops moving up the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad from Liuchow had scored further gains toward Kweilin, and had struck out for Yungfu after recapturing Luchai, 28 miles northeast of Liuchow. The extent of advances toward Yungfu, 60 miles northeast of Liuchow and 30 southwest of Kweilin, was not announced.

The Kweilin field was abandoned by the U. S. 14th Air force last October. Five other of the bases given up last year now have been recovered.

Today's announcements made no mention of any progress toward two other former American bases still in enemy hands. At Kanhsien 240 miles north of Hong Hong, and Shaoyang (Paoking), 225 miles northwest of Kanhsien. The Chinese yesterday reported columns of their troops were within six and 15 miles of Kanhsien and 4 1-2 of Shaoyang.

Airfield Mined

The Liuchow air base, rewon on June 29, was transformed by the retreating Japanese into "one emormous minefield," said AP Correspondent Clyde Farnsworth, who witnessed the evacuation of the base by Americans last October.

Several Americans have been among those killed while removing mines, Farnsworth said. American experts alone, he added, have removed or blown up 20 to 30 mines daily since July 2 in the area of the former base just outside Liuchow.

The Chinese high command said Tinpak on the south China coast was captured by the enemy July 3. A Japanese column, it said, struck eastward along the highway from Muiluk in the northeastern corner of Liuchow peninsula north of Hainan island.

The Japanese pressed beyond Tinpak along the coastal highway, but were checked by Chinese regulars and local militia, the high command added. This move might be either an attempt by the enemy to fight his way to the Canton area from the Liuchow peninsula, or to strengthen the tenuous overland communications between Canton and Hainan island.

To the southwest along the Indo-China border, enemy forces struck across the frontier from Dong Dang repeatedly on July 8 against Chinese positions at Chennankwan (South Guard) pass, but all were beaten back, the Chinese command said. Dong Dang is 11 miles south of Pingsiang, in Kwantung province, whose recapture the Chinese announced last Friday.

Plane Shot Down

P-51 Mustangs of the U. S. 14th Air force destroyed one Japanese fighter and damaged another in an air battle over Vinh in Indo-China yesterday when they were attacked by four enemy aircraft, an American communique announced.

The day before, the 14th Air force was opposed in the air for the first time in months when P-38s were attacked by four Japanese planes, one of which was damaged.

American planes also destroyed two double-decked junks and damaged 10 others at Shuitung near the eastern base of Luichow peninsula, the bulletin said, and ripped enemy shipping west of Canton.

B-25 Mitchells Tuesday night and early Wednesday twice hit two large Japanese river convoys moving northward in the Changsha-Hengshan area of central Hunan south of Tung Ting lake, and caused heavy damage, the communique said. The river front at Siangyin, just south of Tung Ting lake, also was bombed, and Siangtan, south of Changsha, was hit. All American planes returned from these and other missions.

CHINESE FIGHT WAY NORTH FOR YUNGFU

MOOSA

Chungking, July 12 (A. P.).—Chinese forces advancing northward along the Hunan-Kwangsi railway were reported today to be battling their way toward Yungfu, sixty miles northeast of Liuchow and thirty-two miles southwest of the former American air base at Kweilin. The Chinese High Command said that this column had recaptured Luchai, twenty-eight miles northeast of Liuchow, and had driven on beyond. The exact extent of the advance was not disclosed.

Offsetting the Chinese gains in Kwangsi province, the High Command disclosed that the Japanese had captured Tinpak, on the South China coast, 107 miles southwest of Canton. Tinpak fell to enemy troops which struck eastward along the highway from Muiluk in the northeast corner of the Luichow peninsula.

LIUCHOW MINED AS DEATH TRAP

FARMS SOUTH

Retreating Japs Set Many Explosives as Snares.

Liuchow, China, July 10 (Delayed) (A. P.).—War has passed Liuchow, following the Japanese retreat from southeastern China, yet the former American airbase here is a place of sudden, explosive death. Chinese soldiers and Americans working with them have found here the most elaborate mining and booby-trapping of the whole eight years' war in China.

Since July 2, American experts have removed, deadened or blown up from twenty to thirty miles daily near the former Fourteenth Air Force base just outside the city. One American captain, showing a group of Chinese soldiers how to disarm a mine, was killed and two American soldiers with him were wounded mortally. The Chinese suffered several casualties.

Even as this is being written, the occasional thump of explosions is heard. Columns of smoke arise where mines are set off by design or accident.

The whole airfield was one enormous minefield. Special emphasis was placed on runways, taxiways and stands before the Japanese finally retreated. Every road into town was booby-trapped and blocked.

Souvenirs are Loaded.

The elaborate mining of Liuchow itself suggested that the Japanese retreat toward their chosen battle positions will become rougher. The enemy buried old American fragmentation bombs in the hope that hit or miss denotations would result.

Suspected mine positions had been marked off carefully on the airfield and other areas. The returning Americans have been warned to keep away from such attractive souvenir possibilities as wrecked Japanese planes. It is likely that the Japanese laid explosives everywhere they felt the Americans and Chinese might be attracted. No buildings are left in the area, so booby traps could not be applied to them.

One of the most fascinating discoveries was that the Japanese had painted Rising Suns on abandoned or wrecked American fighter planes they found after the Fourteenth Air Force evacuated the field on July 11, 1944. The planes obviously never were put to use, but the Japanese evidently attempted to disguise them as their own to confuse Air Force intelligence and to lure American fighters into ack-ack range.

JAPS INTRENCHING IN BURMESE BEND

Calcutta, July 12 (A. P.).—Despite a heavy rain, the Japanese are digging in at several points in the Sittang River Bend area in Burma between Nyaungkashe, twenty-five miles northeast of Pegu, and Myitkyo, terminus of the Pegu-Sittang canal, a communique announced here today. The Japanese have occupied Nyaungkashe, abandoned by the British two days ago.

Enemy positions in the river bend area were bombed and strafed yesterday by Spitfires, killing enemy troops and destroying and damaging jungle huts, the communique said. Farther north, British artillery engaged concentrations of Japanese sixteen miles southwest of Toungoo. West of the river bend area, nine villages were reported to have been cleared of the enemy.

San Francisco, July 12 (A. P.).—Commander Harold E. Stassen, former Governor of Minnesota, is en route today to the Pacific war zones to rejoin Admiral Halsey.

MANY INDORSE WORLD CHARTER AS SUBMITTED

Quick Ratification Urged by Speakers for Score of Organizations.

HEARING APPROACHES END

Senator Barkley Declares It Is Likely That Vote Will Be Unanimous.

Washington, July 12 (A. P.).—A veteran of this war told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today that the United Nations charter holds the key to future peace. Such an organization, he said, would have prevented the current conflict.

Lieut.-Commander Livingston Hartley of Washington, D. C., was the first world war II participant to appear before the committee in its consideration of the past-wa peace organization treaty. Senator Johnson (R.-Cal.), one-time implacable foe of the League of Nations, questioned Hartley closely about how many men he thought the United States would have to provide to quell a breach of the charter.

"A few thousand," Hartley said. "Relatively few."

"I don't follow you," Johnson insisted. "I don't see your reasoning."

Hartley contended that the number had to be a guess, it depended on where the breach would occur.

Hearings Nearing Close.

Representatives of a score of organizations urged ratification of the charter without change as the committee brought its hearing toward a close.

Dr. Helen Dwight Reid spoke for a dozen major groups in behalf of the Charter, but she declared that its usefulness "depends on the quality of our participation."

JUL 13 1945

Dr. Reid was listed as spokesman for the American Association of University Women, the Association for Childhood Education, the General Federation of Women's Clubs, the Girls' Friendly Society of the United States of America, the National Board of the Y. W. C. A, National Congress of Parents and Teachers, National Council of Jewish Women, National Education Association, National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, National Service Star Legion, National Women's Trade Union League, United Council of Church Women

Urges Quick Ratification.

Ulric Bell of Washington submitted for Americans United for World Organization a statement pleading for quick ratification, asserting that "this country has been unable to escape involvement in wars—it should try involvement in peace."

The National Education Association's views were presented by William G. Carr, secretary, in a statement which noted that the group is proud of its indorsement of the League of Nations covenant in 1919 and extends the same support to the new treaty.

The Committee for World Peace through a People's Parliament contributed a qualified indorsement. Nora Stanton Barney of Greenwich, Conn., urged the inclusion of reservations requiring popular election of the delegates to the Security Council and establishment of an international policing force.

The hearings opened with what the committee expected to be the last opponent on the list, Thomas J. Reardon of Hartford, Conn., asserting that the charter compels "a fundamental change in the Constitution of the United States" and therefore is "improperly before the committee."

Senator Barkley, (Ky.), Democratic leader, told a reporter it now appears to him there may be no negative votes on ratification.

Bishop Oxnam Approves.

As the hearing progressed, Dr. Morris L. Cook, an engineer, called for speedy ratification of the charter. He spoke for the Independent Citizens Committee of Arts, Sciences and Professions.

Senator Connally then read a statement urging favorable Senate action on the treaty from Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Senator Vandenberg (R.-Mich.) observed that Bishop Oxnam speaks for 20,000,000 churchmen.

The following witnesses spoke briefly in favor of the charter:

Mrs. Brice Clagett, daughter of the late Senator William Gibbs McAdoo. She spoke for the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Ewing Cockrell, president of the United States Federation of Justice, who pointed out that the United States will have the power to veto any enforcement action by the organization.

Mrs. T. W. Johnson, National Non-partisan Council on Public Affairs of Alpha Kappa Alpha Society, who said that while the charter is not perfect, it can get up an atmosphere which could eliminate the causes of war.

Connally put two six inch stacks of telegrams in the record, all supporting the charter.

COL. OVETA HOBBY QUITS WAC POST

WASHINGTON, July 12—(AP) Col. Oveta Culp Hobby today resigned as Women's Army Corps director, then watched her own eagles pinned on her deputy and successor, Col. Westray Battle Boyce.

Colonel Hobby, selected more than three years ago to help organize and direct the Women's unit of the U. S. Army, told a news conference and a large group of WAC officers that she considered her "mission completed."

Asked why she was resigning, Colonel Hobby replied that she is returning to her family and her work as executive editor of the Houston (Texas) Post.

Col. Boyce Takes Over

Colonel Boyce, whose home is Rocky Mount, N. C., takes over immediately as WAC director, while Colonel Hobby goes on terminal leave before assuming inactive status September 3.

Formal announcement of Colonel Hobby's resignation and departure, and Colonel Boyce's promotion, was made by Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson.

Patterson praised the retiring WAC director for "notable service rendered to the Army and to the nation" and for her contribution to the morale of the women's army unit and the entire army.

"She has had to fight many obstacles in promoting a program unique in the history of the army," Patterson added. "And she did it with great distinction."

Reads Statement

Trim in her WAC summer uniform with service ribbons including the Distinguished Service Medal Ribbon, with her hair carefully brushed in pompadour, Colonel Hobby then read a farewell statement.

She said that she considered her "life greatly enriched" by her work in organizing and directing the Women's army unit which has reached a strength of nearly 100,000 and is serving in every theater of war.

Her message read. Colonel Hobby rose to give her place to her successor, but fumbled as she tried to gather her notes.

"I'm a little butter-fingered today," she remarked.

She retired to a chair in the background for the remainder of the meeting.

Colonel Boyce said she accepted the responsibilities of WAC director with "great humility."

She asserted that "the hearts of 100,000 women under her will also record the image of Colonel Hobby as the symbol of the corps."

Colonel Hobby declined to give her opinion on whether the WAC should be made a permanent unit of the United States Army, saying that that was a matter for Congress to decide.

Asked whether she thought service in the WAC would especially aid its members when they return to civilian life, the retiring director said that if she were managing a great industry she would "have a long look at officers in the Women's Army Corps, for their executive capacity."

Queried further, she admitted she might have certain WAC officers "in mind" for the Houston Post.

NAVY'S LOSSES SHOW BIG RISE

Total U. S. Casualties Are Now 1,049,104.

Washington, July 12 (A. P.).—A heavy increase in casualties reported by the Navy today raised losses of the armed forces since the beginning of the war to 1,049,104. This was 12,167 more than reported a week ago.

The Navy, listing total casualties of 133,386, accounted for 7,846 of the week's increase. The Army total on the basis of names received here through July 7, was 915,718—a rise of 4,321.

A breakdown of Army casualties reported and similar figures for the preceding week showed: Killed, 193,508 and 191,684; wounded, 567,674 and 566,117; missing, 37,323 and 38,343; prisoners, 117,213 and 115,253.

Under-Secretary Patterson said that 346,171 of the wounded are back on duty and 94,020 of the prisoners have been listed as exchanged or returned to military control. The decline in the number of missing in the past week apparently reflected shifts to other categories.

The Navy breakdown showed: Killed, 49,657 and 47,849; wounded, 68,165 and 62,236; missing, 11,454 and 11,237; prisoners, 4,110 and 4,218.

Patterson also reported that Allied casualties in the Borneo campaign amounted to 214 killed, 42 wounded and 22 missing as of July 7. On the same date, there were 3,031 Japanese dead and 274 prisoners.

He also disclosed that since the first of the year 1,900 Japs have been counted dead in by-passed sections of New Guinea, Bougainville and New Britain. In addition, 253 prisoners have been taken in those areas.

YANK CASUALTIES REACH 1,049,104

WASHINGTON, July 12. — (AP) Combat casualties reported by the armed forces during the war rose to 1,049,104 today with the Navy turning in its heaviest weekly increase in months.

The total was 12,167 higher than last week. The Navy chalked up 7,846 of the rise—nearly double the Army increase of 4,321.

While no dates were given for the period in which the Navy casualties occurred, the figures apparently reflected the bitter sea-air battles off Okinawa.

The aggregate—915,718 for the Army and 133,386 for the Navy—included 243,165 killed, 635,839 wounded, 47,777 missing and 121,323 prisoners.

TAFT DENOUNCES BRETTON ACCORD'S BANKING PROJECT

Ohioan Asks That Senate Postpone Action, but Barkley Disagrees.

Washington, July 12 (A. P.).—Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) today denounced as "profligate lending" the international bank proposed under the Bretton Woods agreements and asked that Senate consideration of the measure be postponed.

Majority Leader Barkley (Ky.) has insisted that the House-approved monetary pact be taken up Monday and pushed through ahead of the United Nations charter. Barkley said he thought the Bretton Woods debate would require about three days and that the charter, still before the Foreign Relations Committee, should wait even if it is ready for Senate discussion before then.

In a speech prepared for floor delivery, Taft concentrated his fire on the International Bank half of the Bretton Woods proposals. They call for an $8,800,000,000 international fund to stabilize world currencies and the $9,100,000,000 bank to support loans for reconstruction and industrial development.

Taft described the bank as a "device for draining our savings out of the United States for the benefit of the rest of the world."

Suggesting that this Government make direct loans of five or six billion dollars during the next few years to help war-torn countries back on their feet, the Senator proposed that the pending legislation be tabled.

Will Support Charter.

Denying administration contentions that Bretton Woods is the economic counterpart of the United Nations charter, the Ohioan added:

"I am strongly in favor of international co-operation in the political field, and I intend to support the charter.

"But the parallel between political and economic co-operation is utterly fallacious. It is not true that wars, or at any rate modern wars, have been brought about by economic causes."

"Except for the immediate post-war period," Taft said, "I see no reason why we should make improvident loans or scatter our assets recklessly throughout the world."

Drafting of 'Job Jumpers' Over 26 Is Discontinued

WASHINGTON, July 12—(AP) Selective Service tonight discontinued the drafting of "job jumpers" over 26 who fail to meet the regular Army physical standards.

It announced immediate cancellation of so-called secondary calls which had put these men in special groups that did not qualify for regular duty.

Provisions for the induction of other job-jumpers are being retained. This means that registrants over 26 who are physically fit will continue to be inducted if they change jobs without permission of their draft board.

In a memorandum to local boards, Selective Service said:

"No registrant who has been placed in class 1-A, class 1-A-O or class 4-E because he left employment for which he was deferred without a determination from his local board favorable to such leaving shall be forwarded for induction or for assignment to work of national importance, unless:

"1—Upon pre-induction physical examination he has been found qualified for general military service; or

"2—He is under the age of 26 and has been found physically fit acceptable for military service under the provisions'" of relaxed army standards. These men will be forwarded for induction on a separate call."

The job-jumper penalties were put into effect late last year to halt a shift of war workers to peacetime employment. The relaxation of that policy was ordered by War Mobilization Director Fred M. Vinson at the request of the War department.

While the selective service announcement made no mention of it, the Army is understood to have asked the change because it wanted as few men as possible who do not measure up to regular physical standards. About 52,000 job-jumpers have been drafted since the penalties were put into effect.

Vinson, in a letter to Secretary of War Stimson released by Selective Service, said:

"Your proposal would merely discontinue the induction into the Army of men who are not physically qualified according to existing standards.

"In my judgment, the developments in both the civilian and military manpower fields since V-E day warrant the change you propose and it is therefore approved."

FEPC FIGHT ENDS ON HILL

Agency Gets $250,000 Under House-Senate Agreement

Washington, July 12 (AP)—The congressional fight over continuing the Fair Employment Practice Committee ended tonight with House and Senate agreement on a $250,000 appropriation to run it in the twelve months beginning July 1.

The legislators got together when the Senate accepted by voice vote House language which nullified a previous stipulation that the agency must use the funds to liquidate.

The $250,000 is just half what FEPC had asked.

Morse In Last-Ditch Fight

Senator Morse (R., Ore.) made a futile effort to defer a decision until Monday. He said he hoped that if this were done the people at home would make their sentiments known and a larger appropriation would be given the agency.

He launched into what he termed "extended discussion"—sometimes another name for filibuster—in an effort to force delay, but gave up the floor after an hour and a half.

During his speech Morse stressed the theme that democracy is on trial in the world and that it will be judged in part on the way it treats minorities.

By the time the FEPC fight was ended, the hour was so late that leaders delayed final action until tomorrow on a $750,000,000 war agencies appropriation bill which contains the FEPC item.

The House had been standing by, waiting for the Senate to act on FEPC, with expectation that the entire bill could be finally acted on. House leaders decided to let it go until tomorrow.

Bilbo Yields On Quorum Call

When Morse gave up the floor, Senator Bilbo (D., Miss.), bitter foe of FEPC, threw a scare into Senate leaders by demanding a quorum call. There were sixteen senators on the floor at the time and no chance that a quorum could be mustered.

Bilbo, who recently filibustered against FEPC, said he thought a quorum should be present "because this is far-reaching legislation."

Majority Leader Barkley (Ky.) and Senator McKellar (D., Tenn.), handling the bill, rushed at Bilbo, arguing vehemently. The Mississippian then withdrew his request.

Controversy Over OWI Item

The principal item remaining in controversy in the big bill is the amount to be given the Office of War Information. The House voted to allow it only $18,000,000. The Senate boosted this to $39,000,000.

A conference committee from the two chambers agreed to compromise at $35,000,000. Their conference report will be submitted to the House tomorrow and if approved there will then go to the Senate.

Earlier in the day, the House had approved $250,000 for FEPC, the same amount the Senate agreed to when Senator Bilbo dropped his recent filibuster.

The Senate did so, however, in language directing that FEPC must use the fund for liquidation. The House today changed this language in a manner which Senator Chavez (D., N.M.), a champion of FEPC, interpreted as meaning the agency does not have to liquidate.

GOVERNORS PUSH FIGHT FOR MEAT

Improvement in Food Situation Expected Soon, Anderson Tells Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 12 — (AP) Northeastern states may expect more meat, a committee of the northeastern Governors' conference predicted today.

Governors Herbert R. O'Conor of Maryland and J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island and Henry

3024-28335

E. Mosle, Connecticut Food Administrator representing Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, conferred with Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, ODT Director Col. J. Monroe Johnson, and James Rogers, Deputy OPA administrator.

In a statement issued by the three man committee after the meeting with Anderson, the committee said it expected improvement in the "acute food situation" because:

Meat To Be Moved East

1. Recent regulations by the Secretary of Agriculture which will be supplemented by "additional orders and directives." These regulations, the committee said, are designed to move more meat into the east and far west.

2. A re-appraisal of military needs and inventory may result in a further reduction of military requirements.

3. The government has reduced its requirements for poultry in the Delaware-Maryland-Virginia peninsula and further reductions are hoped for.

Upcoming seasonal improvements in livestock marketing are expected to increase the overall meat supply.

Of Anderson's orders and directives, the group said, "we feel this will bring about a better distribution of further supply of our meat resources."

The committeemen said OPA officials assured them the agency is studying a recommendation of the northeastern governors' conference that separate meat rationing, as distinguished from other red-point commodities, be put into effect.

"However," the statement said, "they are reluctant at this state of the war to complicate the rationing system unless the need cannot otherwise be met."

"They are hopeful that the regulations on slaughtering plus decreased government demands might result in a better supply and distribution," the statement added.

J. Monroe Johnson, director of ODT, told reporters that further travel restrictions were contemplated "in all categories, not aimed particularly at sports."

This disclosure was made after a conference with Harry A. Parr 3d, president of the Thoroughbred Racing Association, and other racing officials. The conference dealt with ODT's order yesterday prohibiting shipment of racing and show animals by rail or other public carriers.

Associates said that Mr. Johnson, in mentioning further travel restrictions, apparently referred specifically to the prospect of additional reductions in sleeping cars available for civilian use.

In announcing last week an order withdrawing from service by noon next Sunday all sleeping cars operating between points 450 miles or fewer apart, Mr. Johnson predicted that it might be necessary to withdraw still more sleeping cars for use in carrying troops across the country. ODT officials said there was also the possibility of shifting some additional day coaches to the military pool.

Actual rationing of travel for civilians is not being considered actively and the ODT still hopes to avoid it.

Tells of Private Car Trips

In the House Representative de Lacy, Democrat, of Washington, demanded that use of private cars be discontinued by the railroads until war transportation needs were satisfied. He said he had learned that members of the Weyerhauser lumber family, officials of the Great Northern Railway and others were using private cars for vacation trips, while returning veterans were crowded into day coaches.

"If we are to provide luxury, let us provide it to those who deserve it most, the returning, battle-weary GI's," Representative de Lacy insisted.

He said he was told by an official of the railroad brotherhoods that, about four months ago, special car A28 of the Great Northern brought the Weyerhauser family into Everett, Wash., vacation-bound.

An engine was sent from Seattle to Everett to warm the car while it was on a siding overnight, he added. He also said he was told that the same car was sent, without passengers, from St. Paul to Tacoma, Wash., about June 29, to pick up the Weyerhauser party for return to St. Paul.

The Washington Representative asserted that private cars A28 and A30, together with six empty Pullman sleepers as "bumpers," carried directors of the Great Northern from St. Paul into Seattle, remained there two days and headed out for California.

Northern Pacific's private car No. 4, with the chief engineer's family on board, arrived in Seattle early in July, Mr. de Lacy said. He also said Northern Pacific private car No. 14 arrived in Seattle some time late in April and remained for a week. He did not know who was using it.

in a letter to the Office of Defense Transportation, said that more than 700,000 service men and women were being carried each month in sleeping cars. After Sunday more than two-thirds of all Pullman space will be available for military travel.

Prior to the ODT order for more than half the Pullman fleet was devoted to military use, but the military got an ever larger proportion because military reservation bureaus controlled space in equipment which served the public. More than 29,000,000 troops have traveled in Pullmans in mass movements since Pearl Harbor, about two-thirds of all organized movements.

Mr. Carry said the company had in service, exclusive of the 1,237 troop sleepers provided by the Defense Plant Corporation, 500 more sleeping cars than it had in service in the first World War.

Ban on Use of Private Cars Is Urged in House—Pullman Says Sunday Shift of Sleepers Will Give Military 20,000 Berths

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP)—The Office of Defense Transportation disclosed today that it was considering new travel curbs on civilians, while the House heard a demand for a ban on the use of private railroad cars by wealthy families and railroad executives.

OPA BLANK CALLED A FALSIFICATION

Washington, July 12 (A. P.).—The Republican Congressional Food Committee said today that "four out of five" statements made by the Office of Price Administration in application forms for home-canning sugar are "false or misleading." The committee said the OPA was seeking to divert attention "from itself and its political purposes by making accusations against the housewife." The OPA's explanation of the sugar shortage in statements accompanying application blanks for additional sugar contained these assertions:

"Ships which otherwise might be bringing sugar into the United States are hauling supplies to the battle fronts."

"Man power is scarce at sugar refineries and shipping ports."

"Beet sugar production last year was 500,000 tons short, making the stock smaller for this year."

"Last year many people overapplied for canning sugar. We used so much sugar that stocks at the beginning of this year were abnormally low."

The last statement, the committee said, "is the worst misrepresentation of all."

He made this pledge in a statement in which he also said:

"Any person who engages in activities detrimental to the government of the United States or subversive to the principles upon which it is founded is an enemy to the American people and should be dealt with as such.

"On the other hand, every American is entitled to be secure in his reputation and good name against all unwarranted attacks."

Wood, Georgia, Heads Former Dies Committee

Compromise Chairman Says He Will Act Fearlessly and Bar Witch-Hunting

JUL

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—The House elected today a little-known Georgia Democrat, Representative John S. Wood, to one of its most controversial positions—chairman of the committee on un-American activities.

Representative Wood, who served in the House from 1931 to 1935 and then dropped out until last year, succeeds Representative Edward J. Hart, Democrat, of New Jersey, who announced recently that he was resigning because of ill health.

The Georgian was recommended for the post by the Democratic members of the House Ways and Means Committee as a compromise after members could not agree on either Representative Henry M. Jackson, Democrat, of Washington, or Representative John S. Gibson, of Georgia. Representative Jackson had backing of Administration leaders, while the acting committee chairman, Representative John E. Rankin, Democrat, of Mississippi, was sponsoring Representative Gibson.

Representative Wood, who is sixty years old and served in the World War as a flyer, immediately promised he would conduct the chairmanship "fearlessly and fairly and with no attempt at whitewashing or witch hunting."

BACKS CAPITAL RISE FOR EXPORT BANK

Banking Committee of House Approves Measure Designed to Further Foreign Trade

13 1945

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP)—Legislation making the Export-Import Bank an independent, permanent agency of Government, with borrowing powers increased from $700,000,000 to $3,500,000,000, was approved 18 to 2 today by the House Banking Committee.

The bill revises the bank's administrative set-up, dropping the Secretary of Commerce and Secretary of Treasury, among others, from the board of directors.

Representative Wolcott of Michigan, senior Republican on the Banking Committee, sponsored the administrative change.

A new five-man board of directors would be headed by the Foreign Economic Administrator, Leo T. Crowley, as chairman, with James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State, and three members to be appointed by the President, subject to confirmation by the Senate. The three public members would be paid $12,000 a year. No more than three of the five could be of one political party.

Increase in the capitalization and borrowing power of the bank, operating since 1934 by executive order of the President, was recommended by the American Bankers Association.

W. Randolph Burgess, president of ABA, told the committee today the expansion is needed immediately to finance trade prior to the setting up of the $9,100,000,000 World Bank under the Bretton Woods agreements.

The bill repeals the so-called Johnson act as far as loans by the Export-Import Bank are concerned. This act prohibits loans to Governments in default on old debts to the United States.

The Export-Import Bank now operates under Mr. Crowley's direction, with a board of eleven members.

Administration leaders planned to press the legislation through Congress before a summer recess is taken.

SHOE JOBBERS FACE OPA CURB

U.S. Agency Acts To Cut Back Inflated Retail Price Ceilings

Washington, July 12 (AP)—The OPA moved today to cut back any retail shoe-price ceilings inflated by "unwarranted jobber charges."

It announced a new order, effective immediately, which requires all shoe wholesalers to submit information from which the agency will determine whether they are "performing legitimate wholesale functions."

Jobbers who do not measure up to OPA standards will not be permitted to take a markup over manufacturers' ceilings. Since retail maximum prices also are fixed on a markup basis, this would reduce prices the public pays for shoes handled by such dealers.

Order To Be Expanded

Under the order, "OPA shoe wholesale numbers" will be issued to jobbers who during the five years prior to last April 1 were operating regularly as wholesalers in the distribution of shoes. Any jobbers who entered the field after last April will not be eligible for a markup.

Also the applications of jobbers who started business after April 8, 1943, will be screened and eliminated if OPA finds they do not perform normal distributive functions.

The purpose of the order, which will be expanded soon to cover other commodities, is to "freeze out" jobbers who entered business during the shoe shortage because they were "influenced by the chance for quick profits," OPA explained.

Aimed At "Dummy Jobbers"

The measure is directed particularly against so-called "dummy jobbers" who purchase from an "affiliated supplier" or sell to an "affiliated purchaser," with the intention of pyramiding markups.

OPA said that in normal times about 80 per cent of retail shoe stocks were bought directly from manufacturers. Since the war, the agency explained, wholesalers "have found that in a tight market charges can be multiplied over and over again." It added:

"As a result, unprecedented numbers of jobbers have gone into the business of selling shoes. . . .

A Dangerous Pressure

"All over the country this unusual jobber activity has exerted a dangerous pressure on consumer prices."

OPA said the April, 1943, date was selected because the "hold the line" order was issued then and because it was about that time that the wartime shortage of shoes became serious.

Jobbers handling shoes prior to that time, OPA said, "were generally operating established businesses and would not have risked losing customers by introducing irregular practices."

More Rationed Shoes Forecast For August

New York, July 12 (AP)—Armed forces terminations, cutbacks and reduced schedules will mean an increase of more than 15 per cent in monthly output of rationed footwear beginning with August, the National Shoe Retailers Association said today.

The organization said in its publication, National Footwear News, that lowered requirements in round figures involved some 7,800,000 feet of cattlehide upper leather a month as well as a large quantity of insoles and outsoles.

"Assuming that the total production of leather remains unchanged," said the N.S.R.A. "these materials will become available for civilian use beginning with August and the effect upon shoe production, particularly men's and boys' shoes, should be considerable.

"Based upon average cutting ratios, for example, the upper leather now released by the Army would be equal to more than 3,000,000 pairs of civilian shoes per month or at the rate of 36,000,000 pairs a year."

JUDGE ACCUSED OF SEEKING FEE

Lawyer Testifies In Probe Of Johnson, Retired Jurist

Washington, July 12 (AP)—A Scranton (Pa.) lawyer testified today that former Federal Judge Albert W. Johnson asked for payoffs on a receivership fee.

John Memolo, a surprise witness in the House Judiciary subcommittee's investigation of the conduct of the Middle Pennsylvania District Court judge, said Johnson made the request in 1938, asking two thirds of a big fee Memolo expected.

"I was noncommittal," Memolo added.

The judge, sitting twelve feet from the witness and watching him intently through a long account of alleged out-of-court dealings, had been expected to take the stand himself but was not reached today.

Judge Present First Time

Accompanied by three Luzerne county lawyers, Johnson was present for the first time since open hearings began Tuesday into his handling of the Williamsport (Pa.) Wire Rope Company receivership.

Johnson, 72, and a veteran of twenty years as a Federal judge, resigned early this month, citing his age. He draws a $10,000 full-pay pension.

Memolo, who was associate counsel for the Williamsport company receivers, told of arranging with Bethlehem Steel Company for payment of $240,000 to receivership officers appointed by Johnson. Bethlehem subsequently bought the Williamsport firm in a court-ordered sale, and paid the fees, Memolo said.

Split Fees With Salesman

Up to the time of Judge Johnson's request, Memolo said, he had been splitting the interim fees allowed by the court with Jacob Greenes, Scranton beer salesman, whom he described as "able to do things and get things done" in Johnson's court.

Greenes has testified he turned this money over to Johnson's son, Donald M. Johnson.

Memolo testified that in 1938 when the big Bethlehem Steel fees were due "the judge called me in and asked how much I had paid Jake (Jacob Greenes) and the boys. I said I'd find out.

"Later, I brought in adding machine slips showing $34,000. The judge was surprised. He didn't think it was so much.

Paid Him 50 Per Cent

"He said 'when you get it (the money from Bethlehem Steel), don't pay it to Greenes. See me.' He asked me what division I had been making with Greenes and I told him 50 per cent.

"He said 'you ought to kick back 66 2-3 per cent.' "

Under questioning by committee members, Memolo repeated:

"The judge said not to pay it to Jake anymore—to give it to him—to the judge."

"Did you tell him that's what you would do?" Memolo was asked.

"I was noncommittal," the witness replied. "I did not intend to give him so much."

Memolo then said that he had had the money from Bethlehem Steel at the time and did not tell the judge so.

Sentenced On Income Tax

Memolo had been in the committee room since the hearing began, but had not been expected to testify. He is free on appeal to the Circuit Court from a three-year jail sentence on income-tax charges. He was convicted recently in Scranton in connection with fee splits from other receivership cases in Judge Johnson's court district.

However, after a long recess this afternoon, committee counsel M. H. Goldschein called Memolo as a witness.

Memolo said that Greenes camped in his office on the first and fifteenth of every month waiting for Memolo to cash his court allowance, which varied from $500 to $1,500 a month, so that Greenes could get his 50 per cent.

Wanted $6,000 To Help Judge

He said that on the day Bethlehem Steel sent a check for $25,000 for Memolo's brother (the late Martin Memolo who had been named "agent of the court" by Johnson in the Williamsport case), the following occurred:

"Greenes asked for $6,000. He said he had to help make good an obligation the judge had. He said the judge was buying a summer home and needed $6,000.

"I gave it to him.

"He may not have told me then that it was for the judge's summer home, but if he didn't I subsequently learned it was."

Son Took Out $500

Goldschein asked: "Did you learn what took place afterward?"

"Greenes told me," said Memolo, "that he and Donald took the $6,000 to the judge but that on the way Donald took $500 out of the envelope. When they got to the judge and he counted it and found it was $5,500 instead of $6,000 he complained to Greenes and Greenes said that was all he could get.

"Subsequently, Donald told his father he had taken the $500. This is the way Greenes told it to me."

Goldschein had told the committee Tuesday that Judge Johnson had testified before a grand jury in Scranton about the summer home purchase at Cherry Run, Pa.

Paid $250, Got Deed To Home

At that time, Golschein said, Johnson had testified he paid $250 deposit on the home.

"He denied," Goldschein said, "paying the balance of the purchase price and declared that without further action on his part the deed for the property arrived by mail. He never inquired into or established who might be responsible for the anonymous generosity."

Curtiss Official Denies Faults In Plane Bolts at Senate Inquiry

BUFFALO, July 12 (AP).—A Curtiss-Wright Corporation official told the Senate war investigating committee's aviation subcommittee today that bolts on the emergency gasoline cut-off pulleys of a C-46 Commando could not have been installed in the faulty manner noted by the Senators Monday at the plant.

The subcommittee is investigating criticism by Senator William Langer, Republican, of North Dakota, of aircraft inspection methods in various plants, including Curtiss-Wright's Buffalo plant. They revealed at yesterday's hearings that they had seen the bolts installed without nuts during a visit to the plant.

Earlier today Senator Homer Ferguson, Republican, of Michigan, instructed Major Sidney W. Robinson, chief of the civilian personnel division at Army Air Forces headquarters in New York City, to produce reports about removal of inefficient inspectors "forthwith, and that means immediately." Major Robinson had suggested it might take "two or three months."

Inspection Chief Denies Charge

Testimony about the faulty bolt installation came from Earl H. Kaeselau, Curtiss-Wright's general superintendent of inspection in charge of Division B, the first rebuttal witness called by the company.

Senator Ferguson asked him, "Let us take those two nuts that were missed by four or five inspectors. Who missed them?"

"I don't claim any inspector missed them," Mr. Kaeselau replied.

"Look here," said Senator Ferguson, 'do you say that these nuts were taken off in a deliberate attempt to deceive this committee?"

"I don't say that," Mr. Kaeselau answered, "I say that it was impossible for a man to make the installation without the nuts. The bolts are inserted in the nacelle (a part of the plane into which the wheels disappear) in a vertical position. They would have fallen out."

Senator Ferguson asked Mr. Kaeselau if he was "telling this committee . . . about something you didn't see," and Mr. Kaeselau replied that he had obtained his information from men who had made tests after the missing-nut testimony had been given.

Before Mr. Kaeselau took the stand, Burdette S. Wright, Curtiss - Wright vice - president in charge of the airplane division, asked the subcommittee's permission for the company "to supplement the oral testimony given today after it has had opportunity to read and examine the record."

Won't Wait for Records

The subcommittee's demand that Major Robinson produce the records on discharged inspectors came at the end of the officer's testimony, when he asked if the Senators wanted such a report.

"It will take two or three months to get it from the discontinued projects branch in Omaha, Neb.," he added.

"Do we understand the system is such that it will take two or three months to get this information out of your Nebraska office?" asked Senator Ferguson. "Well, let me tell you that the committee is not going to wait. If we must, we will go out there and get them."

In subsequent testimony James F. Knudson, Curtiss-Wright quality manager, admitted that Frank R. Hirsch, a discharged inspector and a chief critic of the company, was "within his rights" in insisting upon certain inspection standards.

An affidavit by Mr. Hirsch, claiming he was discharged because he demanded that the inspection rules be observed, was cited by Senator Langer in his demand for the Senate investigation.

Mr. Hirsch had testified yesterday that he had insisted that hydraulic tubes be sealed until their installation was completed to prevent foreign substances from entering them.

LIVING COST INDEX IS STUDIED ANEW

Washington, July 12 (A. P.).—Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach has started a fresh inquiry to determine whether the cost of living index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics is based on accurate and adequate information.

John Carson, special assistant to the Secretary, said today that Schwellenbach has asked labor leaders who have been critical of the BLS monthly index to confer with Carl Moran, Assistant Secretary and A. F. Hinrichs, BLS chief, on the question.

"The Secretary," said Carson, "has told the labor leaders he realizes there has been criticism of the index. But he has not reached any conclusion about it himself. He has asked all concerned to see if anything is wrong and if it is, what can be worked out."

The index was the subject of a study by a special committee of the American Statistical Association in the Roosevelt administration. This group found in October, 1943:

"First, that within the limitations established for it, the cost of living index provides a trustworthy measure of changes in the prices paid by consumers for goods and services.

"Second, that many of the difficulties and doubts which have arisen concerning the index have their origins in attempts to use it uncritically for purposes to which it is not adapted."

New Shoe Coupon Airplane Stamp No. 4

Washington, July 12 (A. P.).—The new shoe stamp which becomes valid on August 1, will be airplane stamp No. 4, in ration book No. 3, the Office of Price Administration announced today. All plane stamps Nos. 1, 2 and 3 remain valid indefinitely.

The new stamp is the first for shoes to become valid since November 1, last.

TIN SHORTAGE HOLDS UP CARS

WPB Tells Motor Industry to Find Substitute.

Washington, July 12 (A. P.).—The tin shortage stood out today as the automobile industry's highest reconversion hurdle.

Other material shortages face the automobile makers, but they either are less drastic or can be overcome at least in part by substitutions. But no tin is available for body solder.

JUL 13 1945

After meeting with the industry advisory committee yesterday, Henry P. Nelson of the War Production Board told reporters:

"We challenged the industry to find some substitute for tin. That looks like a serious problem."

Nelson said there are the other shortages, in order of their importance:

Cadmium for plating. Zinc, however, may be used as a substitute.

Antimony, a substitute for tin, which can be checked off if a substitute for tin is found.

Luster May Be Lacking.

Burlap and cotton linters.

Chromic acid, used chiefly for plating or "bright work." Chromic acid may be used for functional parts, but not for decorative purposes, and this may mean, lacking a suitable substitute, that the new cars will lack some of the luster of the pre-war models.

The outlook for other materials, including sheet steel and chemicals, Nelson described as "pretty good." While sheet steel still is "tight," he predicted improvement within sixty days.

Nelson said present quotas assigned to the ten passenger car manufacturers for the last half of 1945 and the first quarter of 1946 would be increased as soon as the materials situation warranted. Admittedly "trying to guess into the future," Nelson said he thought rationing of new cars might end next January.

The job of pricing the new cars will begin next week when OPA officials go to the Detroit area.

RAILROAD AID STRUCK FROM NEW TAX BILL

But Senate Finance Group Boosts Excess Profits Exemptions.

REFUNDS TO BE HASTENED

Aim Is to Improve Firms' Cash Positions to Hasten Work of Reconversion.

Washington, July 12 (A. P.).—The Senate Finance Committee today struck from pending business tax legislation a provision designed to aid railroads which have undergone receivership and reorganization.

With this change, the House bill was reported to the Senate for action. It boosts from $10,000 to $25,000 the exemption from the excess profits tax and provides for speeding up tax refunds.

Senator George (D.-Ga.), chairman of the Finance Committee announced the vote on the railroad provision as nine to eight but did not disclose the votes of individuals. The motion to strike it out came from Senator La Follette (Prog.-Wis.).

George, chairman of the committee, said that while the bill in general was approved there would have to be a poll of absent members on the question of retaining one provision.

This would authorize a railroad, when reorganized as a new corporation under receivership proceedings, to use when figuring its tax any unused excess profits credits or previous net losses of its predecessor corporation.

Earlier, Colin F. Stamm, chief of the joint committee on taxation, told the committee that speed is essential if the measure is to have the desired effect of facilitating reconversion.

"Business men are now planning for reconversion and readjustment to peacetime operation," he said. "The immediate enact ment of this bill would facilitate this planning."

Bill's Provisions.

The measure, passed by the House last week, would:

1. Increase the excess-profits exemption from $10,000 to $25,000 effective with the 1946 tax year.
2. Allow corporations to take currently the postwar credit of 10 per cent of the excess profits tax.
3. Advance to January 1, 1946, the maturity date of outstanding post-war refund bonds.
4. Provide for speed-up of refunds due as a result of previous operating losses or unused excess-profits credits.

Answering a question from George, Stamm estimated the change in the excess profits tax would result in a net loss to the Government of about $160,000,000.

George said that committee members attending the session were about evenly divided on whether the provision affecting railroads should be retained. Consequently, he added, it was decided to take a poll of the full committee.

Murdered German Prisoners Buried

Fort Douglas, Utah, July 12 (AP)—Nearly two score of German prisoners of war watched stoically today as the bodies of eight comrades machine-gunned by a United States Army private were lowered into graves clase to oak brush foothills of the Wasatch Mountains.

Burial services were in the southeastern corner of the Fort Douglas Military Cemetery. Some of the prisoners squinted in the hot sun, but otherwise were expressionless. No tears were shed. No German flag of any sort was displayed.

A prisoners' choir from the Ogden camp sang three songs—Beethoven's song from The Monks, "Good Comrad" and a folk song.

Bertucci Being Examined

Five United States Army riflemen fired three volleys over the graves and a bugler blew taps.

Each coffin was decorated with flowers purchased through a collection taken up by prisoners at the Ogden camp.

After it was over, prisoners who had sung three songs of requiem peeled off their jackets and shoveled the sandy earth into the graves.

Private Clarence V. Bertucci, 23, of New Orleans, who fired three bursts from a machine gun at the Salina camp 150 miles south of Salt Lake City Sunday, is confined to Bushnell General Hospital for an extended examination.

Twenty other prisoners were wounded as 250 bullets whizzed through and between their tents as they slept. Some are still in serious condition.

Death Sentence Opposed For 2 Soldiers in China

Army Reveals Commutation Has Been Recommended by Officer.

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—An Army official said today a recommendation for commutation of the death sentences of two soldiers charged with killing a seventy-one-year-old Chinese woman had been made by an officer of the China-Burma-India theater.

A court martial sentenced the two men—Privates John V. Brennan, of West Hartford, Conn., and James F. Cooper, of Norwood, Ohio—to be shot in connection with the death of the woman last May.

The Army official said he did not know what sentences had been recommended by the C. B. I. officer. He emphasized to reporters that no final action has been taken and a full report on the case now is en route to Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson.

The woman died during an altercation when Brennan and Cooper rode a water buffalo in a Chinese village.

Representative Herman P. Kopplemann, Democrat, of Connecticut, said he sought clemency for Brennan more than a month ago in a cable to the commanding general in the area.

No U. S. Sugar for Spain

Grew Asserts 30,000 Tons Came from British Sources

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—Acting Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew said today that the United States currently is shipping no sugar to Spain.

In response to questions, Mr. Grew said there was a joint British-American supply agreement to send 30,000 tons to Spain during the first half of 1945. The sugar, however, was supplied from British sources in the Caribbean, he said, and was transported on Spanish ships. In return, Spain agreed not to enter the world market for any other sugar, Mr. Grew added.

The Acting Secretary said he understood the 30,000-ton total was not only below Spanish requirements, but was 40 per cent less than Spain received under a similar arrangement in the last six months of 1944.

Swedes Store Wood Pulp

Hold 900,000 Tons for U. S. but Await Price Agreement

STOCKHOLM, July 11 (AP).—Swedish cellulose manufacturers have reserved 900,000 tons of wood pulp for American buyers but delivery to the United States is uncertain because no agreement on prices has been reached.

The price ceiling on cellulose set by the Office of Price Administration is somewhat less than what Swedish manufacturers can command in the world market. Against this is the fact that in pre-war years 45 per cent of Sweden's cellulose export went to the United States and manufacturers naturally wish to preserve the market. For the present, says the industry's trade magazine, negotiations with American officials hold little prospect for better prices.

Capehart Urges Allies To Tell Terms to Japan

Says if Foe's People Knew It Would Hasten Surrender

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—A plea that the Allies spell out now the terms of surrender for Japan was voiced in the Senate today by Senator Homer E. Capehart, Republican, of Indiana.

He expressed belief that if the Japanese people knew just what was in store for them they would be encouraged to surrender.

The Senate majority leader, Senator Alben W. Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky, disagreed. "It seems to me," Senator Barkley told Senator Capehart, "that would do more to stiffen and strengthen the morale of the Japanese people than anything else that could happen. Certainly it would encourage them to think they could secure an easier peace than Germany did."

Dr. Paul H. Nystron, of New York, was nominated for re-appointment as a member of the Federal Board of Vocational Education.

The Senate confirmed today the nomination of William H. Wills, former Governor of Vermont, to be a member of the Federal Communications Commission.

The Senate Finance Committee unanimously approved the nomination of General Omar N. Bradley to be Administrator of Veterans' Affairs.

Glenn Martin Faces Charge Of Violating Rye Trading Law

WASHINGTON, July 12 — (AP) Secretary of Agriculture Anderson signed a complaint charging Glenn L. Martin, Baltimore, Md., with violation of government trading limits in buying rye futures on the Chicago board of trade.

Named with Martin as his agent was Henry L. T. Ullrich, Wilmington, Del.

Walter L. Miller, executive officer of the department's office of investigatory services, indentified Martin to reporters as the airplane manufacturer.

The complaint said that on June 9, Martin and his agent bought 3,300,000 bushels of rye futures on the Chicago market.

This figure, the complaint added, exceeded a 2,000,000-bushel daily trading limit on speculative transactions established by the department under authority of the commodity exchange act.

The complaint gave Martin and Ullrich 20 days within which to file an answer showing why an order should not be issued directing that, until further notice, all commodity contract markets refuse them trading privileges.

Loss of such privileges is the only penalty provided by law for exceeding trading limits on grain futures. Hearing on the complaint before an Agriculture department referee was set for August 9.

This is the second complaint issued by the government in recent weeks charging Chicago market traders with violation of the commodity exchange act.

RECORD LIQUOR TAXES

Washington, July 12 (A. P.).—The Distilled Spirits Institute said today public revenue from alcoholic beverages last year hit a record total of $2,703,500,000.

This was $708,000,000 higher than the 1943 figure, the institute said, and largely reflected the $6 to $9 a gallon liquor tax increase which went into effect April 1, 1944.

Of the total $2,168,000,000 went into the Federal Treasury, a gain of 42.8 per cent over the previous year. State revenues totaled $495,706,000, an increase of 13 per cent, while local revenues remained virtually constant at $39,859,000.

DEFENDS NEGRO GI'S

Wagner Says Eastland's Views Are Not Those of General Staff

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP)Senator Wagner of New York came to the defense of the Negro soldiers today.

Attributing to Senator Eastland of Mississippi a statement that "Negro soldiers are no good," Wagner suggested in a Senate speech that Mr. Eastland should have consulted the War Department.

Mr. Wagner said that the Under-Secretary of War, Robert P. Patterson, told him Mr. Eastland's statement did not represent the views of the General Staff. He quoted General Eisenhower as saying that the Negro soldier had "made a valuable contribution," in the European area and quoted General Ira Eaker as saying that the Negro fighter pilots "have done well."

ARMY TO STOP SENDING FOOD TO EUROPE SEPT. 1

WASHINGTON, July 12 — (AP) The Army will stop supplying food to civilians in Italy and in the liberated countries of Europe on September 1, the War department said today.

The only liberated countries currently being supplied by the Army are Belgium, Holland, Norway and Denmark. Army shipments of food to the Balkans were halted in May and to France in April.

A department spokesman estimated that the Army had supplied upwards of $700,000,000 worth of food to Europe during the last two years.

Maker of Boxes for Purple Heart Medals Held Out on Income Tax

WASHINGTON, July 12—(AP) Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau said today a manufacturer making jewelry boxes for purple heart medals has concealed sales amounting to at least $80,000 in filing income tax returns.

Morgenthau called this a "particularly distressing case of attempted tax evasion" and said early indications are that criminal prosecution will be recommended. He did not name the jewelry box manufacturer.

In a news conference the Secretary said the Treasury's drive against alleged tax evaders is "growing in size all the time. There seems to be no end to the amount of evasion. The further we get into it the more shocking it becomes."

He said another important case involving a firm of war contractors in Wisconsin is expected to be presented to a grand jury within the next three or four weeks. He indicated this case involves several million dollars in unreported income.

"When Treasury representatives were called to Washington recently for conferences," Morgenthau said, "the files they had accumulated were so bulky (200 to 300 pounds) that they could not get them in their valises and had to ship them by railroad express."

Bulkeley Wins 2 New Honors

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—Commander John D. Bulkeley, PT-squadron skipper who transported General Douglas MacArthur from Corregidor, has received two additional awards, the Legion of Merit and a Gold Star in lieu of a second Silver Star medal. The Navy said today the Legion of Merit was awarded for his service as commanding officer of Motor Torpedo Boat Squadron 2, which participated in operations in the Bay of the Seine during the Normandy invasion. The Gold Star in lieu of a second Silver Star medal was awarded for services as commanding officer of the destroyer Endicott during the amphibious invasion of southern France. His previous awards included the Congressional Medal of Honor, the Navy Cross, the Army's Distinguished Service Cross, the Army's Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of a second Distinguished Service Cross, the Army Silver Star, the Army Distinguished Unit Badge and the Distinguished Conduct Star awarded by the Philippine government.

JOHN S. WOOD HEADS HOUSE PROBE GROUP

WASHINGTON, July 12 — (AP) The House today elected a little-known Georgia Democrat, Rep. John S. Wood, to one of its most controversial positions — chairman of the Committee on Un-American Activities.

Wood, who served in the House from 1931 to 1935 and then dropped out until last year, succeeds Rep. Edward J. Hart (D-NJ), who announced recently that he was resigning because of ill health.

The Georgian was recommended for the post by the Democratic members of the Ways and Means committee as a compromise after members could not agree on either Rep. Jackson (D-Wash) or Rep. Gibson (D-Ga). Jackson had backing of administration leaders.

3-Pound Shell Is Hurled 2 Miles by Kickless Gun

Army Says New Cannon Has Recoil of .22-Caliber Rifle

WASHINGTON, July 12 (AP).—The Army disclosed today performance details on its new kickless cannon, which fire artillery shells with no more recoil than a .22-caliber rifle.

The two guns, a 57 and a 75-millimeter, were battle-tested in Europe and now are being turned against the Japanese "with much success," the Army said.

The 57-millimeter rifle, which can be fired from the shoulder or from a small tripod, weighs only forty-five pounds, yet can toss a regular shell weighing about three pounds for two miles.

The 75-millimeter rifle, weighing 110 pounds (a regular field artillery piece weighs more than one ton) throws a fourteen-pound shell more than four miles.

General Courtney Hodges, 1st Army commander, hit a three-foot square target at 800 yards the first time he fired the 57-millimeter gun, shoulder style, the Army reported to illustrate the weapon's simplicity.

Although the guns resemble rocket weapons, they differ substantially from the bazooka. They are rifled, increasing accuracy. They fire standard artillery ammunition rather than rocket projectiles.

The recoil is absorbed by allowing a counter-balancing portion of the propellant gases to escape through openings in the breech.

Labor Statistics Unit Shows Price Index Drop

Washington, July 12 (AP)—The wholesale commodity price index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics declined 0.1 per cent during the week ended July 7 as the result of lower quotations for farm products.

The Labor Department reported today the index, at 105.8 of the 1926 level, was 0.2 per cent below a month ago but 1.8 per cent above the first part of July, 1944.

It was 20.6 per cent above the same week in 1937 and 9.6 per cent over the corresponding week in 1929.

N. A. M. Tells of Plans For Handicapped G. I.s

Official Says Industry Has Jobs for Wounded Veterans

READING, Pa., July 12 (AP).—Michael J. Kane, industrial relations director of the National Association of Manufacturers, said today war-time man-power shortages have taught industry "it can train the handicapped to produce efficiently," and such training will help make jobs for returning veterans.

In an address prepared for delivery at an N. A. M. veteran's job clinic jointly sponsored by the N. A. M. and the Manufactures' Association of Berks County, Mr. Kane said: "Hundreds of plants are readily hiring the crippled, the nervous and other handicapped."

"War teaches bitter lessons," Mr. Kane said. "But it has also taught American industry that handicapped persons, when properly placed, do a better job, or at least as good a job as the normal."

Mr. Kane said that industry, which is hiring increasing thousands of returning veterans each month, "is seeking to solve the veterans' problems peculiar to it in a manner that recognizes social responsibility."

"On its own, a large portion of industry is surveying all its jobs and classifying them by their physical requirements," he said. "It is giving the returning vets free pre-employment physical examinations to determine the right job."

He said that foremen and subforemen are being trained to "handle the veteran intelligently without coddling him, and with friendliness without being maudlin."

Mr. Kane described the veteran as "the cream of the man-power market" and said that "every man who has served deserves, and will get, certain preferences and economic opportunities."

He said manufacturing industry, from which only one in five men entered military service, could not be expected to absorb all veterans, "but industry has pledged itself to provide three million jobs for the returning veterans—the disabled and handicapped as well as the able-bodied."

MITSCHER'S MOTHER DOESN'T WANT ANY FUSS

HILLSBORO, Wis., July 12—(AP) Because his mother didn't want "any fuss", Hillsboro made its official welcome to Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher short and sweet this afternoon.

Returning to the town of his birth for the first visit with his mother, Mrs. Myrta Mitscher, in 11 years, the commander of the Navy's famous Task Force 58, spent most of the day chatting with cousins, aunts and uncles—with time out for fried chicken and such.

In mid-afternoon the family reunion was interrupted for an hour when most of the community's 1,100 inhabitants gathered on his aunt's front lawn to pay their respects. There were no lengthy speeches. The citizen's committee tendered Admiral Mitscher a gold wrist watch and a book containing the autographs of virtually every citizen, and Brig. Gen. Scott Cairy, representing Gov. Walter S. Goodland, presented him with an official state flag.

There were gifts also for Mitscher's wife and his mother. The elder Mrs. Mitscher received a carved cameo brooch, the Admiral's wife a compact.

SHE ALSO RECENTLY VISITED THE UNITED STATES, BUT IS NOW BACK IN LONDON. THE FUTURE OF THE LONDON "WINGS" CLUB IS UNCERTAIN. HOW LONG IT WILL CONTINUE TO FUNCTION, MRS. CORRIGAN WILL NOT SAY. BUT IT IS STILL RUNNING TO FULL CAPACITY, FILLED WITH FLIERS OF ALLIED NATIONS.

THE CLUB WAS FOUNDED IN 1943 BY M.J. CORRIGAN. SHE FOOTS MOST OF THE BILLS FOR, WITH ITS PAID PERSONNEL, LUXURIOUS MENUS AND EXCELLENT FACILITIES, IT DEFINITELY IS NOT SELF-SUPPORTING.

IN SPITE OF BEING BOMBED A COUPLE OF TIMES, THE CLUB CONTINUED TO OPERATE THROUGHOUT THE "V" ASSAULTS.

WHEN PARIS WAS THREATENED BY THE GERMANS IN 1940, MRS. CORRIGAN, WHOSE LAVISH PRE-WAR PARTIES WERE NOTED FOR THEIR LENGTHY GUEST LISTS AND EXPENSIVE GIFTS FOR THOSE INVITED, WORKED DAY AND NIGHT IN CANTEENS FOR TROOPS. SHE ALSO AIDED HUNDREDS OF NEEDY AMERICAN CITIZENS. LONG AFTER MOST AMERICANS HAD LEFT THE CITY MRS. CORRIGAN, DRESSED IN A UNIFORM OF HER OWN DESIGN, WAS A FAMILIAR SIGHT TO THOUSANDS OF REFUGEES STREAMING OUT OF THE CITY. SHE ESCAPED TO ENGLAND LATER FROM VICHY.

THE NEIGHBOR, WHO LIVES ACROSS THE STREET FROM MISS CARPENTER AND WHOSE PHONE THE ENGLISH GIRL USES, SAID MISS CARPENTER RECEIVED A LETTER TODAY FROM THE PITTSBURGH SOLDIER GIVING THAT ADVICE.

THE SERGEANT ARRIVED HOME LAST WEEK AND IMMEDIATELY CABLED "ALL MY LOVE."

INFORMED OF HIS SAFE ARRIVAL AT PITTSBURGH BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, MISS CARPENTER ASSERTED THAT SHE COULD NOT "SAY ANYTHING ABOUT PLANS TO GO TO AMERICA UNTIL I GET A LETTER."

THE ENGLISH GIRL BORE THE BLUE-EYED QUADRUPLETS FEB.26, 1944, AND THE SERGEANT ACKNOWLEDGED THAT HE WAS THE FATHER. ONE BABY DIED. TWO GIRLS AND A BOY SURVIVE.

FRANKFURT, JULY 12-(AP)-ALLIED ACCORD ON PROBLEMS CONCERNING THE JOINT MILITARY GOVERNMENT OF BERLIN WAS REACHED IN SUCH A SPIRIT THAT RESPONSIBLE SOURCES HERE ARE HIGHLY OPTIMISTIC OVER FUTURE MEETINGS OF THE POWERFUL CONTROL COUNCIL WHOSE TASK WILL BE TO DIRECT THE GOVERNING OF ALL GERMANY.

IT WAS LEARNED TODAY THAT SPEEDY AND AMICABLE SETTLEMENT OF MAJOR PROBLEMS WAS ACHIEVED AT THE BERLIN MEETINGS BY MARSHAL GEORGI K.ZHUKOV, LT.GEN.LUCIUS D.CLAY, OF MARIETTA, GA., AND LT.GEN.SIR RONALD WEEKS, OF GREAT BRITAIN.

IN EFFECT, THEIR MEETINGS TO SOLVE INITIAL PROBLEMS CONCERNING BERLIN CONSTITUTED A GATHERING OF THE CONTROL COUNCIL, SINCE ZHUKOV IS THE RUSSIAN COUNCIL MEMBER, CLAY IS GEN.EISENHOWER'S DEPUTY, AND WEEKS REPRESENTS SIR BERNARD L.MONTGOMERY.

THERE IS A FEELING HERE THAT THE FRIENDLY RELATIONSHIPS ACHIEVED IN BERLIN SET A PATTERN FOR FUTURE ALLIED MEETINGS TO SET UP THE COMPLICATED STRUCTURE FOR THE JOINT GOVERNMENT OF GERMANY.

THE FRICTION THAT DEVELOPED WHEN BRITISH AND AMERICANS TOOK OVER THEIR RESPECTIVE ZONES OF OCCUPATION, IT WAS LEARNED, WAS CONFINED TO LOWER LEVELS AND DID NOT ENTER THE DISCUSSIONS OF THE POLICY-MAKING GROUP WHO WERE "IN COMPLETE HARMONY."

WHAT MISUNDERSTANDINGS DEVELOPED, IT WAS UNDERSTOOD, RESULTED FROM LANGUAGE DIFFICULTIES, SLOWNESS OF COMMUNICATIONS, OR NORMAL DIFFERENCES IN PROCEDURE.

ONE OF THE MAJOR PROBLEMS WAS REACHING AN AGREEMENT ON THE METHOD OF FEEDING THE PEOPLE OF BERLIN. THE AMERICANS TOOK THE VIEW THAT SINCE THE RUSSIAN OCCUPIED TERRITORY INCLUDED THE GREAT WHEAT AND POTATO GROWING REGIONS OF EASTERN GERMANY, MOST OF THE FOOD SHOULD COME FROM THAT AREA AS IT DID IN NORMAL TIMES.

HOWEVER, THE AMERICAN AND THE BRITISH ATTITUDE ALTERED, AUTHORITIES, WHO ASKED NOT TO BE QUOTED BY NAME SAID, WHEN THE RUSSIANS EXPLAINED THAT EASTERN GERMANY THIS SUMMER WAS BATTLE SCARRED FROM THE FIERCE FIGHTING AND MANY OF THE FIELDS WERE BARREN.

THE RUSSIANS SAID THAT WHEN THE RED ARMY APPROACHED MANY FARMERS FLED. THE CHAOTIC STATE OF THE GERMAN RAILROADS ADDED TO THE PROBLEM OF MOVING ANY AVAILABLE FOOD, THE RUSSIANS SAID.

THE AMERICANS ALSO HELD THE VIEW, IT WAS EXPLAINED, THAT SINCE EASTERN GERMANY WAS A GREAT FARMING REGION THE RUSSIANS SHOULD AGREE TO A PLAN WHEREBY SURPLUS LABOR IN WESTERN GERMANY COULD BE EXCHANGED FOR FOOD TO FEED PEOPLE IN INDUSTRIAL AREAS, THUS TREATING THE COUNTRY AS AN ECONOMIC WHOLE.

BUT THE RUSSIAN PICTURE OF RAVAGED EASTERN GERMANY ELIMINATED THE POSSIBILITY OF SUCH AN EXCHANGE.

WHEN THESE FACTS WERE PLACED BEFORE THE ALLIED REPRESENTATIVES THEY REACHED AN AGREEMENT THAT EACH GOVERNMENT SHOULD CONTRIBUTE TO THE FEEDING OF THE PEOPLE IN THEIR RESPECTIVE ZONES.

SIMLA, JULY 12-(AP)-PANDIT JAWAHARLAL NEHRU, CONGRESS PARTY LEADER, APPEARED UNDISTURBED TODAY BY THE PROSPECT THAT THE DEADLOCK BETWEEN HIS PARTY AND THE MUSLIM LEAGUE OVER FORMATION OF A COLLABORATIVE GOVERNMENT FOR INDIA MIGHT NOT BE BROKEN.

NEHRU, IN AN INTERVIEW, DECLARED HE WAS UNABLE TO STATE PLANS OF THE CONGRESS PARTY IN EVENT THE SIMLA CONFERENCE FAILS, SINCE THE POSSIBILITY OF FAILURE WAS NOT CONSIDERED.

HE ASSERTED THE CONGRESS PARTY WAS WILLING TO ENTER A GOVERNMENT IN WHICH THE MUSLIM LEAGUE WAS NOT PARTICIPATING, WITH THE HOPE THE LEAGUE WOULD JOIN LATER.

"WE WANT THE LEAGUE TO COME IN AS WANT TO COOPERATE WITH ALL ELEMENTS IN THESE CIRCUMSTANCES, BUT WE WILL ENTER A GOVERNMENT WITHOUT THEM, HOLDING THE DOOR OPEN FOR THEM TO COME IN LATER," HE SAID.

SIMLA, JULY 12-(AP)-BRITISH VICEROY LORD WAVELL'S PLAN TO CONSTITUTE A NEW GOVERNMENT FOR INDIA WAS WRITTEN OFF AS A FAILURE HERE TONIGHT TWO DAYS BEFORE A CONFERENCE CALLED FOR THAT PURPOSE WAS SCHEDULED TO RECONVENE.

PARTY ADHERENTS AND IMPARTIAL OBSERVERS ALIKE AGREED THAT IN THEIR OPINION THE INTERIM GOVERNMENT PROPOSED IN LORD WAVELL'S PLAN COULD NOT BE A PRODUCT OF THE CONFERENCE INVIEW OF THE STALEMATE BETWEEN THE CONGRESS PARTY AND THE MOSLEM LEAGUE.

THE CONFERENCE ADJOURNED NEARLY TWO WEEKS AGO WHEN THE LEADERS OF THE TWO POWERFUL POLITICAL GROUPS WERE UNABLE TO REACH AN AGREEMENT ON THE SELECTION OF MOSLEM MEMBERS TO AN INDIAN GOVERNING COUNCIL PROPOSED BY WAVELL.

ALTHOUGH A CHANGE REMAINED THAT SOME AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE TWO MAJOR INDIAN PARTIES MIGHT BE EFFECTED BY THE VICEROY WHEN THE CONFEREES ASSEMBLE AGAIN ON SATURDAY, A MAJORITY OF THE PARTICIPANTS AND MANY OBSERVERS HELD THE VIEW THAT THE DEADLOCK HAD CREATED A SITUATION WHICH MADE IMPLEMENTING OF THE WAVELL PLAN IMPOSSIBLE.

THEY POINTED OUT THAT WAVELL STATED CLEARLY WHEN HE ANNOUNCED

JUL 13 1945

HIS PLAN THAT AN INTERIM GOVERNMENT WOULD NOT BE FORCED UPON INDIA WITHOUT THE CONSENT OF BOTH MAJOR PARTIES.

THE PREVAILING VIEW IS THAT SINCE THE PARTIES FAILED TO AGREE THE VICEROY HAS NO RECOURSE UNDER THE TERMS OF HIS PLAN EXCEPT TODISMIS THE CONFERENCE.

THE TOKYO NEWSPAPER MAINICHI SUGGESTED THAT THE CARRIER RAID ON TOKYO WAS A PREPARATORY MOVE FOR INVASION OF SOME JAPANESE-HELD ISLANDS CLOSE TO THE HOMELAND.

SO FAR, MAINICHI SAID, THERE ARE NO SIGNS OF "ANY IMMEDIATE LANDING OPERATIONS TO FOLLOW UP" THE RAID BUT "IT IS APPARENT THAT THE ENEMY HAS A STRONGER DESIRE NOW TO ACQUIRE OPERATIONAL AIR BASES CLOSER TO JAPAN. CLOSER ATTENTION SHOULD THEREFORE BE PAID TO THE ENEMY'S DESIGNS THAT LIE BEHIND THE OFFENSIVE OPERATIONS THAT HE IS EXPECTED TO MAKE AGAIN AND AGAIN WITH HIS CARRIER TASK FORCE."

TOKYO REPORTED 18 SUPERFORTS FLEW OVER THE WESTERN COAST OF HONSHU, MAIN ISLAND OF JAPAN, LAST NIGHT.

THE DOMEI NEWS AGENCY SAID 180 FIGHTERS AND BOMBERS FROM OKINAWA SWEPT THROUGH BAD WEATHER TO ATTACK AIRFIELDS ON SOUTHERN AND EASTERN KYUSHU TODAY BUT "RETREATED WITHOUT BEING ABLE TO MAKE ANY MISCHIEF." KYUSHU, SOUTHERNMOST ISLAND OF JAPAN, IS THE SITE OF SUICIDE BASES THAT HARASSED AMERICAN SHIPPING THROUGHOUT THE CONQUEST OF OKINAWA.

ANOTHER TOKYO REPORT DECLARED THAT JAPANESE PLANES--NOTABLY ABSENT DURING THE AIRBORNE ATTACK--STRUCK A "HAMMERING BLOW" TUESDAY NIGHT ON AN AMERICAN-HELD AIRFIELD ON IE ISLAND, A FEW MILES WEST OF OKINAWA. FIRES WERE STARTED IN TWO PLACES, SAID THE BROADCAST, BEAMED TO AMERICAN LISTENERS.

TOKYO, WHICH HAS BEEN CARRYING ON AN UNCONFIRMED MONOLOGUE ABOUT AN ALLIED LANDING ON TERNATE ISLAND, OFF THE COAST OF HALMAHERA SOUTH OF THE PHILIPPINES, REPORTED TODAY THAT NIPPONESE TROOPS HAD "SUCCEEDED IN CORNERING THE LANDED ENEMY TROOPS IN THE NORTHERN SECTOR OF THE ISLAND" AND WERE MOPPING UP.

BIG THREE
BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
ASSOCIATED PRESS DIPLOMATIC NEWS EDITOR

WASHINGTON, JULY 12-(AP)-PRESIDENT TRUMAN IS EXPECTED TO SEEK CLOSER AND MORE CONTINUOUS DIPLOMATIC TIES WITH BRITAIN AND RUSSIA WHEN HE MEETS PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AND PREMIER STALIN AT BERLIN.

THE OBJECTIVE WILL BE TO ASSURE DAY-TO-DAY HANDLING OF CURRENT EUROPEAN POLITICAL PROBLEMS WHICH GREW OUT OF THE WAR AND FOR WHICH QUICK SOLUTIONS ARE CONSIDERED VITAL TO A WORKABLE PEACE.

AT THE HEART OF WHATEVER PROPOSAL MR. TRUMAN MAKES ALONG THE LINE--PROBABLY TO CREATE AN INTERNATIONAL COMMISSION--IS THE NEED TO PROMOTE BIG THREE COOPERATION AT A TIME WHEN SOME FORCES ARE WORKING TO WEAKEN IT.

IN SOME RESPECTS THE STRESSES ON THIS CONFERENCE WILL BE GREATER THAN THOSE UNDER WHICH THE LATE PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, CHURCHILL AND STALIN WORKED AT TEHRAN AND AT YALTA. THE BIGGEST DIFFERENCE, OF COURSE, IS THAT THE THREE ALLIES NO LONGER ARE BOUND BY THE COMPELLING NEED TO DEFEAT A COMMON ENEMY.

THEYARE CONFRONTED WITH THE NECESSITY FOR WRITING A COMMON PEACE, BUT IN THIS POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC DIFFERENCES OF APPROACH POSE PROBLEMS WHICH THE PURELY MILITARY CONSIDERATIONS OF THE PAST NEVER BROUGHT UP.

THIS TIME TOO THE REAL BLUE CHIPS OF INTERNATIONAL POLITICS ARE BOUND TO COME INTO PLAY MORE THAN EVER BEFORE. ISSUES NO LONGER CAN BE RESOLVED IN BROAD STATEMENTS OF PRINCIPLE. THEY ARE CONCERNED WITH SPECIFIC QUESTIONS OF BOUNDARIES, POLITICAL ALIGNMENTS AND TERRITORIAL CONTROLS NOT HERETOFORE TACKLED ON A GRAND SCALE.

GENEALLY, AS DIPLOMATS HERE SEE IT, THE TASK OF THE BIG THREE AT POTSDAM WILL PARALLEL BUT DOES NOT TIE IN DIRECTLY WITH THE WORK OF THE SAN FRANCISCO CONFERENCE. AT SAN FRANCISCO THE UNITED NATIONS WERE CONCERNED WITH DESIGNING MACHINERY TO PRESERVE PEACE. AT BERLIN THE JOB WILL BE MAINLY ONE OF ARRANGING THE TRANSITIONS FROM WAR TO PEACE.

A3WX

THIS MAY BE BROKEN DOWN INTO FOUR MAIN CATEGORIES:

1. LONG-RANGE CONTROL OF GERMANY: THE TOP ALLIES--RUSSIA, BRITAIN, FRANCE AND THE UNITED STATES--ARE NOW PERFECTING MILITARY CONTROLS FOR THE RELATIVELY BRIEF PERIOD OF YEARS IN WHICH THEY WILL BE DISARMING AND NEUTRALIZING THE REICH. THE POLICIES FOR THAT WERE WORKED OUT AT YALTA.

NOW THEY MUST DECIDE ON POLICIES FOR PERMANENT DISPOSAL OF GERMANY. WHAT SORT OF POLITICS AND WHAT SORT OF ECONOMY ARE TO BE ALLOWED THE GERMAN PEOPLE? IF THEY ARE TO BE ALLOWED TO EMERGE EVENTUALLY AS A WHOLE NATION AGAIN, WHAT TERRITORY SHALL THEY HOLD AND WHAT INDUSTRIES MAY THEY DEVELOP IN IT? THE BIG THREE NEED TO FIND COMMON ANSWERS TO THESE AND SIMILAR QUESTIONS IN THE INTEREST OF HARMONY.

2. DISPOSITION OF TERRITORIES: THERE ARE MORE THAN 30 DISPUTED BOUNDARIES IN EUROPE, AND THERE ARE ITALIAN COLONIES TO BE DISPOSED OF. THESE ARE SUBJECTS FORM SOME SORT OF FORMAL PEACE SETTLEMENT IN WHICH ALL THE STATES THAT FOUGHT GERMANY WILL JOIN. BUT AS THEY DID AT SAN FRANCISCO THE BIG POWERS MAY BE EXPECTED TO MAKE THEIR OWN TENTATIVE DECISIONS PRELIMINARY TO THE FINAL SETTLEMENT.

HOWEVER, THE BERLIN CONFERENCE LIKELY WILL NOT HAVE TIME TO GO INTO THESE QUESTIONS IN GREAT DETAIL. HENCE SOME SORT OF COMMISSION MAY BE SET UP TO WORK ON THEM AND PROVIDE SOLUTIONS WHEN NECESSARY.

3. PEACE CONFERENCE: SOME ALLIED OFFICIALS HAVE CONTENDED THAT THE JOB OF LIQUIDATING THE WAR SHOULD BE ACCOMPLISHED IN A SERIES OF SMALL CONFERENCES AND SOME ARGUE THERE MUST BE A SINGLE PEACE CONFERENCE FOR EUROPE, BEFORE THE END OF THE JAPANESE WAR. THE BIG THREE ARE EXPECTED TO DECIDE WHICH IT SHALL BE.

4. POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC QUESTIONS: AMONG THESE ARE WHETHER ITALY SHOULD BE GIVEN INCREASED POLITICAL STATURE AND READIED FOR ADMISSION TO THE UNITED NATIONS; WHETHER ANY JOINT ACTION SHOULD BE TAKEN AGAINST SPAIN'S FRANCO GOVERNMENT OF WHICH MOSCOW HAS BEEN MOST CRITICAL; WHETHER RUSSIA INTENDS TO PURSUE A SINGLE-

HANDED POLICY WITH TURKEY OVER THE DARDANELLES AND WHETHER SHE WILL HAVE A VOICE IN RESTORING TANGIER AS AN INTERNATIONAL ZONE.

LONDON EXPECTS THAT STALIN WILL URGE JOINT ECONOMIC MEASURES TO WEAKEN FRANCO'S HOLD ON SPAIN, BUT THERE IS NO INDICATION SO FAR THAT CHURCHILL AND MR. TRUMAN WOULD ACCEPT.

JUL 13 1945

ON THE OTHER HAND, BOTH LONDON AND WASHINGTON HAVE BEEN VERY CRITICAL FOR MONTHS OF SOVIET POLICIES IN THE BALKANS AND EASTERN EUROPE. MR. TRUMAN AND CHURCHILL MAY BE EXPECTED TO URGE THAT THOSE AREAS BE OPENED TO MORE NORMAL DIPLOMATIC AND BUSINESS ACTIVITIES SINCE IT CAN NO LONGER BE CLAIMED THAT THEY NEED TO BE SO RIGIDLY CONTROLLED FOR MILITARY PURPOSES.

1,000 Carrier Planes Hit Northern Japan; 3d Fleet Safe After Riding Out Typhoon, None Killed, 21 Damaged Ships Repaired

Attack Begun By Pacific Units At Noon Against Main Island Of Enemy Homeland, Admiral Nimitz Reports

ERICKSON

Guam, Saturday, July 14 (AP)—Ships of the United States Pacific Fleet began the first heavy surface ship bombardment of the main islands of Japan about noon today.

The main weight of gunfire was on the island of Honshu, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced.

NIGHT

Gunfire is continuing at the present time, Nimitz said.

Kamaishi is the principal target on Honshu, 275 miles northeast of Tokyo.

Ships in the bombardment include the battleships Massachusetts, Indiana, South Dakota, the heavy cruisers Chicago, Quincy, and the destroyers Southerland, Heerman, Erben and Black.

Admiral William F. Halsey is in command of the force.

The bombardment, first against the main islands of Japan since the Pacific war began, is under immediate tactical command of Rear Admiral J. S. Shafroth, Nimitz announced in his third communique in less than five hours.

Carrier Planes in Attack

The bombshell announcement came less than an hour and a half after Nimitz had announced damage or destruction of 342 enemy planes and four ships and smashing of fifteen enemy airfields in the Tokyo area by carrier planes of the United States 3d Fleet on Tuesday.

Only three and one-half hours before that he had announced that the same carrier force was at that moment attacking Hokkaido and northern Honshu in the fleet's farthest north penetration of enemy waters.

This force also is under Halsey, with Vice-Admiral John S. McCain commanding the carriers.

The bombardment by the big guns of the battleships, cruisers and destroyers evidently was a coordinated part of the current air strike, as the ships are part of the 3d Fleet, several of them having been named by Nimitz as participating in the Tokyo strike of Tuesday.

Again today Nimitz boldly named at least some of the ships which, he declared, are "now standing off the coast of the Empire" and shelling Japan's main island.

Both actions still are in progress, Nimitz announced.

Within 20 Miles of Coast

The warships steamed up and down well within twenty miles of the coast completely disregarded by the Japanese air force, which refused to oppose the carrier planes either at Tokyo on Tuesday or over Hokkaido and Honshu today.

Twenty miles is regarded as the extreme effective range of the sixteen-inch guns of the battleships, so the fact that cruisers and destroyers were named indicated that presumably the bombardment force was much closer in—within the range of the destroyers' five-inch guns, possibly five miles.

Meanwhile the air strike also was continuing. It was the first such blow against Hokkaido, northernmost of the main Japanese islands. It originally was scheduled for Friday the 13th, but was delayed by fog.

It disclosed the present activities of the fleet and permitted Admiral William F. (Bull) Halsey to break radio silence and give a full report on the success scored in the smash at the Tokyo area only five days before.

Besides smashing hangars and shops at 15 airfields in a 60-mile radius around Tokyo, the Third fleet's planes hit a number of factory buildings, a powerhouse and a freight train and destroyed 109 planes on the ground and damaged 231.

Two Japanese snooper planes, the only ones able to get anywhere near the fleet, were shot down.

No Air Opposition

There was no air opposition, and the daring strike was made at a loss of seven pilots and six crewmen.

While Admiral Chester W. Nimitz was announcing the Tokyo radio toll in a special communique from his Pacific fleet headquarters here, the planes of Vice Admiral John S. McCain's Task Force 38, part of Halsey's Third fleet, were hammering through thick fog and icy mists at Hokkaido and northern Honshu in a strike still in progress.

Targets included air bases, shipping, warehouses and railroads, particularly rail ferries linking the two islands, but first eye-witness accounts from the fleet said some primary targets were blacked out by the fog so that secondary targets were bearing the brunt of the onslaught.

Japanese air interception was non-existent and antiaircraft fire was wild and inaccurate, although plentiful.

First fragmentary reports of the strike's results included destruction of a large warehouse and two small vessels off Hokkaido.

In spearing more than 800 miles farther north than any major Pacific fleet has ventured so far in the war off Japan, Halsey's force is carrying the attack to the only part of the enemy homeland previously untouched by offensive blows.

(Joe Hainline, NBC correspondent aboard a warship off Hokkaido, broadcast that no Japanese warships or planes had yet been encountered. He said the fleet moved in for opening of the operation early Friday, the 13th, but dense fog, "which veterans of the European war compared to the worst days of the north Atlantic," forced postponement of the assault).

Halsey Moves Boldly

Halsey moved boldly north after his fleet, standing off Tokyo bay, had failed to find the hiding enemy air force in strength during an attack last Tuesday.

The new onslaught, disclosed shortly after Admiral Chester W. Nimitz had reported Halsey's fleet last month rode out a typhoon in which 21 of the warships were damaged, followed by 24 hours a blast at five enemy centers on Japan by more than 500 Superforts.

Today's targets were airfields just as they were when the raiders roamed over all the Tokyo area Tuesday, unable to find appreciable opposition in the air but destroying or damaging 152 planes on the ground and shooting down two snoopers near the fleet.

The Japanese are known to have planes based on airfields north of Tokyo. Hokkaido has 20 to 25 operational airfields. Eight northern districts of Honshu have about the same number of airdromes.

Tokyo's previously attacked airfield network exceeds 70.

Achieve Surprise Again

Complete tactical surprise again was achieved by the dawn-striking first waves of Hellcats and Corsairs in today's operation, aimed at pursuing the enemy airforce as it has steadily withdrawn and hid out since its last big onslaughts on recently-won Okinawa.

As in Tuesday's strike, Vice Admiral John S. McCain headed up the carrier task force.

Nimitz' terse report that "the operations are being conducted in approximately the same strength" as on Tuesday suggested at least four big aircraft carriers and four battleships were involved.

It seems apparent that the carrier planes, sweeping over a big area of northern Honshu and Hokkaido, should find a considerable number of planes pulled back from the Tokyo sector.

Before today, the northernmost point on Japan hit by American planes was Sendai, 190 miles north of Tokyo, which was firebombed by Superforts before dawn July 10 in a raid coordinated with the earlier fleet strike.

In addition to pursuing the destruction of Japan's remaining air strength—now estimated to total about 9,000 planes including from 4,000 to 5,000 trainers and obsolete combat types—the present operation will achieve two more objectives.

One will be complete reconnaissance of an area which Americans have not had an opportunity to explore since the war's beginning.

The second is to close more tightly the blockade ring around Japan.

The fleet disclosure came shortly after Gen. Douglas MacArthur at Manila had reported his Okinawa-based Fifth Air force planes had resumed attacks on Kyushu, southern island of Japan.

Corsairs Hit Radio Station

Nimitz reported that Okinawa-based Corsairs of the Second Marine Aircraft Wing heavily damaged a radio station at Sata Misaki on Kyushu Wednesday, and also struck enemy bases in the Ryukyus north and south of Okinawa. In the Sagishima group, southern Ryukyus, they damaged seven small surface craft.

Navy Privateers sank a small cargo vessel south of Korea yesterday.

The Japanese air force, which has been virtually absent from recent reports, sent a few raiders early Wednesday to Ie Shima island off Okinawa, dropping a few bombs and "causing minor damage," the communique said. One raider was shot down by night fighters.

B-29s Continue Attacks On Jap Home Islands

Air Interception Negligible; Nips Express Alarm

Guam, July 13—(AP)—Virtually unopposed air blows by around 700 B-29s, heavy and medium bombers, fighters and long range search planes across a 770-mile arc of Japan, extending north and south of Tokyo, were announced today. Promptly a U. S. air general on Okinawa declared " the Japs, in my opinion, don't intend to engage us in the air."

TODAY

As enemy homeland factories and railroads were wrecked and even the smallest shipping sunk offshore, Brig. Gen. David F. Hutchinson of the Far East Air Forces told an Associated Press correspondent, Richard Cushing at Okinawa, that Japan obviously was hoarding planes to use in suicide tactics when Yank infantrymen storm Nippon's invasion beaches.

Rear Adm. D. C. Ramsey, new chief of staff of the Fifth Fleet, estimated Japan might have 9,000 planes available and probably could throw about 4,000 into the battle over Japan.

Only weak fighter opposition was encountered over Tokyo Bay and a city to the north as Superforts dumped 3,000 tons of fire and demolition bombs on five homeland centers before dawn today, returning pilots reported.

Variety of Installations Among Targets Reported

No enemy fighters could be found aloft yesterday as more than 120 Liberator and Mitchell bombers and escorting fighters from Okinawa ripped into factories and railroads, the port of Aburatsu and the naval air station of Kanoya on Kyushu.;

The enemy air force relinquished homeland skies so completely that fleet search planes flew nearly 200 miles north of Tokyo to hit small shipping off Sendai, then returned to Iwo—a round trip flight of nearly 2,000 miles.

It is approximately 770 miles from Sendai to the southernmost target hit on Kyushu.

Superfort bombardiers, building up the number of Japanese cities they have hit to 38, had to bomb by instrument through cloud banks but crews brought back these reports:

Little Interception

At Oil Center

Kawasaki oil center on reclaimed island in Tokyo Bay—seven big fires started, visible even through overcast; very slight enemy attempt at interception.

Tsuruga, 55 miles northwest of Nagoya—"a steady red glow" started at that embarkation port for troops bound for Korea and Manchuria.

Utsunomiya—weak air opposition brushed aside at that trade and transport center 60 miles north of Tokyo; raiders fought 60-mile-an-hour wind.

Ichinomiya—incendiaries spilled through clouds on the war industry city nine miles northwest of Nagoya.

Uwajima—flashes of the fire bombs vied with "St. Elmo's fire" (static electricity) over that port and war production center on the west-central coast of Shikoku island; rain storm lifted one B-29 4,000 feet.

Tokyo radio said the raids lasted three hours, admitted some fires still were burning at dawn and reported B-29s also mined the waters of Wakasa bay on the west side of Honshu.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz disclosed today that hunting for enemy shipping off southern Japan became so poor that his fleet search planes joined yesterday in tearing up railroads on Kyushu, hitting trains, destroying a factory and damaging another.

In the face of this mounting American air onslaught, Lt. Gen. Saburo Endo, director of the aircraft ordnance bureau general of the Japanese munitions industry, was reported today by Tokyo radio to have urged his government to give "absolute priority" to production of planes.

He was quoted as insisting that it was paramount that the Japanese air force "destroy completely the enemy's most important air bases in the Okinawas."

Nimitz's communique today said nothing more about the United States Third Fleet which sent more than 1,000 carrier planes against the Tokyo area on Tuesday, but enemy broadcasts heard in Guam repeatedly warned that more such blows were in the offing.

TYPHOON CRIPPLES 21 U.S. WARSHIPS

Third Fleet Hit in Jap Waters; Most Vessels Back Fighting

ERickson

NIGHT

GUAM, Saturday, July 14—(AP)—A howling typhoon ripping through the western Pacific at 138 miles an hour, crippled more than 21 ships of Admiral William F. Halsey's massive Third Fleet as it skirted southern Japan June 5.

Most of the stricken vessels were repaired quickly and participated in last Tuesday's carrier aircraft sweep against Tokyo although the storm damage was greater than the enemy had been able to inflict in any single action.

Four Carriers Included

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz disclosed this dramatic naval episode last night, reporting that the damaged ships included four of the Navy's new carriers and three of the latest battleships.

The terrific force of the wind tore the bow completely off the cruiser Pittsburgh but the vessel was brought to port safely without the loss of a man.

When Halsey's Third fleet sent its air arm over Japan July 10 the striking force included the battleships Massachusetts and Indiana and carrier San Jacinto, all of which had been put out of action temporarily by the storm. Other heavy units damaged included the battleship Alabama and the carriers Hornet, Bennington and Belleau Wood.

Complete results of the July 10 strike have not been announced, although the fleet struck again today at northern Honshu and Hokkaido, Japan, however, has been on the alert all week for new strikes by "Bull" Halsey's powerful armada.

Not a single ship was lost in the cyclonic distrubance, Nimitz said. He gave no report on loss of life nor injury to personnel from the storm.

It was the second time that Halsey's ships had battled typhoons in recent months. The previous storm capsized three destroyers, the Monaghan, Hull and Spence, in the Philippines area last December, with heavy loss of life.

Nimitz reported that 20 of the ships damaged in the June storm were back in service and that the Pittsburgh was being refitted. Presumably other ships also were still undergoing repairs.

Most Repairs Complete

The announcement, disclosed however, that most of the job of putting the vessels back in service had been completed.

Other repaired ships included the escort carrier Bougainville and the destroyers John Rodgers and Blue; and three other carriers and seven destroyers to which damage was minor.

The fact that nearly all damaged ships could be returned to service so soon was notice to Japan that even her last ally—the "Divine winds"— could not stop the American offensive.

In Japan's early days, a typhoon broke up a Mongol invading fleet. It is in memory of this event that the suicide fliers have been given the name of Kamikaze, which means divine wind.

Associated Press Correspondent Grant MacDonald, who rode out the hurricane on Vice Admiral John S. McCain's carrier force flagship, reported that "planes were flipped around like beanbags" on one escort carrier. The forward end of the carrier's flight deck was ripped up and dangled over the bow.

The terrible beating the Pittsburgh underwent was described in a delayed dispatch from AP Correspondent Robbin Coons.

Thunderous seas, reaching a height of 100 feet, ripped off 104 feet of the cruiser's bow and tossed it aside as if it were a match box.

Ship Put in Reverse

Capt. John E. Gingrich of Dodge City, Kan., commanding officer, instantly ordered the engines into reverse to pull the ship away from the tossing bow.

It was an operation fraught with danger, Coons reported, because waves might catch the turning cruiser broadside and capsize her.

"We evidently were passing close to the worst of the storm," Capt. Gingrich reported. "Suddenly about 6:30 (a.m.) we saw two tremendous seas. One threw us 10 to 15 degrees At the next one the deck plates buckled and the bow just ripped and floated off."

Sixty of the crew had living quarters in the bow section but all were in other parts of the vessel at the time. The cruiser came through the ordeal without loss or injury of any of her 1,000 or more men.

Vessel Enters Calm

Gingrich said the ship, after completing the reversing move, came into the dead calm center of the typhoon. Then the storm, singing onward, caught her once more with its full fury.

"All the time," said the captain, "we thought of the possibility that the stern also might be carried away, which would mean that the propeller shafts would be lost and the engine rooms flooded, with power and steering ability lost."

Cmdr. John J. Kircher of Port Townsend, Wash., the cruiser's first lieutenant, directed the fight of damage control parties to save the ship. Some below-decks sections were flooded. Storm-tossed furniture and stores increased the danger to the men as they worked to strengthen bulkheads and close leaks.

Kircher especially praised Lt. (jg) Fred I. Calfee of Newport, Tenn., for his part in the damage control efforts.

The Pittsburgh managed to make her way, at nine knots, back to Guam under her own power.

A navy tug located the severed bow for salvage, reporting to the cruiser by radio: "We have sighted the suburb of Pittsburgh and have taken it in tow."

Many of Ships Which Attacked Japan Tuesday Involved in Near-Disaster

ERickson

DAY

Guam, July 13 — (AP) — A raging typhoon lashed Adm. William F. (Bull) Halsey's Third Fleet with 138-mile-an-hour winds June 5, tore the bow off the cruiser Pittsburgh and damaged at least 20 other warships, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today after virtually every damaged ship was back in action.

At least four of the damaged ships — the battleships Massachusetts and Indiana, the carrier San Jacinto, and the destroyer John Rodgers— participated in last Tuesday's 1,000 plane carrier strike at Tokyo.

The typhoon damaged more ships than the Japanese navy has been able to do in action in any single battle. But Nimitz made no mention of anyone being killed or seriously injured. He said no ships were sunk.

He listed 20 damaged ships as repaired and back in action, including three fast new battleships and two Essex class carriers.

The cruiser Pittsburgh, which miraculously stayed afloat, is being refitted for action. Presumably some additional ships, not identified, were damaged and have not returned to sea.

Many of the ships were badly hurt by towering 100 foot high seas. None was more heavily hit than the fast, new heavy cruiser Pittsburgh, which was caught near the center of the storm off the Ryukyu Islands.

Section of Prow

Ripped From Warship

A thunderous sea ripped off 104 feet of her prow "and tossed it aside as though it were a match box to wallow in the storm off the ship's port side," reported an Associated Press correspondent, Robbin Coons.

Capt. John E. Gingrich ordered the engines reversed and swung the 665 foot ship precariously around in a circle to escape a collision with her own bow. She came out in the dead calm of the storm's center.

Sealed bulkheads kept the Pittsburgh afloat and the cruiser, normally capable of 33 knots, lumbered back to Guam at nine knots for temporary repairs. The bow was taken in tow by a tug and brought back to port.

Towering seas crushed 25 feet of the carrier Hornet's flight deck and badly damaged several destroyers, other correspondents reported.

Planes on one small escort carrier "were flipped around like beanbags, tossed into the air end over end and piled in a jumbled head of wreckage," said another Associated Press correspondent, Grant Macdonald. The forward end of her flight deck was ripped up and left dangling over the bow.

Ships which have suffered damage and have returned to action include:

Essex class carriers Hornet and Bennington; the fast battleships Massachusetts, Indiana and Alabama; the Independence class cruisers San Jacinto and Belleau Wood; destroyers John Rodgers and Blu; escort carrier Bougainville.

Three other cruisers and seven destroyers which suffered minor damage also have been repaired and returned to action.

The Nimitz announcement did not specify where the typhoon struck the third fleet for the second time in six months, but presumably it was in the western Pacific area between Okinawa and the Philippines.

This area is known as the western Pacific "typhoon cradle," where unpredictable violent storms zigzag in a generally northerly or northeasterly typhoon path.

Last Dec. 18 another typhoon struck the Third Fleet between the Philippines and the Marianas and three destroyers capsized and were lost in the violent seas.

Most of the personnel of the destroyers Monaghan, Hull and Spence were lost. Only six of the Monaghan's personnel were saved.

A board of inquiry headed by Vice Adm. John H. Hoover was named to investigate. So far there has been no announcement of the board's report.

Adm. Halsey had taken over the Third Fleet eight days before the second storm broke.

On June 2 and 3, as the storm approached, Halsey's carrier planes swept Kyushu in the last fast carrier force action reported until the July 10 attack on the Tokyo area and nearby airfields.

Presumably Halsey's ships retired to a port in that period for repairs and refitting before starting their foray into Honshu waters.

Carriers Especially Vulnerable In Storm

A heavy running sea can inflict particularly violent damage to a carrier. To make as much space as possible available on its deck for receiving and launching planes, the rectangular platform extends over bow and stern.

As the giant ships plow under the waves, walls of water run the length of the ship, sometimes carrying the planes with them.

Of the ships, five were carriers —two of the giant Essex class; two of the smaller converted cruiser class, and one escort carrier.

Battleships such as the Massachusetts have a low waterline and decks are awash constantly in heavy seas.

Destroyers, in high sea, pitch and toss like corks and sometimes take water into the stacks.

The Nimitz report on the June 5th typhoon said.

"The majority of the ships damaged have been repaired and returned to action."

Storm Indicated Days Before Breaking

The first sign of this storm was observed June 1 in a weak cyclonic circulation about 250 miles north of the Palaus. Planes were assigned to maintain a careful observation of the disturbance moving northwestward at about 10 knots.

Philippines-based plane crews reported June 3 that the disturbance promised to develop into a typhoon.

During June 4 the storm appeared heading toward the Ryukyus and on the verge of dissipating.

The storm moved on to a point about 30 miles south of Okinawa and broke up.

Nimitz' announcement then explained that in the course of breaking up of the primary typhoon it was replaced by a second and more violent one.

In characteristically unpredictable Western Pacific storm performance, this second typhoon separated from the original disturbance and was moving rapidly northeastward. The storm hit the Third Fleet ships the morning of June 5th. For the second time in six months, the third fleet was called on to ride out the most violent kind of weather. between 4 A. M. and 6 A. M. the wind velocity reached 90 to 120 knots. The ships pitched and plunged in mountainous seas.

The storm passed directly over a portion of the fleet.

Pacific Fleet aerologists said the center of the typhoon was unusually small, with a radius of about sixty miles. They also reported that the "eye" of the storm—where there's no wind—was about thirty miles in diameter.

These dead[illegible]er "eyes" occasionally range up to 100 miles across.

After sweeping over the Third Fleet, the typhoon gained momentum, proceeding northeastward at about thirty knots and passing between Iwo Jima and Japan.

342 Planes Blasted

GUAM, July 14 (Saturday) (AP).—Three hundred and forty-two Japanese planes were destroyed or damaged and four surface craft sunk or damaged in Tuesday's 1,000-plane carrier strike at Tokyo, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced in a communique today. Reports still were incomplete.

The new figure raised the previously announced toll from 154, including two Japanese planes shot out of the air.

The latter report, made possible by resumed radio contact with the 3d Fleet, at present attacking northern Honshu and Hokkaido, listed 109 planes destroyed and 231 damaged on the ground and two snoopers shot down near the fleet.

The communique said no enemy air interception was offered from Tokyo's network of more than seventy airfields.

The operation, which found the enemy air force assigned to defend the homeland aground or in hiding, cost five fighters and five torpedo planes.

Personnel casualties were seven pilots and six air crewmen.

A small freighter and two small aircraft were sunk and a barge damaged.

Aircraft hangars were blasted at Kanemaru, Nasuno and Tsukuba. Hangars and shops were hit at bases which included Hyakurigahara, Utsonomiya, Maebashi, Astugi, Yokosuka, Yachimata, Katori, Shiroi, Tokorozawa, Kasumigaura and Imba.

Several factory buildings were damaged at Koizumi. A freight train was hit at Uchihara and a powerhouse at Yatabe.

U. S. S. Pittsburgh at Guam After Losing Bow in Typhoon

104 Feet of Heavy Cruiser Is Revealed to Have Been Torn Away by Storm—No Casualties Suffered by Crew.

Goons

Aboard the U. S. S. Pittsburgh, Apri Harbor, Guam, June 10 (Delayed) (A. P.).—This heroine of a battle against the sea moved slowly and proudly into port today for repairs, her entire bow ripped off in a typhoon southeast of the Ryukyus on June 5.

She came through the ordeal, however, without the loss or injury of any of her more than 1,000 men.

A unit of Admiral William Halsey's rampaging Third Fleet, the heavy cruiser Pittsburgh was lashed and tossed by mammoth waves as the storm enveloped her early on the morning of June 5. The swells, whipped into mountainous fury by a 120-knot wind, snapped off 104 feet of her bow and tossed it aside, to wallow off the vessel's port like a match box in the storm.

[The bow was subsequently recovered by a tug and towed to Guam for salvage.]

Fights Own Way to Port.

Then she made the 900-mile journey to Guam at a speed of less than nine knots, but under her own power.

Had to Dodge Bow.

The wind had been rising and the heavy seas were rolling all the night before. Then, in the early morning wind-lashed sheets of rain curtained the ship so that from the bridge it was impossible to see beyond the vessel herself.

"We were evidently passing close to the worst of the storm," said the skipper, Capt. John E. Gingrich, U. S. N., of Dodge City, Kan. "Suddenly, about 6:30, we saw two tremendous seas.

The wind had been rising and the heavy seas were rolling all the night before. Then, in the early morning wind-lashed sheets of rain curtained the ship so that from the bridge it was impossible to see beyond the vessel itself.

Capt. Gingrich said that their damage control training and the discipline of the officers and crew prevented disaster.

Instantly the order went down to reverse engines to escape the derelict bow. The stern and forward engines worked against each other to turn the ship around, an operation fraught with danger of capsizing if the waves caught the hull broadside in their deep troughs—and capsizing meant certain loss of all lives as no human could live in those seas.

That perilous maneuver was successfully executed and the Pittsburgh headed directly away. She came into the deadly calm of the center of the typhoon and then once more was caught in the fury of its opposite perimeter.

"All the time," Capt. Gingrich said, "we thought of the possibility that the stern also might be carried away, which would mean that the propeller shafts would be lost and the engine rooms flooded and the power and steering ability lost."

Meanwhile damage control and ship's repair crews went into action under the direction of Commander John J. Kircher, the ship's first lieutenant, of Port Townsend, Wash.

Lieut. (j. g.) Fred I. Calfee of Newport, Tenn., a damage control officer, was fighting an electrical fire in the anchor windlass room when the alarm for the broken bow was passed. Calfee, Kircher and Lieut. (j. g.) Thomas E. Acton of Monongahela, Pa., a ship's repair officer, fought their way through wind and rain on the weather deck with eighteen enlisted men to get below and inspect the damage.

Shore Up Bulkheads.

All bulkheads aft of the hatch by which they descended had been sealed off and so they faced certain death if the pounding sea knocked in the bulkheads remaining forward. They found one bulkhead between them and the sea and that one steel barrier was cracking and buckling under the sledge-hammer blows of the waves.

Some of the decks below were entirely flooded. Those in which they could work at all were swirling with battered furniture, water-soaked, storm-tossed stores and other debris which had to be passed up through the hatches before the work of shoring up the bulkhead could begin.

For five hours the men fought to hold their balance in four feet of water in the shuddering compartments. They sweated, strained and pushed the 4-by-4-inch shoring timbers into place.

Bulkheads Bulge Out.

At one point, as they worked, the bulkheads began to bulge inward.

"Men," cried Calfee, "if we don't get this thing done, and right now, it's curtains!"

They got it done.

Throughout the fight, so smoothly did the damage control crew work there was no panic anywhere on the ship. Some men even slept through the danger unaware.

Kircher praised the foresight of Calfee, a former ship's carpenter, in taking aboard twice the ordinary prescribed quantity of shoring timbers.

The Pittsburgh now lies at anchor for temporary repairs here before proceeding to a repair base where she'll get a permanent new bow and then return to action.

She was built at the Bethlehem Steel Company's Quincy, Mass., plant and was launched on February 22, 1944, and commissioned on October 10 of that same year. She was only this year added to the fleet forces pounding the Japanese in their home waters.

AUSSIES PLUNGE WITHIN 9 MILES OF BIG OIL CENTER

JUL 14 1945

Troops Race Toward Sambodja Against Crumbling Japanese Resistance.

UNITS PUSH INLAND

Ring of Guns, Troops Menaces Trapped Nips on Borneo.

DAVIS

MANILA, Saturday, July 14—(AP) Racing northward against collapsed Japanese resistance, Australian Seventh division troops are within nine miles of Sambodja, heart of a great East Borneo oil field, after a four and one-half mile gain, a spokesman at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters disclosed today.

The Australians, now more than 20 miles north of the captured oil port of Balikpapan, where they invaded on July 1, found that the stiff enemy resistance faded away on Wednesday, the spokesman said.

Jap Forces Flee

Northeast of Manggar airfield, where they had put up a vigorous fight with artillery, flaming oil drums and many mines for more than a week, the Japanese pulled up stakes and sped northward, with the Aussies in pursuit.

Latest reports, up to three days old, placed the Australians at the village of Bangsal, on the oil pipeline nine miles south of Sambodja.

Besides this gain, today's communique said other Allied units were thrusting inland from Balikpapan. Dispatches added that six miles north of Balikpapan a ring of Allied guns, tanks and men was threatening a pocket of Japanese holdouts.

The pincers were applied when Dutch forces completed capture of the Kariango peninsula at the head of Balikpapan Bay in a three-mile advance and joined an Australian column pushing along a pipeline from Balikpapan into the hinterland.

Outflank Jap Pocket

The combined force then turned to drive a salvient northeast around the Japanese holed up on "Smashed-Stone Ridge."

The main drive against this ridge was coming from the east, where another Australian unit was meeting considerable resistance but gained a mile with the aid of mortars, flame-throwing tanks and 25-pounder artillery. The location is six miles north of Balikpapan town.

Mud and tropical growths also slowed the advance toward the 200-foot ridge.

U. S. 13th Air force Liberators and Lightnings supported all the Allied thrusts.

In the Brunei Bay area of North Borneo, where the Australian Ninth division landed June 10, an enemy strong point still held out four miles east of Beaufort, but other Australian troops pushing north along the coast joined a landing-party at Andus, 26 miles northeast of Beaufort, and thrust on within 30 miles of the Japanese base of Jesselton.

Aussies Cut Into Jap Lines

Seventh Division Makes Deep Penetration North of Captured Balikpapan.

NIGHT

Manila, July 13 (A. P.).—Aussie Seventh Division troops, paced by flame throwers and tanks, have knifed deep into the Japanese defenses north of captured Balikpapan on southeast Borneo in heavy fighting.

At the same time, headquarters reported [illegible] Dutch units joined the Australians in a left flank march up Kariango Peninsula to execute a brilliant encircling maneuver against the entrenched Japanese, who are pocketed some six miles north of Balikpapan town.

The Borneo campaign is being fought in steaming, rain-drenched forests and deceptive bogs overgrown with mangrove, under a blazing tropical sun.

In the main assault, northeast of Balikpapan in the Sepinggang Ketjil River sector, the Australians are advancing over a scrubby, rolling terrain permitting use of their famed medium "Matilda" tanks.

In British Northwest Borneo, the Aussie Ninth Division made a surprise landing near Andus, twenty-six miles northeast of Beaufort, while another column made a ten-mile advance along Beaufort to the Jesselton narrow-guage railway without opposition to occupy Kimanis Village, five miles south of Andus. This brought the leading elements within thirty miles of Jesselton, which has been under daily harassing attack from Australian Air Force Spitfires based on Labuan and the Seventh Fleet PT boats.

Jap Naval Airdrome on Kyushu Hammered by Medium Bombers

IDAY

MANILA, Saturday, July 14—(AP) U. S. Seventh Air force medium bombers, newly assigned to the Far East Air forces, hit the Japanese naval airdrome at Kanoya on southern Kyushu yesterday, it was disclosed today at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.

MacArthur's communique said cloud cover obscured results but there was no aerial interception and anti-aircraft fire was meager and inaccurate.

Fighters of the Fifth Air force, another component of the Far East Air forces now on Okinawa, made new sweeps over Kyushu, strafing Karasehara airdrome and numerous shore installations and coastal craft without opposition.

Other MacArthur air units continued the assault on Formosa, causing large fires and destroying one plane at Shinchiku airdrome, destroying numerous fishing boats and silencing some anti-aircraft guns along the island's east and west coasts. One Japanese "Kate" torpedo plane was destroyed after a 70-mile chase.

A 6,000-ton enemy freighter near Saigon was damaged by blockade planes which also hit a freighter, many barges and two gun positions on the Indo-China coast and bombed the Canton and Hong Kong waterfront areas again.

One freighter was destroyed, another probably destroyed, and a third left afire near Kuching, Borneo. Other planes made neutralizing raids on Java, the Celebes and the Moluccas.

Japs Taking Own Lives on Mindanao

Headquarters, Army Forces of Pacific, P. I., July 13 — (AP) — Helpless, terror-stricken and virtually deserted by their own army, Japanese civilians in interior Mindanao Island are resorting to mass suicides to avoid capture.

An estimated 13,000 of the hapless civilians are living on the slopes of Mt. Apo, commanding Davao Gulf on Southern Mindanao. Reports to officers of the 24th Division have renewed the belief that thousands of them, all evacuated from their Davao city homes when the Japanese army fled before the Americans, may resort to a mass suicide and murder program.

One prisoner taken by the 24th told of 40 Japanese women and children already found in the Tamogan sector with their throats slit.

Haruto Ito, Formosan civilian employe of the Japanese army, told Maj. B. M. Reid, Lexington, Va., staff officer of the 24th Division, he had seen the group himself. All had their throats cut and some of the bodies were torn by artillery fire, he said.

He said the sole survivor, a girl about 12 years old, told him the story:

Their party had been left behind by retreating Imperial troops with thousands of other civilians who broke into small bands to search for food and water.

They had no medicine and suffered from malaria. They were forced to depend on wild potatoes for food. Then sick and starving, they found themselves between the American and Japanese lines. The frightened mothers killed their children and then themselves. Those who could not commit suicide were slain by their companions.

One Japanese woman prisoner, Higa Yosu, said the Japanese soldiers had forced them to work on scanty field rations and had taken some of the women into their camps as "comfort girls". She said two of her sisters were taken.

Lt. Robert E. Lee, Minneapolis, Minn., who has charge of the internment camp, is preparing to handle at least 5,000. Other camps will be added as needed and will operated on a communal basis.

A captured Japanese sergeant, Kyoshi Ito, no relation to the Formosan Ito, told Maj. Reid he was sure there would be no large-scale surrender because the soldiers were afraid both of beheading by their officers and torture by the Americans. He said the iron discipline of his 100th Division precluded any possibility of mutiny against the officers.

Jap Pilot Beats U.S. Guns To The Target

Okinawa, Saturday, July 14 (AP)—The hulk of a small, wrecked American ship was being towed to sea to become a target for American gunners—when whoomph! A Japanese suicide pilot dived right into it.

The crew of a Coast Guard-manned LST related the story.

JAPANESE SCOFF AT U.S. REPORTS OF PEACE MOVES

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13—(AP) Tokyo radio commentators scoffed today at reports Japan has put out peace feelers, declaring their country would fight on bitterly "until final victory has been attained."

All the same, the Japanese were told between air raid warnings that "the problem of East Asia will form the main topic" at the Big Three conference in Germany, and that the United States has made good its threat of round-the-clock bombings. The broadcasts were recorded by the FCC.

Radio Tokyo quoted the newspaper Asahi as saying the current talks of Premier Joseph Stalin and Premier Dr. T. V. Soong of China had "suddenly pushed East Asia into the foreground of world politics."

"There is reason to believe that Soviet Russia will act in the name of common interest and common obligation among the Big Three in East Asia," the newspaper's editorial said.

Deny Peace Plans

Two speakers issued strong denials that Japan had made efforts to end the war.

"Not one of the Japanese has any intention nor does he harbor any thoughts of suing for peace with the United States or its allies," insisted Capt. Takase, navy spokesman.

He went so far as to indicate the whole of Japan's population would battle the Allies if necessary. Warning that the Kamikaze suicide dive bombers will play a "vital role in forthcoming operations," he said Japan has a potential of 100,000,000 Kamikaze.

Similarly, Sadao Iguchi of the Japanese board of information declared "there is no foundation whatsoever" for the July 10 report of Japanese peace feelers disclosed by U. S. Undersecretary of State Joseph C. Grew.

Iguchi, reported Tokyo radio, saw in Grew's statement signs of war weariness in the United States. "America," he said, "is beginning to feel the senselessness of giving more lives than were sacrificed at Iwo Jima and Okinawa . . ."

In another broadcast Kusuo Oya of the Japan Broadcasting corporation explained that Japanese commit suicide when defeated because they "fight without anxiety."

The Japs Guess Wrong On Where Fleet 'Fled'

San Francisco, July 13 (AP)—The Japanese guessed wrong. After the Tuesday pounding given Tokyo airfields by more than 1,000 planes of the United States 3d Fleet, the Tokyo radio said the fleet had "fled southward."

Today Jack Mahon, Mutual Broadcasting Company war correspondent aboard a battleship of the fleet presently attacking northern Honshu and Hokkaido, reported the warships listened to that "flight" report while moving under cover of mist and fog in the opposite direction.

Jap Totalitarian Group Asks Action On Food

San Francisco, July 13 (AP)—The Political Association of Great Japan has demanded immediate action by the Suzuki Government to bolster Nippon's dwindling food supply, Radio Tokyo said today.

The totalitarian group's directors met today and approved a program calling for greater cultivation of undeveloped land and for emergency measures on grain production, farm labor and food prices, reported the broadcast, heard by the Federal Communications Commission.

CRIMES LINKED TO HIGH NAZIS

Data On 'Fantastic' Plot To Rule World Unearthed

London, July 13 (AP)—Hundreds of crack Army investigators, including former G-men and legal experts, were credited today with having uncovered evidence which involves German industrialists, diplomats, military and naval authorities and Nazi party chiefs in what a responsible American source said was an "almost fantastic" plot for world conquest.

Documents from Nazi secret files, including transcripts of conferences between top-ranking Nazi leaders, are being integrated with evidence long on the record in such a manner as virtually to assure the trial of Germany's arch war criminals by September, this informant said.

Justice Jackson At Work

Supreme Court Justice Robert Jackson, chief American war crimes prosecutor, and representatives of Britain, France and Russia worked in London on final details of a master plan for an unprecedented collective trial of such high Nazis as Hermann Goering, Rudolf Hess and Joachim von Ribbentrop.

In Germany, nineteen American teams operating under direction of the Judge Advocate's office were funneling their findings back to Weisbaden, United States Army war-crimes evidence and investigation center.

Hailing the progress made thus far, a spokesman for the group, which returned this week with Justice Jackson from a trip to Weisbaden and other collection centers, said today that "considerable valuable evidence has been uncovered."

The basic plan of the trial will be aimed at shattering the anticipated defense of those on trial—that they were acting under orders and that the entire responsibility must be born by Hitler.

Nazi "Werewolves" Discovered

London, July 13 (AP)—The Moscow radio quoted a Tass report from Prague tonight as saying a German werewolf terrorist organization had been discovered in the Sudetan Mountain region of Czechoslavakia.

Czechoslovak security officials were quoted as saying the group was organizing for sabotage and terrorism and planning attempts on the lives of public figures in Czechoslovakia and in other European countries as well.

The werewolves were reported to be armed and led by former Nazi officers trained in sabotage and guerrilla warfare. The Tass account said large stores of arms and food had been discovered near the town of Brumov.

IKE'S THANKS SENT TO ALL OLD TROOPS

London, July 13 (A. P.).—Gen. Eisenhower expressed gratitude and admiration today to all the soldiers who fought victoriously under his command in one of the last announcements to come from Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force.

SHAEF will be dissolved at 12:01 A. M. tomorrow.

The Supreme Commander's message was released here by the Ministry of Information. Addressed to all members of the Allied Expeditionary Force, it stated:

"The task to which we set ourselves is finished and the time has come for me to relinquish the combined command.

"In the name of the United States and the British Commonwealth, from whom my authority is derived, I should like to convey to you the gratitude and admiration of our two nations for the manner in which you have responded to every demand that has been made upon you.

"At times conditions have been hard and the task to be preformed arduous. No praise is too high for the manner in which you have surmounted every obstacle.

"I should like, also, to add my own personal word of thanks to each one of you for the part you have played, and the contribution you have made to our joint victory.

"Now that you are about to pass to other spheres of activity, I say to you and wish you good luck and godspeed."

Greeks Doing Level Best, British Say

London, July 13 — (AP) — A British foreign office commentator said today he was satisfied that the Greek government "is doing everything in its power to establish order."

He said a Greek note seeking Allied intervention in Epirus, in the Albanian border region, had not been received yet in London, and asserted that "allegations of disturbances there are grossly exaggerated."

Representatives of the EAM, Greek left-wing National Liberation Front, asked in a statement issued here yesterday for international support to end "a regime of terror" under which EAM said the Greek people had been living since formation of a new Greek government last winter.

The foreign office commentator told a press conference that the Greek government had established severe penalties for carrying arms illegally. In response to specific questions he said there was "no reason to suppose those powers would not be exercised just as much against the right as the left."

He said reports indicated responsibility for trouble in Greece did not rest upon either right-wing or left-wing factions, but that there were similar incidents in case of both groups.

The appeal, issued by the E.A.M. Central Committee and distributed by the Greek news agency, Maritpress, followed repeated Yugoslav assertions that Greeks were fleeing the northern regions of their country by thousands to escape attacks by so-called "reactionaries and provocateurs."

The E.A.M. declared the Greek people "have fallen under a regime of terror more hideous than Greece's periods of slavery" under the Turks and Nazis.

"The entire machinery is ruled by Fascist remnants, Quislings and enemy collaborators," the statement said.

Greeks Claim Allied Guaranty

Newspaper Says the Nation Has Categorical Assurances on Territory.

Athens, July 13 (A. P.).—Greece was declared by the newspaper Daily Embros today to have received a categorical guaranty of her territorial integrity, and Premier Admiral Petros Voulgaris said, "Expressed Allied assurances justify optimism."

The Premier called on the Greek people in a speech last night to have confidence in Greece's "powerful allies" and in her old friendship with Yugoslavia. The newspaper quoted what it said was the highest authority in its declaration that protection of Greek soil was guaranteed.

[Nevertheless there were continued reports of tension between Greece and her Balkan neighbors. The French Telegraph Agency said the Albanians were continuing to intern Greek nationals and had mobilized four military classes. The Belgrade radio declared the number of refugees fleeing from Macedonia was increasing daily. The Swiss radio said thirty Bulgarian soldiers had crossed the Greek border.]

"Embros," in supporting its report of a territorial guaranty, said Allied forces were in northern Greece and that another indication of Allied suport was the recognition of Greece's right to obtain security by strategic readjustment of her border.

"Embros" added that Prime Minister Churchill had assured the Regent, Archbishop Damaskinos, that British policy on Greek affairs had crystallized in decisions excluding any sacrifice of lawful Greek rights.

In his broadcast Premier Voulgaris said: "I am in a position to assure that Greek territorial integrity and national claims run no risk. Express Allied assurances justify the optimism."

Voulgaris maintained that Greece was connected with Yugoslavia by "indissoluble friendship" and that Yugoslavia never would menace Greek integrity or oppose Greek claims. He spoke harshly of the Bulgarians and said "their atrocities have no parallel in bestiality" during their occupation of Macedonia.

British See Exaggeration.

London, July 13 (A. P.).—A British Foreign Office commentator said today he was satisfied that the Greek Government "is doing everything in its power to establish order."

He said a Greek note seeking Allied intervention in Epirus, in the Albanian border region, had not been received yet in London, and asserted that "allegations of disturbances there are grossly exaggerated."

The Foreign Office commentator told a press conference that the Greek Government had established severe penalties for carrying arms illegally. In response to specific questions he said there was "no reason to suppose those powers would not be exercised just as much against the right as the left."

British Tally Losses Due to Nazi Subs

London, July 13 — (AP) — Only one ship out of every 131 that crossed the Atlantic in convoy during the war—and there were 75,000 such crossings —was lost to enemy action, the admiralty has revealed.

On the other side of the ledger it disclosed, a total of 525 German and Italian submarines were sunk in all theaters of war by the Royal Navy, Canadian Navy and other dominion navies and air forces over which the British had control.

"The ships that participated in the grim battle of the Atlantic sailed more than 200 million miles in 2,000 ocean convoys, the largest of which totaled 167 ships, "the recapitulation said. "Total losses were 574 merchantmen."

On some occasions, the admiralty added, more than 700 cargo ships were at sea on the Atlantic at one time.

Army Families Housed By London 'Vigilantes'

Unoccupied Buildings Seized Without Owners' Consent

LONDON, July 13 (AP).—House-grabbing "vigilantes" intervened three times in London today, and three more service men's families had homes tonight.

The original Brighton men, who conceived the idea of simply moving families into unoccupied buildings without discussing the matter with property owners, came to the city during daylight hours and lodged a service wife and her three children in a Lewisham flat. A few hours later the Paddington "vigilantes," who copied the Brighton moves and made their first successful swoop last night, grabbed three-room flats for two families.

John Preen, real estate agent and head of the Paddington group, said: "We are going on every night putting hard cases into empty places until the (City) Council acts properly and gives ex-service men a square deal."

"Vigilantes" Invade London

London, July 13—(AP) — "Vigilantes" who have been installing homeless servicemen's families in vacant houses in Brighton invaded London last night as housing officials called for a quick solution to Britain's home shortage to keep direct action from spreading "in a very dangerous way."

A soldier on leave, his wife and sick daughter were moved into an empty London house under cover of darkness and the leader of the vigilantes declared "we intend to act again tomorrow."

Dr. Alex Wood of the Cambridge Housing Committee told a meeting of the Association of Municipal Corps. in London the night moving-parties would spread if remedies were not found.

Wartime labor shortages are delaying reconstruction of homes wrecked by bombs.

Strikes Continue In British Docks

London, July 13 (AP)—British soldiers were summoned to discharge live stock and perishable goods from ships lying at the docks of Glasgow tonight, as strikes in ship and bus transportation continued in several parts of the British Isles.

Approximately 4,500 Clydeside dockers have been on strike since Wednesday in a dispute involving the disciplinary powers of the port labor inspector.

Troops also were unloading ships in a similar dispute at the English east coast port of Grimsby, and another stoppage at Londonderry, Northern Ireland, had forced cancellation of the sailings of two ships bound for Glasgow with 900 cattle.

Welsh dock workers at Swansea reaffirmed a decision to stay off work pending settlement of a dispute over pay for election day.

The only one of several "unofficial" labor disputes which appeared to be near an end was a "slowdown strike" by London dock workers, who speeded up somewhat after a Labor Ministry warning that they might be placed in the labor reserve pool.

Strikes of bus drivers and conductors, protesting their summer work schedules, appeared to be spreading both in the London area and in the Midlands. Two more London suburban routes were paralyzed today.

BELGIUM FORBIDS ALL GATHERINGS

London, July 13 (A. P.).—The Brussels radio broadcast a decree by the Minister of Defense tonight prohibiting "all demonstrations and any gathering of more than four persons" throughout Belgium.

There was no elaboration of the order, which came as sections of the Belgian press predicted that King Leopold would abdicate soon.

Brussels, July 13 (A. P.).—Queen Mother Elizabeth and Foreign Minister Paul Henri Spaak left today by plane to join King Leopold at Salzburg, where he is debating whether to abdicate.

Prince Regent Charles is already conferring with the Belgian monarch in his Austrian refuge.

Say Ship Captains Obey London Poles

London, July 13 (A. P.).—A spokesman for the Polish Government in Exile said today that nine of Poland's thirty-nine merchant vessels have heeded its orders to sail for the nearest British ports and that others were on the way. The spokesman added that officers and crews were nearly 100 per cent loyal to the exiled regime and ready, able and willing to do their part in the war against Japan, but that the crews would refuse to serve if their ships were turned over to the Polish Administration of National Unity which the United States and Britain recognized last week.

Ownership of the vessels is still to be determined. Although privately financed, they have received subsidies. Until now they have operated under control of the Allied Shipping Pool.

JUL 14 1945

Drivers And Conductors Of London Busses Strike

London, July 13 (AP)—Thousands of residents of London and the suburbs walked or hitchhiked to work today as a strike of nearly 1,000 bus drivers and conductors paralyzed 33 routes.

The workers protest the summer work schedules instituted a month ago. Their union — the Transport and General Workers — disavowed the strike as unauthorized, and the London Transport Board denounced it as "arbitrary and entirely unjustified."

Polish Army Is Asked To Return To Homeland

London, July 13 (AP)—An appeal for the 250,000 members of the armed forces of the repudiated Polish Government in exile to return to Poland was broadcast from Warsaw tonight by two former Polish Army commanders, the Moscow radio said in a broadcast heard in London.

"One can fight for Poland everywhere, but one can restore Poland only by being in Poland," said the message to the army, whose leaders cling to the London regime and refuse to accept the Warsaw Government, which now is recognized by the Allies.

IRAQ REGENT SAYS ARABS BAR JEWS

London, July 13 (A. P.).—Emir Abdul Illah, Regent of Iraq, said today that his country "and all Arab States" would oppose a Zionist request for the emergency admittance of 100,000 more Jews into Palestine.

The Regent, visiting London for negotiations to revise the Anglo-Iraqui treaty of alliance, said the forthcoming request by the Zionist conference here for emergency allocations of Palestine certificates for homeless European Jews would be solidly opposed.

"All Arab States," he declared, "will oppose this demand as contrary to the white paper to which they agreed. The Arabs are not prepared to make any further concessions."

He added that "Iraq wants an alliance with Britain, but certain clauses in the old treaty must be altered." He said Iraq was seeking materials from Britain to build pipelines and double its output of oil.

Salary Control Taken By Dutch Government

London, July 13 (AP)—The Dutch Government has issued a decree taking over the control of all salaries, Premier Schermerhorn said in a broadcast tonight. The move was to avert inflation.

At the same time, the broadcast, heard in London by the Associated Press, said the Government would intercede in all future strikes and would refuse to negotiate any labor disputes as long as a strike continued.

Lord Lovat Resigns Foreign Affairs Job

London, July 13 (AP)—The resignation of Lord Lovat as Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs was announced today.

The announcement said that the need to attend to "urgent private affairs" necessitated the resignation.

Lord Lovat led British Commandos in raids on Dieppe and Boulogne and in the Normandy invasion and later was wounded in France.

British To Shift Time

London, July 13 (AP)—Britain will shift Sunday from double summer time to normal summer time, putting the nation's clocks one hour ahead of Greenwich mean time and five hours ahead of Eastern war time.

BENEFACTOR GONE, BOY STARTS FAST

Ukrainian, 10, Who Was Freed From Nazi, Pines For Yank

Long Melford, England, July 13 (AP)—Pining for a Chicago infantry sergeant who freed him from being the slave servant of a German general and later "adopted" him, a 10-year-old Ukrainian boy today refused to eat because he was afraid that his benefactor had sailed for the United States without him.

The skinny youngster, clad in an American uniform with sergeant's stripes and a Purple Heart ribbon, told a three-judge juvenile court this his guardian was Sergt. Edward Klonowski, of Chicago, a member of the 44th Division.

The judges delayed decision in the case for two weeks and sent the boy, Robert Sokowski, to St. Mary's Hospital for treatment while a magistrate inquired into the possibility of reuniting him with the sergeant, who is believed homeward bound.

A Personal Slave

R. E. Saunders, a Long Melford police sergeant, said that Robert turned down "the best food we could offer him."

"He's fretting for the American," Saunders observed sympathetically.

Robert told police he was captured after the German conquest of Kharkov four years ago and that he lost his parents and three sisters during the bombardment of his home.

He said a German general (unidentified) made him his personal servant and slave as the German unit bored deeper into Russia. He served the general through the North African, Tunisian and Italian campaigns until the German finally was killed by 44th Division troops in Italy.

Separated In London

He said the Chicago sergeant later "adopted" him and that he stayed with Klonowski through the remaining four months of the war in Italy. He still was with him en route to America when the unit put in at a British port.

Robert told the authorities he accompanied the soldiers on a visit to London and then became separated from them. He was found at the Rainbow Club of the American Red Cross by an American air force soldier who took him back to an airfield near here. Police said Robert's body and legs were scarred with old bullet wounds.

'SHAEF' Ends Existence With Unblemished Record

Eisenhower Closes Command, Going to New Post as U.S.F.E.T. Head.

By JAMES M. LONG

PARIS, Saturday, July 14—(AP) Supreme headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force, which led the way for victory, passed out of existence at one minute after midnight this morning with an unblemished record of Allied cooperation.

General Eisenhower, the supreme commander, closed up his command with an order of the day expressing the hope that the unity achieved in the war would help inspire "permanent and lasting peace."

The Allied western powers, once more resuming individual control of their forces, will begin their major test of voluntary international coordination.

End is Automatic

The end of "SHAEF"—the rain bow shield and flaming sword—was automatic at the pre-arranged hour, without ceremony, 17 months and one day after it came into existence in London.

General Eisenhower, who returned to his Frankfurt, Germany, headquarters from the United States on Wednesday, said his personal goodbyes to his staff of officers from the nations whose armies he led to victory.

Then, to all the mighty force he commanded—Doughboys, Tommies and Pollus—he issued this farewell today:

"The task which we set ourselves is finished and the time has come for me to relinquish the combined command.

"In the name of the United States and the British Commonwealth, from which my authority is derived, I should like to convey to you the gratitude and admiration of our two nations for the manner in which you have responded to every demand that has been made upon you.

"At times conditions have been hard and the task to be performed arduous. No praise is too high for the manner in which you have surmounted every obstacle.

Adds Personal Thanks

"I should like also to add my own personal word of thanks to each one of you for the part you have played and the contribution you have made to our joint victory.

"Now that you are about to pass to other spheres of activities, I say goodbye to you and wish you good luck and God speed."

From the supreme command Gen. Eisenhower stepped to his new job as commander of U.S.F.E.T.—United States Forces in the European theater—and as American representative on the European control council at Berlin.

British forces reverted to control of the British war office, air ministry and admiralty, and French forces to the French war ministry.

This is what remained to take the place of the former overall

JUL 14 1945

SHAEF command set-up:

All United States forces in the European theater now come under USFET and Gen. Eisenhower's command, whether in Germany, France or England. U. S. headquarters, at least for the time being, will be at Frankfurt.

Under USFET there will be two major groups, or functions. One of these is the communications zone, commanded by Lt. Gen. John C. H. Lee. Its operation remains virtually unchanged by dissolution of SHAEF. Its old function of getting supplies up to the active zone has turned, however, into the major task of getting men and material out of this theater.

Covers All Yanks

The second major category is that of occupation and control. Until such time as the present transitional state settles down into a fixed American army of occupation, that category has no specific troops of its own. But it covers all American troops in Germany, whether there to stay or not, and embraces Lt. Gen. Lucius Clay's command as Eisenhower's deputy.

It was announced today that the U. S. section of the Allied Control commission headed by Gen. Clay had moved its headquarters from Frankfurt to Berlin.

Under the sprawling USFET control the 12th and Sixth army groups, comprising divisions of the First, Third, Seventh, Ninth and 15th armies, are in the midst of a juggling act. Divisions are being switched from army to army, and from classification to remain in Europe to classification for redeployment. It may be well toward the end of 1945 before the number of troops left in Germany is down near the size to be designated ultimately as the army of occupation.

French Set Up Force

The French have set up an occupational force which, in effect, is composed of their First army. The French war ministry announced this army would be headed by an occupational commander, who also would represent France on the European Control council. No appointment to this position has been announced, but in practice both jobs have been filled by Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny.

The British 21st army group remains in existence as the basis on which the British occupation and control organization will be built. Much of its Canadian force already has been withdrawn.

Former SHAEF missions to Belgium, the Netherlands, Denmark and Norway will continue, but as separate national missions. In Belgium, however, the civil affairs mission will continue as a joint Anglo-American concern until the fulfillment of previous commitments with the Belgium government on the import of food and industrial supplies.

The end of SHAEF will have little effect in London, where "SHAEF rear" was all but dissolved in recent weeks. There remained only a public relations office.

Virtually nothing was left to dissolve in Paris except the public relations set-up and some remaining facilities, largely communications and transportation.

PETAIN HEARS LEAHY CANNOT ATTEND TRIAL

PARIS, July 13 (AP)—Attorneys for Marshal Henri-Philippe Pétain said today that Admiral William D. Leahy had notified the former head of the Vichy Government that he would be unable to come to Paris to testify in Pétain's trial on charges of intelligence with the enemy.

Pétain had written Admiral Leahy requesting his help.

The contents of Leahy's reply were not disclosed but attorneys for the marshal said the admiral stated that his duties made it impossible for him to appear as a witness in the case. Leahy is chief of staff to President Truman.

The Marshal's defense will be based partly on his contention that his Vichy regime worked indirectly with the United States and Britain during its thirty-month existence.

Other points in Pétain's defense were disclosed in a statement which, defense lawyers said, the Marshal sent today to the president of the Supreme Court. It probably will be his last written deposition before his trial opens July 23.

Replying to the accusations that he blocked the rearmament of France during 1934 and 1935, his deposition said in part:

"I was Minister of War for only nine months in 1934. That is sufficient for my enemies to place full responsibility on me for our collapse in 1940."

Pétain charged that the Communist party opposed his demands for 1,275,000,000 francs for the rearmament of France during the critical years of 1934 to 1935.

17,171 FRENCHMEN CONVICTED SO FAR

Paris, July 13 (A. P.).—More than 20,000 people have stood trial in nine months' purge of French collaborationists, but 30,000 more remain to face judgment, Ministry of Justice figures reveal.

The courts have passed 994 death verdicts, 600 sentences of hard labor for life, 4,638 other hard-labor sentences, 1,063 of imprisonment for five years or more and 9,876 for shorter jail terms. There were 3,315 acquitted.

Slow handling of the long lists of Frenchmen charged with aiding the Germans drew sharp fire from speakers at the convention of resistance groups this week.

The cases that drew death verdicts or life sentences seldom presented difficulties for judges and juries, like the supreme penalty for treason imposed Wednesday on Paul Ferdonnet, the French Lord Haw Haw, or last April on Gen. Henri Dentz, who fought the British occupation of Syria.

The brilliant scientist Georges Claude, an inventor of neon lighting, is among those now serving life terms.

High Point Wacs Will Fly Back To U. S. Today

80 Will Leave France and 40 Scotland; Status of Divisions on Way Listed

PARIS, July 13 (AP).—The first deployment of high-scoring Wacs starts tomorrow, when 120 will fly to the United States, eighty from Paris and forty from Prestwick in Scotland.

Lieutenant Colonel Mary A. Hallaran, theater W. A. C. director replacing Lieutenant Colonel Anna Wilson, who returned to the United States, said that tomorrow's shipment will include all European theater of operations Wacs who have more than seventy points—the number required for discharge of Wacs—except those who volunteered to remain in the Army for the duration and those in critical occupations.

The top-scoring Wac in the group was Private Zora J. Parker, of Middletown, N. Y., with 112 points.

Today's redeployment situation:

The bulk of the 104th Division is in the United States, with the last units at sea en route.

The 4th, 8th and 87th Infantry Divisions are on the high seas.

The 44th Division is in the United Kingdom awaiting shipment to the United States.

The entire 2d and 5th Infantry Divisions cleared Le Havre yesterday.

The main body of the 13th Armored Division is loading at Le Havre for shipment today.

Advance units of the 20th Armored Division sail from Le Havre today, with the main body scheduled to leave before the end of the month.

Advance groups of the 28th and 13th Infantry Divisions are now arriving at Le Havre for shipment.

An advance party of the 35th Infantry Division arrived at the assembly area yesterday and the main body is due July 18.

Petain Accuses Communists

Paris, July 13 (AP)—Marshal Pétain charged today that the Communist party opposed his demands for 1,275,000,000 francs for the rearmament of France during the critical years of 1934 and 1935.

In a statement which his defense lawyers said the former head of the Vichy Government had sent to the president of the Supreme Court, Pétain reminded the Communists that they had appointed a special delegate to plead his requests for rearmament funds.

Pétain said that this speaker, whom he identified as M. Raimette, declared in the Chamber of Deputies that "we are entirely opposed to such preparations for war. If war breaks out, our aim will be to transform it into civil war."

The Communist party has demanded the supreme penalty for the aged marshal, whose trial on charges of intelligence with the enemy has been set for July 23.

Pétain's statement also said that he conducted a campaign to strengthen the French air force, and that his predecessors and French Government authorities blocked his efforts.

U. S. CITIZENS IN PARIS TO BE FED BY ARMY

PARIS, July 13—(AP) The United States Army announced today it would accept the responsibility for feeding and sheltering bonafide, presumptively American citizens arriving in Paris, seeking repatriation.

Such persons will be cared for in a seminary lent by the Catholic bishops of Ireland. Approximately 150 persons, whose claims of citizenship have been lost in tragedies of the war, now are in Paris.

Lt. Col. John Donovan of Boston, operating officer for displaced persons and former NYA director for Massachusetts, made the arrangements. Col. P. P. L. Hamilton, in charge of civil affairs and who announced the project, said Donovan lined up the facilities.

20 YEARS FOR KILLING COW

Penalty Set by French Food Ministry for Illegal Slaughter

PARIS, July 13 (AP)—The French Food Ministry ordered today that persons convicted of illegal slaughtering of milch cows be subject to a maximum penalty of twenty years' imprisonment and a fine of 40,000,000 francs ($800,000 under the present military exchange rate).

Violations of price-posting regulations, the order provided, carry a maximum penalty of six months in prison and a fine of 100,000 francs. The old fine was 200 francs. Persons convicted of violations of price ceilings, illegal transportation of livestock or illegal slaughtering of animals other than milch cows are subject to a maximum of ten years and a fine of 20,000,000 francs, an increase from 2,000 francs.

U.S. Quits Barracks for French

PARIS, July 13 (AP).—Twelfth Army Group headquarters said today that French troops taking up their occupational zone across the Rhine River from Coblenz had moved into the Bad Ems barracks, taking over what had been headquarters for the United States 106th Division. The barracks were built after the first world war for the old United States 3d Army.

Five Germans Get Death Sentence

Rennes, France, July 13 (AP)—In the first war crimes trial in France, death sentences were imposed today on two German officers and three enlisted men for the murder of French civilians during the Normandy campaign. A sixth defendant was sentenced to twenty years at hard labor.

TRUMAN AGAINST SECRET PLEDGES

Prepared to Offer Reasonable U. S. Aid Toward Europe's Rehabilitation.

ABOARD CRUISER AUGUSTA WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN, July 13 — (AP) President Truman was described today as firmly resolved against any secret commitments at the "Big Three" meeting starting Monday or Tuesday at Potsdam.

As the presidential cruiser steamed close to Europe, associates of the chief executive said he plans to report to Congress as soon as he gets back home from his talks with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

The President was understood to be prepared to offer any reasonable American cooperation toward the rehabilitation of Europe, expecting in return assurances that the European countries will work together for adjustment of issues that might carry the germs of war. He was represented as feeling that a primary basis of American policy is readiness to help, when help would be welcome, in getting its friends together when they disagree.

Two Main Objects

The President holds laying of a groundwork for permanent peace in Europe as an objective second only to speedy victory over Japan at the lowest possible cost in lives.

The closer approach to the historic conversations put additional pressure on the conferences with advisers which have kept Mr. Truman busy in the admiral's cabin aboard the Augusta much of the time since the ship sailed from Newport News last Saturday. Meetings today with Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's personal chief of staff, were almost continuous.

The businesslike atmosphere was reflected also in activities of the crews of the two-cruiser task force. Realistic battle practice occupied the complements of both the Augusta and the Philadelphia, which sailed within sight of the President's ship. Both vessels launched their scouting planes from deck catapults in a demonstration for Mr. Truman.

Tomorrow has been fixed for the rendezvous with British warships which will convoy the President through British waters.

Mr. Truman will disembark at Antwerp for the flight to Potsdam, on Berlin's outskirts.

will serve as an escort through British waters was scheduled for tomorrow.

President Truman has definite, clear-cut proposals to make to the British and Russians.

Rehabilitation Plan Reported

He is understood to be ready to offer any reasonable American cooperation in the rehabilitation of devastated countries in exchange for assurances of co-operation among European countries in adjusting differences which might serve as seeds of war.

This objective is second only to the speedy conclusion of the war with Japan to save American lives, in the opinion of the President.

This was represented by associates as Mr. Truman's interpretation of United States foreign policy: An attitude of friendly helpfulness, where help is wanted, in getting its friends in Europe together on differences.

Truman Eats With Crew

The President still was talking today about the meal he enjoyed yesterday with the ship's crew. He carried his own tray, piled high with baked ham, carrots, mashed potatoes, green beans, tomato soup and apple cobbler.

"It was one of the best meals I've had on the ship," Mr. Truman said.

He sat at a table with Seaman 1/c Albert L. Rice, from his home town of Independence, Mo., Pharmacist's Mate 2/c Elmo Buck, of Marcelene, Mo.; D. M. Osborne, Boatswain's Mate 2/c, of Ashland, Ky.; Seaman 1/c Paul Clark Harshman, of Washington, Pa., and Seaman 1/c Richard Stowell, of Yonkers, N.Y.

"The President said it was better than eating at the Waldorf," Rice commented.

President Meets Cousin

It was the first time he had met the President, Rice said, "but I've seen him lots of times in Independence."

Mr. Truman also met Seaman 2/c O. S. Bennett, of Teele, Mo., and talked again with his third cousin, Lawrence Truman, fire controlman, from Owensboro, Ky.

"I'm writing Lawrence's father to get in touch with my first cousin, Miss Ethel Nolan, at Independence," the President said. "She's interested in the background of the Truman family."

War and Peace Absorb Truman

Aboard Cruiser Augusta With President Truman, July 13 (A. P.).—Six days out of Newport News, President Truman divided his attention today between opposite sides of the globe. His own approaching talks with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin shared shipboard interest with the quickening pace of the Pacific war.

Hence Mr. Truman divided his time between diplomatic advisers and military men keeping him posted on news of the daring Third Fleet strikes against Japan. Commander John A. Tyree, assistant naval aid, made hourly revisions in Pacific charts brought along for the purpose.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed aboard ship that the Big Three talks in Potsdam will begin either Monday or Tuesday of next week. Mr. Truman reportedly is convinced that they will last longer than either the Quebec, Tehran or Yalta gatherings. The last was an eight-day session.

The Augusta encountered its first rough weather of the voyage yesterday. Rain and stormy seas prevented an inspection launching of the cruiser's observation planes.

An Antwerp dispatch said that Mr. Truman is due at the Belgian port on Sunday and will be met by an honor guard composed of the entire 137th Infantry Regiment of the Thirty-fifth Division. That is the outfit in which he served as an artillery captain in world war I.

U. S. Puts Limit On Red Rallies In Berlin Zone

Meetings Sunday Restricted to 1,000 Persons; Control Office Moves to Capital

BERLIN, July 13 (AP).—The American section of the Allied Control Commission for Germany has moved its forward headquarters to Berlin from Frankfurt am Main, it was announced officially tonight. The British section will move here soon.

General Dwight D. Eisenhower's deputy on the control commission, Lieutenant General Lucius D. Clay, will have his permanent office in Berlin. Frankfurt will continue to be headquarters for United States Army forces in the European theater.

American and British occupation zones will start receiving food from western Germany next week. Russian responsibility for feeding more than 1,500,000 civilians in the part of Berlin transferred to western Allied rule will cease Monday and sixty Red Army trucks now on public transport service will be withdrawn.

The change from Soviet to American and British authority in twelve of the capital's twenty boroughs has been virtually completed. While the western Allies in general have followed former Russian practices regarding food rations, public works and recreation, the Americans have modified the Soviet policy toward political activity.

The Communist party request for permission to hold political rallies next Sunday—which the Russians already had granted—has been re-approved by American officers with the stipulation that no meeting shall be attended by more than 1,000 persons. In the west, meetings by more than five Germans are prohibited.

Doubt has arisen over the American and British attitude toward a Berlin municipal decree published yesterday by the "Volkszeitung," publication of the Central Committee of the German Communist Party.

The decree confiscated "all property except what is needed for personal use" of all members of the Nazi party, the SS, the Nazi Motor Corps, the Nazi Flying Corps and other affiliated organizations.

This sweeping measure goes far beyond anything promulgated in western Germany, where anti-Nazi Germans have complained vehemently about "little Nazis" keeping wartime booty.

What will happen to Nazi property owners in the American and British occupation zones in the capital is expected to be decided at the next meeting of the Berlin kommandatur July 18.

Berlin Fraternization Ban Lifted

Americans and British in Reich Capital Say Russian Policy Will Be Followed.

Berlin, July 13 (A. P.).—To the great relief of G. I. Joe and Tommy Atkins, when you're in Berlin you do as the Russians do. In other words, American and British troops in the German capital—most of whom are fed up with the non-fraternization policy in force in western Germany—are adopting the internationally friendly ways of the Red Army in peacetime.

The generals may say that nothing has been changed in the rule book since they moved more than 30,000 American and British soldiers into Berlin. But things nevertheless seem to be different.

Ivanovich—the Red Army equivalent of G. I. Joe—operates on the understanding that he's not supposed to take dyed in the wool Nazis to his bosom. He believes that Nazis properly belong behind bars, and that Germans who are not Nazis are entitled to be treated without race hatred. Premier Stalin's words to that effect appear on many signboards.

Russians Enjoy Themselves.

Therefore, when Ivan saunters out in the early evening he feels perfectly free to drop into a convenient cafe, strike up an acquaintance with any German girl and invite her to dance and drink with him.

In the past week American and British troops also have been crowding night spots favored by the Russians.

Last Monday, British, Canadian and American military police—operating in teams—began trying to discourage public dancing by troops of the wetsern Allies along such bright light avenues as Kurfuerstendamm.

"Take it easy, soldier," was their cautionary advice. "You can sit it out with a girl, but don't get up and dance until nonfrat is lifted."

Most of the soldiers accepted it good humoredly, though pointing out that their Russian allies were enjoying jive without hindrance.

Yesterday announcement was made that the Berlin Military Government would follow previous policies laid down by the Russians until new ones are issued by the inter-Allied "Kommandatur." The announcement seemed to apply to the conduct of soldiers in cafes and cabarets as well as to the administration of the police and water departments.

Military police say it would be an impossible job to convince the G. I.'s and Tommies that what is right for the Red Army is wrong for them, and they are hoping there will be a definite clarification of the situation soon.

Meanwhile, the M. P.'s aren't raiding any German homes here. If a family invites you in to listen to the radio and have a cup of ersatz tea, the M. P.'s look the other way.

And you can stroll along residential streets with a fraulein—if you don't hold hands.

Berlin On U.S. Air Timetable Again

Berlin, July 13 (AP) — Berlin is back on the American aviation timetable, Brig. Gen. Earl S. Hoag, head of the Air Transport Command's European Division, announced today.

He said the first cargo and passenger planes of his division landed yesterday at famed Tempelhof Airdrome, near the heart of the smashed German capital.

The great field will be used as one of ATC's principal European bases for daily flights linking London, Prestwick, Paris, Marseille, Brussels, Bremen, Frankfurt, Stockholm, Munich, Athens, Geneva, Rome, Naples, Copenhagen and Oslo.

U. S. MILITARY C[illegible] SENTENCES

BERLIN, July 13—(AP) In the first trial by an American military court in Berlin a German steel worker was sentenced today to one month at hard labor for concealing his Nazi party membership on a questionnaire.

Lt. Stephen E. Ware of Wichita, Kans., the prosecutor, introduced testimony that the defendant, Hans P. Fannschmidt, 42, originally had denied he was a Nazi but then voluntarily filled out a second questionnaire admitting his membership. The defendant said he failed to read the first questionnaire closely and "made a mistake." Lt. Col. John MacNeill of Oakland, Calif., pronounced sentence.

Nazis' Biggest Cache Of Loot Is Inventoried

Frankfurt on Main, Germany, July 13 (AP)—The greatest collection of looted wealth ever assembled under one roof was being inventoried and identified today by currency experts from the United States Treasury and the Bank of England.

The loot occupied almost every available cubic foot of storage space in the Reichsmark Bank of Frankfurt. In some rooms paper currency was stacked in canvas bages from floor to ceiling. Bullion was stacked like cordwood. One large room held securities from almost every country in the world.

In addition to gold and silver there were hogsheads of pearls, rubies and sapphires and in other wooden cases were gold and silver fillings from the teeth of tens of thousands of murdered Jews.

Col. Bernard Bernstein, director of the finance division of the United States Group Control Council, said the collection included 53 separate deposits hidden by the Nazis and unearthed by United States troops during the final days of the war.

In one cache was a deposit of radium. In another thousands of wedding rings stripped from the fingers of women victims of the Nazis in Germany, Greece, Poland and other occupied countries were strung on ropes like country sausages. A third held almost the entire silver reserve of the Hungarian Government. A fourth included the special gold reserve and loot of Ribbentrop's foreign office.

Allied Commanders to Decide Fate of German General Staff

Frankfurt, July 13 (A. P.).—Gen. Eisenhower and Field Marshal Montgomery are expected to decide soon on what to do with the German General Staff.

At midnight tonight Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force will be dissolved, but the problem of handling the hundreds of high ranking staff and field officers of the German Army who are prisoners of the Western Allies awaits final disposition.

British and American officers held informal discussions on the matter during Eisenhower's absence.

These conversations touched on the possibility of breaking up the German general staff and condemning its members to exile in British crown colonies throughout the world, but the talks were regarded as no more than ground clearing expeditions, assembling data to be presented to Eisenhower and Montgomery.

Of the captured German military hierarchy one SHAEF officer said:

"Some of them ought to be shot as criminals and undoubtedly will be. Others must be regarded purely as military figures who carried out military orders. All these officers are still in uniform and are classified strictly as military prisoners.

Emphasis Is on Staff.

"The greatest emphasis, however, is placed on the members of the general staff. The general staff in Germany is a special clique, almost hereditary.

"Its members are identified by the red stripes on their trousers and they are all-powerful. They make the decisions. They are the ones who plan and execute wars.

"I don't know just how Eisenhower will do it, but I can promise you this—the German general staff will be broken up and destroyed so that it can never function again."

Even lesser staff officers down to the grades of majors and captains are believed destined for the same fate as general staff officers.

The German general staff stems from an inner Army organization known as "Ober Kommando Heers," or O. K. H. It is this supreme body, which formulates plans for conquest and then executes them, that Eisenhower and Montgomery are pledged to destroy.

Americans Probe Operation Of German Chemical Trust

HOESCHT, Germany, July 13 (AP) Department of Justice and the United States group control experts delved into seven tons of records today to trace the worldwide industrial machinations and stockholdings of the great German chemical trust, I. G. Farben-Industrie.

These documents may disclose all the secrets of the corporation's intricate cartel operations which gave it a strong hold on many industries in almost every part of the world, including the United States, and provided the Nazis with a powerful organization for industrial espionage and sabotage.

Col. Edwin Pillsbury, Berkeley, Calif., who directed military seizure last week of 24 Farben plants in the United States zone of occupation, said it would require months to piece together the entire story of Farben operations and to uncover hidden stock-holdings.

Story Called Amazing

"It is one of the most amazing stories of modern times," Pillsbury said. "The manner in which Farben agents gained control of certain industries and carried on a role of domination in the world's chemical industry is almost unbelievable."

The German war machine would have collapsed without I. G. Farbenindustrie, Pillsbury said. The investigation already has disclosed that the combine controlled practically all German chemical production, furnished the Nazis with needed foreign exchange, engaged in industrial espionage, checked closely on chemical production in every country and hampered production in other countries.

Some findings are so startling that a brigadier general, whose name cannot be given, is flying to Washington with documents to place into the record against I. G. Farbenindustrie.

Control council agents already have found that Farben was operating more than 20 laboratories for pure research in the American zone alone. In one, scientists were working on synthetic penicillin, but progress made is not yet determined.

"It might have been expected, as in the case of most Farben discoveries, that they would attempt to use synthetic penicillin as a threat against producers of penicillin in other countries," one officer said. "Farben agents used the threat of financial ruin to gain information or to strengthen their control of the chemical industry."

Pillsbury said not all Farben stockholdings can be traced through ordinary business channels. Agents must uncover hidden agreements and subrosa deals. Here is one example:

One American officer whose troops seized a plant came to Pillsbury with the suggestion that perhaps a mistake had been made, since records showed that Farben owned only 31-1-2 per cent of the stock in the plant, and thus did not have controlling interest.

Investigation showed, however, that Farben had negotiated a 99-year lease on the plant and guaranteed dividends to stockholders of the subsidiary company to gain complete control of production.

Facts Must be Traced

"We must trace these subrosa agreements before we know all the Farben holdings," Pillsbury said. "We must try to make sense of the vast web of deals reaching into neutral countries."

Investigators say they have "just scratched the surface" so far.

The breakup of I. G. Farbenindustrie in Germany may be a matter of high policy to be determined by the four-power control council in Berlin, because Farben plants are scattered throughout Germany. In the American zone alone, Pillsbury estimated the physical property seized had a dollar value of more than $50,000,000, exclusive of cash and bank credits.

Investigators suspect that Farben had large cash assets in neutral countries. They have not been able to examine enough of the records to prove the suspicion. Some of Farben's largest plants are outside the American zone, such as a huge synthetic oil plant in the British area near Leipzig, and a large chemical plant in the French zone. Many plants are in Russian territory.

The military government has authorized continued operation of some plants making non-war products like medicine, cameras and film projectors. One Agfa plant in Munich is turning out 7,000 cameras a month for the army and 240 film projectors.

Within two months, Pillsbury believes the investigation will begin to show definite patterns of Farben holdings and the world-wide operations of the corporation, whose history is traced back to 1904 as a loose combine of the largest German chemical companies. A formal agreement of association between the companies was made in 1916 and the present I. G. Farbenindustrie corporation was established in December 1925.

U.S. FORCE MOVES INTO STUTTGART

STUTTGART, Germany, July 13 —American occupation troops have moved into Stuttgart and taken over from French forces quickly and smoothly—without any repetition of the diplomatically delicate "affaire Stuttgart" of 10 weeks ago, when the French refused to get out.

The American force which took over is the 100th (Century) infantry division commanded by Maj. Gen. Withers A. Burress of Richmond, Va.—the same force that stood toe to toe with the French Third Algerian division in Stuttgart in late April, when both sides exercised extreme self restraint to avoid an incident.

The 100th was ordered to occupy Stuttgart shortly after the city surrendered to the French without a fight, but the French general in command maintained he had no orders to make way for anybody, and so he proposed to stay.

The 100th came on in, nevertheless, and remained five days while the impasse was thrashed out at higher levels. Then the 10th was ordered out.

This time the French moved out without a murmur.

SIX YANK SOLDIERS ARE KILLED IN WRECK

WEINGARTEN, Germany, July 13—(AP) Six American soldiers were killed and 28 injured when a redeployment-bound train and a freight collided near here early this morning.

All were members of the 65th Armored Infantry battalion of the 20th Armored division, which is scheduled for an early sailing from Le Havre.

August Lindenmeyer, German tower operator at Durlach, five miles from the wreck scene, has been arrested and is being held for investigation, said Lt. Col. Earnest E. Foulks of the Army Transportation corps. Foulks said Lindenmeyer gave the freight a clear track.

FALANGE HEAD REPORTED OUT

Franco Seen In Bid To Please United Nations

Madrid, July 13 (AP)—A high Government official said tonight that Generalissimo Franco has dropped the secretary-general of the Falange party from the Spanish Cabinet, apparently in a move to make the Government more acceptable to the United Nations.

The resignations of at least four other Cabinet members, all presumably members of the Falange, were reported to be on Franco's desk awaiting action.

Franco ousted the Falange secretary, Jose Luis Arrese, by eliminating the position of Minister without portfolio, the Government official said.

No Public Confirmation

There was no public confirmation of his report.

Arrese, a Basque who joined the Falange in 1933, predicted a Cabinet shakeup in a speech on June 18 and said it would make no difference in Falange plans for "the conquest of the state" through national syndicalism. He retains his party position under Franco, "supreme head" of the Falange.

A Cabinet shakeup has been expected since the San Francisco United Nations Conference announcement that any government created with Axis aid would be excluded from any world organization.

Arrese Absent At Session

The Franco regime had announced that the San Francisco statement did not "affect our country in any way," but many Spaniards recalled that Germans of the Condor Legion and Italians of Benito Mussolini's "volunteers" paraded in a 1939 celebration of victory in the Spanish Civil War.

Falangists in the present Cabinet include Miguel Primo de Rivera, Minister of Agriculture, and Jose Antonio Giron, Minister of Labor. Arrese has Cabinet rank by virtue of his party position.

Arrese was absent from today's session of the Cortes (parliament) but other Cabinet members attended.

Soong and Stalin Have Sixth Talk

Moscow, July 13 (A. P.).—Chinese Premier T. V. Soong met Generalissimo Stalin for the sixth time last night.

The continuing discussions between the Chinese and Russian leaders delayed for at least another day the departure of W. Averell Harriman, United States Ambassador, for Potsdam and the Big Three meeting.

POLISH RULE SET UP IN GERMAN SILESIA

Katowice, Poland, July 13 (A. P.).—The Poles, with the Russian Army's consent, have established a local government in German Silesia which they expect to obtain at the peace conference and in which they have already settled 300,000 peasant farmers. Marian Szancer, District Director of Resettlement, said today that he hopes to bring in 200,000 more settlers this month and that "3,000,000 abandoned acres must be harvested"—by the Polish Army, if necessary.

The chief resettlement centers are the German cities of Breslau, Oppeln and Kreuzburg.

Gen. Zawadski, governor of adjoining Polish Silesia, has meanwhile ordered all Germans to register by July 20 for deportation. The Germans in their retreat moved out farmers, horses and cattle to places deeper in the Reich.

Curiously, the Russian Army has become the chief refuge of the Germans. Red Army commandants increasingly regard themselves as responsible for the protection of all residents in Silesia, Polish and German alike, until the peace conference finally fixes frontiers.

Lidice Massacre Suspect Arrested

Prague, July 13—(AP)—Claimed by Czechoslovakia as her No. 1 war criminal defendant, Karl Hermann Frank, Nazi "protector" of Bohemia-Moravia charged with ordering the Lidice massacre, was surrendered by American authorities yesterday and brought to Pankrac Prison in Prague.

Hundreds milled about the heavily-guarded prison. An early trial by the People's Court is expected.

Data On German Assets In Swiss Banks Ordered

Bern, Switzerland, July 13 (AP)—Administrators or representatives of German depositors in Swiss banks were ordered today to report holdings to the banks' clearance house.

The Federal Council ordered the registrations after published reports said Axis credits had been accumulated in Swiss and other neutral banks.

Swiss officials said they knew nothing of Hitler's bank accounts. (The London Standard said in a Bern dispatch that Hitler had three such accounts.)

The Government last February ordered all German assets in Switzerland frozen.

Nazi Atrocity in Norway

OSLO, July 13 (AP).—The Oslo newspaper "Dagbladet" said tonight that 1,000 Yugoslav students were slain by the Germans in Norway during the occupation. Quoting freed prisoners from the German concentration camp at Salsdal in northern Norway, the newspaper said that the students were deported from their homeland and mishandled by the Gestapo in camps at Belsfjord and Jernvann.

CHINESE PUSH NEAR OLD U. S. AIR BASE

Chungking, July 13 (A. P.).—The Chinese High Command said today that Chinese troops pressing toward the former American air base city of Kanhsien in Kiangsi province, had captured the highway town of Tangkiang, eleven miles west of their goal, and Fengkang, only seven and a half miles away.

Kanhsien, if retaken, would be the sixth former United States base regained in the current Chinese drive.

Japanese troops, however, were reported driving along the highway leading to Suichwan, one of the five air bases recovered. Fighting was in progress fifteen and a half miles southwest of Suichwan and the same distance north of Kanhsien, the High Command said.

Other Chinese forces were intercepting Japanese troops in maritime Fukien province advancing toward Changpu, an important highway center thirty-five miles southwest of the port of Amoy, the High Command added.

The Japanese were driving toward Changpu from Chihhu, one of the points they occupied on the Chinese coast in establishing beachheads south of Amoy last June 30.

Major-Gen. Kuo Chi-chih, Army spokesman, suggested that the Japanese might be withdrawing from the whole south China coast from French Indo-China to the Hongkong vicinity. He said the Japanese units withdrawing northward were 50 per cent stronger than those being transferred to the south.

GENERAL QUASHES DEATH SENTENCES

Chungking, July 13 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Henry S. Aurand has recommended that the death sentences of two American privates, accused of killing a Chinese grandmother in a dispute over a water buffalo, be commuted to twenty years' hard labor. The men, condemned by a Kunming court-martial on June 29, are John V. Brennan, West Hartford, Conn., and James F. Cooper, Norwood, Ohio. Both are 30 years old.

The theater commander, Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, must pass on the court-martial and Aurand's recommendation. The court-martial sentenced Brennan and Cooper "to be shot to death with musketry." Cooper is married and his wife lives at Norwood. They have no children. Brennan is single. Both have been overseas since 1943.

The War Department is investigating the case. The men contended: They mounted the water buffalo in a Chinese village "intending to take a ride and have a little fun." Villagers attempted to pull them off the animal and the woman finally succeeded in dismounting Brennan. The private fell from the animal onto the woman and she died three hours later.

BRITISH FLEET SHELLS NICOBARS IN DARING STRIKE

CALCUTTA, July 13—(AP) Warships of the British East Indies fleet in a daring, unopposed strike have bombarded the Nicobar islands northwest of Sumatra while carrier-borne planes lashed prime targets on both the Nicobars and Sumatra, a special communique announced tonight.

Minesweepers, without sighting a single Japanese ship, swept "the approaches" to Malacca straits, which run between Sumatra and the naval base of Singapore, the Southeast Asia command disclosed.

The seven-day operation in the Bay of Bengal was carried out within sight of enemy-occupied territories, but the Japanese refused the challenge to battle, a correspondent aboard an escort carrier said.

Japanese broadcasts reporting the strike expressed fear of landing attempts.

Formerly British Owned

The Nicobars, a 220-mile long island chain formerly British controlled, lie 120 miles northwest of the tip of Sumatra, and 400 miles west of the Kra peninsula of Malaya.

Warships bombarded gun positions on Car Nicobar, northernmost Nicobar island, while planes struck shipping, airfields, radar installations and other targets, Reuters Correspondent Michael MacDonagh said.

The first assault was carried out as minesweepers began a five-day task of clearing the seas around Car Nicobar between July 5 and 10, he said. Then warships in two bombardments blasted at shore installations, while navy planes hit the harbor and airfield on Car Nicobar.

The harbor area on Nancowry in the middle of the island group also was attacked by planes, which left at least two ships burning.

The only opposition was light to medium anti-aircraft fire.

The Japanese sent out two reconnaissance planes, one of which was downed. Both these appeared north of Sumatra, where Hellcats bombed the airfields at Lhonga and Koetaradja in the windup of the operation.

The Nicobars were bombarded by British fleet units last October. Targets on Sumatra repeatedly have been hit by British and American carrier planes, by naval bombardment, and land-based Allied planes.

The raiding force was led by Rear Admiral W. R. Patterson, commanding the 5th Cruiser Squadron, aboard the cruiser Nigeria. it included the 6th Mine Sweeping Flotilla, the aircraft carriers Ameer and Emperor, and the destroyer Roebuck.

Operation "Cheekiest"

MacDonagh said "for seven days we have been steaming up and down within sight of Japanese-occupied territory in one of the 'cheekiest' operations yet carried out by the British East Indies Fleet. . .

"By so doing, we gave the Japanese in effect a challenge to come out and meet us. The Japanese, however, shied off completely.

"Obviously the Japanese are worried about future developments in Southeast Asia. It is possible that they are conserving their fast dwindling strength to meet the next big landing assault.

"It seems certain that the lack of indication as to just where the blow will fall is giving their island garrisons a severe attack of jitters."

JAPS AT MYITKYO

Calcutta, July 13 (A. P.).—Japanese forces in the Sittang River Bend area in Burma appear to be concentrating around Myitkyo, terminus of the Pegu-Sittang Canal, twenty-nine miles northeast of Pegu, a Southeast Asia Command communique said today.

The communique said that activity has decreased in that area, but reported that an attack by 150 Japanese on a village three miles southwest of Myitkyo fizzled when British troops outflanked the enemy soldiers.

The aerial onslaught on the Japanese positions continued yesterday.

India Parley To Resume

Simla, India, July 13 (AP)—Conferences on Britain's offer of additional Indian participation in the Indian Government will reconvene Saturday, but the session apparently will be the final one as the parley has failed to effect an agreement between the Moslem League and the Congress party.

Chifley Takes Over Reins In Australia

Canberra, July 13—(AP)—Joseph B. Chifley was sworn in today as Australia's 16th prime minister succeeding the late John Curtin, and immediately made three changes in the cabinet.

Two new ministries were created—one for housing headed by Minister of Works H. P. Lazzarini, and a ministry of immigration under Information Minister A. A. Calwell. Both Lazzarini and Calwell retain their former posts.

J. S. Collings surrendered the ministry of the interior by H. V. Johnson and took over the post of vice-president of the executive council. Chifley himself retained his portfolio as treasurer and J. A. Beasley remains as minister of defense.

In a message to the Australian people Chifley said he would follow in Curtin's footsteps. He appealed for their help in banishing unemployment and hardship.

Australia Lifts Ban on Chassis

Canberra, Australia, July 13 (A. P.).—Richard Valentine Keane, Minister of Trade and Customs, announced today the relaxation of restrictions on the importation of motor-car chassis. Heretofore chassis have not been importable from countries outside the sterling area without an import license.

Australia Reports 92,211 Casualties

San Francisco, July 13—(AP)—Australia's World War II casualties total 92,211, the majority of them in the fight against Japan, Melbourne radio said today in a broadcast heard by the American Broadcasting Co.

It listed 36,200 casualties against Germany and Italy and 55,991 against Japan. Army losses totaled 75,018, of which 11,991 were killed and 18,750 taken prisoner. Air Force deaths were put at 7,898. Melbourne said only England and India in the Britisih Empire have higher casualties.

PUERTO RICO FEELS SHORTAGE OF FOOD

Miami, Fla., July 13 (A. P.).—A drastic food shortage in Puerto Rico was reported by Rex Tugwell, Governor of the island, on his arrival by Pan American clipper here last night.

"Though only 1,000 miles from the continental United States, the shipping problems are causing a drastic shortage of food in Puerto Rico," he said.

Tugwell is en route to Washington to confer with Government officials.

"There is no complaint from the people of Puerto Rico over the situation," he added. "They appreciate that the same conditions exist the world over, but we hope to discuss our problems in Washington and receive some relief from the present shortage."

CHINESE PUSH INTO KANHSIEN

Street Fighting Rages As Units Mop Up In City

Chungking, July 13 (AP)—Chinese forces broke into the former American airbase city of Kanhsien, 240 miles north of Hong Kong, last night and bitter street fighting still rages there "as our troops mop up enemy remnants," the Chinese high command said tonight.

Earlier an army spokesman declared the Japanese might be abandoning the whole South China coast between Hong Kong and Indo-China.

Chinese reports indicated the enemy was retreating northward from Kanhsien. The city's fall would restore Allied control the sixth former United States 14th Air Force base given up last year to the Japanese.

Tangkiang Recaptured

The high command said its troops had recaptured Tangkiang, highway center 11 miles west of Kanhsien, and Fangkang, 7 miles from the city, on Wednesday. The Chinese push had carried 35 miles since the capture last Saturday of Tayu, 42 miles southwest of Kanhsien.

Japanese troops moving north from Kanhsien were being engaged at points midway along the road to Suichwan, site of a United States airbase already recovered, the Chinese said. Suichwan is 30 miles northwest of Kanhsien.

Some 200 miles to the southeast, Japanese troops who landed on June 30 on the Fukien coast south of Amoy, drove on Wednesday toward Changpu, road center 35 miles southwest of Amoy, and were being intercepted, the Chinese said. These Japanese pushed toward Changpu from Chihhu, 17 miles to the east on the coast.

700 Miles Of Open Coast

Maj. Gen. Kuo Chi-chih, army spokesman, said there was a possibility the Japanese were withdrawing from the South China coast, from the Indo-China border to the vicinity of Hong Kong. Enemy forces moving generally northward were 50 per cent stronger than those being transferred southward, he declared.

Kuo said the Japanese landings south of Amoy might be the prelude to an attempt to fight southward to Swatow and from there to Hong Kong. Such a move would mean abandonment of the two remaining isolated enemy pockets on the China coast. The Chinese "invasion coast" would then be opened from Hong Kong in the south to Ninghsien, below Shanghai—an airline distance of nearly 700 miles.

The Japanese movements northward, he said, did not include enemy forces in Indo-China and in the Hong Kong and Canton areas. Kuo added the Japanese still had two to three divisions on Hainan Island east of Indo-China, and that there was no indication they intended to abandon their base there.

Jap Countermoves Cited

He declared Japanese movements southward were intended generally to counter a grand Chinese offensive which, he said, was in the making. Part of the enemy troops shifted southward included Mongolian and Manuchurian puppet troops sent into Shantung province, bordering the Yellow Sea, he added.

The enemy movement northward from Kanhsien, Kuo continued, suggested the Japanese were finding their position there becoming untenable, and perhaps hoped to fight their way to Japanese-controlled areas either along the Canton-Hankow railroad, or around Nanchang southeast of Hankow.

Meanwhile, American headquarters announced that B-25 Mitchells yesterday bombed two enemy convoys between Changsha and Hengyang, in the Siang River corridor, but the communiqué did not say in which direction the convoys were heading. One convoy was hit south of Changsha, and another north of Hengyang, where secondary explosions were set off. A motor pool at Chuchow near Changsha likewise was hit, with large fires started, the bulletin said.

Other planes hit rail targets north of the Yellow River, a barracks area at Caobang in northern Indo-China, an airdrome on Hainan Island, and junks and trucks on Luichow peninsula north of the island. One plane failed to return, the communiqué said.

U.S. Takes Blame In Sinking Of Jap Relief Vessel By Sub

Washington, July 13 (AP)—The United States publicly acknowledged tonight responsibility for the submarine sinking of a Japanese relief ship, Awa Maru, which was traveling under an Allied safe-conduct guarantee.

The vessel was sent to the bottom by an American submarine which torpedoed it in a fog off Formosa about midnight April 1, with a loss of more than 1,000 lives. The Government has informed the Japanese Government that "disciplinary action is being taken" with respect to the sub commander. His name was not given nor was the nature of the discipline disclosed.

Notes Cited

The State Department released two notes, the latest in a series which have been exchanged between Tokyo and Washington through the Swiss Government. In the first of these the Japanese, under date of May 16, demanded that the United States apologize for the sinking, punish the persons responsible and pay indemnities for the loss of hundreds of lives of crew and passengers and for the loss of the vessel. There was only one survivor.

The United States replied in a note dated June 29. Tokyo broadcasts indicated today that this note had now been received there.

In it the United States said that it had "already officially expressed its deep regret over the sinking" and the heavy loss of life.

That was the only response to the demand for an apology. At the same time, however, the Government said that full investigation shows that the ship "was complying substantially with the conditions of the safe-conduct agreement" so that "the United States Government acknowledges responsibility for the sinking of the vessel."

Japs Call It Deliberate

It then stated that disciplinary action is being taken against the commander and it proposed deferring the question of indemnity until after the war because of its complexity.

Along with the note the Government released to the press here an explanation of its actions, saying that it was guided in the decision to accept responsibility not only by the facts of the sinking but also by the "very real necessity to continue sending shipments of food, clothing and medical supplies to Allied prisoners of war and civilian internees held by the Japanese."

At the time it was torpedoed the Awa Maru had been delivering such supplies to Hong Kong, Singapore and other ports southwest of Japan. It had completed its mission and was returning to Japan, still under safe-conduct guarantee, which meant that it had to be lighted and identified and travel on a predetermined course.

The Japanese Government claimed the attack was deliberate. It said the ship was carrying a cargo, which was not described, and more than 1,000 passengers and crew none of whom were identified.

Attack Not Visual

The results of the United States investigation into the sinking were reported to the Japanese in the

NIGHT

June 29 note as follows:

"It has been established that at the time the ship was sunk she was proceeding at night in a fog. There is, however, evidence that she was showing the prescribed lights.

"It appears that the ship was about 8 miles off the course previously announced and was about 32 miles ahead of her predicted position. However, the difference between the ship's predicted position and the scene of the disaster is not considered unreasonable.

"The commanding officer of the submarine did not see the Awa Maru prior to or after she had been torpedoed, the attack having been made by means other than visual, which fact of itself disproves the charge that the attack was willful and deliberate."

DEFEAT OF JAPS TO BE LONG, HARD SAYS PATTERSON

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., July 13—(AP) Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson said tonight that the surrender demanded of Japan will have to be exacted by force, adding that the Nipponese army "will not surrender to an inference, the inference that it is beaten."

In an address prepared for the Warren County Bankers association, Patterson said that Japan remains a formidable enemy, and warned:

"We must prepare ourselves to win our war with Japan the hard way—by killing Japanese soldiers right through the ruins of Tokyo and throughout the home islands."

The main Japanese armies are intact, Patterson said, and the Japanese soldier, is "still just as willing to fight it out to the end as he was three years ago when he was winning his victories."

Patterson said the enemy soldier is fighting more effectively, that he has developed a new method of cave warfare. From now on, Patterson said, the fighting will be in country favoring the defender.

"The Japanese are fighting a progressively smarter war," he said. "On Okinawa they did not attempt a defense of the beaches where they would be under point-blank naval gunfire; they went back to prepared positions. In other words picked their battlefield.

"Their artillery fire is far more effective than a year ago.

"Their suicide bombers used to come in low along the water in an attempt to torpedo a ship's hull. They were an easy mark for our gunners. Now they try to drop vertically on the deck from cloud cover.

"We recently captured an efficient new type of amphibious tank, and new Japanese jeeps and reconnaissance cars have air-cooled engines which offer many advantages for operations in Manchuria and China where low temperatures are often encountered."

FOUR LEADERS JOIN IN BACKING WORLD CHARTER

Green, Murray, Dulles and Norman Thomas All Urge Ratification.

EARLY REPORT IS FORECAST

Socialist Leader Calls for Quick End of Pacific War on Terms Adequate to Insure Peace.

Washington, July 13 (A. P.).—Four leaders of different political views declared today that the Senate ought to ratify the United Nations Charter speedily to establish American responsibility in keeping the peace of the world.

The leaders are William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor; John Foster Dulles, foreign affairs adviser to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in the 1944 presidential campaign; Norman Thomas, former Socialist candidate for President, and Philip Murray, president of the C. I. O. They appeared as witnesses at the final day's hearing before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the fifty-nation agreement signed at San Francisco.

The committee chairman, Senator Connally (D.-Tex.) forecast a favorable report either tonight or tomorrow morning.

Not a Super Government.

Green, the first on the stand, told the committee that the charter would make possible that "collective bargaining" among nations that ought to go a long way toward preventing war. "The document itself is evidence of the will to peace dominating so many nations," he declared. "No one nation would draft the charter as it now stands, but all in the spirit of tolerance are willing to accept a document which represents the high point of mutual agreement."

Dulles, who served as chief adviser to the American delegation at San Francisco, said in a statement prepared for delivery before the committee that the United States must act either to continue the association of the United Nations or "let that association lapse and go it alone." The Senate need not think it was accepting the lesser of two evils in ratifying the charter, he continued.

"Actually," he said, "the document before you charts a path which we can follow joyfully and without fear. We remain the master of our own destiny. The charter does not subordinate us to any super-government. There is no right on the part of the United Nations Organization to intervene in our domestic affairs. There can be no use of our force without our consent. If the joint adventure fails, we can withdraw.

Urges World Co-operation.

Thomas in a prepared statement, said he thought the Senate should ratify the charter "not because I believe it an adequate basis for lasting peace, but because I believe that the United States will be in a better position to lead in the establishment of such a basis if it should ratify the charter and in good faith use its construction provisions for an increase in world co-operation."

Thomas voiced the view that the greatest single and immediate contribution the American Government could make toward peace "would be a speedy end of the war with Japan on a statement of terms which would indeed provide adequate guaranties against renewal of Japanese aggression." . . . He said that these terms at the same time should "offer hope, not only to the Japanese people but to the hundreds of millions of Asiatics we seem to be about to restore—at terrible cost to ourselves—to white empires, British, French and Dutch."

Murray, in a statement submitted to the committee, called for early and overwhelming approval of the charter, declaring that "reservations or limitations of any description to the United Nations Charter must be understood as simply an attempt to defeat its enactment."

For and Against.

Carl H. Mote of Indianapolis spoke against the charter. He said he represented Gerald L. K. Smith, the America First party, the National Farmers Guild and the Veterans of World War II. Connally challenged his right to appear for the veterans, declaring: "Most of them aren't home yet."

W. R. Ogg presented a statement by Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, indorsing the charter.

Martin H. Miller, legislative representative, submitted the indorsement of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

The quiet order of the proceedings was disrupted when the committee called Miss Irene Lohle of Pittsburgh, a tall, comely brunette. She evoked a burst of laughter by saying that she represented "the present generation." She said she was "definitely opposed to this step toward a world federation."

John T. Flynn, magazine writer, declared that the charter embodies "a plan, not to rid the world of war, but to perpetuate those very forces and to affirm those very principles of action which are the real causes of war." It is a plan to deny human rights to hundreds of millions of people, he continued, adding: "It is not a world organization, it is a military alliance of four great Powers . . . and the smaller nations are brought in merely to provide a halo for the military alliance which is its core."

Senate Unit Hearings On Charter Ends

Senators Expected To Begin Debate About July 23

Washington, July 13—(AP)—The Senate Foreign Relations Committee winds up public hearings on the United Nations Charter today and Chairman Connally (D-Texas) forecast a favorable report either tonight or tomorrow morning.

Sen. Johnson (R-Calif), opponent of the old League of Nations, told reporters the vote "will not be unanimous" but added that his own inclination now "is to go along with the crowd."

That statement is as far as Johnson has gone in stating his position toward a world league this time, but he insisted it is not a guarantee of his vote for it.

Majority Leader Barkley (Ky) said the Senate would take up the treaty July 23. Indications now are that at least two weeks of debate can be expected, centering around possible reservations or amendments. However, ratification by the necessary two-thirds is considered a foregone conclusion.

The committee had a few final witnesses on tap for the last day of hearings, notably John Foster Dulles, who worked for the treaty at San Francisco. Dulles, an authority on international affairs, was an adviser to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in his presidential campaign in 1944.

Labor Organizations Plan Favorable Move

The Congress of Industrial Organizations and the American Federation of Labor notified Connally that they want to submit statements in behalf of the charter.

A series of witnesses, most of them in favor, filed before the committee yesterday, among them former Sen. Robert L. Owen, Oklahoma, now 89 and blind.

Owen reminded the committee that he voted for the League of Nations as a senator in 1919 and proposed a world organization in a resolution introduced in 1917. "The world is now ready" for such a move, he said.

Preceding Owen to the stand was a veteran of this war, Lt. Comdr. Livingston Hartley, Washington, D. C., who said that under the charter "a few thousand men" could suppress future aggression before they become holocausts. It was Hartley's idea that any need for force in Europe would be met by British-Russian ground forces, plus American naval and air power. The United States would supply the ground troops to meet any breach of the charter in this hemisphere, he said.

VANDENBERG URGES CHARTER ADOPTION

Detroit, July 13 (A. P.).—Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) recommended the United Nations Charter today as "man's best chance for a better, a safer and a happier world."

In an address prepared for delivery before the Economic Club, the Senator, a delegate to the recent San Francisco conference, declared, "I have signed the charter with no illusions about its imperfections," and added:

"I believe it represents a great forward step towards the international understanding and cooperation which are indispensable to peace . . . and in the event of its unexpected failure, I should prefer to have been associated with its hopeful trial than with a refusal to permit it to prove its expected success.

"I shall support the ratification of this charter in the deep conviction that the alternative is physical and moral chaos in many weary places of the earth. I shall do it because there must be no default in our oft-pledged purpose to outlaw aggression so far as lies within our human power."

WAR AGENCIES BILL PASSED

House Republicans Lose Fight To Slash OWI Funds

Washington, July 13 (AP)—House Republicans lost a fight to cut the Office of War Information's funds in half today as Congress finally passed a $769,364,850 bill financing United States war agencies.

The OWI issue was settled with agreement between House and Senate on $35,000,000 for the agency for the fiscal year which started July 1. The Senate originally had voted $39,670,215 and House Republicans, charging OWI with waste, tried in vain to cut it to $18,000,000.

A House amendment prohibiting the War Labor Board from taking jurisdiction over agricultural labor was accepted by the Senate. Senator Morse (R., Ore.) fought it, calling it "a vicious union-busting amendment."

In Controversy For Weeks

The last-minute flurry over this item was one of a series which had kept the bill in controversy for weeks. An argument on the question whether the Fair Employment Practices Committee should be liquidated died yesterday with an agreement to give it $250,000. Senator Chavez (D., N.M.) described the final language as not requiring the agency to liquidate.

No senator today spoke in favor of the House amendment on agricultural labor. Senator Hayden (D., Ariz.) said it was aimed specifically at some 500,000 workers connected with food-sorting sheds. He and Chairman McKellar (D., Tenn.) of the Appropriations Committee declared the Senate must accept it because otherwise the thousands of employés in the far-flung war agencies would not be paid after next week.

Senate "Over The Barrel"

Hayden explained that the time situation, including the need of flying the catch-all bill to President Truman for signature, precluded any further maneuvering with the House.

The House, said Hayden, voted, 203 to 103, to keep the amendment "and is not likely to change its mind."

Morse, former chairman of the War Labor Board, declared he didn't like the idea of the House "having the Senate over the barrel." He declared it was a serious matter of principle.

The amendment prevents the use of any funds by the WLL in labor disputes affecting agricultural workers.

"You may be sure," said Morse, "that you will be dealing with corporations which will see to it that they have a handful of agricultural labor in their employ."

"No Recourse But To Strike"

He said removal of WLB protection from the group of food workers in vegetable sheds and the like would "leave them no other recourse but to strike" when they felt they were being treated unfairly.

Morse declared it was the duty of all workers to stay on the job during wartime, but said some certainly would not feel so if they could not turn to the WLB with their complaints.

"This is a strike-breeding instrument," he shouted.

Senator Ball (R., Minn.) suggested that perhaps later legislation could overturn the amendment, and Senator Hayden said he thought the people would soon find it would not work.

Morse lost on a motion for a roll call, as he had on his proposal to send the bill back to the House, and the Senate, by voice vote, completed congressional action on the measure.

HIGHER FUND VOTED FOR OWI

House Approves Figure of $35,000,000.

Washington, July 13 (A. P.).—The Office of War Information won a financial fight in the House today as a move to hold its current year funds to $18,000,000 was beaten down decisively.

A standing vote of 140 to 58, with Republicans furnishing most of the opposition, upheld a Senate-House compromise giving the OWI $35,000,000. The compromise still requires Senate approval, but that body earlier had voted the OWI $39,670,215.

The OWI's appropriation was one of thirty-three items in disagreement between the Senate and the House in a $769,364,850 war agencies supply bill that had been deadlocked more than a month over funds for the Fair Employment Practices Committee. The FEPC fight was settled yesterday with both branches voting it $250,000, less than half its budget setimate.

Still in controversy in the House before the compromise goes to the Senate for final approval is a House-voted and Senate-rejected provision excluding agricultural workers from jurisdiction of the War Labor Board.

Taber Voices Objection.

Representative Taber of New York, ranking Republican member of the Appropriations Committee, led the fight to curtail the OWI'S funds. "The operations of the Office of War Information," he told the House, "and the ridiculous waste and the enormous amount of funds that have been fooled away compels me to object to and oppose the conference report."

Many of the OWI's 10,375 employees, he said, have nothing to do and a great many have been on the payroll at large salaries without any job or responsibility.

The OWI fund is one of thirty-two items still in dispute in the war agencies supply bill. The others are more likely to be adjusted without trouble and the way cleared for the House to adjourn next week for a two-months' vacation.

Differences over the Fair Employment Practices Committee, which had deadlocked the bill since early last month, were adjusted yesterday when that agency received $250,000 for continued operation during the fiscal year that started July 1.

Despite the Republican opposition, the compromise, including the OWI's $35,000,000, appeared to have sufficient support to insure its approval by the House before the end of the day.

'Communists' In Hollywood Face Inquiry

House Committee Will Send an Investigator, but Will Shun 'Witch Hunt'

WASHINGTON, July 13 (AP).—A Congressional committee assigned an agent today to find out whether there is any basis for reports of subversive activities in the Hollywood film colony.

The action was taken by the House committee on un-American activities at its first session under its newly elected chairman, Representative John S. Wood, Democrat, of Georgia.

The committee agreed, Representative Wood reported, to send an investigator immediately to the Pacific Coast to check on complaints received from there of "communistic" elements, particularly in Hollywood.

Representative Wood emphasized, however, that none of the committee members is going and that no action would be taken by the group "until we are convinced that there is basis for these reports."

"This committee is not going to do any witch hunting," Representative Wood told a reporter. "And, furthermore, we are not going to waste time on small birds. We are going to save ourselves for the big game, if there is any around."

Representative John E. Rankin, Democrat, of Mississippi commented that "it looks like we'll get into this thing fully now," and said he was pleased by the committee's action. Representative Rankin, who served as acting chairman in the two weeks since the resignation of Representative Edward J. Hart, Democrat, of New Jersey, has declared that "a gigantic plot to overthrow the government" is under way in Hollywood.

Later, a group of Californians headed by Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas, former actress, met with Representative Wood and urged "caution" in the inquiry.

Mrs. Douglas declined to discuss what occurred at the meeting, but it was learned she and some of the others told Representative Wood they feared the investigation was "merely a political fight."

"When a similar investigation was made out there a few years ago, it was just used to smear the Democrats and help the Republicans," Representative Frank R. Havenner, Democrat, of California, said.

Representative Wood said that unless surprise developments occur, the committee will take no further action until after the House's summer recess.

PAN-AMERICAN ROUTE COSTLY

Army Spent $42,715,591 On Unfinished Highway.

Washington, July 13 (A. P.).—The War Department, which originally estimated that the Pan-American Highway could be constructed for $14,714,000, spent $42,715,591 on it and dropped the job unfinished.

Lieut.-Gen. Eugene Reybold, chief of Army Engineers, gave these figures to the Senate War Investigating Committee today as it began an inquiry into the history of the project.

He said the original estimate was based on "incomplete information" but that an important factor in the high cost was lack of shipping which resulted in delays due to shortages of material. As a result, workers remained idle for long periods.

Senator Ferguson (R.-Mich.) developed from Brig.-Gen. Kenneth Hertford of the Army General Staff that Gen. Eisenhower, as assistant chief of staff in 1942, opposed wartime construction of the road.

Eisenhower Disapproved.

He read into the record a memorandum in which Eisenhower expressed the opinion that "no justification exists" for diversion of critical materials to the project.

It was approved, however, by the general staff and by Secretary of War Stimson. The Army Service Forces urged the highway to assure movement of supplies to the Panama Canal area. The project involved 905 miles of construction between the southern Mexican border and Panama City.

Reybold acknowledged that Eisenhower had been right.

"It is certain," Reybold said, "that if the War Department had known in 1942 the facts it knows today the Pan-American Highway would never have been built."

Work on the highway was halted October 31, 1943.

New Price Ceiling Plan Is Studied

Inflation Danger Vital Point in Cutting Controls

Washington, July 13 — (AP) — An OPA blueprint for the first step toward lifting price controls is being studied today by Stabilization Director William H. Davis.

In preparation several months, the plan sets up standards which would permit immediate elimination of ceilings on a number of commodities. Others would be freed as certain conditions were met.

Officials familiar with the proposal, which requires Davis's approval before it can be put into effect, said it provides for removal or suspension of price controls on these grounds:

Where a commodity is in sufficient supply to eliminate danger of inflationary prices. In general this would cover items selling substantially under the ceiling.

If an article is of small importance to the civilian economy, or the maintenance of ceilings is an administrative job out of proportion to the effect a higher price would have on the cost of living.

While the plan sets forth no specific items which might qualify, an OPA official predicted that a "very large number" probably would fit the pattern.

Aluminum Perhaps First Metal Freed

Under the first standard aluminum was mentioned as one of the first raw materials that might be removed from controls, with products made from that metal following as supply caught up with demand.

Under the second, immediate release from ceilings might be ordered for jewelry, for example, or for such beverages as rum, brandy and cordials.

A spokesman for Davis's office said there was no indication yet whether Davis will approve the formula as it stands or make changes.

Adoption of OPA's selective price control system would reverse the course followed when the first steps to harness inflation were taken before the war.

In those defense program days selective controls were invoked for a number of vital raw materials, particularly metals. It was not until the spring of 1942 that OPA's general maximum price regulation put blanket controls into effect.

Officials emphasized that the proposed plan does not deal with removal of controls on major consumer and industrial commodities expected to remain in short supply for some time. Clothing, for example, and consumer products being made again for the first time since Pearl Harbor, are slated to stay under ceilings for many months, they said.

SUGAR-SUPPLY DROP FEARED

Some Stores In East Unable To Honor Ration Coupons

Washington, July 13 (AP)—Civilian supplies of sugar for the last three months of this year may drop 25 per cent under the low allotment for the current July-September quarter.

This prospect was disclosed by food officials today as reports came to the Agriculture Department and the Office of Price Administration that retail stores in some parts of the country have run out of sugar and are unable to honor ration coupons.

The supply situation was said to be very tight in many sections east of the Mississippi River and in Texas and Oklahoma. It was described as somewhat better west of the Mississippi, except in Texas and Oklahoma and along the West Coast.

Difference Explained

This difference is accounted for largely by the fact that the East and West coasts depend in large measure on imported cane sugar, while the region west of the Mississippi depends principally on beet sugar produced in that area.

The nation's sugar problem may be stated in these words: Food officials estimate that civilians, with present incomes, would buy around 8,000,000 tons of sugar this year at current prices.

The supply available—from domestic production and imports—is expected to be about 5,100,000 tons. Thus there is an over-all shortage of nearly 3,000,000 tons.

The civilian supply includes allotments for bakers, hotels, restaurants, soft-drink makers, candy manufacturers and other industrial users.

Extra Supplies Doubted

Officials estimate that the world supply is around 8,000,000 tons short of the world demand, so that the United States is not alone on short rations.

About 2,800,000 tons of this year's civilian supply were bought during the first six months. An additional 1,380,000 tons were allotted for the current quarter, leaving less than 1,000,000 tons for the final quarter unless additional supplies are obtained.

Prospects for new supplies—which could come only from Pacific areas now dominated by the Japanese or from the Philippines — were described as unfavorable.

Officials explained that it should be possible to get by on a smaller last-quarter allotment because the canning season will be out of the way by then.

Last Year's Sales Cited

However, in the final quarter of 1944, civilians obtained 1,833,000 tons.

The distribution problem is complicated by a number of factors, including transportation difficulties and very short reserve stocks.

This shortage in reserves and the liberality of some local ration boards earlier in the year in issuing canning sugar also make it impossible, officials said, for many civilians to obtain sugar for canning at the present time.

OPA DENIES GAS RATION TO BE CUT

WASHINGTON, July 13—(AP) The OPA tonight spiked reports of a possible cut soon in newly-increased gasoline rations.

In a statement, Rationing Chief Max McCullough said:

"OPA is not planning to reduce gasoline rations as long as present allocations are continued."

Civilian allocations have been fixed through September by the Petroleum Administration for War. A reduction during the course of a three-month period would be unprecedented.

Reports of a cut have been based on OPA's statements that consumption is exceeding the daily allocation rate.

Calling attention to this yesterday, James S. Thomas, director of the OPA district office in Miami, Fla., said that if overuse "isn't stopped at once by motorists we undoubtedly face a reduction in rations."

While denying plans for a cut, McCullough said OPA is "greatly concerned about consumption in excess of civilian allocation and is making every effort to reduce overuse."

As part of this campaign, the agency is making a spot check of local ration boards to determine whether supplementary "B" allotments are being handed out too liberally.

Recently the basic "A" ration was boosted 50 per cent and the "B" ceiling was increased to 650 miles of driving a month everywhere in the country. Previously it ranged from 325 to 475 miles in different areas.

Col. Boyce New Head Of WACS

Washington, July 13—(AP)—Col. Oveta Culp Hobby returned today to her civilian role of career woman, wife and mother as the Women's Army Corps carried on under a new director.

being pinned on the shoulders of her deputy, Col. Westray Battle Boyce, Rocky Mount, N. C. The new director said she accepted her responsibilities with "great humility."

Col. Hobby told reporters she is retiring after nearly four years to return "to my family and my business." She is the wife of William P. Hobby, publisher of The Houston (Texas) Post and World War I Texas governor. They have two children, William, Jr., 13, and Jessica, 9.

Long before she came to Washington, Col. Hobby worked on her husband's paper. For some years she has been executive editor and vice-president.

She also has been a director of the paper's radio station, a bank and the Southern Newspaper Publishers' Association.

Praising Col. Hobby "for notable service rendered to the Army and to the nation," Patterson added in announcing her resignation:

"She has had to fight many obstacles in promoting a program unique in the history of the Army. And she did it with great distinction."

There are nearly 100,000 WACS.

LAST WAC TO LEAVE FT. OGLETHORPE SUNDAY

WASHINGTON, July 13—(AP) The Third WAC Training center at Ft. Oglethorpe, Ga., will be closed this week and all activities transferred to Ft. Des Moines, Iowa.

The War department announced today that the last WAC will leave the post Sunday. Special divisions, such as officer candidate schools, were transferred to the First WAC Training center at Ft. Des Moines earlier this year.

The Ft. Oglethorpe center went into operation in December, 1942.

Army Ground and Service Forces Redistribution centers at Camp Butner, N. C., will be transferred to Ft. Oglethorpe. The post also will become an ASF School center.

Government Agencies Asked To Curb Travel

Washington, July 13 (AP)—The Office of Defense Transportation today asked Government agencies to cut down travel by officials and employés.

Director J. Monroe Johnson wrote each he was "firmly convinced that Government agencies can and must" make greater reductions in travel.

He suggested that Government officials discontinue group meetings both in Washington and elsewhere during "this critical transportation period."

ODT May Turn Over 1,000 More Sleeping Cars To Army

Washington, July 13 (AP)—Another 1,000 sleeper cars may be taken out of civilian service within the next three months.

This figure was mentioned most frequently today as the Office of Defense Transportation began considering its next step toward providing more sleepers for troops moving across the country.

It is based on information provided to ODT by army officials on the projected redeployment of troops from Europe to the Pacific.

None On 450-Mile Routes

Actual mechanics of obtaining the cars have not been decided upon. However, beginning at noon Sunday, railroads and the Pullman company will not operate sleeping cars on routes 450 miles or less apart.

This will remove 895 cars from civilian service.

In Chicago the Pullman Company said the removals would affect 423 intercity lines and "would place approximately 66 per cent of the sleeping cars in the country at the disposal of the armed forces."

The withdrawal of another 1,000 would leave only about 1,500 in civilian service and a large part of the space on these cars would be taken by the military services before space is available to civilians.

In another move to help out the transportation situation, the War Production Board today granted AA-2 priority ratings for materials and parts to be used in the construction of 2,264 railway passenger cars and troop cars.

New Cars Scheduled

Of the total, 664 of the cars would be regular passenger carriers, the remaining 1,600 troop cars.

All of the troop cars are scheduled for completion by the end of December.

In addition to the passenger cars and troop sleepers, 400 kitchen cars will be built for troop trains.

WPB previously had authorized some construction of new passenger cars, but had not granted priority assistance for them. Railroad officials expressed the belief that this assistance would aid substantially in getting cars built.

CIO Denounces New Labor Bill

Washington, July 13 (AP)—The CIO executive board adopted a resolution today condemning the Ball-Burton-Hatch industrial relations bill as "undemocratic class legislation designed to destroy a free labor movement."

It called upon all CIO units and all "fair-minded citizens" to make known their opposition "to this reactionary attempt to launch post-war assault upon labor."

Guaranteed Wage Sought

The CIO board after an all-day meeting also:

1. Declared business is in an "excellent position" to agree to a guaranteed annual wage for labor.

2. Asked the War Labor Board to observe a "firm policy in opposition to any wage cuts."

3. Called upon Economic Stabilization Director Davis, War Mobilization Director Vinson and War Shipping Administrator Land to "stay bonus reductions" for maritime workers until the WLB has an opportunity to "readjust the substandard wages of seamen."

4. Continued the constitution adopted at the 1944 CIO convention in force until changed at the next convention, in view of the ODT ban on such a convention this year. Present officers also are continued.

5. Moved to have the CIO and World Federation of Trade Unions represented on the social and economic council of the proposed United Nations organization.

Bill Would Alter Law

The industrial relations bill was offered by Senators Burton (R., Ohio), Ball (R., Minn.) and Hatch (D., N.M.), who said it was designed to end "legalized civil warfare."

Among the other things, the bill would revamp the Wagner Labor Relations Act, provide for compulsory arbitration of many disputes and redesign Federal labor agencies.

Schwellenbach Calls on Labor To 'Respect No Strike Pledge'

WASHINGTON, July 13—(AP) Lewis B. Schwellenbach tonight called on labor to "respect the no strike pledge" and asked management not to "seize upon the chance" to cut wages and destroy unions in the change-over to a peace economy.

In his maiden speech as Secretary of Labor he said government had a responsibility to eliminate "fear" among workers that they will be without jobs after the war. That must be done, he said, to maintain the war plant working force needed to defeat Japan.

The address was prepared for an NBC broadcast.

Schwellenbach urged a postwar "economy of plenty" with emphasis on "a strong consuming power."

Declaring the government has adequate machinery to settle labor disputes peacefully, he said this to labor:

"To advance any demand to the point of stopping production instead of using machinery available for peaceful settlement is not in the national interest and will not be supported by public opinion. As a representative of all the people, but particularly interested in promoting the real welfare of those who work, I urge labor to respect the no-strike pledge."

To management, he said:

"I shall expect management to refrain from doing those things, thoughtlessly or purposefully, which provoke men and tempt them to act first and reason later."

He said the interest of the whole nation must be placed above the interest of any individual or group.

Emphasizing that both management and labor must accept equal responsibility in lessening industrial strife, the secretary asserted:

"In the past we have thought of producing goods and then of some means of forcing these goods into consumption. The time has come to become more concerned about the development of a strong consuming power. Only through this may we provide a natural outlet for all the goods we can produce.

"That being true, now is not the time for short-sighted management to seize upon the chance to reduce wages and crush the wage earners organizations. "Labor must accept equal responsibility."

Widen Roosevelt Loan Inquiry

House Committeemen to Investigate Other Reported Borrowings by General.

Washington, July 13 (A. P.).—The inquiry into Brig.-Gen. Elliott Roosevelt's financial affairs has been expanded to embrace his reported borrowings other than the $200,000 loan by John H[illegible]ford.

Representative Doughton (D.-N. C.), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said in a statement that "further angles" are being "explored in several parts of the country." He indicated that when the Internal Revenue Bureau makes a full report to his committee he will submit the material to the House, probably in a speech on the floor.

The bureau's inquiry opened after Doughton asked for information on reports that Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company, lent the second son of the late President $200,000 in connection with a Texas radio network venture, that the debt was settled for $4,000 and that Hartford listed the remaining $196,000 as a bad debt deduction in his 1942 income tax return.

Full Report Due After Recess.

At a meeting of the Ways and Means Committee, the bureau submitted a partial report, details of which were not released for publication. But committeemen said questions were asked in the meeting behind closed doors about reports of other investments obtained by young Roosevelt, and that the bureau said such reports would be studied.

The inquiry probably will lead to several States, including Texas, committeemen said. Indications were that several weeks will be required, and that a full report will not be submitted to Congress until the House returns from its recess next fall.

Doughton and Representative Knutson (R.-Minn.), senior Ways and Means Committee Republican, said they were interested only in seeing that Government revenues are protected, in connection with deductions claimed on bad debts.

Tax Evasions Termed Shocking

Washington, July 13—(AP)—The further the Treasury Department's drive against alleged tax evaders goes, says Secy. Morgenthau, "the more shocking it becomes."

Latest of the cases cited by the secretary as under investigation by Treasury agents include those of a manufacturer making jewelry boxes for Purple Heart Medals and a firm of war contractors in Wisconsin.

Morgenthau told a news conference yesterday the unnamed jewelry manufacturer has concealed sales amounting to at least $80,000 in filing income tax returns and termed this a "particularly distressing case of attempted tax evasion." He said indications are that criminal prosecution will be recommended.

The Wisconsin case, he said, is expected to be presented to a grand jury within the next three or four weeks. He described the case as involving several million dollars in unreported income and said it included understated and suppressed reports of sales, padded reports of purchases and payrolls and diversions to private accounts of members of the firm.

The secretary also said a number of jewelry firms in New England have made voluntary disclosures of unpaid taxes as a result of the tax drive.

He said he still was unable to name the New York restaurant chain whose case he had said was ready for a grand jury. In commenting on a California raisin investigation, also previously announced, he said a large raisin grape dealer has made disclosures showing "more than $150,000 worth of checks drawn to cash in an apparent effort to enable the recipients to evade price and income tax regulations."

EX-JUDGE DENIES SPLIT FEE CHARGE

Washington, July 13 (A. P.).—Former Judge Albert W. Johnson denied today having known "anything about" a proposed fee split on a receivership case in 1938.

He said he did not discuss it with Attorney John Memolo of Scranton, Pa., associate receiver's counsel in the Williamsport, Pa., Wire Rope Company case.

Johnson, 72-year-old veteran of thirty years on State and Federal benches, voluntarily took the stand before a House judiciary subcommittee investigating his conduct as judge of the Pennsylvania Middle District Federal Court.

He said that before a foreclosure sale of the Williamsport property to Bethlehem Steel Company was carried out, he had "no knowledge of any arrangements (by Memolo) with Bethlehem for fees."

Johnson denied discussing with Memolo at any time splitting of fees from Bethlehem Steel between the two of them.

Memolo previously had testified that he had not "as far as I know" paid any money directly or indirectly to Johnson."

JAMES ROOSEVELT IN NAVY HOSPITAL

San Diego, Cal., July 13 (A. P.).—Marine Col. James Roosevelt, son of the late President, is a patient in the Naval Hospital for a "rest and routine physical checkup" after seven months in the Philippines, the Eleventh Naval district disclosed today.

He was described as "tanned, but showing signs of the intensive work" overseas, interrupted briefly by a flight home to attend his father's funeral.

Length of his hospital stay depends on outcome of present medical examinations, the Navy reported. Roosevelt has been operating with an amphibious group at advanced bases.

"When our men start using the huge stocks of supplies and fighting tools we are building up, I don't see how Japan will be able to stand up very long," he said today. "The pressure now being exerted on the enemy is just a sample."

Roosevelt paid tribute to the "wonderful attitude and co-operation of the Filipino people" and deplored "pathetic" scenes of Manila wreckage. He has had three extended tours of duty in the Pacific since going on active duty in November, 1940, and holds the Navy Cross for helping lead the Makin Island raid in 1942 and the Silver Star Medal for participating in Gilbert Islands landings.

SAYS NAVY RACIAL POLICY IS SOUND

Washington, July 13 (A. P.).—Lester B. Grainger, executive secretary of the National Urban League, said today the Navy "is so much further ahead of the Army" in policies affecting Negro personnel that "it is not even funny."

"The Navy," Grainger told a news conference, "is doing things which the Army still insists is bad for morale. The Army is still trying to build two armies, one black and one white."

The Negro leader has just returned from a tour of West Coast and Northern naval establishments as a special assistant to Secretary Forrestal. He visited twelve establishments and the Ninth, Eleventh, Twelfth and Thirteenth Naval districts, which included among their personnel about 3,000 Negroes.

"First," Grainger said, "I consider the Navy's policy of integrating (Negroes) in all phases of the services to be admirably sound as officially set forth.

"Second, I found that policy to be honestly and intelligently administered in the headquarters of all the naval districts I visited."

MINESWEEPER IS LOST

Washington, July 13 (A. P.).—The motor minesweeper YMS-39 has been lost in the Borneo areas as a result of enemy action, the Navy announced today. Casualties among her war-time complement of thirty-five officers and men totaled five, including three killed, one wounded and one missing. All casualties were enlisted men.

The vessel was under the command of Lieut. (J. G.) Alfred C. Vaughn, of Kenbridge, Va. The loss raised to 322 the total of naval vessels lost from all causes since the start of the war. The vessel, built at the plant of Robert Jacob, Inc., City Island, N. Y., was commissioned on March 11, 1942.

Destroyer's Loss Laid To Exhaustion

Washington, July 13 (AP)—Lieut. Raymond L. Bly, senior surviving officer of the destroyer Longshaw, which was sunk off Okinawa, said today the loss was due to the utter exhaustion of the ship's personnel.

He said the entire ship's company had been under heavy strain for weeks when the vessel ran aground and was sunk by enemy shore batteries.

Loss of the Longshaw was previously announced.

Lieutenant Bly said it was one of the first ships to arrive off Okinawa and remained there until it was lost. For the first 30 days, he said, the crew was at general quarters for 90 per cent of the time. There was not a day when anybody got more than four hours' sleep, he said.

House Newsprint Probe O.K.'d By Rules Group

Washington, July 13 (AP)—The House Rules Committee approved today plans for foreign investigations by the House Foreign Affairs Committee and the House Interstate Newsprint subcommittee.

The committee's action is subject to House approval expected next week.

The foreign affairs committee hopes to make a first-hand study of the internal operations of foreign governments, starting with Russia and the Balkans. A sub-committee expects to leave for Russia next month if the House approves.

The interstate committee's investigation will be aimed at easing the newsprint situation by working out arrangements for more wide-spread use of Swedish, Norwegian and Finnish newsprint in Europe and South America, with a resultant decrease in demands upon the supply in this country and Canada.

SEEKS HEROINE SHRINE

Washington, July 13 (A. P.).—A shrine to the "Unknown Heroine of World War II" was proposed today. Representative Wasielewski (D.-Wis.) introduced legislation authorizing such a memorial in Arlington National Cemetery.

Wasielewski, in a speech prepared for House delivery, said:

"The millions of mothers, wives, sweethearts and sisters of the men in the services are carrying on tasks that aid considerably in keeping up the job on the home front and in maintaining morale on the fighting front. It is proper and fitting that a grateful nation pay homage to these unknown heroines."

Senator Wants Refugees Sent Back

Washington, July 13 (A. P.).—Senator Maybank (D.-S. C.) urged today that European refugees, along with confined aliens and prisoners of war, be sent home promptly lest they compete for jobs with returning soldiers. Maybank told the Senate he understood there were some 150,000 refugees here who had earned about $800,000,000 not subject to taxation. He added:

"I hope that these aliens, refugees and prisoners of war will not have any possible chance to keep any American hero out of a job."

Output Of 9,000 Taxis Is Approved By WPB

Washington, July 13 (AP)—The War Production Board today authorized manufacture of 9,000 special-purpose taxicabs during the next nine months.

Of the total 4,000 will be produced this year by the Checker Cab Company and the De Soto division of Chrysler Corporation. Each company will build 2,000 cabs.

Production quotas for 5,000 cabs for the first three months of 1946 have been assigned as follows:

Checker Cab Company, 2,200; De Soto division, 2,000; Packard Corporation, 500; 300 unassigned.

NOMINATION APPROVED

Washington, July 13 — (AP) — The nomination of former Gov. William Henry Mills of Vermont as a member of the Federal Communications Commission was approved yesterday by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

Bradley Confirmed As Veterans' Director

Washington, July 13 (AP)—The Senate unanimously confirmed today the nomination of Gen. Omar N. Bradley to be administrator of veterans' affairs. He succeeds Brig. Gen. Frank Hines, resigned.

It also confirmed Raymond M. Foley, of Michigan, as Federal Housing Administrator, succeeding Abner H. Ferguson, resigned, and Jesse M. Donaldson, of Illinois, as Assistant Postmaster General.

VETERANS WARNED ON BUYING FARMS

Ithaca, N. Y., July 13 (A. P.).—Warning against the purchase of jalopy farms, an agricultural authority said today that the best way for a person with limited capital to get a start in farming is to take a job as a hired man on a successful farm.

Dr. Van B. Hart, extension professor of farm management at Cornell University, said in an interview that "if the returning soldier is allowed to sink his savings in an abandoned farm it may mean one more embittered veteran and one more family on relief."

Hart said the "maximum of $300 mustering-out pay, plus a few hundred dollars of savings," would be "pitifully small" compared with what it takes to buy and equip a good farm. He added that there has been "much misunderstanding" about the farm loan provisions of the G. I. bill.

"This bill does not give the veteran a nickel with which to buy a farm. It simply says that if a veteran can get some one to loan him the money to buy a farm the Federal Government may write sort of an insurance policy on part of the loan. Little chance appears, therefore, that the average veteran will get a G. I. loan that will set him up in business on a good farm."

B-17 Sets Record For Altitude

Seattle, July 13—(AP)—A B-17 Flying Fortress called "The Shadow" had climbed to 43,499 feet, an altitude its makers said they believed was a new world record for four-engined craft.

The Shadow, Boeing Aircraft Co. announced last night, made the record ascent Wednesday in a test flight over Seattle.

The plane was piloted by James Fraser and carried four other engineers on a flight that lasted more than four hours.

Boeing said that based on records of the National Aeronautics Association, The Shadow set a new national altitude record for all types of airplanes, eclipsing the 43,166-foot mark established in June 1930 at Anacostia, D. C.

The NAA lists as an international record the 56,046-foot altitude reached over Italy in October, 1938 in an Italian plane, but this was not a four-engined aircraft.

Legion Post Hits Plans for Care of Japs

McConnellsburg, Pa., July 13—(AP)—The American Legion has protested use of Bedford Springs Hotel, Bedford, Pa., to house Japanese diplomats captured in Berlin.

Such treatment, James L. Gatins, commander of James McKebbin Post, said yesterday, is the reverse of the treatment given American prisoners of war.

The State Department announced several weeks ago that 132 Japanese diplomatic and consular officers and dependents seized by Allied troops would be quartered at the hotel.

One group of Japanese officials has already been reported to have arrived at New York, but port of embarkation officials have cloaked their activities in secrecy.

Gatins said the Japanese maltreated American and English officials, even conducting mass massacres.

"It was the feeling of the post," he declared, "that Nip diplomats be accorded the same treatment instead of being handled with kid gloves and fed to the queen's taste."

"It was Jap diplomats," he asserted, "who sat in discussion with the late President Roosevelt while our country was being stabbed in the back at Pearl Harbor."

It was not learned what action the post planned to take.

TWO NAZI PRISONERS ORDERED EXECUTED

ATLANTA, July 13—(AP) Two German prisoners of war, convicted by courtmartial of slaying a comrade they looked upon as a traitor, will be executed, Fourth Service Command headquarters reported today.

The two, Sgt. Eric Gauss, 30, and Pvt. Rudolf Straub, 30, one-time members of Field Marshal Rommel's Afrika Corps, were convicted of garroting Lance Corporal Horst Guenther, 23, at a prisoner of war camp near Aiken, S. C., April 5, 1944.

Guenther's body was found suspended from a light pole outside a tent, a rope around his neck. It was first believed he committed suicide.

An Army investigator said Guenther had made himself unpopular with other prisoners by being too friendly with American guards. Guenther also was accused of not delivering mail promptly to his comrades.

IT WAS IN THIS UNDERGROUND OPERATIONAL NERVE CENTER IN WHAT USED TO BE THE BASEMENT OF A BIG DOWNTOWN LIVERPOOL OFFICE BUILDING, THAT THE GREAT SEA WAR WAS PLOTTED AND DIRECTED BY NAVAL OFFICERS OF THE WESTERN APPROACHES COMMAND.

[redacted]

HUGE CHARTS SHOWED THE EXACT POSITION AND DISPOSITION OF ALL ALLIED NAVAL FORCES AT SEA AND THE [redacted] PROGRESS OF THE CONVOYS

EVERY SHIP, ESCORT VESSEL AND MERCHANTMAN ALIKE, WAS TRACKED METHODICALLY ACROSS THE CHART IN MINIATURE AND COULD BE PIN POINTED IN 30 SECONDS.

THIS GREAT NAVAL CHART ROOM, WHICH WAS CALLED [redacted] "THE CITADEL" BECAUSE IT WAS PROTECTED BY A 12-FOOT THICK CONCRETE WALLS AND CEILING WAS OPENED TO OUTSIDERS FOR THE FIRST TIME TODAY WHEN COMMODORE I. A. P. MACINTYRE, COMMANDER OF THE WESTERN APPROACHES COMMAND, INVITED A PARTY OF NEWSPAPERMEN TO SEE HOW IT WORKED.

MACINTYRE, WHO SAID HIS COMMAND WAS FOLDING UP SOON "BECAUSE OF LACK OF [redacted] BUSINESS," SAID THAT AN AVERAGE OF 1,000 CODED MESSAGES EFFECTING MORE THAN 100,000 PEOPLE AT SEA WERE [redacted] HANDLED IN THE ROOM DAILY. [redacted] MOST OF THE FAST DECODING AND PAPER WORK WAS DONE BY WRENS, THE BRITISH EQUIVALENT [redacted] OF THE U. S. NAVY'S WAVES.

THERE WAS A DIRECT CABLE FROM THE ROOM TO NEW YORK, WHERE VITAL

THESE WERE MOSTLY SUPREME COURT TRIALS OF HIGH CRIMES. IT IS IN THE LOWER COURTS WHERE THE QUEER AND OFTEN TERRIBLE EFFECTS OF THE GERMAN OCCUPATION ON SEEMINGLY ORDINARY MEN AND WOMEN HAVE COME TO LIGHT.

SOMETIMES IT WAS PURE SADISM. THERE WAS THE BEAUTIFUL AND WELL BORN GIRL WHO AT 19 WAS ONE OF THE FRENCH GESTAPO'S MOST EXPERT TORTURERS. THERE WAS THE BOY WHO INFORMED ON WOMEN BECAUSE THE GERMANS THEN LET HIM WATCH THEM BEING STRIPPED AND MISTREATED IN EFFORTS TO MAKE THEM TALK.

SOMETIMES IT WAS ANTI-SEMITISM. A WOMAN WHO DENOUNCED A FRENCH JEWESS HAS BEEN EXECUTED. A MAN ADMITTED HE PRODUCED ANTI-JEWISH FILMS, BUT PLEADED IT WAS TO HIDE THAT HIS WIFE WAS JEWISH.

USUALLY IT WAS MONEY OR PERSONAL ADVANTAGE. A 16-YEAR-OLD ACTED AS A GERMAN SPY FOR POCKET MONEY, CIGARETTES AND THE PRIVILEGE OF DRIVING GERMAN ARMY TRUCKS. FRANKFURT, JULY 13-(AP)-THE POSSIBILITY OF A SEVERE WINTER FAMINE IN GERMANY WAS EMPHASIZED TODAY WITH THE DISCLOSURE THAT THERE ARE NOT SUFFICIENT FOOD SUPPLIES IN THE AMERICAN OR BRITISH ZONES OF OCCUPATION TO LAST THROUGH THE WINTER, AND THE RUSSIANS WILL NOT BE ABLE TO SUPPLY FOOD FROM EASTERN GERMANY.
AT PRESENT THERE SEEMS TO BE ONLY ONE ALTERNATIVE--THE IMPORTATION OF FOOD INTO GERMANY BY THE WESTERN ALLIES TO SUSTAIN THE GERMAN PEOPLE, WHO ALREADY ARE LIVING ON ALLIED MILITARY RATIONS.
THE MILITARY GOVERNMENT RELEASED INFORMATION SHOWING THAT THE MAXIMUM RATION OF 1,550 CALORIES PER DAY ESTABLISHED FOR THE AVERAGE GERMAN CONSUMER HAS NOT BEEN REACHED IN EITHER THE AMERICAN OR BRITISH ZONES.
THE HIGHEST CALORIC RATION AT PRESENT IS 1,380 IN THE SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN AREA IN THE BRITISH ZONE, AND THE LOWEST IS 727 IN THE OBERDANAU AREA OF THE AMERICAN ZONE IN AUSTRIA.
THE AMERICANS HAD HOPED TO BE ABLE TO SEND SURPLUS LABOR INTO EASTERN GERMANY ON EXCHANGE FOR FOOD FROM THAT REGION, WHICH FORMERLY SUPPLIED THE GREATEST PART OF GERMANY'S FOOD. BUT IT WAS DISCLOSED BY THE RUSSIANS IN BERLIN THAT THE FARMLANDS OF EAST PRUSSIA, POMERANIA AND BRANDENBURG ARE SO RAVAGED BY WAR THAT LITTLE HELP CAN BE EXPECTED FROM THAT QUARTER.

"THIS WAS TAKEN FROM NAZI CONCENTRATION CAMP VICTIMS. THE CHINESE ENTRY INTO KANHSIEN WERE WITHDRAWING NORTHWARD FINALLY SEALED AN ABORTIVE JAPANESE PLAN TO ESTABLISH A LINK BETWEEN CANTON AND NANCHANG AS A POSSIBLE RETREAT ROUTE FOR JAPANESE FORCES IN THE CANTON-HONGKONG AREA. THESE FORCES WOULD NOW BE ISOLATED IF THE CHINESE CUT THE CANTON-HANKOW RAIL CORRIDOR.

UNOFFICIAL DISPATCHES SAID THE JAPANESE WERE WITHDRAWING NORTHWARD ALONG THE HUNAN-KWANGSI RAILROAD AND THAT THE WITHDRAWAL WOULD SHORTLY OPEN THE WAY FOR CHINESE ENTRY INTO KWEILIN, ALSO A FORMER U.S. AIRBASE.

THE CHINESE CENTRAL NEWS AGENCY REPORTED THAT JAPANESE AUTHORITIES HAD ORDERED THE EVACUATION OF CHINESE NATIONALS FROM SHANGHAI AND HANGCHOW, PRESUMABLY AS AN ANTI-INVASION DEFENSE MEASURE.

THE JAPANESE HAVE SEIZED THE HOMES OF ABOUT 500,000 VILLAGERS NEAR SHANGHAI, THE AGENCY ADDED, AND MANY HAVE BEEN CONVERTED INTO AMMUNITION STORAGE PLACES.

IN NORTHWEST SUMATRA, SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED TONIGHT IN A SPECIAL COMMUNIQUE. APPROACHES TO MALACCA STRAIT, BRITISH MINESWEEPERS SWEPT THE GREAT NAVAL BASE OF SINGAPORE, WHICH LIES BETWEEN SUMATRA AND MALAYA, LINKING SINGAPORE TO THE MAINLAND OF ASIA. FROM JULY 5 TO 10 WITHOUT SIGHTING A JAPANESE VESSEL.

WHILE FLEET UNITS ATTACKED THE NICOBARS, PLANES ALSO LAID THEIR EXPLOSIVES ON THE ISLANDS. THE NICOBARS LIE 280 MILES NORTHWEST OF SUMATRA, RICH DUTCH OIL PRODUCING ISLAND, AND ABOUT 900 MILES OFF SINGAPORE. THEY ARE 400 MILES WEST OF THE KRA PENINSULA OF MALAYA, TO THE MAINLAND OF ASIA.

JAPANESE BROADCASTS, FIRST TO TELL OF TH ATTACKS ON THE NICOBARS, SPECULATED THAT A LANDING ATTEMPT WOULD BE MADE.

THE FLEET BOMBARDED CAR NIC[illegible]AR ISLAND TWICE, ONCE BY NIGHT. TWO MERCHANT SHIPS WERE ATTACK[illegible] BY PLANES AT NANCOWRY ISLAND. ONE OF THE SHIPS WAS BURNING FURIOUSLY WHEN THE JAPANESE BEACHED IT. THE OTHER ALSO WAS SET AFIRE.
A CORRESPONDENT ABOARD THE CARRIER EMPEROR REPORTED:
"FOR SEVEN DAYS WE HAD BEEN STEAMING UP AND DOWN WITHIN SIGHT OF JAPANESE-OCCUPIED TERRITORY IN ONE OF THE CHEEKIEST OPERATIONS YET CARRIED OUT BY THE BRITISH EAST INDIES FLEET--THE WIDESPREAD SWEEP IN THE AREA OF THE NICOBARS AND ANDAMAN ISLANDS IN THE BAY OF BENGAL.
"BY DOING SO, WE GAVE THE JAPANESE IN EFFECT A CHALLENGE TO COME OUT AND MEET US. THE JAPANESE, HOWEVER, SHIED OFF COMPLETELY. OBVIOUSLY THE JAPANESE ARE WORRIED ABOUT FUTURE DEVELOPMENTS IN SOUTHEAST ASIA. IT IS POSSIBLE THEY ARE CONSERVING THEIR FAST DWINDLING STRENGTH TO MEET THE NEXT BIG LANDING ASSAULT.
"THE LACK OF INDICATION AS TO JUST WHERE THE BLOW WILL FALL IS GIVING THEIR ISLAND GARRISONS A SEVERE CASE OF JITTERS."
THE BRITISH USED HELLCAT PLANES AGAINST JAPANESE SHIPPING, AIRFIELDS AND RADAR STATIONS. THEY DESTROYED BUILDINGS AND MILITARY INSTALLATIONS.
THE ONLY OPPOSITION ENCOUNTERED WAS LIGHT TO MEDIUM FLAK AT THE AIRFIELDS AND TWO CHALLENGING JAPANESE PLANES, ONE OF WHICH WAS DOWNED.

ABOARD ADMIRAL MC CAIN'S FLAGSHIP OFF RYUKYUS, JUNE 5 (DELAYED) (AP)-JAPAN'S DIVINE WIND BLEW ITSELF INTO A FURY LAST NIGHT--A TYPHOON FURY THAT LEFT IN ITS WAKE DAMAGED AND BROKEN SHIPS OF ADM. WILLIAM HALSEY'S THIRD FLEET AND ADMIRAL MC CAIN'S TASK FORCE 38.
PLANES WERE FLIPPED AROUND LIKE BEANBAGS ON ONE SMALL ESCORT CARRIER. THE FORWARD END OF THE FLIGHT DECK WAS RIPPED LOOSE AND DANGLED OVER THE BOW LIKE A TORNADO-WRECKED HOUSE.
HEAVIER SHIPS LIKE THE BIG CARRIER I WAS ON DURING THE HEIGHT OF THE TYPHOON RODE OUT THE HUGE SEAS AND THE HURRICANE WINDS WITH COMPARATIVE SAFETY.
HOWEVER, AT 5:30 THIS MORNING I COULD NOT SEE MORE THAN 50 FEET THROUGH THE SWIRLING SPUME AND HAD TO DUCK BACK INSIDE THE HATCHWAY WHEN A GUST OF WIND NEARLY BLEW ME OVERBOARD.
FOR HOURS PAST, TWO SEAMEN HAVE BEEN STANDING EACH OTHER OFF ON ONE HOUR SHIFTS, HANDLING THE BIG BRASS STEERING WHEEL OF THIS HUGE CARRIER. ONE IS SEAMAN FIRST CLASS ROHN SCHMINCKE, 19, OF (304 LYNDHURST STREET) BALTIMORE, MD., AND THE OTHER SEAMAN FIRST CLASS GUNDER MOE, 23, OF (822 PILLSBURY AVENUE) EAST GRAND FORKS, MINN. THEY FOUGHT THE TYPHOON'S FURY BY KEEPING THE SHIP HEADED WITH THE WIND AND MATCHING THE COMPASS DIALS.
A FEW HOURS AGO THE CAPTAIN'S PENNANT FLEW PROUDLY ATOP OUR HIGH MAST. NOW IT IS ONLY A RAGGED, TWO-FOOT STRIP OF CLOTH. BUT THE THIRD FLEET AND TASK FORCE 38 STEAM PROUDLY ON, LEAVING THE DAMAGED STRAGGLERS TO LIMP BACK FOR REPAIRS.

GUAM,JULY 13-(AP)-DESPITE LOSS OF 4,000 PLANES DURING THE RYUKYUS CAMPAIGN, JAPAN MAY STILL HAVE 9,000 PLANES OF ALL TYPES WHICH SHE MAY BE CONSERVING FOR DEFENSE OF THE HOMELAND, REAR ADM. D.C.RAMSEY, NEWLY APPOINTED CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE FIFTH FLEET, SAID TODAY.

OF HER REMAINING PLANES, JAPAN CAN PUT 4,000 INTO THE AIR IN DEFENSE OF THEHOME ISLANDS, HE TOLD WAR CORRESPONDENTS IN AN INTERVIEW. WITH THIS IN MIND, THE JAPANESE MAY HAVE ADOPTED A "POLICY OF CONSERVATION" OF ITS AIRFORCE SINCE IT HAS NOT BEEN IN ACTION TO ANY MARKED DEGREE LATELY.

THE ENEMY MAY FIND IT DIFFICULT TO MAINTAIN ITS CONSTRUCTION OF AIRCRAFT UNDER REPEATED BOMBINGS BY U.S. PLANES AND MAY HAVE TO RESORT TO MORE "WOODEN CONSTRUCTION," RAMSEY PREDICTED, ALTHOUGH HE THOUGHT THE ENEMY HAD MANY GOOD AIRPLANES LEFT.

THE ADMIRAL, CHIEF OF THE NAVY'S BUREAU OF AERONAUTICS FOR THE LAST TWO YEARS AND A VETERAN CARRIER SKIPPER, SAID HE THOUGHT CARRIER PLANES COULD COPE WITH THE BEST THE JAPANESE HAVE IN PLANES AND ALTHOUGH THE ENEMY'S PLANES MAY BE CLASSIFIED AS "HOT," THEY HAVE SACRIFICED ENDURANCE FOR SPEED.

GUAM--FIFTH ADD SECOND NIGHT LEAD (CORRECT) AIR WAR X X X X BY NIGHT FIGHTERS.

FOR THE SECOND TIME WITHIN A WEEK ADMIRAL NIMITZ' COMMUNIQUE REPORTED A FLEET ASSAULT WITHIN A FEW HOURS AFTER IT BEGAN.

ONLY A TERSE REPORT THAT NORTHERN HONSHU AND HOKKAIDO WERE UNDER ATTACK WERE AVAILABLE. RADIO SILENCE IN THE DASH NORTHWARD PRECLUDED NEW DETAILS OF THE TOKYO STRIKE.

HOKKAIDO, NORTHERNMOST AND SECOND LARGEST OF THE FOUR MAIN JAPANESE ISLANDS, IS MOSTLY MOUNTAINOUS AND HEAVILY FORESTED--BASICALLY A FRONTIER REGION GIVEN OVER LARGELY TO AGRICULURE, FORESTRY AND FISHING. IT HAS FEW FACTORIES, ALTHOUGH AT MURORAN ON THE SOUTH COAST SMELTERS PRODUCE AN ESTIMATED 11 PERCENT OF JAPAN'S PIG IRON AND SIX PERCENT OF HER STEEL INGOTS.

IN RECENT YEARS HOKKAIDO ALSO SUPPLIED BETWEEN 25 AND 30 PER CENT OF THE EMPIRE'S COAL, MOST OF ITS SULPHUR, 15 PERCENT OF ITS IRON ORE, 20 PERCENT OF ITS LEAD AND ZINC, A SUBSTANTIAL PERCENTAGE OF ITS SYNTHETIC OIL AND SMALL QUANTITIES OF NATURAL PETROLEUM AND MANGANESE. FIFTEEN PERCENT OF JAPAN'S IRON ORE PRODUCTION IS NOT A GREAT AMOUNT, SINCE THE TOTAL OUTPUT MET ONLY A FRACTION OF HE EMPIRE' NEEDS. MOST WAS IMPORTED.

BY JAPANESE STANDARDS BOTH HOKKAIDO AND NORTHERN HONSHU ARE SPARSELY SETTLED. EACH AREA IS ABOUT THE SIZE OF THE STATE OF MAINE. HOKKAIDO'S CLIMATE IS SEVERE, WITH LONG, COLD WINTERS.

HOKKAIDO'S POPULATION IS ABOUT 3,200,000. NORTHERN HONSHU'S EIGHT DISTRICTS, GENERALLY MOUNTAINOUS BUT MORE DEVELOPED INDUSTRIALLY THAN HOKKAIDO, HAVE A POPULATION OF ABOUT 9,500,000.

MAJOR CITIES OF HOKKAIDO ARE HAKODATE (TO WHICH HONSHU AIR RAID REFUGEES RECENTLY WERE SENT), SAPPORO AND OTARU.

SENDAI, WITH A POPULATION OF 220,000 IS NORTHERN HONSHU'S LARGEST CITY. AOMORI, A PORT ON HONSHU'S NORTHERN TIP, HAS A POPULATION OF ABOUT 99,000.

COPPER IS MINED, SMELTED AND EFINED AT SEVERAL POINTS ON NORTHERN HONSHU, NOTABLY HITACHI AND SENDAI--AN IMPORTANT PART OF JAPAN'S WAR PRODUCTION. KAMAISHI HAS LARGE STEEL PLANTS.

NIIGATA, ON HONSHU'S NORTHWEST COAST, HAS MAJOR MACHINE TOOL PLANTS, OIL REFINERIES AND SECONDARY SHIPYARDS.

HOKKAIDO AND NORTHERN HONSHU HAVE 20 TO 25 OPERATIONAL AIRFIELDS APIECE, ALTHOUGH MANY DOUBTLESS ARE PRIMITIVE. NO MAJOR AIRCRAFT PLANTS ARE KNOWN TO BE IN THE AREA, ALTHOUGH THE EMPIRE'S DECENTRALIZATION PROGRAM MAY LEAD TO SUCH DEVELOPMENTS.

OMINATO, AT THE NORTHERN TIP OF HONSHU, HAS A SECONDARY NAVAL BASE.

TWO OF THE B-29S WERE LOST AND ONE WAS REPORTED MISSING, THE 20TH AIR FORCE ANNOUNCED IN WASHINGTON. BOMBING WAS BY PRECISION INSTRUMENT AND RESULTS WERE UNOBSERVED. ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE WAS MEAGER AND INACCURATE AND ENEMY AIR OPPOSITION WAS SLIGHT.

AMERICAN MASTERY OF THE AIR OVER JAPAN CONTINUED VIRTUALLY UNCHALLENGED IN THE WAKE OF FRIDAY'S BLOWS AT THE ENEMY'S HOMELAND BY MORE THAN 700 PLANES WHICH FOUGHT MORE BAD WEATHER THAN NIPPONESE AIRPLANES.

JAPAN GROANED UNDER THE WEIGHT OF THE ATTACK IN WHICH THE SKY RAIDERS ROAMED OVER A 770-MILE ARC OF THE MAINLAND. (RADIO TOKYO GLOOMILY OBSERVED THAT THE PROMISED 'ROUND THE CLOCK AIR ASSAULTS WERE ALREADY AN ACCOMPLISHED FACT.)

MORE THAN 500 SUPERFORTS LED YESTERDAY'S ATTACK, DROPPING 3,000 TONS OF FIRE AND DEMOLITION BOMBS ON THE CITIES OF ICHINOMIYA, TSURUGA, UWAJIMA AND UTSUNOMIYA AND AN OIL CENTER IN TOKYO BAY. THE TARGETS SPREAD THE B-29S OVER 480 MILES OF HONSHU AND SHIKOKU ISLANDS.

OTHER HEAVY AND MEDIUM BOMBERS, FIGHTER PLANES AND LONG RANGE SEARCH AIRCRAFT RIPPED FACTORIES AND RAILROADS FROM KYUSHU IN SOUTHERN JAPAN TO TARGETS MORE THAN 200 MILES NORTH OF TOKYO.

SEARCH PLANES, FINDING SHIPPING TARGETS SCARCE OFF SENDAI, 190 MILES NORTH OF TOKYO, JOINED IN THE RAIDS ON GROUND INSTALLATIONS.

BRIG.GEN.DAVID F.HUTCHISON OF THE FAR EAST AIR FORCES TOLD ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT RICHARD CUSHING AT OKINAWA THAT JAPAN OBVIOUSLY WAS HOARDING ITS PLANCES FOR SUICIDE OPERATIONS WHEN THE INVASION OF THE HOME ISLANDS STARTS. HE SAID HE DIDN'T BELIEVE THE JAPANESE WOULD ENGAGE IN COUNTER-AIR ATTACKS UNTIL THEN.

REAR ADM.D.C.RAMSEY, NEWLY NAMED CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE FIFTH FLEET, IN AN INTERVIEW HERE ESTIMATED JAPAN MAY STILL HAVE 9,000 PLANES OF ALL TYPES, AND COULD PUT 4,000 INTO THE AIR IN DEFENSE OF THE HOMELAND.

THE ADMIRAL, A VETERAN CARRIER SKIPPER, SAID HE THOUGHT U.S. CARRIER PLANES COULD COPE WITH ANYTHING THE ENEMY OFFERED.

IN TUNE WITH THIS WAS THIS PROMISE MADE IN MANILA BY GEN.GEORGE C. KENNEY, CHIEF OF THE FAR EAST AIR FORCES:

"AS SOON AS WE ARE IN POSITION WE WILL ATTACK JAPAN FROM 10,000 FEET AND FROM TEN FEET, WITH FIRE AND EXPLOSIVES, WITH BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS -- AND WE WILL DO IT 24 HOURS A DAY."

ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS OF THE FAR EAST AIR FORCES, WHICH IS A PART OF THE COMMAND OF GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR, HAS BEEN MOVED TO OKINAWA.

RETURNING AIRMEN ABOARD THE B-29S AND MORE THAN 100 LIBERATOR AND MITCHELL BOMBERS REPORTED BAD WEATHER OVER JAPAN WHICH OBSCURED OBSERVATION OF SOME OF THE RESULTS. ENEMY FIGHTER INTERCEPTION PROVIDED LITTLE IF ANY OPPOSITION.

THE KANOYA NAVAL INSTALLATIONS ON KYUSHU WERE HIT BY 43 MITCHELLS, AND 14 OTHER OKINAWA-BASED MITCHELLS ATTACKED THE NAVAL PORT OF ABURATSU. A TOTAL OF 49 TONS OF BOMBS AND FRAGMENTATION CLUSTERS WAS DROPPED ON THE TWO TARGETS.

MANILA,JULY 13-(AP)-THE PHILIPPINE CONGRESS OPENED ITS LAST DAY OF THE SPECIAL 30-DAY SESSION TODAY, STILL DISCUSSING MAJOR ELECTION AND REHABILITATION MEASURES.

THE FIRST SESSION HAS BEEN ABSORBED MAINLY BY AN INTERNAL BATTLE FOR POLITICAL POWER AND A PROLONGED UNPRODUCTIVE DEBATE OVER THE DEFINITION OF FILIPINO COLLABORATIONISTS.

IN LIEU OF PASSING AN ANNUAL BUDGET TOTALLING 137,136,619 PESOS ($68,568,309), THE SENATE APPROVED AND SENT TO PRESIDENT SERGIO OSMENA A TEMPORARY THREE-MONTH APPROPRIATION BILL.

THE FIRST 29 DAYS SESSION SET THE TONE FOR THESE BROAD NATIONAL POLICIES:

UNQUALIFIED APPROVAL FOR THE U.S. TO ACQUIRE AND MAN ALL ESSENTIAL MILITARY BASES IN THE ARCHIPELAGO;

FULL POLITICAL INDEPENDENCE WITH A FRANK RECOGNITION OF THE ISLANDS' ECONOMIC DEPENDENCE UPON THE U.S. FOR AN INDEFINITE PERIOD;

A PERMANENT REFUSAL TO PERMIT JAPANESE TO RESIDE IN THE ARCHIPELAGO; AND,

THE JUDGMENT OF FILIPINO COLLABORATORS ON A BASIS OF INDIVIDUAL CASES.

LEGISLATIVE PRESSURE WAS LARGELY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE RE-ORGANIZATION OF THE OSMENA CABINET, HIGHLIGHTED BY THE RESIGNATIONS OF TOMAS CONFESOR, MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR, AND TOMAS CABILI, MINISTER OF NATIONAL DEFENSE. THE LATTER WAS SUCCEEDED BY ALFREDO MONTELIBANO, A GUERRILLA LEADER ON NEGROS ISLAND AND A KNOWN SUPPORTER OF SENATE PRESIDENT MANUEL ROXAS.

WHEN THE STORM ABATED, REAR ADM.J.J. (JOCKO) CLARK, COMMANDING THIS TASK FORCE, WAS CALLED ON TO SEND OUT PLANES ON A MERCY SEARCH FOR FIVE SMALL SHIPS AND TWO HOSPITAL SHIPS DRIVEN FROM THEIR COURSE IN THE SAME STORM.

THE SHIPS WERE FOUND TO BE SAFE.

BUT IN ORDER TO GET THE PLANES OFF FOR THE SEARCH, THE HORNET PERFORMED ONE OF THE WAR'S WEIRDEST FEATS IN IMPROVIZATION AND SEAMANSHIP. THIS HAPPENED AFTER ONE PLANE ATTEMPTING A NORMAL TAKEOFF OVER THE BOW WAS CAUGHT IN THE UPDRAFT AND SPUN INTO THE WATER. THE PILOT STRUGGLED FREE AND WAS RESCUED. CLARK DECIDED TO SEND PLANES OFF THE CARRIER'S STERN.

THE ENGINEERS PUT THE CARRIER IN REVERSE. THE GREAT SHIP BACKED UP UNTIL THE WIND SPEED WAS SAFE FOR BACKWARD TAKEOFFS.

AS THE TEMPO OF THE RAIDS INCREASED, THE DIRECTOR OF JAPAN'S AIR ARMS BOARD IN THE MUNITIONS MINISTRY DECLARED THAT JAPAN MUST ATTAIN AIR SUPREMACY OVER THE ALLIES TO WIN THE WAR. LT.GEN.SABURO ENDO CALLED FOR "ABSOLUTE PRIORITY" FOR AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION AT THE EXPENSE OF OTHER ARMS AND MUNITIONS.

MEANWHILE, THE JAPANESE-CONTROLLED BATAVIA RADIO SAID THAT THE NIPPONESE GARRISON FORCES ON THE ISLAND OF TERNATE, OFF THE WESTERN COAST OF HALMAHERA, WERE PUTTING UP STIFF RESISTANCE AGAINST AN ALLIED INVASION THAT STARTED JUNE 26. ALLIED SOURCES HAVE NOT REPORTED ANY LANDING IN THE AREATWEEN DUTCH NEW GUINEA AND CELEBES.

BATAVIA SAID THE JAPANESE WERE "DRIVING THE ENEMY TO THE NORTH, INFLICTING HEAVY LOSSES."

WASHINGTON, JULY 13-(AP)-EXPANSION OF THE EXPORT-IMPORT BANK'S LENDING POWERS FROM $700,000,000 TO $3,500,000,000 WAS VOTED OVERWHELMINGLY BY THE HOUSE TODAY AFTER IT DEFEATED AN EFFORT TO SET UP "ATLANTIC CHARTER" STANDARDS FOR THE LOANS.
THE VOTE ON PASSAGE WAS 102 TO 6, TOSSING THE BILL OVER TO THE SENATE. ADMINISTRATION LEADERS HOPE TO SEND THE LEGISLATION TO PRESIDENT TRUMAN IN BERLIN NEXT WEEK.
BY A 93 TO 9 VOTE, THE HOUSE TURNED BACK AN AMENDMENT BY REP. DIRKSEN (R-ILL.) THAT WOULD HAVE PROHIBITEDTHE BANK FROM MAKING LOANS TO COUNTRIES NOT ADHERING TO AND "FAITHFULLY OBSERVING" THE ATLANTIC CHARTER'S INJUNCTIONS AGAINST AGGRESSION AND TERRITORIAL AGGRANDIZEMENT, AND THOSE NOT RESPECTING THE RIGHT OF ALL PEOPLES TO CHOOSE THEIR FORM OF GOVERNMENT.
DEMOCRATS AND REPUBLICANS JOINED IN OPPOSITION, DECLARING THIS WOULD MEAN "DOLLAR DIPLOMACY" AND WOULD FORCE THE PRESIDENT TO RULE ON THE POLITICAL STATUS OF EACH NATION BEFORE IT COULD GET A LOAN.
DIRKSEN SAID THE PROPOSED AMENDMENT MEANT: "NO FREEDOM - NO DOUGH!"
CHAIRMAN SPENCE (D-KY) OF THE HOUSE BANKING COMMITTEE DESCRIBED IT AS "VAGUE, INDEFINITE AND UNCERTAIN," AND ASKED DIRKSEN WHY HE DID NOT ALSO WRITE THE TEN COMMANDMENTS AND THE SERMON THE MOUNT INTO HIS AMENDMENT.
REP. WOLCOTT (R-MICH), SENIOR BANKING COMMITTEE REPUBLICAN, SAID THE AMENDMENT WOULD "OPEN THE GATE TO PRESSURE NATIONS TO ADOPT OUR POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY." HE ADDED: "IF WE ARE GOING TO DO THAT IT WILL COST A GREAT DEAL MORE THAN $3,500,000,000."
THE BILL, WHILE INCREASING THE LENDING POWERS OF THE BANK BY $2,800,000,000, ALSO MAKES THE INSTITUTION AN INDEPENDENT, PERMANENT AGENCY OF GOVERNMENT. IT WAS CREATED BY EXECUTIVE ORDER IN 1934 AND HAS OPERATED AT A PROFIT.
THE BANKING COMMITTEE TOLD THE HOUSE THE EXPANSION OF THE BANK IS NECESSARY TO HELP INCREASE AMERICA'S FOREIGN TRADE "AND TO ENABLE THE WAR-DEVASTATED COUNTRIES TO BEGIN THE IMMENSE TASK OF RECONSTRUCTION," PRIOR TO THE FULL FUNCTIONING OF THE $9,100,000,000 WORLD BANK BEING SET UP UNDER THE BRETTON WOODS AGREEMENTS.
REPS. SUMNER (R-ILL) AND BUFFETT (R-NEB) LED THE OPPOSITION. MISS SUMNER REFERRED FREQUENTLY TO COMMUNISM AND TOLD THE HOUSE THE LEGISLATION WOULD "SUBSIDIZE ENSLAVEMENT" OF OTHER PEOPLES. BUFFETT SAID IT SMACKED OF "NEW DEAL TOTALITARIANISM."

THE CHICAGO ORDNANCE DISTRICT REPORTED TODAY PRODUCTION STARTED A FEW WEEKS AFTER THE MILE-LONG FACTORY IN KDFSTADT, (CQ) GERMANY, FELL INTO THE HANDS OF THE NINTH ARMY.
VOLKSWAGENS NOW BEING PRODUCED WILL BE USED FOR MILITARY AND CIVILIAN PURPOSES UNDER AMERICAN AND ALLIED DIRECTION. HITLER'S ARMY HAD CONVERTED THE PREWAR MODEL OF THE CAR INTO GERMANY'S NEAREST APPROACH TO THE AMERICAN JEEP.
COL. G. S. KENNEDY, NINTH ARMY ORDNANCE OFFICER, DECIDED TO REOPEN THE PLANT AFTER A SURVEY HAD SHOWN ENOUGH PARTS ON HAND FOR RESUMPTION. LT. DONALD H. RUSSELL OF MILWAUKEE WAS PLACED IN CHARGE.
RUSSELL IMMEDIATELY ORDERED GERMAN OFFICIALS TO ROUND UP WORKERS AND TEN DAYS AFTER THE WAR ENDED TH FIRST VOLKSWAGENS PRODUCED UNDER AMERICAN DIRECTION CAME OFF THE ASSEMBLY LINE. INITIAL PRODUCTION AVERAGED TEN CARS A DAY.
BUILT ALONG AMERICAN LINES, THE PLANT WAS DESIGNED AND MANAGED DURING THE WAR BY A GERMAN WHO FORMERLY WAS EMPLOYED BY A DETROIT AUTOMOBILE CONCERN. A YEAR AGO ONE-THIRD OF THE FACTORY WAS DESTROYED BY LOW-FLYING BOMBERS BUT PRODUCTION WAS MAINTAINED THROUGH USE OF PARTS MANUFACTURED WITHIN A RADIUS OF 50 MILES AND BROUGHT TO THE MAIN PLANT FOR ASSEMBLY.

U.S. Navy Bombards Another Japanese City; New Super-Battleships, 1,000 Planes Attack

Fires S ping Ports E ttered By Task Forces

ERICKSON

GUAM, Sunday, July 15—(AP) The newest, most powerful battleships in the U. S. Navy are shelling the Hokkaido steel mill port of Muroran, more than 250 miles north of the scene of the fleet's bombardment on Honshu yesterday, and the fleet's carrier planes, more than 1,000 strong, simultaneously are striking northern Japan.

Announcing this spectacular second day of the air and sea bombardment of the Japanese main home islands, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said that the great battleships Iowa, Missouri and Wisconsin are participating and that the action is continuing.

With the battleships are the destroyers McGowan, Norman Scott and Remey, a special communique said. They are bombarding in the vicinity of Muroran while the heavy ships strike directly at the city's steel plants.

ROAM JAP COAST

Naming of these vessels indicated that at least two mighty task forces of surface ships were roaming practically at will up and down the Japanese coasts.

Yesterday Nimitz announced the bombardment of Kamaishi on Honshu island by the battleships Massachusetts, Indiana and South Dakota, two heavy cruisers and four destroyers.

Those ships and carrier planes of the fleet set Kamaishi afire, destroyed or damaged 87 Japanese planes and destroyed or damaged 39 enemy ships plus destruction of 27 locomotives and railway facilities in yesterday's strikes, Nimitz said, despite unfavorable weather.

Locations of today's air strikes were not yet disclosed. [illegible] in an earlier communique, however, had said that [illegible]rface forces and the planes were hitting the enemy mainly at the Japanese "refugee port" of Hakodate, where dock and rail facilities were heavily damaged.

JUL 16 1945

"No opposition to our forces was reported," Admiral Nimitz said.

A single enemy plane was shot down "in the vicinity of our surface force," the communique noted.

It listed the following enemy shipping destroyed by carrier planes:

Two train ferries destroyed at sea, ten sm[illegible] ships, one old destroyer, t[illegible]et craft.

Enemy sh[illegible] damaged:

One train [illegible]y, four medium tankers, one medium transport, five medium cargo ships, eight small cargo ships, two destroyer-escorts, one patrol craft, one tug, and one lugger.

Marine and fleet aircraft from Okinawa sank or damaged another half-dozen enemy craft.

Most of the parked enemy aircraft were found on fields at Matsushima, Matsudo and Misawa, on Honshu.

Yesterday's surface bombardment of Japan—first of the war—continued unhindered almost within rifle shot of shore for two hours, blasting and firing Kamaishi's great steel mills.

While battleships, cruisers and destroyers of Adm. William F. Halsey's challenging armada threw tons of shells into the imperial iron and steel works rolling mill at Kamaishi, on the northeast coast of Honshu, 1,000 carrier planes beat the area and neighboring Hokkaido island to the north.

The air and surface ship strikes were the mighty Third fleet's second assault on Japan within four days, the carrier planes having hit airfields in the Tokyo area Tuesday, destroying or damaging 342 enemy planes.

The bombardment of Kamaisi, 275 miles north of Tokyo with a pre-war population of 42,000, caused "sky-reaching explosions and started roaring fires which blanketed the area with smoke," reported Associated Press Correspondent James Lindsley from the battleship South Dakota.

Striking under the direct command of Rear Adm. J. F. Shafroth, the squadron left the steel mill, one of Japan's largest demolished and the coke ovens heavily damaged and burning fiercely, said a U. S. Pacific Fleet headquarters communique.

Opposition Timid

Lindsley said the squadron "swaggered back and forth almost within rifle shot of Honshu, drawing only meager and apparently timid opposition." The warships were in plain sight of the coast for three hours before the two-hour bombardment and for some time afterward.

(Tokyo radio quoted an Imperial headquarters communique announcing the shelling of Kamaishi but did not mention damage.)

No reports of damage to the American ships had been received at the time Lindsley sent his dispatch.

The dramatic noon-time strike by fleet guns ranging from battleship 16-inchers which hurl one-ton shells to the five-inch batteries of the destroyers, was a taunt to the Japanese imperial fleet.

Halsey was hoping for a fight. Before taking his Third Fleet into Japanese waters he was asked if he thought remnants of the Nipponese navy might come out as a gesture. He replied:

"I wish they would, but they've got damned little left to gesture with."

The Third fleet has steamed far beyond key bases of Nipponese warships remaining after the enemy's defeat in the sea battle of the Philippines last October and the American naval air blows which sank the big battleship Yamato and other Japanese ships off the Ryukyus April 7.

Ships in Shafroth's bombardment squadron included the battleships Massachusetts, Indiana and South Dakota; heavy cruisers Chicago and Quincy and destroyers Southerland, Herman, Erben and Black. The Massachusetts and Indiana were among 21 or more Third Fleet warships damaged in a typhoon June 5, southeast of Japan.

The Kamaishi steel mill received coal from mines on Hokkaido island, which was hit yesterday in the naval air pounding. It was the first attack on Hokkaido, bleak fog-covered island separated from Honshu by Stugaru strait.

The Navy pilots from Vice Adm. John S. McCain's carrier units of the Third Fleet achieved complete tactical surprise in their strikes, starting at dawn, against Honshu and Hokkaido, the communique said.

Hokkaido has about 25 operational airfields and northern Honshu an equal number.

Throughout the day the Yank fighter and fighter-bomber planes attacked ships and rails ferries which transport coal to Honshu factories such as the Kamaishi steel mill across Tsugaru strait from the port of Hakodate.

While there was no immediate reports of enemy aerial opposition to the American air and surface ship attacks, Hokkaido and northern Honshu islands contain many of the enemy airdromes not yet brought under attack by U.S. raids.

9,000 Planes Remain

It has been estimated by American officers that Japan's airforce has only about 9,000 planes remaining with which to fight off U.S. attacks or to defend the homeland from invasion.

JUL 16 1945

Fleet headquarters report of the damage done in the Tuesday naval air strike at Tokyo's airfields, said 109 Japanese aircraft were destroyed on the ground, 231 more damaged on the fields. The fliers encountered no Nipponese planes over the targets, but two were shot down near the fleet.

Besides shooting up the airdromes, the Yank pilots damaged several factory buildings at Koizumi.

Five American fighter planes and five torpedo planes were lost in the strikes, with seven pilots and six plane crewmen listed as casualties.

(Indication of damage done cities in the Tokyo area in recent Marianas-based superfortress raids was disclosed in the Japanese report that Kofu, an industrial center, has been "smashed to smithereens.")

Protects New Strike

Actually, he announced the shore bombardment hours before it was confirmed by reports from the fleet—boldly telling the Japanese that the U. S. fleet was going to strike again—an unprecedented action.

The bombardment then began at 9:35 a. m. (Japanese time)—(8:35 p. m. Saturday, Eastern war time.)

The new bombardment force is commanded by Rear Adm. O. C. Badger.

The target, Muroran, is at the entrance to Uchiura Bay on southern Hokkaido, in confined waters which the fleet showed amazing temerity in entering.

Results of the shelling were not immediately available.

Fires started by yesterday's shelling of the steel city of Kamaishi, 275 miles north of Tokyo, raged on today and spread to the harbor.

A communique from Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said that today "operations are continuing in strength," with "heavy surface units and fleet aircraft engaged."

Sortie at Dawn

Presumably the carrier planes sortied at dawn as is customary, but the implication was made plain to correspondents at this headquarters that announcement of the battleships, cruisers and destroyers again being in action was made before the ships actually started something.

Thus for the first time the American command was telling the Japanese what it planned to do and almost precisely when, in an amazing challenge to the enemy to do something about it if he could.

While only general locations were indicated, a more specific communique was expected later in the day.

The carrier planes yesterday ranged from Hokkaido 400 miles southward to near Tokyo.

Destroy 24 Planes

Preliminary and incomplete reports showed that despite bad weather yesterday's carrier strikes destroyed 24 grounded Japanese planes and damaged 62, sank 15 ships—including two railroad ferries and a destroyer—and damaged 24 other ships, including a train ferry and 10 medium tankers or cargo ships.

Twenty-seven locomotives were destroyed in the airmen's savage smashes at southern Hokkaido, Halsey's Ships Sail Within Three Miles of Japan's Main Home Island.

DEMOLISH BIG STEEL PLANT

Fierce Fires Are Left Raging in Area 275 Miles From Tokyo—Planes Lash Hokkaido.

Guam, July 14 (A. P.). —The United States Third Fleet, bombarding Japan for the first time, set great fires raging through a steel city on northern Honshu today as 1,000 of its carrier planes blasted nearby targets of the northern home islands in co-ordinated blows.

The guns of the newest battleships, cruisers and destroyers wiped out the Imperial Iron & Steel Works rolling mill at Kamaishi—275 miles north of Tokyo—and fierce fires raged through adjacent coke ovens.

[Malcolm Johnson, New York Sun correspondent who witnessed the bombardment from the bridge of the battleship South Dakota, reported that the big ships sailed within three miles of the coast to deliver the blow.]

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, announcing in a special communique that the bombardment thundered on for two hours, reported that the entire area was covered by dense smoke clouds that rose thousands of feet above the city.

Admiral William F. (Bull) Halsey's Third Fleet poured a hurricane of five to sixteen-inch shells into the city before retiring.

Fleet Meets No Opposition.

The bombardment force, commanded by Rear Admiral J. F. Shafroth Jr. of Denver, apparently did not meet any Jap opposition. In his report to Nimitz, Shafroth did not mention opposition by shore batteries or planes. His announcement that the shelling continued for two hours indicates also that the results were closely observed by slow-flying observation planes from cruisers and battleships. Close observation would have been required for the Admiral to report, without qualification, that the Imperial Iron & Steel Works rolling mill was demolished.

The latest communique was the fourth issued by Nimitz today, a record number.

The Imperial Iron & Steel Works mill was supplied with coal from the neighboring island of Hokkaido, which was attacked by the carrier planes. The coal is transported across Tsugaru Strait in ships and rail ferries, which were hammered throughout the day by the Avengers, Helldivers, Corsairs and Hellcats.

Halsey's attacks by gun and by plane seemed designed to put northern Honshu's most important steel works out of business at both the blast furnaces and coal mines.

The Japs in the war factories were subjected to the same sort of merciless pounding which their soldiers had to undergo when they stood in the path of the conquering American march across the Pacific. Even as the guns roared, swarms of carrier planes that only five days before had raked Tokyo's airfields, were raining bombs, bullets and rockets on northern Honshu and the northernmost island of Hokkaido—the latter never before touched by American air power.

[The Japanese Demei Agency reported that some Superfortresses participated in the air raids, which had lasted for seven hours, and added that "at present" there was no indication "pointing to enemy plans to undertake landing operations in this part of the Japanese mainland." The broadcast was heard by the Federal Communications Commission.]

Thus did Halsey carry war relentlessly home to Japan, defying what is left of the enemy fleet and seeking out the hoarded air force which Nippon is saving against the day of invasion.

Hokkaido and northern Honshu contain the only airdromes left in the empire to which Japan could have pulled back the bulk of her air force—estimated now at 9,000 combat and training planes, some obsolete. All airfields farther south have been under almost constant reconnaissance and attack from American land-based air power.

American naval power was embarked upon its next to the last job of this war—using its guns and planes to strike at the core of Japan's war industry and paralyzing the enemy's air strength. The final job will be to support invasion, wherever it may come.

Associated Press War Correspondent James Lindsley with Halsey's fleet disclosed that the marauding forces of speedy warships had been hugging Jap waters ever since its planes pounced on Tokyo's guardian ring of air fields earlier in the week. While the northern island of Hokkaido has many air fields, few planes usually are believed based on that fog-shrouded part of the homeland.

The bombardment of the Jap shore demonstrated American mastery of the seas along Japan's vulnerable eastern coast. Far to the south are the major Jap naval bases of Kobe, Yokohama and Kure, from which what is left of the enemy's navy might sally out—if it dared—to try to intercept the Third Fleet.

The bombardment was announced by Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz in his third communique in less than five hours. The surprise strike by more than 1,000 carrier planes at Hokkaido and northern Honshu and a toll of 342 Jap aircraft and fifteen airfields destroyed or damaged in Tuesday's carrier assaults on the Tokyo area, were announced in the earlier communiques.

Both the surface bombardment and the carrier strike were under way when Nimitz announced them—one and a half hours after the ships' guns opened fire.

Recording the exact moment the historic first shell struck Japan, Nimitz—smiling but calm as ever—said the bombardment began at 12 noon today, Japanese time (11 P. M. Friday, Eastern War Time) and is "continuing at the present time." (12:30 A. M. Saturday, Eastern War Time.)

Among other ships, the bombardment group included the fast battleships Massachusetts, Indiana and South Dakota, heavy cruisers Chicago and Quincy and destroyers Southerland, Heerman, Erben and Black. The Massachusetts and Indiana were among twenty-one warships damaged in June during a typhoon.

Each of the battleships has nine 16-inch guns, hurling shells weighing over a ton, plus secondary five-inch batteries firing 50-pound projectiles. The heavy cruisers are armed with nine eight-inch guns apiece, plus five-inch secondary turrets.

Nimitz's quick announcement of the bombardment and identification of some of the biggest ships manifested a supreme disregard of enemy strength, as though he were saying:

"Here we are. Do yon want to fight?"

The carrier strike at Hokkaido originally was scheduled for Friday, the 13th, correspondents related from the scene, but was delayed by fog. As at Tokyo, the only defense was anti-aircraft fire. Tokyo's guns downed ten raiding planes, costing the lives of seven pilots and six crewmen. Today's gunners were "wild a- inaccurate," however, earl- ports said.

SHELLING CUTS JAP COAL SUPPLY

Port and Rail Installation Ravaged in Attack on Hokkaido.

GUAM, Sunday, July 15—(AP) For the moment, Hokkaido's important coal supplies—30 per cent of the empire's coal production—are completely cut off from Honshu's war plants as a result of the U. S. Fleet's air and sea assault during the last two days.

Both port and rail installations were so badly crippled that the enemy will be unable to manage more than a fraction of normal traffic, the Navy reported. Sunken ferries, especially designed and each capable of carrying 25 loaded freight cars on the 4 1-2 hour trip from Hokkaido to northern Honshu, will be difficult to replace.

The shelling of Kamaishi evidently was one of the most successful ever delivered by American ships against industrial targets. The two-hour bombardment was carried out deliberately with devastating accuracy in mid-day light and some targets were within Garand rifle range of the big ships, dispatches from the scene revealed.

Results of today's shelling of Muroran, another steel center, by another force of battleships, were not yet available.

Kamaishi is the largest Japanese or Japanese-held city the American Navy ever has bombarded. Its population was last reported as over 40,000.

In addition to 10,000,000 tons of coal annually, four-fifths of Japan's war-vital wood pulp and paper—used in explosives—come from Hokkaido through the vulnerable ferry bottleneck.

With a population of 200,000, Hakodate is one of Hokkaido's three major ports, and contains important ship construction and repair facilities—until Saturday one of the few such centers unhit by American explosives. Its facilities include a drydock capable of handling 10,000-ton ships.

YANKS CAPTURE STRONGPOINTS IN NORTHERN LUZON

MANILA, Sunday, July 15—(AP) Capture of three key strongpoints in northern Luzon from still strongly-resisting Japanese remnants was announced today by a MacArthur headquarters spokesman.

He confirmed field dispatches that Maj. Gen. Hurdis' Sixth Infantry division had taken Kiangan, which until six weeks ago was known as the enemy army headquarters in the high Cordilleras, and guerrilla seizure of Bontoc, capital of Luzon's mountain province.

In addition, Filipino army forces took Mankayan, a mining town 60 miles north of Baguio.

Although Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique of July 5 announced formal conclusion of the campaign for liberation of the Philippines, with some mopping-up still to be done, the headquarters spokesman said all three newly-captured towns were taken against "none too slight resistance."

The Tokyo radio at the same time claimed that Japan's Gen Tomoyuki Yamashita was still holding out on northern Luzon.

Yamashita, conqueror of Singapore who was sent to the Philippines with much fanfare as leader of the Japanese effort to crush MacArthur's invasion, has been the subject of recent speculation. Some liberated Filipinos had said Yamashita fled the Philippines weeks ago, but other reports said he had left only lately by air.

Wherever he may be, fall of the three Luzon mountain towns left the Japanese in northern Luzon thoroughly broken into small foraging groups, with the largest estimated to number no more than 500.

Eleven days ago the enemy was estimated to have a total of 12,000 remnants on the island.

The guerrillas who took Bontoc found it burned to the ground.

Greatest Borneo Oil Port Is Opened as Australians Push 14 Miles Up Bay's Coast

MANILA, Sunday, July 15 (AP)—Balik Papan harbor, greatest oil port of Borneo, was open to Allied shipping today, while Australian amphibious forces pushed fourteen miles up the east coast of Balik Papan Bay and seized a former Japanese seaplane base.

The enemy did not resist the new landing. Some naval supplies were captured by the Australians, but the base itself had been demolished by the retiring Japanese.

Another Australian Seventh Division force advanced a mile northward within about eight miles of the big east Borneo oil field district of Samboja on Thursday.

A Netherland Colonial and Australian force enveloping the Japanese strong point on Smashedstone Ridge, six miles north of Balik Papan from the north and east had the support of heavy artillery.

While Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters was announcing these successes, the Japanese radio admitted that the battle in the Balik Papan sector had shifted from the coastal areas to jungled hills—a tacit acknowledgement of Japanese retreat.

Gen. Masataka Yamawaki, Japanese administrator of Borneo, has returned to Japan, the Tokyo radio acknowledged. He was quoted as saying the civil administration of Borneo moved inland after the Allies landed.

Without confirmation, the Japanese also claimed that Indonesians fighting on their side charged the Australian and Netherland lines Wednesday with hand grenades.

The Australian Ninth Division on the north Borneo coast captured the town of Papar, thirty-two miles northeast of Beaufort on the Beaufort-Jesselton railroad, while Allied bombers and fighters ranged all over Borneo, supporting ground troops and sinking a Japanese freighter near Kuching.

BOMBERS CONTINUE ATTACKS ON FORMOSA

MANILA, Sunday, July 15—(AP) American Liberator bombers, continuing their series of strong neutralization raids on Formosa, set fire to oil storage facilities at Toshien while attack bombers destroyed many rail repair installations on the east coast and fighters beat up airfields, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

Weather forced cancellation of Far East air force operations against Japan from Okinawa, a communique said, but MacArthur's planes continued to range far and wide along the Asiatic coast and over the southwest Pacific.

MANILA PORT BOOMS

Manila, July 14 (A. P.).—This teeming war-wrecked harbor now has become one of the world's top ranking ports for incoming cargo.

Col. John Barthrop of Seattle, port commander for the last six weeks, said the rapid increases in Manila's cargo handling, combined with the end of the European war, put the port of the one-time jewel of the Orient ahead of Continental European ports on imports.

Unloadings are now much above Manila's pre-war average of combined incoming and outgoing cargoes.

Commodore W. A. Sullivan of 30 Fifth avenue, New York city, the Navy's foremost salvage expert, reported 400 sunken ships already have been removed as obstructions to shipping. About four months more will be required to complete the job.

Col. Wing Gets Legion of Merit

Manila, July 14 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Col. Paul R. Wing, father of actress Toby Wing, and a survivor of the Battle of Bataan who was rescued from the Japanese Cabanatuan prison camp, was awarded the Legion of Merit today for pictures he took secretly in his long months of imprisonment.

Thirty-nine other officers and men of the general headquarters signal section also were decorated for various activities.

The ceremony was recorded for television—the first time this has been done in any overseas war theater.

oard Battleship South Da- July 14 (A. For two rs the squadron swaggered k and forth within rifle shot f Honshu, drawing only most eager and apparently timid opposition.

It was as if you strutted back and forth on some enemy's front porch, peeked in his front door, messed up his parlor and asked him what he proposed to do about it. The Japanese chose to do very little about it.

As this is written there is no report of damage to American vessels in this action, one of the most spectacular of the Pacific war.

MINDANAO LANDING BY 24TH DIVISION

Manila, July 14 (A. P.).—To speed the cleanup of invaded Mindanao, elements of the Twenty-fourth Division were landed Thursday under the bombarding guns of the Seventh Fleet in Sarangani Bay. The infantrymen, also covered by Marine aircraft, were unopposed as they moved inland in pursuit of enemy forces retreating in that sector.

In northern Luzon, Sixth Division infantrymen have captured the mountain province stronghold of Kiangan, where the Japanese had held out in caves and bamboo thickets for weeks. Northeast of Baguio, the last provincial capital of Bontoc fell to guerrilla forces.

NATIONAL LOTTERY FOR PHILIPPINES

Manila, July 14 (A. P.).—The Philippines Congress authorized national lotteries for the first time and increased luxury taxes on liquor, cigarettes and similar items before adjourning its first special session last night.

Pre-war sweepstakes also were declared legal and will be resumed if horse racing returns.

The legislators also approved $50,000,000 bond issue, the proceeds to be used for operation of national Government public works, and released another 25,000,000 from the exchange standard fund for similar use.

Another measure provides for the rehabilitation of the Philippine National Bank.

President Osmena is expected to reconvene Congress probably in two weeks.

AUSTRALIANS NEAR SAMBODJA FIELDS

Manila, July 14 (A. P.).—An Australian surge through collapsing Japanese resistance to within nine miles of the Sambodja oil fields on east Borneo reported today.

hitherto fiercely fighting was routed at a point more than twenty miles north of the conquered oil port of Balikpapan as the Aussie Seventh Division scored a gain of four and a half miles.

Tokyo Radio, meanwhile, made the unconfirmed claim that Japanese planes have sunk at least one enemy destroyer in an attack on shipping outside Balikpapan harbor.

Japan to Remake a City On Unprecedented Lines

And Americans Did the Work of Clearing the Site

Japan revealed an innovation in city planning yesterday in a Tokyo broadcast which said that Kofu, 100 miles west of the capital, had been "smashed to smithereens" by a recent raid of American Superfortresses, but will be rebuilt by September as "an agrarian city with fields and rice paddies stretching endlessly, bounded by paved roads." Before the bombing Kofu had 100,000 inhabitants.

The broadcast was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

Japs Say Yamashita Still Leads in Luzon

San Francisco, July 14 (A. P.).—Radio Tokyo claimed today that Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita is still commanding Japanese troops cornered in northern Luzon, despite reports that he fled the island by plane.

Forces under Yamashita, the conqueror of Malaya, are still resisting strongly in the Cagayan valley and are "inflicting heavy losses in blood" on American troops, declared the enemy broadcast, heard by the Federal Communications Commission.

Japanese Minimize Blow

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14 (AP).—Japanese imperial headquarters today acknowledged the United States Navy's combined air and surface bombardment of northern Japan, and one army district command was quoted as saying "damage on our side was extremely ht."

Broadcasts of the attack, picked up by the Federal Communications Commission, came in piecemeal fashion and generally trailed official communiques released by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

Tokyo disclosed that the first contingent of Japanese bombed out of Japan's capital arrived at Hokkaido Island, one of the target areas of the fleet air arm, shortly before the new assault began. They left Tokyo, the broadcast said, last Monday, seeking their "new hope and land of promise."

Imperial headquarters admitted that "enemy surface craft had carried out a naval bombardment against the northern Honshu city of Kamaishi and surrounding area about noon, Japanese time, while carrier-borne aircraft were attacking air bases, harbor and other installations in the Tohoku district of northern Honshu and the southern area of Hokkaido.

The Domei news agency said it had been reported that the naval task force was accompanied by "oil tankers," indicating it would be able "to operate for two or three weeks without returning to its bases."

"At present, however," Domei said, "there are no indications pointing to enemy plans to undertake landing operations in this part of the Japanese mainland."

TRUMAN'S SHIP NEARS ANTWERP

Seven British Men-of-War Take Up Escort Duties.

Aboard Cruiser Augusta With President Truman, July 14 (A. P.).—Seven British men of war loomed out of the mist-shrouded English Channel today to escort President Truman's cruiser-borne party to Antwerp. From there the President will fly to Potsdam for his first Big Three meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Marshal Stalin.

Mr. Truman was on the Augusta's bridge when the rendezvous was joined with the British cruiser Birmingham and six destroyers. At 7 A. M., Greenwich mean time, the Birmingham and her accompanying destroyers were sighted on calm but misty waters.

The destroyers took their places, three on each side of the Augusta, and her companion ship, the Philadelphia, turning about with a precision comparable to parade ground maneuvers of smart cadets. The Birmingham, with Rear Admiral Cunningham-Graham aboard, encircled the President's ship, all of her seamen standing at attention along her rails. After this formal greeting, she raced quickly ahead to take her place in front of the Philadelphia to lead the procession past Lands End and the historic cliffs of Dover.

Gets Mail by Destroyer.

One of the destroyers put out a small boat which bounced over to the Augusta with a mail pouch from the White House. Two floating mines which had broken from their moorings were sighted near the formation.

On arrival at Antwerp, President Truman will motor to Brussels and there take off in his big C-54 plane for Potsdam and his first meeting with Prime Minister Churchill and Generalissimo Stalin Monday or Tuesday.

The President completed today the examination of the proposals he will present to Stalin and Churchill and of the data these two have submitted as subjects for discussion. Mr. Truman is firmly opposed to any secret agreements, his associates say, and will report to Congress immediately upon his return to the United States from the conference.

A side trip to France already has been ruled out and a reported visit to London is not more than a possibility. The length of the conference may determine the feasilbility of such a trip.

To Antwerp Tomorrow.

London, July 14 (A. P.).—Advisers to the Big Three moved toward Potsdam today for the opening of the conference next week of President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin. Admiral Ernest J. King, en route to Potsdam by plane, passed through Paris where he conferred with Vice-Admiral Robert Lee Ghormley, naval chief of the American occupation forces.

Indicating that the question of future Soviet - Turkish relations would have a high place on the agenda at Potsdam, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden met a second time with Turkish Foreign Minister Hasan Saka.

United States Ambassador W. Averell Harriman was en route to Potsdam from Moscow.

In an editorial, the London Times cited recent incidents at Trieste, Greece and the Middle East, and suggested that "it would be an important step forward if the Big Three could establish at Potsdam the principle that all of these issues are suitable for common consultation and action, rather than for isolated action by one Power in a zone where its interests are predominantly at stake."

ABOARD CRUISER AUGUSTA WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN, July 14—(AP) President Truman, enroute to the historic Big Three meeting at Potsdam, will arrive at Antwerp, Belgium, at 10 a.m., (British double summer time), Sunday, at the end of 3,800-mile voyage.

This was disclosed officially tonight as the President's two-ship task force moved on through the calm, but misty English channel under escort of the British cruiser rmingham and six destroyers, fly- the Stars and Stripes from masthead and their own nsigns aft.

resident, finishing work on States proposals to be made ler Stalin and Prime Minurchill at sessions starting decreed the simplest of ies for tomorrow's debarkation.

He will be met by Charles Sawyer, United States Ambassador to Belgium, and an honor guard from the 35th Division as he walks down the gangplank with James F. Byrnes, Secretary of State. The President and Byrnes will be piped off together, instead of separately, as diplomatic custom permits.

To Drive to Brussels

Upon leaving the ship two hours after it lands, the President and his official party will enter waiting automobiles for a 45-to-60-minute drive to Brussels where they will board the presidential C-45 plane for the two and a half hour flight to Potsdam, near Berlin. Sawyer will accompany the party as far as Brussels.

The route from Antwerp to Brussels will be guarded by American soldiers. There will be no reception by the Belgium government since the area is included in the Allied military zone.

The British men-of-war formed an escort for the President's ship and the accompanying cruiser, the Philadelphia, when they suddenly appeared out of the mist that hung over the English Channel at 7 a.m., (Greenwich meantime), today. They were to remain with the President's task force until it left English waters tonight.

The President's top-ranking party will be quartered in a 30-room residence only a 10-minute drive from the former castle of ex-Kaiser Wilhelm where the conferences will be held.

Russians Guard Route

While the Presidential quarters will be guarded by American troopers and secret service men under command of James Maloney, assistant chief of the service, and George Drescher, chief of the White House detail, Russian troops will guard the route from the residence to the palace.

The President slipped out of Washington the night of July 6, going by train to Newport News where he boarded the Augusta the next day. Unusually fine weather has been the lot of the party from the start.

Standing on the deck of this veteran warship, his cap over his heart, President Truman acknowledged today the honors paid him by the British men-of-war upon their arrival as an official escort.

Two floating mines were sighted near the convoy, reminders of the European war whose aftermath is a prime concern of the Potsdam nference.

FRATERNIZATION RULING RELAXED

Allied Soldiers Now Allowed to Talk to German Adults in Public.

LONDON, July 14 — (AP) The non-fraternization policy was relaxed today to allow American, British and Canadian occupation troops in Germany and Austria to talk with grownups in the streets and in public places.

Up to now, they could speak only to children. The penalty for violation was a $65 fine.

Almost identical statements by Gen. Eisenhower and Field Marshal Montgomery disclosed the policy change, which had been debated on the highest levels in the past month by American and British leaders.

The action came as Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters announced that 50,000 persons had been arrested in two months in Germany in a de-Nazification program by United States Army security forces operating in the American occupation zone. The announcement said the arrests were contin[illegible] the rate of 700 daily.

Even before the frat[illegible]ition ban was officially modified, American troops were smiling and holding hands with frauleins in the cafes of Berlin, where Russian rule control. The Russians never had any regulation against talking with Germans.

The new rules, however, do not say soldiers can date frauleins.

One British senior staff officer agreeing that the wording of the announcement seemed to give a wide range for discretion, said he would interpret the orders to mean that soldiers could not walk arm in arm with frauleins, or take them to public places to drink beer. If they were sitting in a cafe with a fraulein, he said, it would be hard to prove who bought the beer.

Presumably, too, British soldiers could attend a public German dance. There was a question, though, whether they could hold the frauleins in their arms and swing around the dance floor.

One British officer said the change simply was to put soldiers on "smiling and talking terms" with the Germans.

Gen. Mark Clark, saying the modification order by Eisenhower applied to United States troops in Austria, disclosed that he was studying possible future relaxation of the rules there, where the Allied objective is to help Austria become an independent nation again.

Eisenhower's Statement

The text of the American announcement said:

"Gen. of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower announced today a further relaxation in non-fraternization regulations in the United States zone of occupation. He stated:

"'In view of the rapid progress which has been made in carrying out Allied denazification policies, and in removing prominent Nazis from all positions of responsibility in German life, it is desirable and timely to permit the personnel of my command to engage in conversation with adult Germans in the streets and in public places. Orders are being issued accordingly.'"

Montgomery, who has been telling the British cabinet for weeks that relaxation of the regulations was necessary, said in a news letter to British troops that the Germans had shown themselves "willing to obey my orders and to cooperate in reconstruction of their country on non-Nazi lines."

Troops under his command, however, must not "for the present enter homes of Germans, nor permit them to enter any premises you are using except for duty or work."

Eisenhower and his officers were known to have regarded non-fraternization as essential in Germany as long as fighting continued, and long enough afterward to make sure civilians were under control.

The strict non-fraternization rule, it soon became evident, was more unworkable with each week of the peace. Those who argued against it said it was not in the nature of American soldiers not to talk with people, and that an unenforceable rule only weakened military discipline and the respect of the Germans. German girls teased soldiers who risked a penalty if they did more than smile back.

ALLIES EASE CURB ON FRATERNIZING

London, July 14 (A. P.).—American and British forces occupying Germany and Austria today relaxed the non-fraternization policy to permit troops to talk with adult Germans on the streets and in public places.

Gen. Eisenhower and Field Marshal Montgomery announced the action. Up to now, soldiers "fraternizing" with the Germans have been subject to $65 fines. The rule against even talking with the Germans was put into effect when the Western Allies entered Germany. The Russians took no similar action. American troops in Berlin, where Russian rules control, were holding frauleins' hands in cafes even before today's action by Eisenhower.

Until today's official relaxation, troops of the Western Allies had been restricted to a friendly attitude toward "little children."

Eisenhower said:

"In view of the rapid progress which has been made in carrying out Allied de-Nazification policies and in removing prominent Nazis from all positions of responsibility in German life, it is believed desirable and timely to permit the personnel of my command to engage in conversation with adult Germans on the streets and in public places. Orders are being issued accordingly."

Montgomery's statement was in virtually the same words.

British Affirm They Support Greek Borders

Athens to Send Missions to U. S., England and Russia to Explain Its Problems

LONDON, July 14 (AP).—A British Foreign Office commentat[illegible] reaffirmed today Great Britain's six-year-old policy of supportin[illegible] Greece's territorial integrity bu[illegible] declined to answer a question on whether Britain would support Greece in an argument between Greece and Yugoslavia.

Meanwhile, the Soviet press, in dispatches from Yugoslavia and Albania and in a cartoon by its favorite political caricaturist, continued its critical attitude toward recent happenings in Greece.

At Athens, the Greek Foreign Affairs Committee voted to send missions to the United States, Britain and Russia to enlighten public opinion on the situation in Greece. The missions will be high-level bodies headed by former foreign ministers. Foreign Minister John Sofianopolous, who probably will retire upon his return from the United States, may head the mission to Moscow.

Albania Warns Greece

Referring to denials by the Greek government of reports that many Greeks and Macedonians were fleeing into Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, the Soviet official news agency, Tass, in a Belgrade dispatch, quoted the Yugoslav Ministry of Information as saying that the number of such refugees is increasing constantly and now exceeds 20,000.

Another Tass dispatch quoted Major General Mosiu, chief of staff of the Albanian Army, as warning the Greeks in a speech at Tirana that the Albanian Army was not like Mussolini's Italian soldiers.

"We do not claim any foreign territory," the dispatch quoted him as saying, "but we will not allow anything that belongs to us to be torn away. We are ready even at the price of sacrifices to defend our achievements. Let the whole world know this."

Boris Emifov's cartoon, published in the Soviet newspaper "Trud," contained captions accusing Greek "Fascists and monarchists" of making speeches of hatred against Russia, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Albania and of having a "warlike softening of the brain."

WAVELL ADMITS INDIA TALKS FAIL

London, July 14 (A. P.).—The India Office announced today that efforts to form a more representative Indian Government proposed by Viceroy Lord Wavell had failed and a dispatch from Simla quoted Wavell as saying that he held himself responsible for the failure.

The conference was called by Wavell to draw up plans for a Government which would place almost all powers in the hands of Indian representatives, who would be selected regardless of creed or caste. It had been adjourned for two weeks before reassembling this morning.

"Nobody can regret this more than I do myself," Wavell was quoted as saying. "I propose to take a little time to consider what way I can best help I[illegible] after the failure of the co[illegible]ence.

"You can all help by refraining from incriminations," he added, "law and order must be maintained."

The conference was deadlocked over inability of the leaders of the Congress party and the Moslem League to agree on the question of representation on the governing council proposed by Wavell.

Cripps For India Home Control

London, July 14 (AP)—In the wake of the failure of the Simla Conference, Sir Stafford Cripps proposed tonight that immediate steps be taken to give India self-government under a constitution.

Sir Stafford, who carried an unsuccessful plan for postwar dominion status to India in 1942, urged that elections be held for a new Indian constituent assembly which would draw up the constitution. He said:

"We should, I believe, decide to skip the temporary readjustment of the central (Indian) Government which has become impossible owing to the views and fears of the Moslem League and go straight ahead with the permanent solution.

Viceroy Thanks Indians

Earlier, the India office had announced that Viceroy Lord Wavell had terminated the Simla Conference, which was called in an effort to organize an interim Indian government with greater Indian representation, after Indian leaders had failed to reach a requisite measure of agreement."

In a statement issued at Simla the Viceroy thanked the Indian leaders for the help they had given him, said that the responsibility for the failure of the conference was his and asked them to exercise the "greatest possible restraint."

The conference became deadlocked on the issue of representation on the Viceroy's proposed provisional executive council. Mahomed Ali Jinnah, head of the Moslem League, maintained that only the league could speak for India's Moslem population.

Insisted On Naming Members

The Congress party, of which Mohandas K. Gandhi is the spiritual head, insisted on naming certain of its Moslems members to posts on the council.

Sir Stafford conceded that under his self-government proposal the question of the formation of a separate Moslem state (Pakistan) "must form a major issue." He added that it was to be hoped that "some compromise solution of the Pakistan issue" could be arrived at in the constituent assembly he suggested.

LONDON, July 14 (U.P.) — The text of Viscount Wavell's statement at the final meeting of Indian political leaders in Simla today, issued by the India Office:

I must give the conference an account of what has happened since we adjourned on June 29. As you know, my original intention was that the conference should agree upon the strength and composition of the Executive Council and that thereafter the parties should send me lists of names. To these names I would, if necessary, have added names of my own and attempted to form on paper an Executive Council which might be acceptable to His Majesty's Government, myself and the conference.

I intended to discuss my selections with the leaders and finally to put them to the conference. Unfortunately, the conference was unable to agree about the strength and composition of the Executive Council, and on June 29 I undertook, with the approval of the conference, to endeavor to produce a solution not based on any formula agreed to in advance. I asked the parties to let me have lists of names and said I would do what I could to produce a solution acceptable to the leaders and to the conference.

I received lists from all parties represented here, except from the Moslem League. I was, however, determined that the conference should not fail until [illegible] made every possible effort to bring it to a successful ending. I therefore made my provisional selections, including certain Moslem League names, and I have every reason to believe that if these selections had been accepted here they would have been acceptable to His Majesty's Government.

A Balanced Group

My selections would, I think, have given a balanced and efficient Executive Council whose composition would have been reasonably fair to all parties. I did not find it possible, however, to accept the claims of any party in full. When I explained my solution to Mr. Jinnah, he told me that it was not acceptable to the Moslem League and he was so decided that I felt it would be useless to continue the discussions. In the circumstances, I did not show my selections as a whole to Mr. Jinnah. There was no object in showing them to the other leaders.

The conference has therefore failed. Nobody can regret this more than I do myself. I wish to make it clear that the responsibility for the failure is mine. The main idea underlying the conference was mine. If it had succeeded, its success would have been attributed to me, and I cannot place the blame for its failure upon any of the parties. I ask party leaders to accept this view and to do all they can to insure that there are no recriminations.

It is of the utmost importance that this effort to secure agreement between the parties and communities should not result in the worsening of communal feeling.

I have now to consider the next steps. I must remind you that, whatever happens, the first two of the three tasks mentioned in my broadcast—the prosecution of the war against Japan and the carrying on of the administration and preparation for post-war development—must be performed by the Government of India for the time being in office.

Any Hindrance Barred

It will be my duty to see that these tasks are performed with the greatest energy that I can impose, and I cannot permit any hindrance to them. I propose to take a little time to consider in what way I can best help India after the failure of the confer[illegible]

[illegible]ainst [illegible]n mus[illegible]
[illegible]var against [illegible]n mus[illegible]
ried on, and law and orde[illegible] be maintained until I see my way more clearly than I do now. It may be difficult, perhaps impossible, to suggest any new move.

No government can carry on under the daily prospect of change or dissolution. I have to secure stability and day-to-day efficiency of my Government, and it would be impossible to enter upon continuous, or even frequent, political discussions of this kind. Whatever decisions His Majesty's Government may take in the near future must, therefore, in all probability hold good for some little time.

I thank you all for the help you have given me and for the restraint, patience and understanding which you have shown. Do not any of you be discouraged by this setback. We shall overcome our difficulties in the end. The future greatness of India is not in doubt.

SEPTEMBER TRIAL OF NAZIS PLANNED

London, July 14 (A. P.).—Final details of a master plan for an unprecedented collective trial of captured Nazi bigwigs were being worked out in London today by Supreme Court Justice Robert Jackson, chief American war crimes prosecutor, and representatives of France, Great Britain and Russia.

A responsible American source said that hundreds of crack Army investigators, including former G men and skilled legal experts, had uncovered evidence which virtually assures the trial of such high Nazis as Hermann Goering, Rudolf Hess and Joachim von Ribbentrop by September.

The investigators were credited with uncovering evidence which involves German industrialists, diplomats, military and naval authorities and Nazi party chiefs in a factual but almost fantastic record of Nazi preparation for war and world conquest, this source said.

The documents, from Nazi secret files, including transcripts of conferences between top-ranking Nazi leaders, are being integrated with evidence on the record.

Secret British Naval Base Ready When Japan Struck

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, July 15—A secret British naval base was hacked out of the jungle on a group of coral islands in the Indian Ocean before the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor, the Admiralty revealed today.

The Herculean task of building a base with full defenses for war against Japan was accomplished by a force of Royal Marines working against time and tropical disease. More than 23 per cent of the men were hospitalized during the first three months.

Port "T" as the anchorage was identified on naval maps, was on Addu Atoll 500 miles from Colombo and 3,000 miles from Australia. It served as a vital link on the convoy route to Australia and for certain operations in the Indian Ocean.

Marines went ashore on the atoll in the extreme south of the Maldive Islands in September, 1941, and by the time Japan declared war the base was ready. The first convoy of five troopships put in there four months from the day the marines landed.

400 Sailors Ran Nazi Blockade From Sweden

Aided by Fogs and Snow, They Brought Out 35,000 Tons of Vital Materials

LONDON, July 14 (AP).—Sir George Binney, commander of British blockade runners in the North Sea, told today the full story of how he and his men brought out 35,000 tons of precious materials from Sweden during the war years.

Under cover of fogs, snow and long northern nights, he defied the German blockade of the Skagerrak, the water approaches to Sweden, for more than four years.

Sir George commanded about 400 British and Norwegian merchant seamen. The cargoes they brought from Sweden could not be obtained anywhere else in the world. They included special steel items, he said, such as ball bearings, and twenty machines which increased British production of aircraft engines by 400 per cent.

These machines were so valuable that special shelters were built to protect them against air attacks.

The supplies obtained from Sweden were shared by war industries in the United States and in various parts of the British Empire. Eventually they were able to reproduce the Swedish equipment.

Sir George, a stocky man of about forty-five, told how he took his first cargo out of Gothenburg on Jan. 23, 1941, in five modern Norwegian cargo vessels chartered by the British government.

The Gestapo used every means to thwart the operation, planting agents among the crews and even hiding a microphone in the chimney of Sir George's Gothenburg apartment. But the ships were loaded successfully and made a dash for it in a snowstorm. They were not attacked until they were in contact with British vessels, and all got to England safely.

Another expedition was organized in the winter of 1941-'42 with ...n Norwegian ships that had remained in Gothenburg Harbor and were chartered by the British Ministry of War Transport.

At dusk on March 1, Sir George took them out on what proved to be his most unlucky expedition. Only two of his ships reached Britain. The commander's flagship and another vessel were driven back to Swedish territorial waters. Three were blown up and their crews captured. One had to be scuttled. Another struck a mine. Still another was torpedoed from the air.

After this adventure, Sir George recalled, the Germans did their best to capture him. Because of threats made against him in the Nazi press, he was commissioned by his government as a commander in the Royal Navy Reserve, so that he would be a prisoner of war if captured and could not legally be handed over to the Gestapo.

He got back to England later, and five shallow-draft coastal motor craft were constructed for him. Through the winter of 1943-'44 he penetrated the German blockade eight times, dodging mines, submarines and aerial and surface patrols.

Throngs on Cliffs See Truman Sail By Dover

DOVER, England, July 14 (AP).—Hundreds of holiday-makers lined the high chalk cliffs of Dover to watch President Truman's convoy pass through the English Channel late this afternoon.

With a British light cruiser leading the way and flanked on both sides by destroyers, the President's freshly painted cruiser Augusta was a picturesque sight as it sailed through the strait at good speed. The President is expected to land at Antwerp, Belgium, tomorrow.

Leopold Reported Undecided

BRUSSELS, July 14 (AP).—Premier Achille Van Acker returned tonight from King Leopold's mountain retreat at St. Wolfgang, Austria, and announced that the monarch had reached no decision on demands that he abdicate. Van Acker said there was hope that Leopold would have an announcement soon.

[The Brussels radio said the senate was summoned into special session immediately after Van Acker's arrival].

SHAEF Ends 17 Months' Job; Is Dissolved by Eisenhower

Paris, July 14 (A. P.).—The greatest unified military command of all time—Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Force—was dissolved at 12.01 A. M. today, seventeen months and one day after it was launched to bring Germany to her knees in defeat.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, the supreme commander, said it was his hope and prayer that the unparalleled unity that had been achieved would point the way to a permanent and lasting peace.

British newspapers paid tribute to the Supreme Command and Eisenhower's leadership, and the Army newspaper Stars and Stripes hailed it as a conclusive demonstration of the effectiveness of international co-operation.

As SHAEF was dissolved, the Allied armies reverted to their own national control and Eisenhower became strictly an American commander for the first time in nearly three years. He stepped into his new job as commander of USFET—United States Forces in the European Theater—and as American representative on the European Control Council at Berlin.

Headquarters at Frankfurt.

Eisenhower, who returned to his Frankfurt, Germany, headquarters from the United States on Wednesday, bade farewell to the troops who had served under his command in an order of the day which said, "No praise is too high for the manner in which you have surmounted every obstacle."

Under the new setup, United States headquarters, at least for the time being, will be at Frankfurt. Under USFET will be two major groups, or functions: the Communications Zone and Occupation and Control. The former is commanded by Lieut.-Gen. John C. H. Lee, and will devote itself to the major task of getting men out of the European theater.

Occupation and Control covers all American troops in Germany, whether there to stay or not. It may be well toward the end of 1945 before the number of troops left in Germany is down near the size to be designated ultimately as the Army of Occupation.

French and British Forces.

The French have set up an occupation force which in effect consists of the French First Army, and the British Twenty-first Army Group remains as the basis on which the British occupation and control organization will be built.

SHAEF Rear in London was all but dissolved in recent weeks, and in Paris all that remained were public relations offices and some facilities, largely communications and transportation.

But in Italy, the oldest of Allied commands in the European war, AFHQ, remained in effect. Present indications were that it would survive in some form or another for many months, probably as long as there are any substantial number of American and British troops in Italy.

SHAEF officially came into existence on February 13, 1944. Its original designation was Cossac—Chief of Staff Supreme Allied Command. Its first headquarters were a few buildings in a residential section of London.

On October 1 SHAEF Forward moved to Jullouville near Granville in Normandy. Later Eisenhower moved his forward headquarters to Reims, then to Frankfurt.

PARIS GAY IN SPOTS ON 'BASTILLE DAY'

PARIS, July 14—(AP) There was gaiety in Paris as the capital celebrated Bastille Day today—but only islands of gaiety in a sober city.

Despite fireworks, water festivals, military reviews, parades, snake dancing in the boulevards and street dancing in the squares, most Parisians agreed that the celebration "wasn't the same."

"The people are serious," a Frenchman said. "It's all very well to show them a military spectacle but they're still worried about food."

The crowds watched a parade by the left wing "Etats Generaux" in silence, and although there were cheers for Gen. De Gaulle in a military parade earlier, handclapping was more general than shouts.

It was the first Bastille Day celebration since1939.

Herriot Backs De Gaulle On Plan for Constitution

Denounces Leftists Who Would Abolish the Senate

PARIS, July 14 (AP).—Former French Premier Edouard Herriot, in a Bastille Day speech today, announced his support of General Charles de Gaulle's plan to give France a regularly elected government, and attacked left-wing groups advocating the abolition of the French Senate.

Herriot, president of the Radical Socialist party, discussing De Gaulle's plan for a general election October 14 to name a National Assembly, said he believed it was unnecessary to discard France's present constitution. In effect, he called for a return to the French governmental system as it existed before the war, retaining the constitution of 1875 and both the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies.

BASTILLE DAY IS CELEBRATED

French Mark Holiday First Time Since 1939.

Paris, July 14 (A. P.).—France's resurgent armed forces proudly paraded before cheering throngs in Paris and a small, silent group of Germans in Berlin today in celebration of the great French national holiday—Bastille Day.

Dancing, singing Parisians held their first open celebration of the holiday since 1939. Surrounded by representatives of the armed forces of the Allied Powers and the Bey of Tunis, Gen. de Gaulle reviewed the parade in Paris from a stand in the Place de la Bastille, site of the gloomy medieval fortress, the capture of which 156 years ago became a symbol of the French Revolution.

The parade moved through the city's boulevard's to the Place de la Concorde and up the Champs Elysees to the Arc de Triomphe, where midnight ceremonies honoring the war dead began the formal observance of the holiday.

In the fallen German capital the French Tricolor was raised over Berlin's victory column—commemorating the birth of the German Empire with a defeat of France three-quarters of a century ago. Generals of the Russian, British and American Armies and a group of eighty-eight French officers, who had just arrived in Berlin from prisoner of war repatriation camps in eastern Europe, witnessed the parade of veterans of the French First Armored Division.

In the battle-torn grounds of Tiergarten Park more than 100 shabbily dressed German civilians also saw the French hour of glory.

LaGuardia Sends Message.

Mayor LaGuardia, in a message to the French people which was recorded yesterday and transmitted by shortwave today to the Radio Diffusion Nationale (the French national radio), hailed Bastille Day, 1945, as "perhaps the greatest Bastille Day in the history of France because it is the opening of a new era, it is a return of a greater France and the coming of permanent peace and a happy world."

Declaring that the people of the United States have always had friendship and love for the people of France, "regardless of what any one else, whether high or low, or any department of Government may say, think or do," the Mayor recalled his recent meeting with a board of engineers from France planning a new airport for Paris, and predicted that the time is not far distant when citizens of the two countries will visit each other daily.

"We will dine with each other in the evening and return home in the morning," he predicted, "for the close friendship that has existed for over a century and a half is now even closer with our new means of transportation and the great airports we are building. The sound of an airplane no longer will be the signal of death and destruction, a sound of horror, but an announcement of friendly approach, of happy tidings of dear ones meeting each other and exchanging the good things of life."

French Censor News Now

PARIS, July 14 (AP).—News from Paris is being transmitted today for the first time with the French censorship stamp, following dissolution of SHAEF.

Correspondents have been informed that their copy is censorable only on grounds of military security. Former British and American SHAEF censors, now under control of Communication Zone Headquarters, are still stamping the copy. The difference is that they are using a French stamp and French censors sit with them, sharing the job.

Poland, Off 'Allied Team' By Error, Is Restored

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, July 14—The United States Army in Europe issued a statement today which said that through an error in transmission the name of Poland was omitted from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's final order of the day yesterday on the termination of his combined command.

The whole order was reprinted adding Poland to Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, France, Luxembourg, The Netherlands and Norway as nations whose people joined with the British Commonwealth and the United States in what General Eisenhower described as a "truly Allied team."

Italy Declares War On Japan Her Former Partner In Axis

Rome, July 14 (AP)—The Foreign Ministry announced tonight that Italy had declared war on her former Axis partner of Japan, effective tomorrow.

The war declaration, a communiqué said, was "another proof on the eve of the Potsdam (Big Three) conference of Italy's resolute will to fight regimes of aggression and militarist imperialism wherever they might be."

Declaring that Italian national interests were not directly concerned in the Far East, the Government said that Italy nevertheless would contribute to the war in the Pacific with the "same courage and sacrifice" with which she fought the Germans and Fascists for nearly two years after her surrender to the Allies.

"Italy thus assumes her place ever more firmly in the ranks of the United Nations in full equality of obligations and awaiting those equalities for rights which all her people legitimately desire will be granted her," the communiqué said.

The Government announcement noted that diplomatic relations between Italy and Japan had been interrupted since September, 1943, when Italy surrendered, and asserted that Japan even before that time had arrested and interned all Italian diplomatic and consular representatives in violation of international law.

The war declaration, it was understood, was made with the approval of the Allies, since under the present armistice Italy cannot make any significant international move without consulting the Allied governments.

Polish Troops in Italy Are Free to Go Home

Gen. Anders Warns, However, They May Serve Russia

ROME, July 14 (AP).—Polish troops in Italy have been told by General Wladyslaw Anders that they are free to return to Poland if they desire, but he said they might be compelled to serve under Russian command and possibly even be deported to slavery in Siberia.

A Polish public relations officer said today that Anders visited supply units under his command at Bari this week and in each instance told the soldiers they would be given facilities to return to Poland upon written application, but he said that any who did would forfeit any right to return to his corps.

The officer quoted Anders as saying to the men that the situation in Poland might become more unfavorable in the next few months and that deportations might be made similar to those he said occurred shortly after the Russians entered eastern Poland.

10th Mountain Coming Home

ROME, July 14 (AP).—The crack United States 10th Mountain Division, originally slated as an occupation force in the Trieste area, will be redeployed to the Pacific theater, by way of the United States, it was announced today.

The 10th is being relieved of its occupation assignment by the veteran 34th Division, and is expected to be reorganized in the United States as a standard infantry division.

FRANCO DROPPING MORE FALANGISTS

Madrid, July 14 (A. P.).—Spanish newspapers carried today the full text of the "Bill of Rights" passed unanimously yesterday by the Cortes (Parliament), but made no mention of the shake-up believed imminent in the Cabinet of Generalissimo Franco.

A high Government official said last night that Franco had dropped the secretary-general of the Falange party from his Cabinet, apparently in a move to make his Government more acceptable to the United States. Resignations of at least four other Cabinet members, all presumably members of the Falange, were reported on Franco's desk awaiting action. He ousted the Falange secretary, Jose Luis Arrese, by eliminating the position of Minister without portfolio, the Government official said.

The Bill of Rights, whose essentials were released to the foreign press more than two months ago theoretically gives Spaniards the right of freedom of expression, provided "such ideas do not attack the fundamental principles of the State."

Seized Nazi Loot Piled High

Allies Assemble Hogsheads of Jewels and Rare Metals Taken From Victims.

GEO TUCKER

Frankfurt, Germany, July 14 (A. P.).—The pillaged wealth of Nazi occupied Europe, taken from the teeth of murdered Jews and the coffers of seized governments alike, was piled ceiling high today in the Reichsmark Bank of Frankfurt.

In addition to gold and silver there were hogsheads of pearls, rubies and sapphires. Wooden cases held gold and silver fillings from the teeth of concentration camp victims.

Currency experts from the United States Treasury and the Bank of England were identifying and making an inventory of the Nazi loot.

"An accurate estimate of the total value can never be made," said Col. Bernard Bernstein, director of the finance division of the United States Group Control Council.

From Fifty-three Caches.

He said that the collection included fifty-three separate deposits hidden by the Nazis and unearthed by United States troops during the final days of the war. These included gold bullion discovered by the United States Third Army in the Merkers Salt Mines and special hidden hoards of Heinrich Himmler's SS organization which were buried under chicken coops on a German farm.

In once cache thousands of wedding rings stripped from the fingers of women victims of the Nazis in Germ[illegible] land and other occu[illegible] were strung on rop[illegible] try sausages.

Barrels of Lo[illegible]

"We have found barr[illegible] ver and gold wrist watch[illegible] rette cases, wedding ring[illegible] lets and jewelry of every[illegible] tion," Bernstein added[illegible] was taken from Nazi c[illegible] tion camp victims."

The bullion was sta[illegible] cordwood and one lar[illegible] held nothing but securi[illegible] almost every country[illegible] world. The loot includ[illegible] of Russian rubbles and $34,000,000 in United States gold coins.

Leland Howard, assistant director of the Bureau of the Mint in Washington, estimated that it would take eight weeks to identify the bullion. Working with him were John D. Jamieson of the Denver mint, Theodore Schiercke, assistant superintendent of melting in the New York Assay Office, and their British counterparts from the Bank of England.

Paris, July 14 (A. P.).—Diplomats possessing good information expressed the belief today that Generalissimo Franco would announce dissolution of the Falange, Spain's State party, next Wednesday, along with the resignation of Falangist ministers. They said they doubted that Franco himself would resign, even in favor of a regency. Setting up of a Spanish regency has been rumored for months, with monarchists opposing it on the ground that Franco would maneuver himself into the position of regent.

Fraulein And ...nks Pleased At Prospects Of Fraternizing

Schierstein, Germany, July 14 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's relaxation of the nonfraternization rule met with the warm approval of doughboys today. They declared frankly that the rule never had been enforceable and had been violated ever since it was put into effect.

"The order was being violated right and left," said Corporal Seymour Friedman, of Chicago, "and it was high time the Army came to the decision to make changes."

German Girls Happy

There was a noticeable excitement among German girls as the news spread quickly through this town on the Rhine. They had many smiles for the soldiers. Their attitude was summed up by buxom, 22-year-old Hedy Bauer, who said:

"Now we can be decent and walk around in daylight to talk to Americans. We won't have to sneak around to see the boys and always be afraid of the military police. This is better, although I don't see where there will be any real difference since American soldiers have been promenading with fraulein since the day they arrived."

One doughboy, however, whose views were shared by some of his friends, said "the general's order has taken all the fun out of fraternizing. It was fun when you had to slip around to see a girl. You did it because they said you couldn't."

An Impersonal View

S/Sgt. Edward Detjen, of St. Louis, grinned when he heard the news, and said, "There'll be some changes made. Now the boys will get around more; the girls will see more guys, and this will break up the cases where a soldier has been seeing one girl steady."

Sergt. Roy H. Wells, of Washington, could take an impersonal view of the situation because he is leaving Monday for home. His reaction was: "The nonfrat ban never did make sense in the first place because it wasn't enforceable. It's much better to relax rules and not have a situation like the old prohibition days in the States."

While many soldiers approved of the reason behind the nonfraternization order—the necessity for security and a stern attitude toward the German people—they felt the ban was a violation of their personal sense of duty and patriotism. Many who had no intention of fraternizing opposed the order on principle.

Fraulein Raises Eyebrows

Along the Rhine here today, doughboys mingled with attractive girls, swimming and boating.

When one fraulein heard of the order, she asked a soldier, "does it mean now that we can hug and kiss?"

"Naw," the soldier said. "It means we can only meet and talk on the streets and in public places."

The fraulein raised her eyebrows at this.

There was some misunderstanding among the Germans on relaxation of the ban and many thought the nonfraternization policy had been abolished altogether.

S/Sgt. Joe Todd, of South Grant Falls, Mont., was standing on the bank of the Rhine watching swimmers when approached by a German man and his wife and child. They invited Todd to their home for dinner.

Todd refused the invitation, explaining that the order permitted fraternization only on the streets and in public places.

ARBEN FIRM WAS NAZIS' ACE

Giant Chemical Trust Kept War Machine Going.

WHITEHEAD

Hoescht, Germany, July 14 (A. P.).—The Nazi war machine would have collapsed without I. G. Farbenindustrie, the great German chemical trust, in the opinion of Col. Edwin Pillsbury, who directed military seizure of twenty-four Farben plants in the United States zone of occupation.

Pillsbury said investigation has disclosed that the combine controlled virtually all German chemical production, supplied the Nazis with needed foreign exchange, engaged in industrial sabotage, checked on chemical production in every country and hampered production outside Germany.

Department of Justice and United States Group Control experts are delving into seven tons of records in an attempt to trace the trust's machinations and stockholdings.

May Find Key to Cartels.

The documents may hold the key to all the secrets of its intricate cartel operations, which gave it a strong hold on industries in almost every part of the world, including the United States.

Some of the findings to date are so startling that a brigadier-general whose name cannot be given is flying to Washington with documents to place into the record against the corporation.

"It is one of the most amazing stories of modern times," said Pillsbury. "The manner in which Farben agents gained control of certain industries and carried on a role of domination in the world's chemical industry is almost unbelievable."

The breakup of I. G. Farbenindustrie in Germany may become a matter of policy for the four-Power Control Council in Berlin, since Farben plants are scattered throughout Germany. In the American zone alone Pillsbury estimated the physical value of property seized at more than $50,000,000, exclusive of cash and bank credits.

POPULATION SHIFTS BARRED IN BERLIN

Berlin, July 14 (A. P.).—American and British authorities took official steps today to freeze population distribution in Berlin and prevent a possible large scale migration of civilians from the Soviet zones of occupation.

German food and housing bureaus were instructed to sanction no transfers to American and British ration lists without special cause. Russian control extends over eight of twenty boroughs and 40 per cent of the city's estimated 2,750,000 population.

Pending further directives from highest Allied levels in Germany, American and British administrators in Berlin continued the basic Soviet policies for the city.

Coal from the British-held Ruhr will provide fuel and power for most of Berlin. The American zone in Germany is expected to contribute a major share of Berlin's food.

VON RUNDSTEDT CITES AIR-GROUND DISUNITY

BADKISSINGEN, Germany, July 14 (AP)—Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt disliked the idea of a separate German air force because of the troubles encountered getting tactical support from the Luftwaffe and would have preferred the liaison system used by Allied air and ground leaders.

The German commander in the west expressed these views in an interview this month with Maj. Gen. Liver P. Weyland, commander of the Ninth Air Force and former commander of the Nineteenth Tactical Air Command, which battered Marshal von Rundstedt's armies with fighter bombers and medium bombers.

General Weyland asked the question to obtain the enemy's views on the value of our tactics and to attempt to learn how and why the German air force failed.

"We unfortunately did not have close coordination," Marshal von Rundstedt said. "We had to go to the Luftwaffe and plead with them."

A high British officer, questioned about that later, said it was just the excuse of a beaten general and the fact was that the Germans never really understood air war and never had either enough or the proper types of warplanes.

BENES SEEKS SPEED IN GERMANS' SHIFT

Czechoslovakia Ready to Act Against Hungarians, Too, Once Big 3 Approves

STEINHOFF

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, July 14 (AP)—President Eduard Benes said today that Czechoslovakia could begin removing her unreliable German and Hungarian residents within a few weeks if the Big Three approved at Potsdam.

Nothing less than the transfer of 2,000,000 to 2,500,000 Germans and about 400,000 Hungarians can assure to the nation a reasonably secure future, Dr. Benes said in an exclusive interview.

Czechoslovakia, he added, is determined never again to try unworkable compromises with German minorities, as she did in 1939 when the Germans showed that their allegiance lay across the border. "But the whole project of cleansing Czechoslovakia in this radical manner can be undertaken only with wholehearted Big Three approval and cooperation," the Czechoslovak President said.

"We have presented our plans officially and hope ardently for favorable early action by the Big Three powers."

Russia from the start was sympathetic toward the transfer. Approval of the western powers was regarded as equally necessary because their occupation forces within Germany would be obliged to make room for Germans moved in great masses to the Reich.

Dr. Benes said that there were three essential points to the plan, which amounts to a proposal for a major population shift in central Europe. They are, first, that it be accomplished with Big Three understanding and approval; second, that it will be well organized and carried out with the least possible friction; third, that the whole program be conducted as humanely as possible.

President Benes said that he wanted no repetition of the wartime refugee spectacle, with suffering thousands cluttering the highways.

"We could start within a few weeks," he said, "but of course, preparations within Germany, such as finding room and providing food, might take longer. It has been estimated that the whole enterprise might take a year and a half."

Among Czechoslovaks, from the President down, there is an overwhelming conviction that this form of settlement of the minor question is the country's only promise of lasting internal tranquillity. There is the utmost determination to carry out the program and confidence that Big Three approval will be obtained.

Dr. Benes said that the removal of approximately 3,000,000 of the country's population would leave no vacuums. "The border regions in which the Germans are situated are over-populated and over-industrialized," he said. "The population actually is denser than any spot in all Europe, except Belgium.

"Draining off will actually improve the local situation. It won't be necessary to try to farm mountainous regions, which can be given over to forests. The cities will feel the population loss to some degree, but in urban regions we can replace the population with Czechs who are eager to move from the interior of the country and others who have come home from the Balkans, Austria and other lands."

Not all persons of German origin would be obliged to leave Czechoslovakia. Dr. Benes estimated that 300,000 to 500,000 Germans had demonstrated their loyalty to Czechoslovakia. They may stay.

The situation respecting the Hungarians is somewhat different in that there would be little problem in finding room. The two countries could exchange approximately equal groups. About 400,000 Slovaks living in Hungary would be welcomed in Czechoslovakia.

MOSCOW TALKS END

Moscow, July 14 (A. P.).—A joint Soviet-Chinese communique announced today that Russia and China had reached a broad mutual understanding on important questions involving relations between the two countries in discussions here during the last two weeks.

The communique said the discussions had been suspended because the impending meeting of the Big Three in Potsdam demanded the presence of Generalissimo Stalin.

Chinese Premier T. V. Soong has left for Chungking and the discussions will be resumed in the near future, the communique added.

China and Russia Reach 'A Broad Understanding'

Joint Statement Issued as Talks Halt for Big 3 Parley

MOSCOW, July 14 (AP).—The Soviet Union and China have reached a broad mutual understanding on important questions involving relations between the two countries, a joint communique reported today as discussions were suspended for the impending Big Three meeting.

T. V. Soong, Premier of China, left for Chungking after two weeks here, and Generalissimo Stalin prepared to leave for Potsdam to confer with President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill. The Russo-Chinese conversations will be resumed in the near future, the communique said.

A high foreign diplomatic authority said, "I am sure the whole democratic world will greet the progress that has been made between these two great nations."

11 Elasites Get Death

ATHENS, July 14 (AP)—Eleven supporters of Elas were sentenced to death today by an Athens criminal court that deliberated all night. Nine others were sentenced to life imprisonment.

All were members of Elas firing squads, examining magistrates of revolutionary courts or wardens of the concentration camp at Kokkinia, near Piraeus, during the civil war last December.

CANADIAN FLEET SET WAR RECORDS

Montreal, July 14.—The Canadian Pacific fleet sailed more than two and three-quarter million miles in Admiralty service during the German war, the Admiralty revealed today. More than two million of those miles were in transport service.

The figures show that 750,000 service personnel and civilians were taken through the enemy-infested waters during that time, as were 3,500,000 tons of war materials and food; 40,000,000 meals were served to troops and civilian Government travelers during that time.

Among the more notable trips taken by the Canadian Pacific fleet during the war was the transporting of Arabian kings to the Mediterranean Sea for conferences, the transporting of 59,000 German and Italian prisoners of war taken by Canadians, the carrying of native troops halfway around Africa during the critical stage of the battle of North Africa, and other voyages.

During all this sailing, only 272 persons are known to have been killed, with 155 reported missing or prisoners of war. Eleven vessels with a total weight of 193,000 tons were sunk by enemy action during that period, the Admiralty revealed.

Chennault Retirement Laid To Disappointment

Questions Of Supply For Air Forces In China Arise With Stratemeyer Appointment

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH

Kunming, China [AP—Delayed]. The reorganization of the American air effort in the China theater, just announced, is likely to have a deep though politely cloaked effect on Chinese-American relations as well as their joint war potential.

In addition it may lead to the resignation of Maj. Gen. Claire Lee Chennault from his unique dual position in the China theater.

Resignation Announced

Chennault not only commands the 14th but is concurrently chief of staff of the Chinese Air Force.

[Chennault's resignation was announced in Kunming subsequent to this dispatch. He disclosed that he is returning to the United States and will retire from the Army on reaching the United States.]

It was learned unofficially that Chennault, relegated by Washington to a subordinate role after eight years' service as one American closest to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, probably will ask to go home "on points."

While his request may be granted amid all sorts of official regrets and compliments it will remain the home-going of a man sidetracked by his own superiors yet discouraged by military protocol from publicly speaking his mind as to effects of the new setup on the Chinese-American war effort, let alone its bearing on relations with Chungking br on personal prestige.

Bound To Spread Supplies

For all immediate purposes moving of additional air force personnel and equipment into China from the India-Burma theater is bound to mean some dissipation of present potentiality in supplies which for Chennault's 14th alone are so severly restricted. [Three lines censored.]

It's worth noting and no doubt permissible under security restriction, since the fact has been negatively recorded in the 14th's own published operations reports, that Chennault's strategical bombardment group of big gas consuming B-24's haven't run a real mission since May 9 when they blasted Paoching.

[Editor's Note—In a recent dispatch radioed to The Sun from Kunming, China, Mark S. Watson, Sunpapers military correspndent, said the "magnificent work" of General Chennault and his 14th Air Force was limited only by the number of Japanese targets offered and by the quantity of gasoline and other essential supplies available to him.]

This is the paradoxical supply situation four months after opening of the Ledo Stilwell road across upper Burma and two months after completion of the roughly paralleling pipeline to China—objectives which some American experts hold were gained at cost of American airbases lost to the Japanese offensive in southeast China last year. (two lines censored).

Tied To Stilwell Issue

Thus the supply situation ties closely with the once carefully-concealed differences between Chennault and Gen. Joseph Stilwell over the priority of American military aims in China—in brief an argument over the diversion of hump tonnage necessary for Chinese participation in the north Burma campaign that opened the overland supply line.

Lieut. George E. Stratemeyer, 54-year-old Ohio born West Pointer who recently got his third star, was, among other positions he held, Stilwell's air adviser. He was senior AAF commander in the old CBI theater before Stilwell was recalled and the China theater separated. It is he who now has been placed over Chennault.

The only logistical justification for additional air forces assignment to China—together with additional echelons of command, Stratemeyer's overall command (ten words censored) would seem to be the prospect sometime of opening an easier supply line into China.

Set Aside In April

It is generally known here and talked about among both Americans and Chinese that a similar plan to have been carried out in April was set aside on grounds the China supply situation would not permit efficient fulfillment. It is known also that many influential Chinese attempted to intercede then against sidetracking Chennault.

Tonnages necessary to care for two new headquarters will represent considerable allocation which might otherwise be devoted to fuel. It's commonly estimated that each American in China costs 1,000 pounds monthly of hump cargoes.

These considerations are especially important to Chinese-American relations in view of Chiang's recent comment on the relative supply and support requirements of Chinese and American armies.

Would Include Chinese Force

It is not known here to what extent if any the Generalissimo was consulted in the airforce reorganization. The complete plan, however, is said to call for coordination of the Chinese airforce as well as the 14th under Stratemeyer's command, subject to the Generalissimo's approval.

This would seem to necessitate Chennault's resignation immediately as the Generalissimo's chief of staff for air, a position in which Chennault has exercised considerable command as well as advisory functions.

Chennault's subordinates—he is the sort of man who inspires a deep sense of personal loyalty—point out he is not likely to remain with the 14th in a job which could be competently handled by any of his wing commanders.

[Three lines censored.]

Principal Bugaboo

The principal bugaboo of the air war in China now is not so much a question of getting additional planes but rather of fueling planes already here. (Seven lines censored.)

"It's simply a case of military politics," said one of Chennault's subordinates who are always eager to point out that Chennault is no air force career man. Some of them feel frankly that Chennault has become victim to his own wholehearted purpose to help build a strong Chinese military establishment at a time when there is a growing feeling in higher echelons of American policy that this be none of our business.

Chennault, for example, is known to have adamantly resisted pressure to disband the Chinese-American composite wing, which has an enviable record as an airfighting organization and now is largely Chinese-manned. Chennault is known to have looked on this wing as the clear promise of a strong Chinese air force.

Movement Once Halted

The whole 14th headquarters has been between a chill and a sweat since the reorganization scheme cropped up last spring. At one time movement of the headquarters to another base actually was started only to be called off. At least two different widely separated places have been considered as the new location.

"The future of China plainly has not been considered in this reorganization." (Three lines censored.)

CHENNAULT QUITS POST

Says He Will Return To U.S. To Retire From Army

Kunming, China, July 14 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Claire Lee Chennault, commander of the United States 14th Air Force in China and former colorful leader of the "Flying Tigers," said today that he was leaving China and would retire from the Army after returning to America.

Chennault, 54-year-old guiding light behind the steady growth of American air power in China, announced his resignation at a press conference here two days after the appointment of Lieut. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer as commander of an augmented United States air force in China.

It previously had been stated that Chennault would retain his command of the "Fighting Fourteenth."

Virtually Cleared Skies

Chennault's 14th Air Force, which took the place of the General's brainchild—the spectacular American Volunteer Group of "Flying Tigers"—has wiped virtually every Japanese plane from China skies.

"The Japanese now are beaten in the air in China," Chennault said in his resignation statement.

An old barnstorming pilot, Chennault called in correspondents to tell them of his decision as Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of United States forces in the China theater, said in Chungking that he had accepted Chennault's resignation.

Retired Once Before

Chennault pointed out that he retired once before eight years ago because of his health and that he had spent most of the intervening years in China. He went to China in 1937 to work for the Chiang Kai-shek Government and in 1942 was recalled to active duty with the United States Army.

Chennault said he hoped to return home as soon as Stratemeyer's organization had been perfected.

In Calcutta, Stratemeyer, commander of the Allied Eastern Air Command until it was disbanded, recently declared that the "Army Air Forces is losing an outstanding officer as a result of Major General Chennault's decision to retire."

His Example An Inspiration

"Operating under almost incon ceivable difficulties, he had led h fighting 14th Air Force to great v tories," Stratemeyer said. "His a craft ranged the length and breadth of China, making every gallon of gasoline, every bomb and every bullet count.

"They have given magnificent co-operation to the ground forces of our Chinese allies and inflicted untold damage on Japanese shipping and communications routes. Chennault's splendid example always will be a shining inspiration to us as we tackle the tremendous job which lies ahead."

Chennault, one of the greatest American precision flyers, built up Allied air power on the Asiatic mainland from a handful of outdated Chinese planes to the powerful, sky-sweeping 14th Air Force.

In the process he "endeared himself to China more than any other foreigner since Marco Polo, 500 years ago," a Chinese spokesman once said.

The men under his command said: "We would rather fight with Chennault than any man in the world."

Called By Madame Chiang

Half-deaf from flying open planes, Chennault quit the air force in 1937, but his retirement only lasted a few months. In July, 1937, he was back in China at the invitation of Madame Chiang Kai-shek, then chairman of the Chinese Aviation Commission.

When he got there, he was already thinking in terms of a war involving Japan and the United States. He went to work with fewer than 100 first-line combat planes, training Chinese pilots in the philosophy that fighting quality could triumph over numerical superiority.

Japan opened hostilities against China just 37 days after Chennault's arrival and it was Chennault's job to keep the Chinese "crates" running and to teach inexperienced Chinese youths to get them into the air—and to bring them down safely.

Suggested Volunteer Force

In desperation, Chennault re turned to the United States in 1941 suggest to Washington that a ce of volunteers be permitted fly for China.

hus began the AVG, and when the first American Volunteer Group was formed in July, 1941, Chennault became their inevitable leader. The skill and daring which the "Flying Tigers" showed were largely a reflection of Chennault's own forthright and informal mind.

The "Flying Tigers," often outnumbered twenty to one by the Japanese, became the scourge of the enemy and their heroic battles amazed the world. In 1941 Chennault was made a brigadier general by Gen. Chiang Kai-shek.

Recalled By Army

In April, 1942, after war with Japan began, Chennault was recalled to active duty in the United States Army and given the temporary rank of colonel, with permission to continue his activities with the Chinese Government.

Five days later, on April 22, 1942, he was promoted to brigadier general (temporary), and from July 4 on his "Flying Tigers" were disbanded and his group was replaced by regular Army air forces.

Chennault, in the early 1930's, was famous among airmen as leader of "three men on a flying trapeze," an air show group whose favorite trick was to tie their planes together with string, take off, maneuver and land without having broken a string.

War Department Comme

WASHINGTON, July 14

The War Department said it had no detailed knowled the reason for Major Gener Claire L. Chennault's resignation as commander of the 14th Air Force and retirement from the Army but added that: "It is well known that General Chennault has been operating for a number of years in China under the most difficult of circumstances."

A statement by a department spokesman, made in answer to press inquiries, did not further explain the difficult circumstances.

"In recent months," the statement said, "much air force personnel and materiel have been moved from India into China, with a cutting down of our air forces in the India-Burma theater and a resultant increase of our air forces in the China theater."

The department added it would "regret the loss of the services of this officer, who has . . . played so important a role in bringing about the ultimate defeat of Japan."

JUL 15 1945

An Air-Forces Dissident

As a regular army Air Forces officer between the two world wars, General Chennault, like the late "Billy" Mitchell and a few other pioneers in military aviation, struggled through many years of frustration and discouragement against Army and government authorities who, he said, were thinking "in terms of 1917 and 1918."

Chennault's aim was to put across the idea of the precision pursuit operation, that is, co-ordinated action by planes flying in formation. He argued that three fighter pilots trained in precision flying could knock from the sky any six enemy planes flying singly. He even originated an air stunt called Three Men on a Flying

Canada's Seamen Get Special Bonus

Montreal, July 14 (A. P.).—The Canadian Government has decided to pay a special bonus of 10 per cent of actual earnings to all Canadian merchant seamen who have served on Canadian ships in dangerous waters since the outbreak of war, Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier said today.

The special bonus, he said, would be in addition to regular war risk bonuses.

Yanks In Canada On Way To U.S.

Winnipeg, Man., July 14 [Canadian Press]—The first United States troops to be evacuated from the United States Army's northern bases in central Canada passed through Winnipeg this week on the way to the United States. Col. Jack Hodgson, commanding officer of the United States Army forces in Central Canada, announced today.

The men, stationed at Island Falls, Saskatchewan, are forerunners of a larger group due in early August. Later next month personnel stationed on wind-swept Southampton Island in northern Hudson Bay will be flown here.

CHINESE DRIVE INTO INDO-CHINA

Communique Says Airmen of 14th Support Them.

Chungking, July 14 (A. P.).—A communique from Lieut.-Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's headquarters indicated today that Chinese troops were battling Japanese forces inside Indo-China. The communique said P-51s of the United States Fourteenth Air Force had attacked Trung Khang Phu, nineteen miles northeast of Caobang and four miles from the French Indo-China border in support of Chinese ground forces. The communique said casualties were inflicted on the Japanese and installations damaged.

The American communique said the Chinese had twice won and lost Trung Khang Phu, finally being forced to abandon the town on June 24 when the Japanese counter-attacked with strong reinforcements from Caobang. The bombing attack by the Americans indicates that the Chinese were planning a new assault to recapture the town.

Chinese driving eastward from Liuchow along a circuitous highway to Kweilin were reported to have made additional gains and were heading for Hsiujenhsien, forty-seven miles from the liberated rail center.

Inflict 3000 Casualties.

Chinese forces inflicted more than 3,000 casualties on Japanese troops in a flank attack six miles from Yunsiao, a Fukien province coastal highway town fifty-five miles southwest of Amoy, the Chinese High Command said today.

Meanwhile, Jap troops, in an advance of fifty miles from Tinpak along the coastal highway in Kwangtung province, have captured Yeungkong, 145 miles southwest of Canton, the High Command said.

Chinese Launch Attacks.

Chinese troops are launching flank attacks against the invaders, who were believed bent on safeguarding communications between Hainan and Canton.

Other Chinese forces driving up the Hunan-Kwangsi Railroad from Liuchow have reached Huangminkai, fifty miles southwest of the former United States airbase city of Kweilin, the High Command reported.

Chinese troops have reached Kahnsien, another former airbase city in Kiangsi province 240 miles north of Hongkong. Bitter street fighting is raging in Khansien, last reports said.

JAPS ADVANCE IN TWO DRIVES

Chinese Defenses Penetrated Near Amoy And Hong Kong

MOOSA

Chungking, July 14 (AP)—Japanese troops have broken 35 and 50 miles through Chinese coastal defenses below Amoy and west of Hong Kong in twin drives possibly designed to throw up an anti-invasion wall along China's vulnerable southeast coast, the Chinese high command acknowledged tonight.

Chinese regulars, however, have thrown all their available strength against Japanese marine landing parties southwest of Amoy and have mowed down 3,000 enemy troops, a communiqué said.

Yanks Aid Chinese Troops

While the Japanese beat out gains along the coast, Chinese forces of the interior battled nearer to the lost American airbase of Kweilin, in Kwangsi province, and continued street fighting in the former airdrome city of Kanhsien, 200 miles north of Hong Kong.

Supporting Chinese ground forces battling inside Indo-China, United States 14th Air Force Mustang fighters yesterday blasted mountain-locked Trung Khanh Phu, besieged Japanese strong point 4 miles from the Indo-China frontier, 132 miles northeast of Hanoi, an American communiqué said.

The low-flying American fighter-bombers wrecked Japanese buildings and inflicted casualties on the garrison of Trung Khanh Phu, 19 miles northeast of Caobang, which Chinese forces won and then lost June 24.

Japanese Reach Yunsiao

In maritime Fukien province west of Formosa, Japanese invaders from Amoy, who landed June 30 on the coast below that pocketed enemy-held port, reached Yunsiao, 56 miles southwest of Amoy, after bursting out of beachheads and hurling back Chinese attackers, the Chinese war bulletin said.

The Japanese reached Yunsiao Thursday in a 35-mile sweep through the Chinese-held township of Chengkwang from the costal village of Chihhu. When they were six miles from Yunsiao, the high command said, the Japanese were attacked on the flank by Chinese forces which assertedly killed or wounded 3,000 Japanese troops in the one engagement.

Hand-To-Hand Fight Bitter

Meanwhile, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's forces, 400 miles southeast of Chungking, were converging on the triple airfield base of Kweilin. While isolated columns battled 10 miles west, the main Chinese armies in Kwangsi province moved up the Hunan-Kwangsi roadroad from Liuchow and reached Hwangminfu, 50 miles southwest of Kweilin, a communiqué said.

Some 330 miles to the east, bitter hand-to-hand fighting raged in Kanhsien, a former United States 14th Air Force base, where rearguards were putting up a stubborn battle while the main Japanese garrison fought toward Suichwan, 46 miles northwest.

British Take 3 Burma Villages

CALCUTTA, July 14 (AP).—British troops in Burma have cleared Japanese forces from three more villages in the area thirteen miles north-northwest of Pegu, while farther north three parties of enemy troops have been encountered by British patrols west of Taunggyi, 103 road miles east of Thazi, Southeast Asia Command Headquarters said today.

James F. Cooper of Norwood, Ohio —would be dishonorably discharged from the Army and would forfeit all pay and allowances due them.

The two men, each 30, were sentenced to death by a court martial at Kunming.

Brennan and Cooper, according to letters written relatives, were court martialled late in May and sentenced to be shot.

Senator McMahon (D-Conn.), disclosing in Washington Tuesday that he had intervened in the case, quoted a letter written by Brennan to an aunt in which Brennan said the soldiers mounted a water buffalo at a Chinese village "intending to take a ride and have a little fun."

The villagers ran after them and tried to pull Brennan and Cooper from the animal's back. The soldiers resisted but a 71-year-old woman succeeded in pulling Brennan off and he fell on her, McMahon said.

Brennan was quoted as saying that the woman died three hours later. Two peasants testified the soldiers beat the people on the ground, the latter added, but this Brennan and Cooper denied. Brennan quoted a doctor as saying that the woman could not have died from crushing or slapping.

McMahon said Tuesday he had informed Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson about the affair after he learned of it June 14 and that Patterson had radioed China for a complete report.

McMahon said that Cooper's case was laid before the War department June 16 after being passed along by Ohio officials. Cooper wrote two letters to Ohio June 26 and 28 telling of the death sentence and complaining that he had no interpreter.

Death Sentence of Two Yanks In China Commuted to Life

JUL 15 1945

CHUNGKING, July 14—(AP) Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer today commuted to life imprisonment the death sentences of two American privates accused of killing a 71-year-old Chinese woman in a dispute over a water buffalo.

The entire case will be reviewed by the judge advocate general's review board.

Wedemeyer's headquarters said the two soldiers—John V. Brennan of West Hartford, Conn., and

NAVY TASK FORCE COMMANDERS IN PACIFIC SHIFTED

Sherman Succeeds Mitscher in Charge of First Carrier Force.

TOWERS SHIFTED

Now Commander of Second Task Force, Forrestal Reveals.

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP) The Navy today shifted commands in its carrier-borne air arm in the Pacific in apparent preparation for the showdown phases of the war against Japan.

Secretary Forrestal disclosed the changes.

Rear Admiral Frederick C. Sherman, now commander of a carrier division, was named to succeed Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher as commander of the First Carrier task force.

Vice Admiral John H. Towers, now deputy commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, was named to succeed Vice Admiral John S. McCain, commander of the Second Carrier task force.

Mitscher to Return to U. S.

Mitscher, who with Adm. William F. Halsey developed the present fast carrier task force which welds a flexible fleet of 1,500 planes, returns to Washington as deputy chief of naval operations for air.

Mitscher's office, which is not a new one, places him directly under Fleet Admiral Ernest J. King who is chief of all naval operations. Mitscher will serve as his deputy in charge of air operations but King retains final responsibility.

No announcement was made of Vice. Admr. McCain's new assignment. Secretary Forrestal was asked about reports he would become deputy veterans affairs administrator under Gen. Omar Bradley, but the secretary declined comment, noting that such an apointment would be under Presidential authority.

29 Major Shifts

These changes led a list of 29 major shifts among flag rank officers which Forrestal said would become effective at varying dates within 30 days. The changes were not a "shakeup," Forrestal said, but were normal shifts which occur periodically and by coincidence these occurred simultaneously. He said no changes were in contemplation for the higher combat commands. However, he added, any such change in the future might be dictated by the "physical limitations" of the men involved.

"No matter how brilliantly a man has performed his duty," Forrestal said, "if the doctors say he has reached the limit of his physical resources, we will replace him. I say that now so that if there is any change in the future that will be the reason. We also like to get experienced men back here to help in the war planning."

While no announcement was made, Vice Admr. Mitscher's new assignment is expected to carry with it the rank of a full Admiral, and Rear Admiral Sherman is expected to be elevated to vice admiral.

Vice Adm. Towers is the number one aviator on Navy rolls which now include more than 50,000 fliers. He was one of three young officers whom Glenn Curtiss originally taught to fly in return for the navy's promise to buy three of his planes.

Rear Adm. Sherman, one of the Navy's toughest and ablest flying admirals, has been in command of a carrier task group within the fast carrier task force since last August. He has seen the naval air war through from the start, having been skipper of the Carrier Lexington when she was lost in the battle of the Coral Sea.

Assignments Set

Forrestal also announced assignment of Admiral Henry K. Hewitt, now a member of the general board, to relieve Adm. Harold R. Stark as commander of naval forces in Europe. Adm. Stark will retire for age after his return to this country.

Vice Adm. Aubrey W. Fitch, being relieved by Vice Adm. Mitscher as deputy chief of naval operations for air, will become superintendent of the Naval Academy and commandant of the Severn River Naval command. He will be the first vice admiral to hold that post.

Rear Adm. John R. Beardall, now academy superintendent, will relieve Rear Adm. Howard F. Kingman as commandant of the 15th Naval district and commander of the Panama Sea frontier and southeast Pacific. Rear Adm. Kingman will report to the Pacific fleet commander in chief for his assignment.

Other changes:

Rear Adm. Van H. Ragsdale, commander of fleet air at Alameda, Calif., has assumed additional duty as commander of Fleet Air for the west coast relieving Rear Adm. Alfred E. Montgomery who succeeds Vice Adm. George D. Murray as commander of air in the Pacific.

Vice Adm. Murray relieves Vice Adm. John H. Hoover as commander in the Marianas, and Vice Adm. Hoover succeeds Vice Adm. Towers as deputy commander in chief of the Pacific fleet.

Vice Adm. William R. Munroe will be detached as commander of the south Atlantic to relieve Vice Adm. Robert C. Giffen as commander of the Caribbean sea frontier and commandant of the 10th Naval district.

Vice Admr. Giffen will relieve Vice Adm. Sherwood A. Taffinder as commander service force in the Atlantic, and Vice Adm. Taffinder will succeed Vice Adm. David W. Bagley as commandant of the 14th naval district and Hawaiian sea frontier.

Vice Adm. Bagley succeeds Vice Adm. Alfred W. Johnson, retired, as a member of the U. S.-Mexican defense commission and a member of the permanent joint board of defense, United States and Canada. Vice Adm. Johnson will return to inactive duty.

Rear Adm. Edward W. Hanson, recently detached from temporary duty in the bureau of personnel, will become commander of the Pearl Harbor Navy Yard succeeding Rear Adm. William R. Furlong, who will report to the chief of naval personnel for temporary duty pending retirement for age.

Rear Adm. W. H. P. Blandy, commander of an amphibious group in the Pacific, whose successor has not been designated, will succeed Rear Adm. Walden L. Ainsworth as commander of cruisers and destroyers in the Pacific. Rear Adm. Ainsworth succeeds Rear Adm. David McD. Lebreton as commandant of the 5th naval district and commander of the Norfolk, Va., naval operating base. Rear Adm. Lebreton becomes president of the naval examining board.

Rear Adm. Francis W. Rockwell, whose function as commander of the amphibious training command in the Atlantic has been absorbed by the commander of training in the Atlantic, succeeds Rear Adm. Gilbert J. Rowcliff as senior member of the West Coast board of inspection and survey. Rear Adm. Rowcliff will report to the chief of naval operations pending transfer to inactive duty, having reached retirement age.

Rear Adm. Louis E. Denfeld, commander of a battleship division, has been ordered to report to Secretary Forrestal for duty. No relief for his present command has been named.

Rear Adm. Russell S. Berkey, commander of a cruiser division in the Pacific, has been ordered to report to the chief of naval operations. Although no announcement was made of his new assignment, it was reported he would be designated officer in charge of postwar planning for the navy. His relief has not been designated.

Rear Adm. James L. Holloway, recently promoted to flag rank, will relieve Rear Adm. Francis C. Denebrink as commander of the fleet operational training command in the Pacific. Rear Adm. Denebrink will report to the Pacific Fleet commander in chief for further assignment.

Washington Hopes Avowal of Ship Sinking Will Help.

Washington, July 14 (A. P.).—American officials fervently hoped today that Japan will permit additional relief shipments to Allied prisoners now that the country has accepted full responsibility for sinking a Japanese relief ship.

The State Department acknowledged last night that an American submarine had sunk the ship, the Awa Maru, about midnight April 1 off Formosa. The ship was torpedoed in a fog with loss of more than 1,000 lives.

"The United States Government in accepting the responsibility for the sinking of the Awa Maru hopes that the Japanese Government will be willing to accept further shipments of relief supplies for distribution to Allied nationals detained by the Japanese," the State Department said.

The Awa Maru was sent to the bottom on a return trip to Japan after delivering a cargo of food, medicine and other supplies at Hongkong, Singapore and other ports for use of Allied war prisoners and civilians.

The United States had deposited the supplies at Nakhodka, Russia, under an arrangement for a Japanese ship to deliver them from there with an American guaranty of safe conduct. Although the ship had Japanese passengers and another cargo returning, the safe conduct still applied.

Notes Sent Through Swiss.

The State Department action, bringing the United States Government close to an apology to the Japanese Government, was disclosed with release of an exchange of notes between Tokyo and Washington handled through the Swiss Government.

One admitting responsibility for the sinking was in response to a Japanese demand of May 16 for a formal apology. The American note said that the United States had already officially expressed "its deep regret" but officials conceded that they were making every reasonable effort to make amends.

These specific steps were taken:

1. The Japanese were informed of the circumstances under which the ship was sunk—how it was torpedoed by instruments during a fog and not even seen by the submarine commander. Nevertheless, the note said that since the ship had been expected in the vicinity at that time we should have identified it before attacking. But the Japanese charge that the attack was "willful and deliberate" was vigorously denied.

2. The Government is taking "disciplinary action" with respect to the submarine commander. The Japanese were so informed.

3. The United States formally agreed to take up the question of indemnity.

Japan Must Be Reorganized Without Shintoism, Hart Says

WASHINGTON, July 14 — (AP) Senator Hart (R-Conn) said tonight that Japan eventually must be reorganized and reconstituted "without the imperial system and its tied-in shintoism, tyranny, corruption, secret nationalistic societies and gangsterism in general."

He advanced this view in participating with Senator Elbert D. Thomas (D-Utah) in an NBC broadcast on far eastern policy. Both men are intimately acquainted with far eastern problems.

"The absurd myth of the emperor's divine origin, and the other absrdities which have been hung upon the Mikado institution, must be abolished," Hart said, adding:

"We cannot expect the Japanese to observe the moral laws which are to govern the civilized world, until those institutions have been completely discredited."

Sterling Fisher, director of the NBC university of the air, asked Senator Thomas:

"Should our policy be to develop democratic forces in Japan, or let them develop themselves?"

"We will have to maintain order," Senator Thomas replied, "and leave the way open for the Japanese to develop their own democratic institutions. We shouldn't try to control the whole process, or we would kill the very thing we want to develop."

Senator Hart, as a former commander in chief of the Pacific fleet in the far east, was asked what should be done with Japanese islands in the Pacific.

JAPS' CAPTIVES MAY BE AIDED

Two Destroyers Knock Down 38 Japanese Suicide Planes

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP) The destroyers Hugh W. Hadley and Evans knocked down 38 Japanese suicide planes in an hour and 45-minute battle off Okinawa on May 11, the Navy disclosed tonight.

The bag, the Navy said, was the largest ever reported for ships of their size during a single action.

Altogether, 88 enemy planes were destroyed in the epic struggle, with Marine Corsair pilots shooting down an additional 50 from the attacking force of more than 150.

The 2,050-ton Evans, smaller of the team, got 15 planes and was credited with four assists in 73 minutes before its guns were silenced.

The 2,200-ton Hadley established an all-time record for destroyers by bringing down 23 Japanese planes in 105 minutes. In the last 30 minutes the Hadley protected the crippled Evans although the Hadley itself was damaged and at one time seemed about to capsize.

The Nips struck in groups of four to six at a time. The battle reached such ferocity at one time that the Evans was bringing down suicide planes diving on the Hadley, as well as protecting herself, while the Hadley was gunning for aircraft at a greater distance.

Lt. James M. Smith of New Freedom, Pa., the Evans' surgeon, said guns were firing so rapidly and so long that relief had to be provided for exhausted ammunition loaders.

Four suicide planes crashed on the Evans' decks and hull and the Hadley took hits that flooded both engine rooms and one fire room and knocked out its main battery.

The first Kamikaze pilot crashed into the Evans' bow an hour after the battle started. In quick succession, three more hit her.

One resulting explosion blew the executive officer, Lt. John W. Gilpin of Windsor, Vt., over the side. A seaman, Pat J. Macciocca of Baltimore, Md., plunged into the water and supported him until both were picked up.

A few minutes later, the Evans' guns went out of action and the Hadley alone took over the job of fending off the Japanese planes. Sensing a kill, 10 suicide planes struck simultaneously. All were shot down, but the Hadley was damaged and most of her guns were knocked out.

As the attack began to taper off, many of the Corsair pilots ran out of ammunition but continued to shield the battered destroyers by riding the enemy planes into the water.

When the Hadley threatened to capsize, the wounded were taken over the side to life rafts and floats.

The remainder of the crews, however, managed to keep the craft afloat and both destroyers reached harbor the next day.

Bretton Woods Minority Text Calls for Delay

Four Republican Senators Urge World Parley on Trade Be Held First

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 14.—A general international economic conference to consider "practical steps" to achieve freedom of international trade was suggested today by four Republican Senators.

Until one is held, they said, consideration of the Bretton Woods agreements for an international monetary fund and an international bank should be deferred.

The four, Senators Robert A. Taft, of Ohio; Eugene D. Millikin, of Colorado; Hugh Butler, of Nebraska, and John Thomas, of Idaho, outlined their views in a minority report as members of the Senate Banking Committee.

They voted in committee against United States participation. Already passed by the House, the bill was approved 14 to 4 by the committee and will come up in the Senate Monday.

Worked out at a conference of representatives of forty-four nations at Bretton Woods, N. H., last summer, the agreement calls for United States subscription of $3,175,000,000 to the bank's capital and $2,750,000,000 to the monetary fund.

The committee majority, in a report filed earlier, declared the program "will help preserve peace by making possible an expansion of international trade."

But the minority asserted that "the net result of the present bill is to waste our money and accomplish nothing."

"When the world is stabilized, a general stabilization fund may be desirable," they continued. "It could probably be much smaller than the one now proposed and it should, of course, be confined definitely to stabilization operations. We question whether the government should ever guarantee international investment."

In their criticism of the fund, they declared it will "wholly fail" to accomplish the declared objectives and will "amount to nothing more than international loans of $2,750,000,000 for which we shall get nothing in return."

"The fund operates," they continued, "by permitting each member to deposit its paper currency in the fund and take out in exchange the currency of some other country. This, in effect, as admitted by the Treasury, is a loan to the nation which makes the deposit, secured by that nation's paper currency.

"Under present world conditions, the most-sought-after currency will be the $2,750,000,000 deposited by the United States. If all the nations choose to draw dollars, the dollars in the fund could be exhausted during the second year."

As for the bank, they called it "a tremendous plan, under the guise of international co-operation, to lend our people's and our government's money abroad."

JOHNSON TO VOTE 'NO' ON CHARTER

Washington, July 14 (A. P.).—Aids announced today that Senator Hiram Johnson (R.-Cal.) intends to cast his vote against Senate Foreign Relations Committee appeal of the United Nations charter. The committee approved the charter yesterday by a 20 to 0 vote. Chairman Connally (D.-Tex.) said Johnson and two other committee members who were not present would be given the chance to record their vote.

At Johnson's office, it was said that the California Senator who opposed American participation in the League of Nations had decided to record himself against the fifty-nation agreement reached at San Francisco. Johnson, who was expected to issue a statement later outlining his stand, previously had indicated in conversations with reporters that he might go along on Senate ratification of the document.

U. S. Personnel Of Control Unit Nearly Ready

Only Finance Director's Post Is Open as 6 More Officials Are Appointed

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP).—The United States virtually completed today the selection of key officials to operate the American Group Control Council in Germany.

The War Department announced the appointment of three more division directors and three other officials, leaving only the post of finance director to be filled in the organization headed by General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower and his deputy, Lieutenant General Lucius Clay.

Major General Ray W. Barker, of Rochester, was appointed director of the Army (Ground) Division, which is responsible for demilitarization of German ground forces and for the surrender and disposal of war material and installations. General Barker has been assistant chief of staff at Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Expeditionary Forces.

Brigadier General Frank J. McSherry, of Washington, was named head of the man-power division, which is responsible to General Clay on affairs regarding labor allocation, employment, working conditions, housing and social insurance. General McSherry served with the 15th Army Group and was a civil affairs officer in Sicily.

Colonel Leslie W. Jefferson, of Redlands, Calif., will direct the reparations, deliveries and restitution division. His organization will formulate policies for implementing international agreements on reparations and with the locating and storing of non-military property under control of the commission.

Commodore Herbert T. Ray, of Kensington, Md., will be deputy director of the Naval Division, headed by Vice-Admiral Robert L. Ghormley. That division is a naval counterpart of the Army Ground Force Division. Commodore Ray is a veteran of sea duty in both world wars, seeing action in several of the great Pacific battles of this war.

John Stewart Harrison, of Albuquerque, N. M., appointed civilian consultant to the economics division on fuels and oils. He has been associated with Standard Oil, going to his new assignment from refineries in Aruba, Netherlands West Indies.

Sargent B. Child, of Arlington Va., will be a civilian adviser on archives for the reparation division.

500,000 POSTWAR ARMY IS FORECAST

Would Be Ample to Supply Men Needed for Police Work, Senator Says.

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP) Postwar reduction of the Army's strength to a half million men was forecast today by Senator Gurney (R-SD) in view of the Senate's expected ratification of the United Nations charter.

The South Dakota senator, a member of the Military Affairs committee, told a reporter he believes a regular force of that size will be ample to supply the men needed for this country's share of police work under the new international organization and to gar-

Gurney's estimate came in the midst of discussion by charter supporters of when a decision shall be made on the number of men, planes, tanks, guns and other equipment the nation shall assign for peace-keeping operations under the proposed World Security council.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Foreign Relations committee ha ssaid that the issue should be settled in separate legislation and has asked the State department to assist in preparing a measure of this kind. He has opposed any charter reservation of this nature and there was doubt any would has said that the issue should be ator Bushfield (R-SD) is attempting to draft some.

Subsequently, Connally told a news conference he did not believe Congress would attempt to define the authority of the American delegate on the Security council until the international organization actually comes into being.

He voiced the opinion that the Senate will ratify the charter after not more than 10 days of debate adding:

"There won't be more than six votes against it in the Senate."

RUSSIA PUT DOWN FOR BILLION LOAN

JUL 15 1945

Washington, July 14 (A. P.).—One billion dollars of the administration's requested expansion in the Export-Import Bank's lending power was reported today to be already ear-marked for Russia.

A Senator, asking not to be quoted by name, said that he had received this information directly from one of the highest administration figures. He added that the Russians were reported seeking a total of $6,000,000,000 in credits.

Legislation for expansion of the bank's loan powers from $700,000,000 to $3,500,000,000 sailed through the House yesterday by a 102 to 6 vote.

Called Must Legislation.

Senate leaders have put it down as must legislation to follow action on the Bretton Woods agreements and the United Nations charter.

The House-passed bill establishes the bank as an independent, permanent Government agency. It was created in 1934 by executive order as an institution to make short-term loans for financing exports and imports and has operated at a profit.

Before passage the House slapped down, 93 to 9, an amendment by Representative Dirksen (R.-Ill.) to prohibit loans to countries not faithfully observing provisions of the Atlantic Charter.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP).—The Treasury gave today the final standings of the states in percentage of E-bond sales as compared with quotas in the Seventh War Loan.

Eighteen states failed to reach their quotas, but the nation as a whole made 99.4 per cent of its $4,000,000,000 goal.

Hawaii sold a larger percentage than any state, with 130.6 per cent of its $23,500,000 quota. The Canal Zone, with a smaller quota of $2,000,000, was even higher—160.7 per cent.

As already announced, Montana led all states with 119.9 per cent of its $16,000,000 quota, and Iowa's 119 per cent was second, Alabama's 118.89 third and Wyoming's 118.85 fourth.

The other states, in order:

Mississippi 117.4, Virginia 116.7, Nebraska 114.9, North Dakota 114.2, New Mexico 112.5, Oklahoma 112.4, South Dakota 111.7, Nevada 109.1, Florida 106.5, Oregon 105.5, Tennessee 105.49, Arizona 104.9, Utah 104.5, South Carolina 104, Kansas 103.8, Arkansas 102.9, Wisconsin 102.6, Texas 101.5, Idaho 101.3, District of Columbia 101.13, Minnesota 101.099, New York 101.09, Missouri 100.62, Indiana 100.58, Illinois 100.55, Colorado 100.5, Georgia 100.2, Pennsylvania 98.4, Ohio 97.7, Kentucky 97.6, North Carolina 96.4, Vermont 93.8, Washington 93.3, West Virginia 92.8, southern California 92, Rhode Island 91.504, Michigan 91.5004, northern California 90.7, New Hampshire 89.7, Massachusetts 89.13, New Jersey 89.07, Connecticut 88.2, Delaware 87.8, Louisiana 86.2, Maryland 84.21 and Maine 84.20.

Green Blames Strike Wave on Cut in Overtime

Proposes Pay Rises Where PriceBoostWon't Result; Firestone Walkout Ends

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP).—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, said tonight that "current strikes are symptomatic of a growing unrest among American workers."

In a talk written for a Blue Network broadcast, Mr. Green said:

"First, take-home wages have been sharply cut by reduced overtime.

"Second, many workers have lost their relatively well-paid jobs in war industries because of cutbacks, and the only new jobs available to them offer much lower wages.

"Third, the failure of the government to act promptly in providing adequate unemployment compensation insurance has filled war workers with fear that they will be left stranded when the war ends."

Mr. Green proposed "free collective bargaining" to increase wage rates where price increases will not result. He also asked an increase in minimum wages from 55 to 72 cents an hour, and unemployment insurance paying off as much as $25 a week to workers with families.

Mr. Green said that "such action will reduce strikes to a minimum."

War production and some civilian services suffered today as work stoppages in more than a score of cities kept approximately 48,000 idle, but 16,500 Firestone Tire and Rubber Company workers at Akron, Ohio, voted 3 to 1 to return to work Monday.

The two-week dispute of the Congress of Industrial Organization United Rubber Workers at Firestone ended when the membership voted to abide by a National War Labor Board directive ordering their return Monday. The W. L. B. order threatened loss or revocation of vacation, shift premium and maintenance-of-membership benefits, previously granted the workers, if its order were not obeyed. The work stoppage was caused by a dispute over contract renewal.

In Toledo, Ohio, the discharge of one employee caused a work stoppage of 7,200 workers. Sixty-five hundred C. I. O. United Automobile workers at the Spicer Manufacturing Company struck over the employee's discharge and idled additional workers at the Willys-Overland Motors for lack of parts from the Spicer plant.

Butter Cut to 16 Points; Meat Shipments Boosted

WASHINGTON, July 14—(AP) The OPA tonight ordered a cut of 8 points a pound in the ration value for butter, effective at 12:01 a. m. Sunday.

The reduction from the current 24 red points a pound to 16 applies to creamery butter. Farm or country butter will remain at 12 points.

Military Needs Reduced

Stating that the increase in the civilian supply resulting from a cut in military requirements will amount to about 10,000,000 pounds during August, OPA added:

"It is believed that with the set-aside reduced, there will be enough butter to permit the point reduction, at the same time maintaining the good distribution that has enabled consumers to find butter in most stores throughout the country in the last several months."

The agency cautioned, however, that if butter moves too rapidly at 16 points, the point value will be increased to keep consumption in line with the allocation.

The good news on butter came as the Agriculture department set in motion its plan to increase the shipment of meat to shortage areas. Under a new program effective Monday, non-Federally inspected slaughterers will be allowed to move meat across state lines, provided they meet sanitary standards and certain other conditions.

OPA slashed butter points after New York merchants had recommended an 8-point cut to prevent spoilage.

The agency indicated a week ago that the ration value would be reduced, but the plan then was not to do it until July 29.

It said today that during the last two or three weeks the movement of civilian butter had slowed down slightly, with some accumulation in cold storage. It said also that the cut was necessary because the flavor of butter held too long in retail stores may deteriorate.

The ration value of oleomargarine remained at 14 points. There was no indication of an immediate change.

WLB PENALIZES PRINTER UNION FOR 2 STRIKES

Drops Consideration Of Voluntary Pacts By ITU And Publishers

Washington, July 14 (AP)—The War Labor Board today ordered suspension of consideration by its newspaper commission of all pending voluntary agreements between publishers and the International Typographical Union (AFL) as a penalty for the union's refusal to end walkouts at two New Jersey newspapers.

In an unusual decision following a show-cause hearing, the board said the union is violating public policy in declining to end the stoppages until the publishers of the Jersey Journal, Jersey City, and the Bayonne (N.J.) Times accept the union's new bylaws as part of the contract.

Union's Contention

The union officers contended such issues are not subject to collective bargaining or the board's authority. They said today they would see every newspaper composing room closed down before they budged from their position.

Some twenty other cases—voluntary agreements between publishers and the printers—are pending before the board's newspaper commission in Chicago.

These cases will be held up pending determination as to whether they were negotiated under the ITU's policy about which the board complained.

If so found, the board said it would refuse to approve such agreements and would take upon itself the job of writing the terms of the contracts.

Calls Such Cases Disputes

It said it would regard such cases as disputes rather than voluntary agreements and decide them by applying the same criteria it normally uses in dispute cases.

It will take into consideration, for example, in passing upon the question of retroactivity of any and al lwage adjustments, the "effects of the strike and of the policy" which the board questions.

Under present board policy, it will not order sick-leave benefits an dthe like in dispute cases, but it has approved these when voluntarily submitted by the two parties.

Statement Of Board

In a statement accompanying its resolution late today, the board said:

"The issue thus created goes far beyond the merits of the dispute between the ITU and the publishers. It is an issue between the ITU and the American people acting through their elected representatives.

"The ITU has challenged the authority of the Government of the United States in time of war to provide for the peaceful adjustment of labor disputes.

"It has placed its 'laws' above the 'laws' of the United States Congress. It persists in this policy despite the fact that newspapers are a vital and indispensable part of our war economy.

Union's Stand Cited

"At the hearing the union contended that its 'laws' are not subject to collective bargaining and that this is in accord with the past practice in the industry and the present understanding of many publishers.

"The union will have a full opportunity in hearings on the merits to develop the relation between the past practice in the industry and the present dispute after it has abandoned its position that its disputes with various publishers are beyond the board's jurisdiction and above the law."

The issue is over the union's insistence that its new 1945 bylaws be included in the working contract without being subjected to bargaining.

Similar disputes are pending in some twenty other newspapers, including those at Birmingham, Ala.

Show-Cause Hearing Held

At the show-cause hearing today—the third hearing on the matter by the WLB—the ITU officers asserted the WLB had no authority to intervene and that the issue is not arbitrate with the publishers.

They said the WLB had been "adequately propagandized" by publishers, and threatened to walk out wherever newspaper owners refused to incorporate union laws into contracts.

They further contended the printers are not subject to the War Labor Disputes Acts, on the grounds newspapers "are not engaged in war work."

Public members of the board replied the WLB did have authority in the matter. They said Congress authorized the board to settle all strikes or lockouts which interfered with the war effort and that shutting down of newspapers could affect the prosecution of the war.

WLB's Contention

They also contend that the union's new bylaws involved changes in such things as vacations with pay, hours, overtime and arbitration, and that all disputes over these matters are proper for collective bargaining and broad approval where there are disagreements.

In an opening statement Chairman W. Taylor denied there is a wave of strikes as the nation goes into partial reconversion.

"I think I can say for the entire board," he declared, "that there is no wave of strikes. . . . The fact is that, with very few exceptions indeed, all unions and all labor leaders and millions of loyal employés are abiding by labor's voluntarily assumed no-strike pledge, which was given for the full duration of the war."

"National Policy Challenged"

He then said the ITU is the only one of 100 AFL international unions "which is seeking to go contrary to national policy on these matters."

"The National WLB," he said "considers such action to be of great importance because these unions and employés are challenging the very basis of the national policy in time of war; and in these cases the board is adhering to its well-established policy of not going into the merits of any of the issues in disputes while the strike is under way."

Woodruff Randolph, ITU president, had read a union executive-council statement which said the board would be taking a "brazen and illegal" action if it carried out its threat not to approve any ITU contracts negotiated under the policy the board had criticized.

The ITU statement further

He expressed a willingness to arbitrate the bylaws with the union or before the board's newspaper commission.

House Members Start Exodus From Capital

Get Running Start on Recess Which Will Last to Oct. 1

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP).—Work-weary Congressmen scattered four ways from Washington tonight for the longest House recess of the war.

Although the vacation will not begin officially until the latter part of next week, many members took a running start and began checking out of the capital last night.

Barring emergencies, the House will be in adjournment until Oct. 1, the longest period for either branch of Congress since the war began.

There are a few legislative tag ends left over, but House leaders admitted frankly that they wouldn't be able to get a quorum together for any floor business. The House end of the Capitol and the corridors of the House Office Building were virtually deserted today.

The House cleaned up its major business yesterday when Congress finally passed a long-disputed war agencies appropriation. Many members left as soon as that vote was taken.

The chamber will hold technical sessions next week, principally to complete action of the Bretton Woods international agreement, which will be called up in the Senate Monday. All that is needed is House agreement to any Senate amendment, and leaders said they would not be controversial.

Halifax To Present DSC To Coast Guard Officer

Washington, July 14 (AP)—Lord Halifax, the British Ambassador, will present the Distinguished Service Cross to Lieut. Louis I. Reilly, of the United States Coast Guard, for distinguished action on D-day.

Reilly, of Staten Island, N.Y., is one of several officers who will be honored in a ceremony at the British Embassy.

His citation reads:

"During the assault on the coast of Normandy Lieut. Com. Louis I. Reilly showed gallantry, skill and devotion to duty."

PATTERSON WARNS OF HARD JAP WAR

Glens Falls, N. Y., July 14 (A. P.).—The Japanese surrender must come by force of arms, in the opinion of Under-Secretary of War Patterson.

Patterson told the Warren County Bankers Association last night that "we must prepare ourselves to win the war with Japan the hard way—by killing Japanese soldiers right through the ruins of Tokyo and throughout the home islands."

Stating that the main Nipponese armies were intact, Patterson said the enemy was fighting more effectively, using a new method of cave warfare, and from now on will be favored by terrain.

"The Japanese are fighting a progressively smarter war," he said, adding that their artillery fire was more effective and that suicide bombers now try to drop from a cloud cover on a ship instead of flying in low.

Free Election Urged for Poland

Buffalo, July 14 (A. P.).—Americans of Polish ancestry should demand that government representatives "insist on one thing—a free election for Poland," declares Representative Alvin E. O'Konski (R.-Wis.).

Addressing a meeting of more than 1,000 Polish-Americans last night, O'Konski said that the head of the Warsaw Government "is not a Polish citizen and was not appointed by the people or the boys who carried on the fight. The only one who had a say in the matter was Stalin. I want to see freedom preserved, not because of my Polish ancestors, but because if freedom dies in Poland, it will die in Europe."

Stays Draft of Turkish Pupils

DANVILLE, Ill., July 14 (AP).—State and national selective service officials were temporarily enjoined today by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley from forcing twelve Turkish citizens studying at the University of Illinois to register or serve in the armed forces. The twelve men, who said they were studying engineering at the university on orders of the Turkish government, asserted in their bill for injunction that they were commissioned officers in the Turkish Army. All claimed they were graduates of Harbige, official military academy of Turkey, and were bound to serve actively in Turkey's armed forces for twenty-five years.

Destroyer in Crash Is Beached

BOSTON, July 14 (AP).—First Naval District headquarters reported that a "four-piper," one of fifty destroyers turned over to the British early in the war, was beached and partly submerged today off Sakonnett Point, R. I., after collision with a tanker. The destroyer, now turned back to the United States, was under tow from Philadelphia yesterday when it was in a collision with the tanker Winding Gulf near the west end of the Cape Cod Canal in a dense fog and zero visibility, according to the Navy. The towline parted, and the destroyer was adrift until it was picked up by the Coast Guard cutter Hornbeam. The cutter was ordered to beach the craft after it sprang some leaks.

BATH, Me., July 14 (AP).—A 2,200-ton destroyer named for the late Rear Admiral James Henry Glennon, U. S. N., who commanded World War Battleship Squadron 1, slid into the Kennebec River today from Bath Iron Works Corporation ways. Miss Frances Reading Glennon, of 116-23 Union Turnpike, Forest Hills, Queens, New York, granddaughter of Admiral Glennon, sponsored the craft.

RETURN VOTED AT FIRESTONE

Union Accepts WLB Directive By 3-To-1 Show Of Hands

Akron, Ohio, July 14 (AP)—Striking CIO-United Rubber Workers today voted 3 to 1 to heed a War Labor Board directive to return to work Monday at the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company.

The 16,500 unionists, idle since July 1 when contract-negotiation machinery failed, agreed to end the strike at a four-hour membership meeting, I. H. Watson, local president of the CIO-URW, reported.

Firestone workers were warned by the national WLB that unless they returned to work Monday morning the board would take immediate steps to revoke vacation, shift-premium and maintenance-of-membership benefits previously granted to them.

Company officials were not immediately available for comment.

"Rank And File Acted"

Watson asserted:

"A majority of the voters voted to strike, and we represented them in that action. Now they have voted to return to work, and we will continue to represent them. The rank and file acted in both cases."

During the meeting, workers gave the local officers and committeemen a vote of confidence.

"Officers of this local will continue to represent the local as in the past," said Watson.

TWO GERMAN PRISONERS HANGED FOR MURDER

FT. LEAVENWORTH, Kans., July 14—(AP) Two German prisoners of war were hanged at the U. S. disciplinary barracks early today on the same gallows on which five of their fellow countrymen died Tuesday in the first executions of their kind in this country.

The two, Rudolph Straub and Erich Gauss, were hanged for the murder April 5, 1944, of Horst Guenther, a German prisoner, in a work camp at Aiken, S. C.

Straub, the first to go, dropped through the trap at 12:07 a. m. pale and shaken, he wore tan pants stuffed into combat boots, an olive drab uniform coat and shirt and garrison cap. Asked if he had anything to say, the 39-year-old prisoner replied in German:

"I stand here not guilty. I did it as a German soldier ordered to do it. If I had not done so I would have been punished when I returned to Germany."

Gauss, 32, hanged at 12:40 a. m. made this statement:

"I can say no more than that a great injustice is being done. I committed no murder. I have nothing more to say."

Retake German P. W. After 7-Hour Search

Ithaca, July 14 (A. P.).—A German prisoner of war who escaped from the Slaterville Springs internment camp last night was recaptured today by military police men about six miles from the camp, the FBI announced.

The fugitive, one of 114 brought to the camp this week to assist in harvesting crops in Cortland and Tompkins counties, was Franz Petschauer, 30 years old, who escaped between the regular checks of prisoners at 8:30 P. M. yesterday and 6 A. M. today. Petschauer was apprehended on the Slaterville-Richford Road after a seven-hour search by the military police, the FBI and other law enforcement agencies.

Kamikaze Survivors Due Here

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14 (AP).—Several hundred survivors from the transport Bates and the L. S. M. 135 (landing ship, medium) which were sunk by Japanese suicide planes in the Okinawa campaign, were homeward bound today after processing at Treasure Island naval base.

Pacific Veterans Land at San Diego

San Diego, Cal., July 14 (A. P.).—Bernard Chudnoff, seaman first class of 385 Alabama street, Brooklyn, was among 869 officers and men arriving here yesterday from Pacific fronts. He was eager to see his wife. He doesn't remember much about his ship being hit near Okinawa since he didn't wake up till four days later.

Another Okinawa casualty was Marine Pfc. James Durdunas, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Durdunas of 901 Columbus avenue, New York.

2 More Germans Hanged For Killing Fellow P. W.

Prisoners Say Victim Was 'Traitor to Fatherland'

FORT LEAVENWORTH, Kan., July 14 (AP).—Two more German prisoners of war, the second group to be hanged at the United States Disciplinary Barracks in less than a week, went to their deaths shortly after midnight for the murder of a fellow prisoner at Aiken, S. C.

Near collapse and showing signs of nervousness, the two Germans —Rudolph Straub, thirty-nine, and Erich Gauss, thirty-two, were hanged for the murder April 5, 1944, of Horst Guenther in a work camp under the jurisdiction of Camp Gordon, Ga., in the 4th Service Command.

The Army account of the slaying said Guenther was charged by his fellow prisoners with being a "traitor to his oath, flag and fatherland." A kitchen orderly, he was accused also of dividing milk unfairly between German prisoners and Americans, with having reported other prisoners to American officers for taking too much food and for revealing a threatened strike.

Five Nazis were hanged here Tuesday for a similar murder.

"I stand here not guilty. I did it as a German soldier ordered to do it. If I had not done so, I would have been punished when I returned to Germany," Straub said just before he died.

Said Gauss: "I can say no more than that a great injustice is being done. I committed no murder. I have nothing more to say."

N.Y. PUBLISHERS WARN STRIKERS

Tell Deliverers To Return Tomorrow Or Be Dismissed

New York, July 14 (AP)—The Publishers Association of New York city today sent telegrams to striking members of the Newspaper and Mail Deliverers Union (Independent), warning them that, unless they reported to work on Monday, immediate dismissal would follow.

The Publishers Association ultimatum came on the fourteenth day of the strike, which has affected distribution of fourteen New York dailies and three racing publications.

Papers Pass Picket Lines

The publishers said that since morning and afternoon papers were involved, the reporting hours of the men extend throughout the day, so that there was no specific deadline for the men to return to their jobs.

Although the publishers had warned the 1,700 strikers last Friday that they faced loss of their jobs unless they resumed work, at that time the association did not fix a definite date as it did today.

Leaders for the union were not immediately available for comment.

Earlier, hundreds of thousands of newspapers were carried through union picket lines.

Queues formed at the newspaper plants, some persons buying single copies and others carrying hundreds of papers away for resale. Boys throughout the city asked and got 10 cents or more for papers normally selling for 2 to 5 cents.

The Daily News reported over the-counter sales yesterday totaled 575,000, compared with 125,000 the second day of the strike. The Times reported a corresponding increase from 38,000 to 135,000.

Union To Meet Today

Average daily circulations before the strike were 2,025,000 for the News and 449,000 for the Times.

Earlier, Louis Waldman, counsel for the striking Newspaper and Mail Deliverers' Union (independent), said the union's members would meet tomorrow and predicted they would "vote to support the union and the strike until the publishers either settle or agree to arbitrate."

A union offer to return to work immediately if an arbitrator is appointed was rejected yesterday by the War Labor Board, which thrice has ordered the walkout ended. Mayor F. H. LaGuardia and others who received the offer also rejected or did not acknowledge it.

Newspaper Official In Radio Talk

"Wasn't the matter in arbitration when the union, by its complete and utter defiance, caused the War Labor Board to take it out of arbitration by canceling its contract with the publishers association?" asked Edwin S. Friendly, general manager of the New York Sun, in a broadcast today.

Waldman, on the same program, denied a publishers' statement that there was only one major point in dispute—the union's demand for a three per cent pay-roll levy to set up a welfare fund—and said it was "monstrous" that they "forced a strike on this one issue."

The publishers, released by WLB from closed shop and all other clauses of their contract with the union, have announced they are working on plans to restore "full normal distribution" of newspapers with or without the union members' services.

One striker was arrested on an assault charge today after a youth complained he was knocked down and his papers scattered. Earlier, a man buying papers was arrested and charged with carrying a concealed weapon.

LONDON, JULY 14-(AP)-THE INDIA OFFICE ANNOUNCED TODAY THAT EFFORTS TO FORM A MORE REPRESENTATIVE INDIAN GOVERNMENT PROPOSED BY VICEROY LORD WAVELL HAD FAILED AND A DISPATCH FROM SIMLA QUOTED WAVELL AS SAYING THAT "THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE FAILURE IS MINE."

THE INDIA OFFICE ANNOUNCEMENT SAID "LEADING INDIAN POLITICIANS" CONVENED AT SIMLA, INDIA, BY THE VICEROY HAD "FAILED TO REACH A REQUISITE MEASURE OF AGREEMENT" AND THAT THE "VICEROY, WHO HAS MOST PATIENTLY AND ASSIDUOUSLY ENDEAVORED TO BRING THE PARTIES TOGETHER, HAS THEREFORE TERMINATED SITTINGS OF THE CONFERENCE."

IN A STATEMENT ISSUED BY WAVELL AT SIMLA THE VICEROY CALLED UPON THE INDIANS TO "EXERCISE GREATEST POSSIBLE RESTRAINT."

"I PROPOSE TO TAKE A LITTLE TIME TO CONSIDER IN WHAT WAY I CAN BEST HELP INDIA AFTER THE FAILURE OF THE CONFERENCE," HE ADDED.

"YOU CAN ALL HELP BY REFRAINING FROM RECRIMINATIONS. LAW AND ORDER MUST BE MAINTAINED."

WAVELL SAID THAT WHEN HE CALLED THE CONFERENCE HE ASKED INDIAN POLITICAL PARTIES -- THE MAJOR BEING M.A.JINNAH'S MOSLEM LEAGUE AND THE ALL-INDIA CONGRESS PARTY, OF WHICH MOHANDAS K.GANDHI IS THE SPIRITUAL LEADER -- TO SUBMIT LISTS OF PROSPECTIVE MEMBERS OF A NEW EXECUTIVE COUNCIL.

"I RECEIVED LISTS FROM ALL PARTIES REPRESENTED HERE," WAVELL SAID, "EXCEPT THE MOSLEM LEAGUE.

"I THEREFORE MADE MY PROVISIONAL SELECTIONS, INCLUDING CERTAIN MOSLEM LEAGUE NAMES, AND I HAVE EVERY REASON TO BELIEVE THAT IF THESE SELECTIONS HAD BEEN ACCEPTED HERE THEY WOULD HAVE BEEN ACCEPTABLE TO HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT."

WHEN HE PRESENTED THIS SOLUTION TO JINNAH, WAVELL SAID, "HE TOLD ME IT WAS NOT ACCEPTABLE TO THE MOSLEM LEAGUE, AND HE WAS SO DECIDED I FELT IT WOULD BE USELESS TO CONTINUE DISCUSSIONS."

"THE CONFERENCE HAS THEREFORE FAILED," HE SAID.

JINNAH HAS CONSISTENTLY MAINTAINED THAT NONE SHOULD SPEAK FOR INDIA'S MOSLEM POPULATION EXCEPT THE MOSLEM LEAGUE.

THE ALL-INDIA CONGRESS PARTY, ON THE OTHER HAND, NUMBERS MOSLEMS AMONG ITS MEMBERS AND PROPOSED TO NAME CERTAIN OF ITS MEMBER MOSLEMS TO POSTS ON WAVELL'S PROVISIONAL COUNCIL.

LONDON, JULY 14- (AP)-CIVILIAN CENSORSHIP DELAYED THE DISTRIBUTION OUTSIDE OF EGYPT TODAY OF COURT TESTIMONY THAT BRITAIN "PRESSURED" EGYPT INTO A DECLARATION OF WAR AGAINST THE AXIS.

GEORGE PALMER, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT, REPORTED TONIGHT FROM CAIRO THAT THE FIRST 82 WORDS HAD BEEN DELETED FROM A CABLED DISPATCH IN WHICH HE REPORTED DEFENSE TESTIMONY AT THE TRIAL OF A YOUNG EGYPTIAN LAWYER, MAHMUD ISSAWY, WHO PLEADED GUILTY TO ASSASSINATING EGYPTIAN PREMIER AHMED MAHER PASHA AFTER THE PREMIER ANNOUNCED EGYPT'S WAR DECLARATION.

"THE SUBSTANCE OF MY CABLE WHICH WAS STOPPED BY CENSORS WAS THAT ISSAWY'S TESTIMONY CLAIMED THAT BRITAIN PRESSURED EGYPT INTO A DECLARATION OF WAR," PALMER ADVISED THE ASSOCIATED PRESS' LONDON BUREAU LATER TODAY.

"CENSORSHIP IS PRESENTED HERE AS EGYPTIAN BUT ACTUALLY IT IS CONTROLLED BY A BRITISH CIVILIAN CENSOR. IT IS A STRICTLY CIVILIAN CENSORSHIP. LOCAL PAPERS WERE PERMITTED TO PUBLISH FULL EXTRACTS OF THE TESTIMONY BUT ALL OUTGOING CABLES WERE SUBJECT TO CENSORSHIP."

AFTER HEARING ISSAWY'S CHARGE, PALMER REPORTED, THE COURT TOLD THE DEFENDANT THAT EGYPT'S WAR DECLARATION WAS IN ACCORDANCE WITH A YALTA CONFERENCE AGREEMENT.
A SPOKESMAN FOR THE BRITISH MINISTRY OF INFORMATION SAID HERE
THAT "THERE IS NOTHING WE CAN DO ABOUT" CENSORSHIP IN THE ISSAWY
TRIAL AND ADED:
"AFTER ALL, THE WAR'S OVER AND IF WE PERSUADED EGYPT TO GET INTO IT WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?"

PARIS, JULY 14 -(AP)- THE FRENCH AIRCRAFT INDUSTRY EXPECTS TO RECOVER FROM FOUR YEARS OF GERMAN OCCUPATION AND BE SELF SUFFICIENT BY THE END OF 1947, MARCEL BOUQUES-CLICQUES, 27-YEAR-OLD CHIEF OF THE CIVILIAN CABINET IN THE AIR MINISTRY, SAID TODAY.

HE SAID THAT AFTER SIX MONTHS DELAY FRANCE HAD SUCCEEDED IN SETTING A MISSION TO THE UNITED STATES TO PURCHASE AMERICAN TRANSPORTS

AND HOPED TO BUY DOUGLAS TWO AND FOUR ENGINE PLANES FOR DOMESTIC AND INTERNATIONAL SERVICES.

JUL 15 1945

GLICQUES SAID FRANCE ALSO WANTED TO OBTAIN LICENSES FOR THE MANUFACTURE OF AMERICAN AND BRITISH TYPE AIRCRAFT ENGINES.

THE AIR MINISTRY STATED THAT AT PRESENT NO QUESTIONS CONCERNING COMMERCIAL AVIATION COULD BE DISCUSSED BECAUSE THE POLICIES STILL WERE BEING FORMULATED. FRANCE LISTED ITS PROPOSED POSTWAR INTERNATIONAL AIR ROUTES AT THE CHICAGO CONFERENCE AND SIGNED ALL BUT THE FIFTH FREEDOM AGREEMENT, SHARING GREAT BRITAIN'S OPPOSITION TO [redacted] WIDE OPEN SKIES.

AT THE MOMENT FRANCE IS NOT OPERATING ANY COMMERCIAL AIR SERVICES, EITHER DOMESTIC OR INTERNATIONAL, GLICQUES SAID, AND THE MILITARY ROUTES REACH ONLY TO ENGLAND AND AFRICA.

HE SAID THAT FRANCE HAS NO PRIVATE AVIATION BECAUSE OF A LACK OF PLANES BUT THAT THE AIR MINISTRY HOPED FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF A SUCCESSFUL LIGHT MODEL WHICH WOULD BE AVAILABLE CHEAPLY AND IN QUANTITY.

THE GERMANS LOOTED FRENCH AIRCRAFT PLANTS OF MATERIALS AND MACHINE TOOLS DIFFICULT TO REPLACE, HE POINTED OUT, AND THE GENERAL SHORTAGE OF COAL ALSO WAS AFFECTING THE INDUSTRY.

DANCING, SINGING PARISIANS HELD THEIR FIRST OPEN CELEBRATION OF THE HOLIDAY SINCE 1939. SURROUNDED BY REPRESENTATIVES OF THE ARMED FORCES OF THE ALLIED POWERS AND THE BEY OF TUNIS, GEN. DE GAULLE REVIEWED THE PARADE IN PARIS FROM A STAND IN THE PLACE DE LA BASTILLE, SITE OF THE GLOOMY MEDIEVAL FORTRESS WHOSE CAPTURE 156 YEARS AGO BECAME A SYMBOL OF THE FRENCH REVOLUTION.

THE PARADE MOVED THROUGH THE CITY'S BOULEVARDS TO THE PLACE DE LA CONCORDE AND UP TH CHAMPS ELYSEES TO THE ARC DE TRIOMPHE WHERE MIDNIGHT CEREMONIES HONORING THE WAR DEAD BEGAN THE FORMAL OBSERVANCE OF THE HOLIDAY.

IN THE FALLEN GERMAN CAPITAL THE FRENCH TRICOLOR WAS RAISED OVER BERLIN'S VICTORY COLUMN--COMMEMORATING THE BIRTH OF THE GERMAN EMPIRE WITH A DEFEAT OF FRANCE THREE-QUARTERS OF A CENTURY AGO. GENERALS OF THE RUSSIAN, BRITISH AND AMERICAN ARMIES AND A GROUP OF 55 FRENCH OFFICERS WHO HAD JUST ARRIVED IN BERLIN FROM PRISONER OF WAR REPATRIATION CAMPS IN EASTERN EUROPE WITNESSED THE PARADE OF VETERANS OF THE FRENCH FIRST ARMORED DIVISION.

STUTTGART, GERMANY, JULY 14--(AP)--U.S. 100TH INFANTRY DIVISION OCCUPATION TROOPS HAVE TAKEN OVER STUTTGART WITHOUT ANY REPETITION OF THE DELICATE SITUATION WHICH AROSE 10 WEEKS AGO WHEN FRENCH OCCUPATION FORCES REFUSED TO GET OUT WITHOUT ORDERS FROM HIGHER AUTHORITIES.

THE 100TH DIVISION WAS ORDERED TO TAKE OVER SHORTLY AFTER THE CITY SURRENDERED TO THE FRENCH THIRD ALGERIAN DIVISION IN LATE APRIL FIGHT. THE FRENCH COMMANDER REFUSED TO RELEASE CONTROL AND FOR FIVE DAYS THE ALLIED FORCES STOOD VIRTUALLY TOE TO TOE, EXERCISING CONSIDERABLE RESTRAINT TO AVOID INCIDENTS. FINALLY THE AMERICANS MOVED OUT. THIS TIME, THE AMERICANS MOVED IN AND THE FRENCH DEPARTED WITHOUT A MURMUR.

THE MOST POTENTIALLY DISTURBING FACTOR FACING THE AMERICANS WAS THE DISCOVERY THAT 15,000 FORMER RUSSIAN PRISONERS AND OTHER DISPLACED PERSONS WERE MOVING ABOUT FREELY, CARRYING FIREARMS. MOST OF THEM WERE DISARMED WITHOUT SERIOUS TROUBLE, HOWEVER, AND QUARTERED IN REGIMENTED CAMPS.

FRANKFURT ON MAIN, GERMANY, JULY 14-(AP)-AMERICAN ARMY INVESTIGATORS HAVE PIECED TOGETHER MOST OF THE STORY OF THE OFFICIAL COUNTERFEITING AND FORGED PAPERS BUREAU OPERATED BY GESTAPO CHIEF HEINRICH HIMMLER FOR THE BENEFIT OF NAZI AGENTS IN ENEMY AND NEUTRAL COUNTRIES.

HIS MINT AND PRINTING PRESSES TURNED OUT BILLIONS IN SPURIOUS CURRENCY FOR USE IN ALMOST EVERY COUNTRY IN THE WORLD, BUT SPECIALIZED ON BRITISH POUND STERLING NOTES AND AMERICAN DOLLERS--IN FACT, I AT ONE TIME HIMMLER PLANNED TO CREATE A MONEY PANIC IN ENGLAND BY MAKING [redacted] DUMPING QUANTITIES OF COUNTERFEIT NOTES ON BRITISH CITIES FROM AIRPLANES.

FINANCIAL EXPERTS WITH THE ALLIED CONTROL COMMISSION AGREE THAT HIMMLER'S COUNTERFEITERS ATTAINED THEIR GREATEST SUCCESS WITH 50-POUND STERLING NOTES BUT FELL DOWN BADLY ON AMERICAN $50 AND $100 BILLS.

"HIS BIG MISTAKE WAS USING AMATEUR COUNTERFEITERS," SAID COL. BERNARD BERNSTEIN, DIRECTOR OF THE FINANCE DIVISION OF THE U. S. GROUP CONTROL COUNCIL.

JUL 15 1945

JUL 15 1945

"HE PULLED THEM OUT OF CONCENTRATION CAMPS AND PUT THEM TO WORK, BUT HE OUGHT TO HAVE TURNED THE JOB OVER TO THE BEST MONEY MEN HE COULD FIND."

"HIMMLER FINALLY REALIZED THIS AND BECAME SO CRITICAL THAT MONEY TURNED OUT BY HIS FACTORY WAS DIVIDED INTO FOUR CATEGORIES--EXPERT, FAIR, FOR PROPAGANDA PURPOSES, AND TO BE DESTROYED."

MONEY LABELLED EXPERT WAS FOR NAZI AGENTS IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES AND WAS REGARDED AS GOOD ENOUGH TO PASS ANYWHERE. THAT LABELED FAIR WAS SUPPOSED TO BE USED ONLY IN SPECIAL AREAS. MONEY MARKED FOR PROPAGANDA PURPOSES WAS ONLY A DEGREE LESS EXPERT THAN THAT IN THE "FAIR" CATEGORY, AND IT WAS SUCH MONEY WITH WHICH HIMMLER PLANNED AN ENGLISH MONEY PANIC.

BRITISH AGENTS [redacted] DISCOVERED THE PLAN BEFORE IT COULD BE CARRIED OUT, HOWEVER, AND THE BRITISH PEOPLE WERE WARNED.

COUNTERFEITING WAS ONLY ONE OF HIMMLER'S MANY FINANCIAL INTERESTS. SO EXTENSIVE WERE THE ACTIVITIES OF THE SS AND SO GREAT WAS HIS PERSONAL POWER THAT HIS ORGANIZATION OPERATED PRACTICALLY AS AN INDEPENDENT POWER WITHIN THE GOVERNMENT AND HAD ITS OWN GOLD RESERVE.

BY DANIEL DE LUCE

POTSDAM, JULY 14-(AP)-HERE IN AN IDYLLIC WOODLAND SETTING STILL STREWN WITH THE WRECKAGE OF THE GERMAN ARMY ARE VERSAILLES OF 1919 AND TEHRAN OF 1943 ROLLED INTO ONE, WITH AGONIZED EUROPE AND ASIA ALIKE LOOKING TO IT FOR HELP.

FROM MOSCOW, LONDON AND WASHINGTON HAVE COME FORECASTS OF WHAT GORDIAN-KNOTTED PROBLEMS WILL BE LAID UPON THE BIG THREE CONFERENCE TABLE NEXT WEEK BEFORE RUSSIAN AND ENGLISH SPEAKING STATESMEN.

WITH EUROPE'S CHAOTIC PEACE AND ASIA'S STILL FIERCELY-RAGING WARFARE INEXTRICABLY LINKED, IT IS OBVIOUS THAT THE SOVIET UNION NOW STANDS TOWARD JAPAN IN MANY RESPECTS SIMILAR TO THE WAY THE UNITED STATES STOOD TOWARD GERMANY IN THE MONTHS PRECEDING PEARL HARBOR.

THAT IS WHY THE MOST IMPORTANT NEWS OF ALL MAY NOT BE KNOWN ABOUT THE POTSDAM CONFERENCE FOR A CONSIDERABLE TIME TO COME.

ALL THAT REMAINED WAS FOR THE THREE PRINCIPALS TO TAKE THEIR PLACES IN GERMANIC VERSIONS OF THE WHITE HOUSE, THE KREMLIN AND NO. 10 DOWNING STREET, SHELTERED BEHIND LINES OF ALLIED GUARDS SEVERAL MILES DEEP.

JUL 15 1945

PRESIDENT TRUMAN WAS SCHEDULED TO LAND AT ANTWERP TOMORROW FROM THE CRUISER AUGUSTA AND TO PROCEED HERE BY PLANE. PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL WAS TO END HIS VACATION AT HENDAYE IN FRANCE OVER THE WEEK END. GENERALISSIMO STALIN SUSPENDED HIS SERIES OF TALKS WITH CHINESE PREMIER T.V.SOONG AT MOSCOW AND PREPARED TO LEAVE FOR THE MEETING.

THIS SUMMER RESORT AREA, ONCE POPULAR WITH NAZI STARS OF THE STAGE AND SCREEN, HAS BEEN ALMOST COMPLETELY DEPOPULATED OF GERMANS TO FURNISH THE SECURITY ESSENTIAL FOR THE BIG THREE.

STALIN IS MAKING HIS SECOND TRIP OUTSIDE THE SOVIET UNION IN ORDER TO MEET WITH TRUMAN AND CHURCHILL, BUT AS AT TEHRAN HE WILL STAY ON SOIL OCCUPIED BY THE RED ARMY.

THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH GROUPS ARE HOUSED IN LITTLE TERRITORIAL ISLANDS WELL WITHIN THE SOVIET ZONE IN GREATER BERLIN. TRAFFIC ON THE BROAD ASPHALT HIGHWAY TO POTSDAM IS A COSMOPOLITAN COLLECTION OF "HIGH BRASS" FROM MOSCOW, LONDON AND WASHINGTON.

A189

LITTLE ROUND-FACED SGT. VALENTINA SEMENOVNA BESPILOVA TWIRLS HER RED AND YELLOW FLAGS ALMOST LIKE BATONS AND GIVES THE SMARTEST SALUTE THIS SIDE OF BUCKINGHAM PALACE. HER HEART'S IN HER LOST HOME IN STALINGRAD, BUT HER MIND IS ON THE POTSDAM TRAFFIC.

ALMOST AT THE EDGE OF THE INTERNATIONAL SHANGRI LA A GERMAN ROADSIDE TAVERN ADVERTISES "DANCING AT 6 O'CLOCK," AND A FEW SHABBILY-DRESSED FRAULEINS SUN THEMSELVES IN RICKETY CHAIRS AT THE ENTRANCE AND OGLE THE RUSSIAN SOLDIERS.

SEVERAL THOUSAND ELITE GREEN-CAPPED SOVIET FRONTIER GUARDSMEN COMPOSE THE FORCE CHIEFLY RESPONSIBLE FOR POLICING THE "POTSDAM CONFERENCE," AND THEY ARE STRICTLY BUSINESS. IF YOU DO NOT HAVE EXACTLY THE RIGHT PASS--YOU DON'T TAKE A STEP FORWARD AND LIVE.

THESE GUARDSMEN HAVE BEEN TRAINED FOR YEARS TO OBEY ORDERS TO THE LETTER. VIRTUALLY NONE OF THEM SPEAKS ENGLISH, OR EVEN GERMAN, FOR WHILE THE RED ARMY FRATERNIZES TO ITS HEART'S CONTENT HERE, THE FRONTIER GUARDSMEN ARE A FORCE APART.

ALL ALLIED SOLDIERS ON SENTRY DUTY EXCEPT THOSE IN ARMORED VEHICLES HAVE RIFLES WITH BAYONETS FIXED AND PRESENT ARMS AT THE SLIGHTEST HINT OF AN OFFICER APPROACHING. SOVIET GUARDSMEN ARE DISTRIBUTED EVERY 20 FEET ALONG THE ROADS AND BYWAYS. AMERICAN AND BRITISH ARE ALMOST AS NUMEROUS.

TO REFRESH THE HISTORICAL FIGURES WHO ARE GATHERING HERE, EXPERT CATERERS HAVE HAD FINE WOODS AND WINES FLOWN IN DURING THE PAST FEW DAYS. AT YALTA LAST WINTER THE BIG THREE FEASTED ON THE LUXURIES OF THE SOVIET UNION. THE UNITED STATES AND THE BRITISH EMPIRE ARE CONTRIBUTING TO THE POTSDAM FUNCTIONS.

THE MOST ANXIOUS TASK OF ALL PROBABLY IS ASSUMED BY THE INTIMATE BODYGUARDS OF THE THREE CHIEFTAINS. FOR WHILE THE SETTING IS LIKE SOMETHING OUT OF THE GRIMM BROTHERS FAIRY TALES, THERE ARE MANY SCATTERED RELICS TO REMIND THAT THIS WAS A BATTLE FIELD LESS THAN THREE MONTHS AGO.

HAND GRENADES, ANTITANK ROCKETS AND OTHER DEADLY GADGETS ABANDONED BY THE GERMAN ARMY STILL ARE BEING PICKED UP FROM THE SPREADING ACRES OF GREEN WOODS. IT IS ASSUMED THAT ALL MINES HAVE BEEN REMOVED, BUT THERE WILL BE NO INFORMAL STROLLS OFF THE BEATEN PATHS BY ANY OF THE GREAT MEN AT POTSDAM.

PROPERTIES OF GERMANS JUDGED UNRELIABLE HAVE ALREADY BEEN CONFISCATED IN CZECHOSLOVAKIA. THE GOVERNMENT VIEWPOINT IS THAT THESE PROPERTIES REPRESENT PART OF THE NATION'S REPARATIONS CLAIMS AGAINST GERMANY, WHICH MAY TOTAL AS MUCH AS THREE HUNDRED BILLION CROWNS (ABOUT TEN AND ONE-QUARTER BILLION DOLLARS).

THE GOVERNMENT UNDERSTANDS THAT THESE PROPERTIES TAKEN FROM GERMAN INDIVIDUALS ARE NOT FROM THE GERMAN STATE. IT HAS BEEN SUGGESTED IN SOME CIRCLES IN PRAGUE, BUT NOT FORMALLY PROPOSED AS YET, THAT IN RECOMPENSE THESE DISPOSSESSED GERMANS SHOULD BE GIVEN CERTIFICATES DESCRIBING WHAT THEY LEFT BEHIND HERE, AND THAT THEY SHOULD BE ABLE TO RECOVER SIMILAR VALUES FROM THE GERMAN STATE.

BENES SAID THE POPULATION SHIFT PLAN WAS THE RESULT OF HIS NATION'S EXPERIENCE IN DISMEMBERMENT.

"OUR EXPERIENCE IN GIVING SPECIAL PRIVILEGES TO GERMAN AND HUNGARIAN MINORITIES WAS THOROUGHLY DISILLUSIONING," HE DECLARED.

"WITH THE GERMANS, FOR INSTANCE, I MADE ALL THE CONCESSIONS A LOYAL CZECH COULD. BUT THEY DIDN'T WANT TO LIVE AS PART OF US. CALCUTTA, JULY 14-(AP)-MAJ. GEN. CLAIRE L.CHENNAULT ANNOUNCED TODAY HIS RETIREMENT AS COMMANDER OF THE U.S. 14TH AIR FORCE. THE ANNOUNCEMENT WAS MADE WITH THE PERMISSION OF LT. GEN. ALBERT C. WEDEMEYER, COMMANDER OF U.S. FORCES IN THE CHINA THEATER.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT, MADE SIMULTANEOUSLY IN CALCUTTA, KUNMING AND CHUNGKING, CAME TWO DAYS AFTER IT WAS ANNOUNCED THAT LT. GEN. GEORGE E. STRATEMEYER WOULD COMMAND AN AUGMENTED U.S. ARMY AIR FORCE IN CHINA. UNTIL ITS RECENT DISBANDING, STRATEMEYER COMMANDED THE ALLIED EASTERN AIR COMMAND.

"THE JAPANESE NOW ARE BEATEN IN THE AIR IN CHINA," CHENNAULT SAID IN A STATEMENT. HE ADDED RETIRED EIGHT YEARS AGO BECAUSE OF HIS HEALTH AND THAT HE HAD SPENT MOST OF THOSE YEARS IN CHINA. HE WAS SUMMONED AGAIN TO ACTIVE DUTY IN THE U.S. ARMY AFTER ENTRANCE OF AMERICA INTO THE WAR.

CHENNAULT, ONE OF THE MOST SPECTACULAR AMERICAN AIR COMMANDERS AND FORMER HEAD OF THE FAMOUS AMERICAN VOLUNTEER GROUP -- THE "FLYING TIGERS" -- EXPRESSED THEHOPE THAT HE WOULD RETURN HOME AS SOON AS THE TRANSITION IS MADE TO STRATEMEYER'S NEW ORGANIZATION.

--DASH--

CHENNAULT WAS RETIRED FROM THE AMERICAN ARMY FOR "DISABILITY" AND WENT TO CHINA IN 1937 AT THE INVITATION OF MADAME CHIANG KAI-SHEK, THEN CHAIRMAN OF THE CHINESE AVIATION COMMISSION.

WHEN HE ARRIVED CHENNAULT ALREADY WAS THINKING IN TERMS OF WAR IN THE PACIFIC INVOLVING JAPAN AND THE UNITED STATES.

JAPAN OPENED HOSTILITIES AGAINST CHINA JUST FOUR DAYS AFTER CHENNAULT'S ARRIVAL AND HE FOUND HIMSELF WORKING WITH PLANES WHICH WERE OUTMODED AND TRAINING INEXPERIENCED CHINESE YOUTHS.

THE PLAN WHEREBY AMERICAN CIVILIAN AVIATION PERSONNEL WERE INVITED BY THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT TO BECOME A PART OF CHINA'S AIR FORCE WAS THE KEYSTONE OF CHENNAULT'S PROGRAM TO REVITALIZE THE CHINESE AIR FORCE.

JUL 15 1945

THUS, WHEN THE FIRST AMERICAN VOLUNTEER GROUP WAS FORMED, IN JULY, 1941, CHENNAULT WAS THE INEVITABLE LEADER.

A CHINESE OFFICIAL ONCE SAID THAT "CHENNAULT HAS ENDEARED HIMSELF TO CHINA MORE THAN ANY OTHER FOREIGNER SINCE MARCO POLO, 500 YEARS AGO."

CHENNAULT WAS MADE A BRIGADIER GENERAL BY GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK IN 1941. IN APRIL, 1942, HE WAS RECALLED TO ACTIVE DUTY IN THE UNITED STATES ARMY AND GIVEN THE TEMPORARY RANK OF COLONEL WITH PERMISSION TO CONTINUE HIS ACTIVITIES AND RELATIONSHIP WITH THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT. FIVE DAYS LATER, ON APRIL 22, 1942, HE WAS PROMOTED TO BRIGADIER GENERAL (TEMPORARY.)

CHENNAULT'S FLYING TIGERS -- SO NAMED BECAUSE THE CHINESE CONSIDER THE TIGER TO BE THE BRAVEST OF ANIMALS -- MADE COLORFUL HISTORY IN CHINA AND BURMA.

FIGHTING WITH CHENNAULT-DEVISED TACTICS, THE TIGERS ON NUMEROUS OCCASIONS ATTACKED VASTLY SUPERIOR FORCES OF ENEMY PLANES, SHOT DOWN SEVERAL AND FLED BEFORE THE JAPANESE HAD RECOVERED FROM THE SURPRISE.

CHENNAULT IS KNOWN AS ONE OF THE GREATEST OF PRECISION FLIERS. AIR MEN REMEMBER HIS FEATS AS LEADER OF "THREE MEN ON A FLYING TRAPEZE" WHICH WAS A FEATURE OF MANY AIR SHOWS DURING THE EARLY 1930'S. THEIR FAVORITE TRICK WAS TO TIE THEIR PLANES TOGETHER WITH STRING, TAKE OFF, GO THROUGH INTRICATE MANEUVERS AND LAND WITHOUT HAVING BROKEN A STRING.

SIMLA, INDIA, JULY 14-(AP)-VICEROY LORD WAVELL'S CONFERENCE TO ESTABLISH A MORE REPRESENTATIVE GOVERNMENT FOR INDIA ADJOURNED IN FAILURE TODAY AND WAVELL SAID HE DID NOT INTEND TO TRY AGAIN SOON TO SOLVE THE INDIAN PROBLEM.

WAVELL SAID IN A CLOSING ADDRESS TO THE 21 INDIAN CONFEREES THAT HIS PRINCIPAL TASKS WERE PROSECUTION OF THE JAPANESE WAR AND LAYING THE ADMINISTRATIVE GROUNDWORK FOR POSTWAR DEVELOPMENTS AND THAT BOTH EFFORTS REQUIRED A STABLE GOVERNMENT. STABILITY, HE SAID, COULD NOT BE PRESERVED IF CONTINUING POLITICAL DISCUSSIONS PRODUCED A FEELING O INSECURITY AMONG GOVERNMENT SERVANTS.

MAULANA ABUD KALAN AZAD, PRESIDENT OF THE CONGRESS PARTY, SAID LATER AT A PRESS CONFERENCE THAT THE PARTY'S PRINCIPAL POLITICAL RIVAL, THE MOSLEM LEAGUE, WAS IMMEDIATELY RESPONSIBLE FOR THE FAILURE BUT THAT THE ULTIMATE BLAME RESTED WITH THE BRITISH.

MAHOMED ALI JINNAH, HEAD OF THE MOSLEM LEAGUE, TOLD REPORTERS THE LEAGUE HAD ANALYZED WAVELL'S GOVERNMENTAL PROPOSALS AND FOUND THEM "A SNARE" TO REDUCE THE LEAGUE TO A HELPLESS MINORITY. THE PROPOSALS, JINNAH SAID, SHELVED THE LEAGUE'S DEMAND FOR A DIVISION OF INDIA TO CREATE A SEPARATE, MOSLEM-CONTROLLED COUNTRY IN PART OF THE PRESENT INDIA'S TERRITORY.

AZAD'S CHARGE THAT THE BRITISH WERE RESPONSIBLE FOR THE CONFERENCE'S FAILURE CAME AFTER WAVELL HIMSELF HAD SAID "THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE FAILURE IS MINE."

GUAM,JULY 14-(AP)-WHEN IT CAME TO PICKING THE MAN TO GIVE THE JAPANESE HOMELAND ITS FIRST FLEET SHELLING OF THE CENTURY, THE UNITED STATES NAVY CHOSE ITS BIGGEST ADMIRAL--250-POUND, QUICK-ON-THE-TRIGGER JOHN F.SHAFROTH.

THE NAVY MEN WHO KNOW HIM BEST DESCRIBE HIM SIMPLY AS "THE SORT OF FAT MAN WHO DOES HIS THINKING FAST."

HE WASN'T ALWAYS SO BULKY. AT ANNAPOLIS NAVAL ACADEMY IN 1908 HE SET A NEW HIGH-HURDLES RECORD. HE WAS THE ACADEMY'S HEAVY-WEIGHT BOXING AND WRESTLING CHAMPION AND PLAYED FOOTBALL FOR THREE SEASONS.

REAR ADMIRAL SHAFROTH HAD BEEN AT SEA THIS TIME ONLY FOUR MONTHS AS COMMANDER OF THE BATTLESHIP DIVISION. BUT BLUFF ADM. WILLIAM F. HALSEY KNEW WELL THE MAN HE CHOSE FOR THE HISTORY-MAKING ASSIGNMENT OF POURING SHELLS INTO JAPAN'S STEEL CITY OF KAMAISHI.

SHAFROTH HAD BEEN HALSEY'S RIGHT HAND MAN FROM JUNE 23, 1943, TO FEBRUARY 11, 1944. AS DEPUTY COMMANDER OF THE SOUTH PACIFIC AREA AND SOUTH PACIFIC FORCE HE CARED FOR A MYRIAD OF ADMINISTRATIVE DETAILS IN THE DAYS WHEN HALSEY WAS ENGAGING TO FAME.

SHAFROTH LEFT THE DEPUTY CONSOPAC POST TO UNDERTAKE ONE OF THE MOST TEDIOUS, PAINSTAKING TASKS ANY SEAGOING NAVAL OFFICER COULD HAVE FORCED ON HIM--PACIFIC FLEET INSPECTOR GENERAL.

IT WAS HIS JOB TO INVESTIGATE SUCH ACCIDENTS AS EXPLOSIONS WHICH BLEW UP MUNITIONS ON LSTS IN PEARL HARBOR ON THE EVE OF THEIR DEPARTURE FOR THE INVASION OF SAIPAN.

IT IS RATHER FITTING THAT AFTER YEARS OF SUCH RELATIVELY PROSAIC WORK AS ADMINISTRATOR AND INVESTIGATOR SHAFROTH SHOULD HAVE BEEN REWARDED WITH COMMAND OF THE FIRST BIG GUNS LOOSING THEIR SHELLS AGAINST JAPAN'S HOMELAND SOIL IN THIS WAR.

THE HONOR CAME TO HIM AT THE AGE OF 56. HE IS THE SON OF THE LATE UNITED STATES SENATOR JOHN F.SHAFROTH OF COLORADO AND MRS. VIRGINIA MORRISON SHAFROTH. HIS FATHER WAS ONE OF THE LEADING DEMOCRATIC REPUBLICAN POLITICIANS OF COLORADO. SHAFROTH WAS APPOINTED TO THE NAVAL ACADEMY IN 1904 FROM COLORADO.

IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR SHAFROTH COMMANDED THE DESTROYER TERRY ON ATLANTIC CONVOY DUTY AND RECEIVED THE NAVY CROSS.

THE CITATION SAID HE "SERVED WITH DISTINCTION IN THE IMPORTANT, EXACTING, HAZARDOUS DUTY OF PATROLLING WATERS INFESTED WITH ENEMY SUBMARINES AND MINES, AND IN ESCORTING AND PROTECTING VITALLY IMPORTANT CONVOYS OF TROOPS AND SUPPLIES THROUGH THESE WATERS."

HE WAS EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF THE BATTLESHIP WEST VIRGINIA AND WAS SKIPPER OF THE CRUISER INDIANAPOLIS FOR TWO YEARS BEFORE GOING TO THE BUREAU OF NAVIGATION (NOW BUREAU OF PERSONNEL) AS DIRECTOR OF THE NAVAL RESERVE DIVISION IN 1940. THAT AAS JUST WHEN THE NAVY WAS BEGINNING TO RECRUIT RESERVE OFFICER PERSONNEL IN PREPARATION FOR THE WAR TO COME.

IN JUNE, 1941, SHAFROTH BECAME ASSISTANT CHIEF OF THE BUREAU, THEN HEADED BY ADM. CHESTER W.NIMITZ.

WITHIN A WEEK AFTER NIMITZ TOOK OVER COMMAND OF THE PACIFIC FLEET, SHAFROTH WENT TO SEA AS A REAR ADMIRAL COMMANDING CRUISER DIVISION THREE. FROM THIS JOB HE WENT TO NOUMEA AS HALSEY'S DEPUTY IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC.

SHAFROTH HAS BEEN MARRIED SINCE 1911. HIS WIFE, THE FORMER [illegible]EN MARSHALL FISCHER OF NEW YORK CITY NOW LIVES IN (THE KENNEDY [illegible]. 3133 CONNECTICUT AVENUE) WASHINGTON. #

GUAM,SUNDAY,JULY 15-(AP)-IN BOMBARDING MURORAN ON HOKKAIDO TODAY THE AMERICAN NAVAL FORCE PRESUMABLY HAD TO STEAM INTO THE GULF THAT LEADS INTO UCHIURA BAY, WITH LAND ON THREE SIDES OF THE ATTACKING FORCE -- AND EXTREMELY DARING PROCEDURE.

THE BAY MOUTH IS ONLY 17 MILES WIDE, AND ITS APPROACH IS BUT 60 MILES WIDE, YET IN THOSE CONFINED WATERS NEITHER THE JAPANESE NAVY NOR AIR FORCE COULD DO ANYTHING TO STOP THE SYSTEMATIC DESTRUCTION OF ONE OF THEIR COUNTRY'S MOST IMPORTANT WAR INDUSTRY CENTERS.

BESIDES STEEL-MAKING WORKS, MURORAN PRODUCED TANKS, MUNITIONS, MACHINERY, SYNTHETIC OIL AND SOME SHIPS.

THE CITY HAS EXPANDED RAPIDLY DURING THE WAR AS THE JAPANESE SOUGHT TO DISPERSE THEIR WAR INDUSTRIES TO "SAFE" AREAS. ITS SEAPORT IS ONE OF NORTHERN JAPAN'S BUSIEST, ALTHOUGH THE ANCHORAGE IS EXPOSED.

THE PROTECTED INNER HARBOR HAD NINE OR MORE PIERS.
CONNECTED WITH ALL MAAJOR HOKKAIDO POINTS BY RAIL, MURORAN ALSO HAD A SYSTEM OF FERRIES OPERATING DAILY TO AOMORI ON HONSHU, SUPPLEMENTING THE MORE IMPORTANT HAKODATE-AOMORI FERRIES WHICH WERE HIT BY THE AMERICAN CARRIER PLANES SATURDAY.

AFTER THE DAY-LONG POUNDING OF TOKYO TUESDAY, THE ENEMY RADIO REPORTED THE AMERICAN FLEET HAD "FLED SOUTHWARD." CREWS OF THE FLEET LAUGHED WHEN THEY HEARD THAT BROADCAST; THEY WERE "FLEEING" NORTHWARD TO ATTACK HOKKAIDO UNDER PROTECTION OF FOG.

HALSEY MEDE HIS SURPRISE MOVE AFTER HIS CARRIERS--VICE ADM. JOHN S.MCCAIN'S FAMED TASK FORCE 38--FAILED TO FIND ANY SUBSTANTIAL PROPORTION OF THE ENEMY AIR FORCE ON THE FIELDS BUILT FOR TOKYO'S DEFENSE.

HOKKAIDO HAS 20 TO 25 OPERATIONAL AIRFIELDS, AND THE EIGHT NORTHERN DISTRICTS OF HONSHU HAVE AN EQUAL NUMBER.

RADIO TOKYO ACKNOWLEDGED THE CARRIER ASSAULTS TODAY, AND SAID THE "MAIN STRENGTH" WAS AIMED AT THE NORTH TIP OF HONSHU--BUT ESTIMATED THE RAIDING STRENGTH AT ONLY 500 PLANES.

ALTHOUGH DESTRUCTION OF JAPAN'S REMAINING 4,000 TO 5,000 TRAINERS AND 4,000 TO 5,000 COMBAT AIRCRAFT WAS A PRIMARY GOAL, TODAY'S AERIAL ATTACKS ALSO OFFER COMPLETE VISUAL AND PHOTO RECONNAISSANCE OF THE AREA, AND CLOSE EVEN MORE TIGHTLY THE AMERICAN BLOCKADE OF THE MAJOR HOME ISLANDS.

THE NEW ASSAULT BY TASK FORCE 38 OPENED WITHIN A DAY AFTER 500 SUPERFORTRESSES POURED 3,000 TONS OF FIRE BOMBS AND HIGH EXPLOSIVES ON FIVE MORE ENEMY INDUSTRIAL CENTERS.

FAR EAST AIR FORCE BOMBERS SANK OR DAMAGED 49 MORE JAPANESE WATER CRAFT--FROM SCHOONERS TO A 6,000-TON FREIGHTER--GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR REPORTED TODAY. THE BOMBERS SCOURED ENEMY SEAS FROM CHINA TO THE DUTCH EAST INDIES. MEANWHILE MORE THAN 100 MITCHELL MEDIUM

FIFTY-SIX CORSAIRS AND THUNDERBOLTS ROCKETED AND STRAFED TOKUNO AIRFIELD, SCORING DIRECT HITS ON THE RADIO AND POWER STATION, A LIGHTHOUSE AND BARRACKS, WHICH WERE SET AFIRE.

SMALL SHIPPING WAS STRAFED ENROUTE.

ONE AMERICAN PLANE WAS DOWNED IN THE ATTACK AND TWO OTHERS WERE DAMAGED BUT WERE NURSED HOME BY THEIR PILOTS, LTS.JACK MARSHALL OF MAGNOLIA, ARK., AND BILLY SMOCK OF SANTA ANA, CALIF.

ABOARD BATTLESHIP SOUTH DAKOTA IN SIGHT OF JAPAN,JULY 14-(AP)-HIGH EXPLOSIVES, BEARING MADE IN AMERICA STAMP, WHISTLED FOR TWO HOURS FROM FLAMING MUZZLES OF BIG NAVAL GUNS INTO THE GREAT JAPANESE IRON WORKS AT KAMAISHI IN NORTHERN HONSHU TODAY.

IT WAS MY PRIVILEGE TO WATCH THIS BOMBARDMENT OF JAPAN FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THIS WAR--A BOMBARDMENT WHICH CAUSED SKY-REACHING EXPLOSIONS AND STARTED ROARING FIRES WHICH BLANKETED THE AREA WITH SMOKE.

A BATTLE SQUADRON OF THREE BATTLESHIPS, TWO HEAVY CRUISERS AND NUMEROUS DESTROYERS, WAS IN PLAIN SIGHT OF JAPAN FOR THREE HOURS BEFORE THE BOMBARDMENT STARTED AND FOR SOMETIME AFTERWARD.

FOR TWO HOURS THE SQUADRON SWAGGERED BACK AND FORTH WITHIN RIFLE SHOT OF HONSHU, DRAWING ONLY MOST MEAGER AND APPARENTLY TIMID OPPOSITION.

IT WAS AS IF YOU STRUTTED BACK AND FORTH ON SOME ENEMY'S FRONT PORCH, PIKED IN HIS FRONT DOOR, MESSED UP HIS PARLOR AND ASKED HIM WHAT HE PROPOSED TO DO ABOUT IT.

THE JAPANESE CHOSE TO DO VERY LITTLE ABOUT IT.

THE JAPANESE CHOSE TO DO VERY LITTLE ABOUT IT.

AS THIS IS WRITTEN THERE IS NO REPORT OF DAMAGE TO AMERICAN VESSELS IN THIS ACTION, ONE OF THE MOST SPECTACULAR OF THE PACIFIC WAR.

KAMAISHI IS 275 MILES NORTH OF TOKYO. IT HAS A PRE-WAR POPULATION OF ABOUT 42,000, BUT AN INFLUX OF WORKERS TO THE STEEL MILLS IS BELIEVED TO HAVE SWELLED IT TO NEARLY TWICE THAT.

THE IMPERIAL IRON AND STEEL WORKS, PRIME TARGET OF THE BOMBARDING WARSHIPS, IS ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT IN THE WHOLE JAPANESE EMPIRE.

NIMITZ REVEALS HIGH ENEMY TOLL IN BOMBARDMENT

Two-Day Attack on Homeland Also Costs Nipponese 92 Planes.

KUSHIRO BURNED OUT

Foe Offers No Defense on Sea or in the Air on Second Day.

ERICKSON

GUAM, Monday, July 16—(AP) Two days of unprecedented U. S. naval air and sea bombardment of Japan Saturday and Sunday cost the enemy 128 vessels and 92 planes destroyed or damaged, vital steel works in two cities blown up, one entire city burned down and another seriously damaged, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz reported today.

In the latest bombardm on Sunday, by battleships of the powerful Third Fleet, more than 1,000 tons of shells set off continual explosions and great fires in the once-important industrial port of Muroran on Hokkaido Island.

No Enemy Defense

The enemy offered no defense, either aerial or naval, he said, to this second day's assaults on the home islands by 16-inch broadsides and carrier plane strikes, which first were announced yesterday while they were taking place.

Preliminary reports of the two days of carrier attacks showed 128 Japanese ships and small craft sunk or damaged—including six vital train ferries linking Hokkaido and Honshu.

This accounted for all but one of the ferries the Japanese were known to have there.

Most of the city of Kushiro, a Hokkaido center of 63,000 population, was burned out by fires set in the first day's air assaults, Nimitz said.

Superfortresses from the Marianas joined the coordinated blasting of the empire with a 50 to 75-plane bombing of a major Honshu oil refinery at Kudamatsu.

Despite "widespread destruction" caused by the fleet's deliberate blasting and powerful air strikes, "the action of these forces brought no defensive response from the enemy in the air or on the surface throughout the day" Sunday—the second day in which Japan offered no gesture of defense except ineffective anti-aircraft fire, the communique reported.

Steel Plant Blasted

Muroran's Nippon steel plant and Wanishi iron works were exploding and aflame after Sunday's cyclone of 16-inch shells from the battleships Missouri, Iowa and Wisconsin burst upon the city, formerly untouched by war.

The smoke pall from the burning mills, gasoline tanks and munitions works became so thick that spotter planes working with the battleships flew lower than 1,000 feet to try to observe results.

In complete reports of Sunday's carrier plane blows at northern Honshu and Hokkaido—again hampered by adverse weather—showed nine ships and six small craft totalling 12,000 tons were sunk and nine ships and 30 small craft totaling 12,000 tons were damaged during the early morning hours alone.

Four enemy planes were destroyed aground, and one was damaged. There was no aerial interception, and anti-aircraft fire did no damage.

Many Ships Sunk

Further reports from Saturday's carrier actions showed 24 Japanese ships and 25 barges totalling 41,000 tons were sunk and 25 ships totalling 43,000 tons were damaged.

Among the ships sunk or beached were six of the train ferries which bring Hokkaido's war-necessary coal to Honshu's industries.

Carrier forces lost nine planes and three air crewmen in the Saturday strikes.

In Sunday's terrific bombardment of Muroran, "very large" explosions and fires were observed, and the Wanishi iron works virtually was devastated.

An open hearth blast furnace and chemical plant and warehouses were "heavily hit" and a coal liquefaction plant—including gas and storage tanks—was aflame. Many other fires were observed along the city's waterfront, where building of small wooden ships had been rushed by the ship-desperate enemy.

While carrier and surface bombardment results were being totalled, 50 to 75 Superfortresses lashed an oil refinery on Honshu.

The night-flying B-29's struck the big Nippon Oil Company refinery at Kudamatsu for the second time in sixteen days. The plant, on the Inland Sea coast of Honshu, was once the fourth largest in the home islands.

The big bombers, striking from medium altitudes, returned in an attempt to finish a job they failed to do in a raid June 29, when their first raid caused only slight damage.

The refinery is about 5 miles southeast of Tokyuama, where B-29 strikes seriously damaged oil refineries May 10. Nine of the enemy's fuel centers now have been attacked.

Not a single Japanese plane came over the American battleship bombarding squadron, nor did shore batteries offer any opposition, while Muroran was taking the 16-inch gun broadsides.

The battleships pounded the Nippon steel works and the Wanishi iron works with more than 810 of their 2,700-pound shells.

Lay Offshore 30,000 Yards

Muroran, Japan's second ranking steel city, lies at the northern lip of Uchiura Bay, southeastern Hokkaido Island, surrounded by high hills. The battleships lay offshore 30,000 yards to lob their shells into the basket target.

The city is 250 miles north of Kamaishi, northern Honshu Island, where another battleship squadron of Admiral William F. Halsey's 3d Fleet Friday demolished the Imperial Iron and Steel Works and set the city's harbor area afire.

Hit Jap Airfields

The carrier airmen sought out Japanese airfields and shipping. The eight-flying B-29s struck the big oil refinery at Kudamatsu for the second time in 16 days. The sky giants rained demolition bombs on the Nippon oil company plant near Tokuiama.

Not a single Japanese plane came over the American battleship bombarding squadron, nor did shore batteries offer any opposition, while Muroran was taking the 16-inch gun broadsides, said Associated Press Correspondent Richard O'Malley, aboard the Iowa.

The battleships, commanded by Rear Adm. Oscar C. Badger, pounded the Nihon steel works and the Wanishi iron works with more than 810 of their 2,700-pound shells. Repeatedly their observation plane pilots messaged "no change," in range, meaning that the shells were scoring bullseyes.

Flames 300 feet high crowned the Nihon works. The smokestacks of the Wanishi plant crumpled and large buildings were blown up, O'Malley said.

Muroran, Japan's second ranking steel city, lies at the northern lip of Uchiura bay, southeastern Hokkaido island. Surrounded by high hills, the battleships lay offshore 30,000 yards to lob their shells into the basket target.

The city is 250 miles north of Kamaishi, northern Honshu island, where another battleship squadron of Adm. William F. Halsey's Third Fleet Friday demolished the Imperial iron and steel works and set the city's harbor area afire.

The three 45,000-ton warships in the Muroran strike flew their battleflags as they boldly stood off the enemy's home coast and hammered their targets.

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, announcing the attack which began at 9:45 a.m., Sunday, Tokyo time, said the destroyers McGowan, Norman Scott and Remey participated. Unofficial reports said cruisers also were in the force which hit the city of more than 100,000 population.

Besides the steel mills, the battleships had other choice targets in factories producing aviation fuel from coal which abounds in the region, and tank, munitions and machinery plants.

Daring Strike

The strike at Muroran was a daring one, for the bombarding force could reach its objective only by steaming into the gulf that leads into Uchiura bay. The mouth of that bay is 17 miles across and the approach to it is only 60 miles wide.

The American naval airmen had ample targets to work on, if weather conditions were right, for Hokkaido island and adjacent northern Honshu contain much of Japan's vital war resources and industries.

Despite adverse weather Friday, the flyers did heavy damage to the enemy and encountered little or no opposition. They delivered strong blows at Hakodate, port city of southern Hokkaido, and smashed commercial shipping which carries coal and ore to the steel and iron mills on Honshu.

Nimitz said the airmen destroyed 24 grounded Nipponese planes and damaged 62. They sank 15 ships, including two train ferries, 10 small cargo vessels and a destroyer, and damaged 24 other craft ranging from a train ferry to tankers, small cargo vessels and destroyer escorts.

Hitting Hakodate and nearby transportation facilities, the Yank pilots damaged dock installations and destroyed 27 locomotives. Many plants have been moved from the heavily bombed southern areas to the northern part of the Archipelago, and many thousands of persons have been evacuated from ruined cities to the northern regions.

With the enemy's northward movement of his industrial potential American naval might also has gone north, closing in on Japanese shores for the purpose, as Nimitz said, "of extending and tightening the naval and air blockade of Japan and destroying Japanese resources."

A "strong force" of Privateer search planes of Fleet Air Wing 1 sank or damaged twelve Japanese vessels, inflicted "extensive damage" on an oil refinery and wrecked railroad installations in Saturday sweeps over a wide area of Korea and Korean waters, Admiral Nimitz announced.

Striking as far north as Heiko and Gensan, the lumbering search craft destroyed a railroad bridge, damaged another, skip-bombed and sealed a tunnel, exploded three locomotives and strafed five trains, damaged several locomotives and railroad stations, and attacked dock facilities and round houses.

A net tender was destroyed and three trawlers damaged by Liberators of Fleet Air Wing 18 in Sunday raids off Honshu's southern coast, the communiqué added.

Otake oil refinery destroyed.

Tokuyama — 50 per cent of the roof, 100 per cent of the oil storage tanks and 32 per cent of the by-product storage tanks of the Tokuyama naval oil storage and the Tokuyama synthetic fuel plants destroyed; 74 per cent of the storage tanks and 90 per cent of the buildings of the Oshima naval oil storage plant destroyed.

Yokkaichi, northeast of Osaka—50 per cent of the Utsube river oil refinery destroyed.

Shimotsu, also in the inland sea area—95 per cent of the Maruzen oil refinery destroyed.

Damage to the recently-hit Kawasaki petroleum center of Tokyo bay has yet to be ascertained.

Superfortresses Destroy Honshu Oil Refineries

Marianas-Based B-29s Cut Enemy's Dwindling Fuel Supply.

GUAM, Monday, July 16—(AP) Japan's dwindling fuel supply was struck again last night by between 50 and 75 Superfortresses who showered high explosives on a big refinery on the inland seacoast of Honshu.

Striking from medium altitude, the Marianas-based bombers hit the Nippon Oil company plant at Kudumatsu, once the fourth largest in the home islands.

The big bombers returned in an attempt to finish a job they failed to do in a raid June 29, when their first raid caused only slight damage.

The refinery is about five miles southeast of Tokyuama, where B-29 strikes seriously damaged oil refineries May 10. Nine of the enemy's tacked.

Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay's 21st Bomber Command reported that the raids had made this progress in the destruction of the fuel resources of the Japanese war machine:

Koriyama, 110 miles north of Tokyo—73 per cent of the Koriyama chemical plant destroyed; 59 per cent of the Hadogaya chemical plant destroyed.

Otake, also on the inland sea west of Tokyo—45 per cent of the

FLAMES SEEN FROM SHIPS

Eyewitness Describes Crumbling Of Muroran Plants

RICHARD O'MALLEY

Aboard Battleship Iowa off Hokkaido, July 15 (AP)—Knifing boldly inshore where the rugged hills of Muroran are plainly visible, this American battleship and others of a bombardment group pounded the great Nihon steel works and Wanishi iron mills today.

Not a single Japanese plane the air, nor did shore batteri turn the fire, as the colum ships belched destruction at leaving a pall of smoke ove target area.

Fire For 58 Minutes

At 9.37 A.M. this ship turned loose the first salvo. In a moment other battleships joined in the bombardment. The fire continued for 58 minutes, mainly against vital enemy steel plants.

A blob of smoke rose after the first salvo hit rugged point Muroran, which is like many promontories on the Oregon and Washington coast of the United States.

Our planes covering the sky were reassuring as the ships went into the area surrounded on three sides by enemy land. The Muroran area is shaped like a big pruning hook with the target located about at the start of the curve. The battleships drew in daringly close.

Battleflag At Masthead

The ship's battleflag—a big United States flag flown only once before—fluttered from the Iowa's masthead. Flame and brown smoke leaped from the guns. Audible above the bellowing and shock of the big guns was the rustle of shells sounding like giants shaking their coats in the sky.

This ship fired scores of shells. Each weighed 2,700 pounds. The ship barrage totaled more than 810 high-explosive projectiles divided between the Nihon steel and the Wanishi iron works.

It was terrifying enough even aboard the battleship. The guns seemed to shake the sea and sky. It must have caused an inferno ashore. The Japanese must have cringed under the steel cloudburst.

The skies were gray but there was a thin break of blue ahead as the bombardment continued and hills of the other section of the crescent-shaped promontory loomed off the starboard side.

They all seemed deserted, with no indication that somewhere in the area over which the guns were ranging was a city containing 107,000 Japanese.

Through binoculars the shore became startlingly close and a thin column of what appeared to be white smoke rose from a plant set in the depression between two low hills.

Our gunners were right on the mark and got repeated "no change, no change" reports from observers who meant that the range was right on the target and the shells were dropping where they would do the most damage.

The ship's officers reported the plants were "thoroughly worked over with damage everywhere."

Blasts At Nihon Works

Terrific explosions sounded from the Nippon works, followed by flames spurting 300 feet upward. Fires broke out everywhere in the big shops.

Much damage also was inflicted along the water front where coaling docks are located.

The slender stacks of the Wanishi iron works crumpled under the shelling, and another large building was blown up. The open-hearth blast furnaces were damaged badly.

Numerous small buildings of another plant were hit. Heavy smoke rolled upward.

Synthetic Oil Plant Burns

A coal liquefication works where the enemy produces synthetic petroleum burst into flames. Storage tanks took a pounding and through-

PILOTS RELATE DESTRUCTION OF JAP IRON WORKS

By RICHARD O'MALLEY

WITH THE U.S. THIRD FLEET OFF JAPAN, July 13 — (Delayed) (AP) The first salvos from U. S. Third Fleet battleships and cruisers bombarding the Japanese main islands today for the first time in the war, landed squarely in the center of the Imperial Iron and Steel Works at Kamaishi.

"A big column of smoke rose from the plant," said Lt. Samuel S. Hutchins, of St. Augustine, Fla., pilot of one of the 1,000 carrier planes which struck north Honshu and nearby Hokkaido Island simultaneously with the bombardment.

"We got a little antiaircraft fire over Kamaishi," Hutchins said, "but after the first salvo from the ships it stopped. Smoke from the plant areas rose to about 8,000 feet."

From then on the area proved a disappointment to the fliers searching for targets. The smoke obscured everything.

Other fliers from the Vice Adm. John S. McCain's Carrier Task Force 38 met heavy fog at some of their objectives, and so they turned to striking targets of opportunity.

The airmen destroyed 24 Japanese planes on the ground and damaged 62 more, sank 15 vessels of various types including two train ferries, and damaged 24 other craft.

Flew at 4,000 Feet

Describing the warships' firing on Kamaishi, Lt. McDonell Tyre, of Savannah, Ga., piloting an observation plane, said that "after the first hour we flew at 4,000 feet beneath a billowing smoke blanket.

"It looked like somebody had drawn a big black curtain in between the mountains, which were on both sides of the target."

Fleet headquarters said the steel plant was destroyed and the flames spread to Kamaishi's harbor area.

The warships, three battleships, two heavy cruisers and four destroyers, fired so rapidly that shells screamed into the target area by salvo every 15 seconds, Hutchins said.

"Those ships just steamed leisurely up and down the coastal areas firing at will," the flier declared. "There were ships in the harbor and one vessel which was trying to get out was straddled by shells.

"We saw one tremendous explosion along the waterfront. It may have been an ammunition ship close to shore or an ammunition dump on land, but it was one big explosion. I believe we hit one or two ships."

Type, grinning, said "these Japs didn't do anything but just take it. They hardly fired a pistol at us."

Hutchins said he believed the first hit of the bombardment was scored on blast furnaces of the iron works, which was a heavy producer of pig iron.

The naval airmen had a field day bombing and strafing enemy shipping, railroad trains and airfields.

Train Ferries Sunk

The two train ferries sunk were caught in Tsugaru strait, carrying war materials between Hokkaido and Honshu. Rocket bombs were showered on a destroyer lying in the bay Hakodate, on the south shore of Hokkaido.

Lt. George Blair of Sewickley, Pa., who was rescued from under Japanese noses at Truk harbor in February, 1944, after flak hit his plane, said he saw an enemy destroyer at Hakodate. It put up heavy anti-aircraft fire.

Hakodate harbor was dotted with shipping as the planes dropped down through holes in the overcast. Some of the ships tried to scamper to safety as rocket bombs whirled down among them.

Bad weather and low ceiling forced Lt. Richard W. Demott, of Philadelphia, to drop down to 100 feet attitude to drop his bombs on a small tanker.

Demott said his plane was hit by ack-ack, but other fliers who were nearby said they saw a piece of the ship come up at home.

Lt. (jg) Duncan McPhee, of Roselle Park, N. J., made a water landing when his gasoline supply gave out. As he floated in his life raft he was spotted by a squadron companion, Lt. (jg) James B. Black of Jacksonville, Fla., who guided a destroyer to his rescue.

MARINES LAND ON 2 ISLANDS

Nimitz Reports Action In Okinawa Group Belatedly

Guam, Monday, July 16 (AP)—The islands of Ihiya and Aguni in the Okinawa group were occupied by American forces on June 3 and June 9 without opposition, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

Rear Admiral R. L. Reifsnider was in command of the amphibious operations under over-all command of the late Lieut. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr.

Marines Form Landing Force

The 8th Marine Regimental Combat Team made both landings under command of Maj. Gen. L. P. Hunt.

Ihiya is a small island 25 miles northwest of the northern tip of Okinawa. Aguni is 35 miles west of central Okinawa.

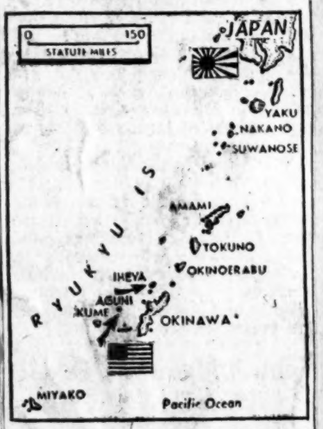
No reason was given for the delay of more than a month in announcing the occupation.

The 8th Marine Regimental Combat Team later helped in the final successful drive on Okinawa, where organized enemy resistance ended on June 21. Hunt is commander of the 2d Marine Division, of which the combat team is a part.

Garrisons Evacuated

Japanese garrisons had been evacuated from both Ihiya and Aguni and presumably taken to Okinawa to reinforce the garrison which defended Okinawa in an 82-day campaign.

Ryukyuan natives on both islands have small farms on which they grow sweet potatoes, sugar cane and some rice.



31-Year-Old USS New York Wins New Laurels in Battle of Okinawa

JUL 16 1945

GUAM, Monday, July 16—(AP) One of the oldest and one of the newest American battleships, the U.S.S. New York and the U.S.S. Washington, were among vessels which figured prominently in the conquest of Okinawa.

Pacific Fleet headquarters, in making the disclosure today, said the 31-year-old New York was the only capital ship at Okinawa "to stay on the job without relief." She alone poured more than 5,000,000 pounds of shells into Japanese positions on the island—more than were fired by all ships combined during the invasion bombardment of Tarawa.

The Washington, described by headquarters as the first U. S. battleship in this or the last war to sink an enemy battleship with her main batteries, supported the invasion of Okinawa after helping to smash Japanese defenses on Iwo Jima.

At Iwo, the Washington hurled

steel and explosives into the island fortress for four solid days, sometimes firing her main 16-inch batteries at pointblank range of only 1,500 yards. She fired 800 tons of 16-inch shells and 65 tons of five-inch projectiles.

The New York, known as "the Old Lady" of the fleet, was at an Atlantic port at the time of Pearl Harbor. She joined the Pacific Fleet early in 1945, after participating in the North Africa campaign and in European convoy duty, and saw action at Iwo Jima. She mounts ten 14-inch guns in her main battery.

It was in November, 1942, that the 16-inch guns of the Washington sank a Kongo class Japanese battleship in the battle of Savo island, off Guadalcanal. She saw action later at Kwajalein and Saipan.

The present commanding officer of the Washington, which was commissioned in May, 1941, is Capt. R. F. Good, of Long Beach, Calif. He relieved Rear Adm. T. R. Cooley Nov. 16, 1944.

preference will be given to officers. Some men prefer water to air travel because the latter limits baggage to 65 pounds eliminating souvenirs.

Most of the men sent home average three years overseas, but after August it is expected that 85 points will be sufficient for a transfer and the average then will be about 14 months overseas with two campaigns, two or three dependents and one or two awards. The point line now is 106 because only a small percentage of the island's troops may be released and still keep a sufficient garrison.

Okinawa Tactical Score 625

GUAM, Monday, July 16 (AP)—Planes of the Okinawa Tactical Air Force shot down 625 Japanese planes during the Okinawa campaign and flew 38,192 combat sorties, Maj. Gen. Louis E. Woods of Washington, D. C., told a press conference today in reporting completion of [illegible]b as tactical air

More Than 3,200 Okinawa Troops To Be Released from Army Soon

OKINAWA, July 15—(AP) A colonel and a technical sergeant were the first American soldiers through the Okinawa classification center which opened today to process overseas servicemen for return home on points.

Col. George H. Lennox of Cambridge, Mass., had 162 points and Sgt. Louis Zade of Portland, Ore., 138.

Zade has a wife and four children and said he wouldn't take the help of psychologists to readjust himself to civilian life.

"You're damn glad to get out aren't you, Sarge?" one of his buddies asked.

"You ain't whiffin'," said Zade who has been in the Pacific since December of 1941. He worked in a sawmill before the war and said he probably would return to that job.

Col. Oliver Trechter of Los Angeles, commanding officer of the personnel section, said all Okinawa soldiers with 106 or more points would be returned to the United States by August. They total about 3,200 and more than 100 a day will be handled.

The men will travel both by air and water. Sufficient air space is available so the men can be given their choice, Trechter said. No commander.

With realignment of the Okinawa air campaign placing all Army Air Forces planes in the Ryukyus under Gen. George G. Kenney's Far Eastern Air Forces, the joint Army, Navy and Marine tactical force, which supported the Tenth Army's conquest of Okinawa, has been disbanded.

General Woods said that since the fall of Okinawa the Japanese have put very few planes into the air over their home fields of Kyushu Island, but "I presume they are hiding their planes in the bushes and off the roads miles from airfields."

He paid special tribute to our night fighters over Okinawa. One such Marine squadron scored thirty-one kills, of which six were by one pilot who bagged three Japanese planes in a single night.

Under the new Okinawa air organization, the Second Marine Aircraft Wing squadrons are under direction of Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell and charged with defense of the island; Fleet Air Wing 1 planes are assigned to blockading the Yellow Sea and East China Sea under direct Navy command, and all other Okinawa air operations are under General Kenney's Far Eastern Air Forces.

Battleship Commander Medal Of Honor Holder

Guam, Sunday, July 15 (AP)—Rear Admiral Oscar Charles Badger, 55, served under Admiral Ernest J. King, navy commander in chief, as Assistant Chief of Naval Operations for logistics for two years before taking his present sea command of the 3d Fleet's battleship division now striking Japanese coastal cities.

Admiral Badger was born in Washington, D.C., and maintains his residence there.

As an ensign, he won the Congressional Medal of Honor by leading a company of sailors in landing reinforcements at Vera Cruz, Mexico, April 21-22, 1914.

As skipper of the destroyer Worden in 1918, he won the Navy Cross for duty with convoys carrying troops across the U-boat-infested Atlantic.

2,000 SUPERFORTRESSES MAKE LANDINGS ON IWO

GUAM, Monday, July 16—(AP) The 21st Bomber Command said today that nearly 2,000 Superfortresses had made emergency landings, sometimes under enemy fire, at Iwo Jima since an advance base was set up there early in April after the conquest of the volcanic island.

(The dispatch did not elaborate, but presumably Japanese planes sometimes pursued the formations to Iwo Jima, which is more than 750 miles south of Tokyo).

Engineers are completing construction of an airfield on Iwo with runways nearly 10,000 feet longer than those of any other 21st Bomber Command base. Col. John G. Fowler of Newnan, Ga., commands the base.

JAPA[illegible]SE HINTING SECRET WEAPONS

Nipponese Army Communique Realistic On Damages

San Francisco, July 15 (AP)—The Japanese Army admitted today the United States Navy had bombarded the home islands for the second day in a row and told of widespread and cencerted air-raids, while a navy spokesman talked of "a surprise" for the American fleet "in the not too distant future."

Japanese propagandists hinted that secret weapons were being perfected to meet the challenge of the American fleet, but a communiqué from the Japanese Northern Army district was coldly realistic.

Japs Claim 32 Raiders Down

It reported that while a task force bombarded the steel city of Muroran on southern Hokkaido, carrier planes bombed and strafed "military and harbor installations and marine and land transportation" across the entire length of the island. It said losses and damage were being assessed.

It announced the aerial targets as Hakodate, prefectural capital on Hokkaido's south coast; Asahigawa and Obihiro, inland railway hubs; the ports of Otaru and Kushiro on the west and east coasts, and the port of Abashiri, far to the north.

The communiqué claimed that 12 of the raiders were brought day, would put the total at 32 out claims of 20 knocked down Saturday would put the total at 32 out of the thousand planes that ripped the home islands.

'Propaganda' Impresses

The Tokyo radio mentioned "certain developments being experimented upon here."

"Actual completion of those equipments," the broadcast continued, "would enable the Japanese to meet enemy carrier planes twice or thrice as large as those that operated lately."

Then, said Tokyo, "we can urge the world to wait for the opportunity which is not far off to see the real Japanese Navy and air forces in action."

The broadcaster conceded, however, that "the way our enemy is going about not only in his combative efforts, but in the propaganda aspect of the war is something so remarkable that you are impressed."

JAPANESE YIELDING SAMBOJA OIL FIELD

Australians 5 Miles Away From Its Core—Others Drive for Oil Port of Samarinda

JUL 16 1945

MANILA, Monday, July 16 (AP)—Capture of one of the principal oil fields in eastern Borneo was imminent today after Australian troops pushed to within five miles of the center of Samboja against vanishing Japanese resistance.

Advances of five miles in two days were disclosed in Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communiqué, and they came in a sector along the coast where previous gains had been bought by the yard in heavy fighting.

The wells of the Samboja fields feed the refineries of Balik Papan, which were wrecked by bombings or set ablaze in the liberation of the port city.

The condition of the wells was not known, but if the Japanese who have retreated from strong, fixed positions under heavy pounding from land, sea and air follow their usual tactics the wells will be found dynamited and choked with drilling tools.

The Australians were pushing on toward Samboja from the village of Amborawang, in the heart of the difficult tidal swamp region.

Australians and Netherland colonials brought heavy artillery to bear and drove the Japanese from Mount Batochampar or Smashed Stone Ridge, six miles northeast of Balik Papan.

This was an important obstacle in the northeastward push along the highway leading to the port and oil center of Samarinda, sixty miles distant.

This drive is concerted with the one along the coast, since Samarinda lies thirty-six miles north of Samboja.

The Japanese fought back stubbornly, however.

Patrols were operating thirty miles south of the enemy-held base of Jesselton in British North Borneo.

Heaviest fighting still was in the Balik Papan area.

The Australians, bent on pushing the Japanese from strong ridge positions, have been attacking with tanks and flame-throwers.

Light naval units swung back into the battle for the Sambodja oil fields, hammering enemy positions along the coast. One plane failed to return from supporting aerial sweeps.

Heavy bombers also struck Japanese airfelds, supply areas and transport on Celebes Island and the Halmaheras farther east.

Okinawa Flyers in Attacks

MANILA, July 16 (Monday) (AP).—Patrol bombers of the Far East Air Force from Okinawa have raked two airfields on the southern Japanese home island of Kyushu, General Douglas MacArthur's communique announced today, although the operations were limited by bad weather, as were harassing sweeps of the day before. The air bases struck were at Miyazaki and Kagoshima.

More than forty Thunderbolt fighters from Okinawa also swept over the China coast on Saturday, forced a small freighter ashore with near bomb misses and left it blazing from incendiary bullets in Hangchow Bay, south of Shanghai, MacArthur reported. On Formosa heavy bombers caused violent explosions in the Suo boatyards, and Invaders (attack bombers) blasted rail yards at Karenko.

Two Liberators of the 7th Fleet Air Wing over Malaya destroyed six enemy planes and damaged three others on Kuantan airfield north of Singapore. Other navy and army warplanes ranged the coasts of Indo-China and China, shooting up railways.

JAP TOLL RISES

MANILA, Monday, July 16—(AP) An additional 4,879 enemy dead have been counted and 68 captured in mopping up operations in the Philippines during the last week, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said today.

American casualties in the same period were 62 killed, 195 wounded and one missing.

This brought total Japanese casualties in the Philippines campaign to 428,732, including 10,768 prisoners. Americans killed, wounded and missing now total 54,502. Most of the Japanese casualties for the week were on Luzon, where 4,222 dead were counted.

TROOPS IN LUZON AID MISSIONARIES

JUL 16 1945

ARMY HEADQUARTERS, Luzon, Monday, July 15 — (AP) Two Belgian priests and five nuns escorted by spear-wielding Ifugao natives have reached American lines in the wild bamboo forests near Kiangan, northern Luzon, the Sixth Infantry division reported today.

The missionaries fled to the mountains six months ago when the retreating Japanese army occupied Kiangan and set up headquarters there.

Some of the party had served for 37 years in the Philippines and one had served in the United States.

They weer the Rev. Jerome Moerman of the Rev. Alphonse Coymans, both of the Brussels congregation of the Immaculate Heart of Mary, and Mothers Eugene, Oda Renata, Vincent, Rachel and Guillaume.

All are missionary canonists of Saint Augustine. Mother Eugene was at the convent of St. John in New York city in 1921 and 1922.

Tired and covered with dust, the group was given coffee and doughnuts when they arrived at the Sixth division camp.

"Our Calvary is finished," said Father Moerman. "Now comes the resurrection."

None of the seven had slept on a bed for more than five months. They were astonished at the modern field equipment of the American army.

Asked what they hoped to do now that they were free, the seven replied almost in unison: "Clean up and go back to our Ifugaos at Kiangan."

Manila Service Tourney Opens

Manila, Monday, July 16 (AP)—A shutout victory was scored today by the United States 841st Engineers over the 21st Evacuation Hospital in the first game playoffs of the Manila service baseball championship.

The Engineers took the game, 1 to 0, on a timely triple by Jim Waldrop, of Alexander City, Ala., former Southern Association infielder.

Ten thousand fans packed Rizal Stadium to watch a tight-pitching duel between Frank Bess, of Hinton, W.Va., the winning hurler, and Herald Staley, of Brush Prairie, Washington.

Bess formerly was a player-manager in the Middle Atlantic and Florida State leagues. Staley, formerly with Boise, Idaho, was the property of the St. Louis Cardinals before entering military service. He has pitched five no-hit, no-run games while overseas.

In a little over a month of combat the Mexican Expeditionary Air Force hit every ground target in close support work on Luzon.

BIG THREE START PARLEY TODAY IN POTSDAM PALACE

Stalin Reported in German Capital Without Official Announcement.

PRESIDENT CHEERED

He Lands from Cruiser at Antwerp, Flies to Meeting from Brussels.

BERLIN, July 15 — (AP) President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill arrived in Germany's ruined capital by plane today to join Premier Stalin in an historic conference that may shorten the Pacific war and decide the world's fate for years to come.

Premier Stalin also was understood to have arrived although the Russians made no formal announcement.

Open Talks Today

The Big Three will begin discussions tomorrow in Kaiser Wilhelm's former castle in suburban Potsdam and an unofficial estimate tonight was that the conference would last from 10 days to three weeks.

Planes roared in over the bomb-blasted capital in an almost continuous stream from about 2:30 p. m. onward, bringing British, American dignitaries, while other American, British and Russian fighter planes patrolled the skies.

The President, accompanied by his personal chief of staff, Admiral William D. Leahy, flew in from Brussels at 4:15 p.m. Berlin time (8:15 a.m. E.W.T.), 15 minutes after Secretary of State James F. Byrnes had landed. They had spent two hours and 50 minutes in Belgium after leaving the cruiser Augusta at 11:10 a. m. (5:10 a. m. E.W.T.).

Churchill's plane landed at 6:10 p.m. from Bordeaux, France, where he had motored from his vacation retreat at Hendaye.

Truman, who has completed a draft of the proposals he will make, was understood to be ready to offer American cooperation in the rehabilitation of Europe in exchange for assurances that European countries will amicably adjust any differences that might cause war.

His continuing primary objective, however, will be victory over Japan. The Pacific war is bound to figure in the discussions, although Russia's attitude may not become known until some time after the conference ends. (A Tokyo radio broadcaster Sunday said "the conference will be centered on Japan," but sought to discount it in advance.)

The 41st regiment of the Second Armored division formed an honor guard and the division's 56-piece band played as the President, bronzed from his eight days on the Atlantic, stepped spryly from his silver Skymaster transport at the airport.

Truman Looks Trim

The President looked trim in a gray hat and a gray double-breasted suit. The presidential physician, Naval Capt. Alphonse McMahon, said "the trip has done the President a world of good. It's the first time he has relaxed since he took office."

Truman was greeted by General of the Army Alexander Sokolovsky, chief of staff to Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, and Col. Gen. Alexander Grobatov, commander of Soviet troops in Berlin, as well as Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, commander of American forces in Berlin.

Also in Truman's plane were Gen. Henry H. Arnold and his son, Lt. Col. Henry H. Arnold, Jr., who commanded an artillery unit in the heavy fighting at Anzio, Italy, last year.

The President's plane crossed the Rhine at Coblenz and turned sharply northeastward to pass over Kassel.

Secretary of State Byrnes, a veteran of the Yalta conference although a newcomer to his present post, descended from his Skymaster in sparkling humor with a broad smile for the group at the field.

Secretary of War Stimson landed in a plane just ahead of Byrnes and told of travelling by ship to Gibraltar, spending Saturday night at Cannes.

Waiting to speak with the cabinet members were W. Averell Harriman, U. S. ambassador to Moscow, and his predecessor, Joseph E. Davies.

Churchill wore a khaki colonel's uniform and looked rested as he stepped leisurely to the ground some two hours after Truman.

Cigar There Again

The Prime Minister drew out his inevitable cigar and lighted it before inspecting an honor guard of the R.A.F., the Royal Marines and British Seventh Armored division troops.

British Foreign Minister Eden, showing signs of his recent illness but immaculately garbed in a grayish blue suit and snap brim hat, was welcomed by Soviet Foreign Vice Commissar Andrei J. Vishinsky.

Eden walked by the first line of the British honor guard unit but then cut short his usual inspection and entered a waiting limousine. He was accompanied by his personal physician, as were most of the arriving dignitaries.

A band struck up "Rule Britannia" while the British party made the inspection.

It was believed possible that Stalin came from Moscow by special train. Rail traffic between Moscow and Berlin was resumed this month.

Moscow announced yesterday that the Premier had departed for the conference, accompanied by Foreign Commissar Molotov.

It was probable that Stalin, like Truman and Churchill, would draw heavily on the advice of his marshals during the deliberations.

Gen. Eisenhower, who will sit in on part of the Potsdam conferences, greeted the President at Antwerp, along with Admiral Harold R. Stark, commander of American naval forces in Europe.

Admiral Ernest J. King, U. S. naval commander-in-chief, toured Berlin before the President's arrival.

From the Berlin airport, surrounded by tall aspens and cabbage patches, a heavily guarded route led to the Potsdam area. American signs pointed with arrows. British signs used Army terminology "L of C" for line of communications.

Thirty-six Allied fighter planes patrolled the Berlin sky throughout the afternoon, and outgoing traffic was suspended at the airport. The fighter planes were Soviet P-39s, [illegible] and powerful [illegible] action of these forces brought defensive response from the enemy in the air or on the surface throughout the day" Sunday—the second day in which Japan offered no gesture of defense except ineffective anti-aircraft fire, the communique reported.

Steel Plant Blasted

Muroran's Nippon steel plant and Wanishi iron works were exploding and aflame after Sunday's cyclone of 16-inch shells from the battleships Missouri, Iowa and Wisconsin burst upon the city, formerly untouched by war.

The smoke pall from the burning mills, gasoline tanks and munitions works became so thick that spotter planes working with the battleships flew lower than 1,000 feet to try to observe results.

In complete reports of Sunday's carrier plane blows at northern Honshu and Hokkaido—again hampered by adverse weather—showed nine ships and six small craft totalling 12,000 tons were sunk and nine ships and 30 small craft totaling 12,000 tons were damaged during the early morning hours alone.

Four enemy planes were destroyed aground, and one was damaged. There was no aerial interception, and anti-aircraft fire did no damage.

Many Ships Sunk

Further reports from Saturday's carrier actions showed 24 Japanese ships and 25 barges totalling 41,000 tons were sunk and 25 ships totalling 43,000 tons were damaged.

Among the ships sunk or beached were six of the train ferries which bring Hokkaido's war-necessary coal to Honshu's industries.

Carrier forces lost nine planes and three air crewmen in the Saturday strikes.

In Sunday's terrific bombardment of Muroran, "very large" explosions and fires were observed, and the Wanishi iron works virtually was devastated.

An open hearth blast furnace and chemical plant and warehouses

Truman wore a double-breasted grey suit and a cream-colored felt hat.

"I always had a great admiration for your country," Truman replied. "It was a pleasure to be of assistance to your people."

At the Brussels airport Premier Achille Van Acker rushed up after Truman had boarded his transport for Potsdam. The President emerged and exchanged pleasantries for a minute or two with the premier and then reentered the plane, shucking off his coat because of the intense heat.

Quitting the Augusta at Antwerp's Pier 23 where transatlantic liners used to dock, Truman got a good glimpse of some of the port's war damage. Roofs over the pier shed were shattered from German buzz-bombs.

Smartly uniformed British MPs in red caps and American MPs in gleaming white helmets presented a sharp contrast to the rubble still littering sections of the pier.

Truman left the Augusta followed by Byrnes, Eisenhower, Stark, Leahy and Ambassador and Mrs. Charles Sawyer. Eisenhower and Stark rode with the President to the airport and left for their own stations after his takeoff.

As the Augusta picked its way slowly up the Schelte during the morning radio messages of welcome poured in from mayors of the villages along the river. The President looked through field glasses at the crowds lining the banks. At one point he saw a hundred German war prisoners in a stockade. At another place a Belgian pedalling down a road alongside the river and waving a handkerchief took a tumble but got up and kept waving.

Midway between Antwerp and Brussels Truman's auto caravan was picked up by an additional motorcycle escort from his old World war outfit—the 35th division.

Guards Line Route

From this point on through suburban Brussels to the airport the route was guarded by men of the 35th, standing back to back.

These men—some with guns at present, others with cocked pistols pointing skyward at half ready—were a stirring sight as they stood motionless at rigid attention along the shoulders of the road and in the fields of golden wheat. They were putting on a show for the man who used to be one of them and they did it proudly.

Many fields along the way were packed with American tanks and half-tracks, their guns now covered. Outside the town of boom the President got a glimpse of the notorious Breendonck concentration camp where the Germans kept political prisoners. Belgian collaborators are living there now.

The President also drove by the Laeken royal palace and its spacious brick - walled surrounded grounds outside of Brussels. With Leopold in Bavaria and Prince Charles maintaining residence in Brussels, Laeken is now shuttered.

Upon reaching the airport Truman made an informal and chatty inspection of the 400 picked men of the 35th division's 137th regiment. He was escorted by Col. William Murray, Nogales, Arizona, regimental commander and Lt. Col. George O'Connel, Emporia, Kans., honor guard commander. Commanding different units were Maj. Paul Stansburg, Topeka, Kans., Capt. Lloyd Friedman, Omaha, Neb., and Capt. Jack Haw, Lawrence, Kans.

Praised by President

The President told them theirs was a swell outfit—it was good in the First World war and it repeated in this one.

"Being honor guard is something of an honor for us," said Pfc. Ustain Reily, Akron, Ohio. Sgt. Donald Konold, Marietta, Minnesota and Pfc. John Lavaty, East Chicago, Ind., agreed.

After 15 minutes of talking with the men of the 35th, Truman boarded his plane piloted by Lt. Col. Henry T. Myers of Tifton, Ga., who is an old hand at hauling presidents.

The President was prepared for a meeting running longer than the eight-day Yalta conference, last Big Three meeting for President Roosevelt—possibly twice as long.

Men close to the President asserted he is going to the meeting with the hope of aiding European war allies in settling European boundary and territorial disputes which could breed future wars. At the same time, he still considers the No. 1 objective of United States foreign policy to be the early defeat of Japan to save the lives of American boys still fighting the enemy in the Pacific.

There are increasing indications that if the Potsdam parley is unduly prolonged, the President may return immediately to Washington, which he left July 6. He has decided definitely against going to France, and associates say his reported plans to visit London are extremely tentative.

President Truman left British waters behind last night as the British cruiser Birmingham and six destroyers escorted the Augusta godspeed after taking over he escort for several hours. The traditional three cheers, set in motion by a British officers' "hip, hip hurrah for the President of the United States," sounded across the English Channel.

Truman in Good Health

Smiling and with his hat across his heart, the President acknowledged the salute from his position besides Byrnes.

Truman was in the peak of health. The sun and wind of the sea voyage had added new vigor to his step and new color to his cheeks.

Virtually all the highest military and diplomatic leaders of the United States, Russia and Britain gathered for the meeting.

Among Churchill's advisers was Clement Attlee, former deputy prime minister in the British coalition government which served through most of the European war. In the midst of the recent British election campaign Churchill asked Attlee, leader of the rival Labor party, to accompany him to Potsdam "as a friend and counsellor." Attlee accepted, he said, in the interest of presenting a united British foreign policy.

Other Britons were Field Marshal Sir Alan Brooke, chief of the Imperial General Staff; Sir Andrew Cunningham, admiral of the Fleet; R.A.F. Marshal Sir Charles Portal; Lord Leathers, minister of war transport; Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, who was deputy commander of Allied forces on the Western front, and Field Marshals Sir Harold Alexander, Sir Bernard L. Montgomery and Sir Henry Maitland Wilson.

Truman was as heavily supplied as Churchill with military advisors. Among those whom the Skymasters brought in were General George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff; Gen. Brehon S. Somervell, comander of the Army Service forces, and Assistant Secretary of War Frank McCloy.

White House correspondents who crossed the Atlantic with him parted company with the President at Brussels but were flown to Berlin and will join him again when the conference ends.

KAISER'S CASTLE SITE OF MEETINGS

POTSDAM, Germany, July 15—(AP) The scene of the Big Three meeting, a former castle of Kaiser Wilhelm, is "the kind of a place you'd like to take a summer vacation at—if you could afford it," according to an American photographer who was allowed to take pictures of it a few days ago.

"It's got gardens and woods and a lake shore and the best of everything," said the photographer, Charles T. Haacker, whose photographs for the combined American press were flown back to the United States.

Tomorrow an American midwesterner, a British aristocrat and a Georgian cobbler's son will motor through an archway into a courtyard reserved exclusively for them, in this suburb of Berlin where the Hohenzollern Kaisers lived until Germany's defeat in World War One.

A small foyer leads to the conference room where there will be many hours of deliberation in the coming days, as seemingly endless global problems will be dumped, figuratively speaking, upon a round-table 12 feet in diameter.

The conference chamber is about forty by thirty feet with a peaked roof of oaken beams two stories above the parqueted floor. The deep red color admired by Russian Communists and the German Hohenzollerns alike is dominant in the rugs and draperies.

An elaborate stone fireplace stands in one corner.

Haacker counted 15 chairs at the roundtable, three of them large rococo pieces with gilded cherubs on the backrests and standing a foot higher than the others.

A common hall leads to both Truman's and Churchill's studies on the ground floor.

Truman's study is a bright, comfortable affair furnished in pine with his favorite books lining three of the walls. In an alcove are chairs and a table where refreshments may be served.

Nearby is an elongated dining room in a color combination of soft greens, creams and whites, with glass cupboards filled with expensive crystal ware.

Homelike Place Fixed For Truman

Potsdam, July 15 (AP)—Fourteen truckloads of furniture owned by the former Nazi gauleiter of Halle have made homelike the "little White House" which President Truman entered in the Potsdam area late today.

Capt. Thomas V. Ryan, Syracuse, N.Y., located the furnishings, which include matched white maple bedroom and drawing room suites, broadloom rugs, ultra-modern lamps and earthenware bric-a-brac.

The gauleiter, according to intelligence reports, committed suicide before the United States Army entered Halle.

4,000 GI'S HELPED PREPARE POTSDAM

POTSDAM, July 15—(AP) Nearly 4,000 GIs helped to get Potsdam ready for the Big Three and, among other jobs, converted German homes into everything from restaurants to radio stations.

Drawn from Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks' Berlin occupation troops, the Americans put up new buildings, hauled in 4,000 blankets and set up luxury installations for food and drink.

The output of one suburban ice plant was reserved exclusively for the Potsdam conferees.

Two quartermaster corps dietitians conferred on the conference menus, which will include lettuce hearts, succulent melons and choice meat cuts stored until needed in two ten-ton mobile refrigerators.

When President Truman offers his Soviet and British friends a drink there will be a wide choice available — Scotch, Gin, Bourbon and Vodka, Moselle and other wines, cognac, curacao and creme de menthe.

(The American Army transported 20 electric refrigerators from Great Britain to Potsdam and a variety of other items, including 20 lawn mowers, 50 vacuum cleaners and 150 alarm clocks, American broadcasting company correspondent Donald Coe reported today from Berlin.

("Among other items brought in for the American area," Coe said, "were 15 davenports and matching chair suites. There also were 25 ironing boards, 100 whisk brooms, 20 sets of lawn furniture, 3,000 bath towels, 90 electric irons, 5,000 linen bedsheets and 100 bedside lamps.")

Eisenhower in Berlin

Transfers Headquarters From Frankfurt am Main

LONDON, July 15 (AP).—The Berlin radio said tonight that General Dwight D. Eisenhower had transferred his headquarters from Frankfurt am Main to Berlin.

...yo Expects BigThree ...enterTalks on Japan

...Also Detects Signs of 'War ...Weariness' Among Allies

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15 (AP).—The Tokyo radio said today that deliberations at the coming Big Three meeting at Potsdam would be "centered on Japan." As heard by the Federal Communications Commission, the broadcast did not enlarge on this theme.

The commentator, identified as Isamu Inouye, an editor of the Japanese Domei news agency, predicted that the conference would "reach an impasse" because the Big Three no longer were bound by the common cause of war against Germany.

The broadcast said "an atmosphere of war weariness prevails" among the United Nations and now "each nation is out to capitalize on its own war efforts."

LIGHTS RESTORED IN LONDON STREETS

LONDON, July 15 — (AP) The lights went on in London again tonight after nearly six years of inky blackout that had become so much a part of things that most people had forgotten what street lights were like.

The great switch-on coincided with the elimination of another wartime measure—double summer time. Clocks were put back to only one hour ahead of Standard time, giving an extra hour for celebration, and thousands of wide-eyed men, women and children flocked into the streets.

It was the most gala evening in London since V-E night, when the capital came to life under the glow of spotlights and bonfires.

The strict wartime blackout which helped guard Britain's cities against air raids was lifted on May 23, permitting residents to take down their blackout curtains and let house lights shine into the streets.

But the streets themselves remained dark because several difficulties stood in the way of restoring the brilliant street lighting of pre-war days. Many lighting fixtures had been damaged in air raids, the supply of replacements and manpower to install them was short—as was the supply of fuel to generate the power.

So July 15 was set as the date for resumption of full street lighting, permitting time for repairs and also for conservation of fuel during the period when days were longest and double summer time was in effect.

Under the combination of double summer time and Britain's normally long periods of daylight in summer it remained light in London until about 11 p. m.

Tonight Piccadilly Circus—the Times Square of London—was the center of activity, with the huge electric signs on the theaters in the district giving it a Broadway effect.

For thousands of children it was the first time they had ever seen the world's biggest city lighted up.

Crowds, some of them arm in arm and singing "When the Lights Go Up in London," followed the forgotten "Milky Way" along Whitehall to the Thames embankment.

In some sections of the city there were red, yellow and green street lights—an experiment in new forms of street illumination.

BRITISH REVEAL BORDEAUX EXPLOIT

LONDON, July 15 — (AP) The British Admiralty disclosed another long-kept war secret today in telling some of the daring exploits of the Navy's "cockle" men — Royal Marine commandos who were launched from submarin... sneaked up on their targts in ... rowboats.

In one of their most remarkable adventures two and one-half years ago, these marine daredevils, all volunteers, paddled 50 miles up the Gironde river to attack enemy shipping in the harbor at Bordeaux, France.

Using limpet mines—small mines that are fastened to the hull of the vessel—they attacked six ships suspected of being blockade runners for the Nazis. Large holes were blown in at least three, and probably five of the ships, the Admiralty said in describing it as one of the most daring individual attacks of the war.

Ten marines in five cockles—small, flat-bottom boats — were launched the night of Dec. 7, 1942, from the submarine Tuna at the entrance to the Gironde on the French Atlantic coast for the Bordeaux exploit.

Three of the teams were lost as the boats capsized, but the other two covered the 100-mile round trip in five nights to reach the objective and return to the mother submarine. They travelled only at night, hiding on land by day.

ASK ENGLISH TO AID 52,000 UNWED MOTHERS

LONDON, July 15—(AP) Appealing for funds for a group called "The National Council for the Unmarried Mother and Her Child," London Judge J. O. H. Watson said in a broadcast today that 52,000 illegitimate children were born to British girls last year.

The council promotes the founding of children's homes and supports legislation for unmarried mothers and their offspring.

The London Sunday Pictorial appealed today for houses which could be converted into nursery homes for 1,000 unwanted babies. Unless quarters can be found, the paper said, the youngsters may have to be put in orphan institutions instead of being kept by the WAIFS and Strays Society and offered for adoption by childless couples.

Most of the mothers of these children, the Pictorial said, are "unfortunate girls whose husbands-to-be gave their lives in the war."

JUL 16 1945

MENUHIN TO RETURN

LONDON, July 15—(AP) Yehudi Menuhin, internationally known violinist, is returning to the United States following a tour of the war fronts.

The 29-year-old artist played a farewell concert for Yanks stationed in England and on the continent last night over the American forces radio network.

Menuhin, who has a wife and two children, said he may have another engagement in the near future—he said his draft board had classified him 1-A.

Menuhin has given hundreds of concerts for American troops in areas ranging from the Pacific to Germany.

Destruction Of Army Equipment Disproved

London, July 15 (AP)—Charges that reparable equipment was destroyed by United States Army troops at a military depot in Warminster were found to be "without foundation" by an official army investigating committee, headquarters of the United Kingdom base announced today.

It had been alleged at the trial of Alfred Grist, a former civilian employé at the depot who was convicted of unlawful possession of United States Army equipment, that thousands of dollars' worth of motor trucks, ambulances, tires, furniture, motor accessories and tons of timber had been burned at the depot.

The investigation disclosed that early last month one wooden ambulance body and one two-and-a-half-ton truck body, wrecked beyond repair, were burned in order to salvage the steel frameworks, the official statement declared.

The statement added that the investigation found no evidence to support the general charges.

BRITISH TO POLICE GERMANY FROM SKIES

LONDON, July 15—(AP) More than 90,000 RAF airmen and ground crewmen will assist in the air policing of Germany, the Air Ministry said today as a new aerial police known as the British Air Force of Occupation in Germany came into being.

The new force is a direct successor to the RAF Second Tactical Air Force, which ceased to exist as such. Air Marshal Sir Arthur Coningham, commander of the second TAF, relinquished his command to Air Chief Marshal Sir Sholto Douglas, head of the new force, which will have headquarters at Bad Eilsen, west of Hanover.

The makeup of the American occupational air force has not yet been officially announced.

Worries in Manchuria

LONDON, July 15 (AP).—The Tokyo radio announced today that leading Manchurian industrialists would meet July 20 to 22 at Mukden to "discuss the delicate position of Japanese war industry in Manchuria." [The Japanese announced recently that a large part of Japanese home-islands industry had been evacuated to Manchuria to escape American bombing and to prepare the empire for a fight against an invasion.]

HONOR JOHN PAUL JONES

KIRKBEAN, Scotland, July 15—(AP) The memory of John Paul Jones was honored today at the dedication of a baptismal font in Jones' hometown on the southwestern Scottish coast. The font was given to the parishioners of Kirkbean through contributions by American sailors and naval officers stationed in Britain.

ALLIES WILL REOPEN 3 MEDICAL SCHOOLS

PARIS, July 15—(AP) Three of seven German medical schools, including the University of Heidelberg will open Sept. 1, Maj. Gen. M. C. Stayer said today, if the necessary equipment, a faculty and coal to heat the buildings can be assembled.

Gen. Stayer, chief of the Public Health branch, G-5, United States forces in the European theater, said there was a serious need in Germany for well-educated physicians and surgeons as German medicine declined badly during the Hitler period.

He said that in order to protect the health of Allied troops it was necessary that German health be kept at a high level. He added that many German prisoners now were in bad health.

He said present plans call for the matriculation of 300 doctors for advanced training at Heidelberg, 500 students at Marberg University and 300 students at Erlangen University, adding that the other schools were too badly damaged to function.

Lyon Gets a Roosevelt Street

LYON, July 15 (AP).—Another street in France was named today for Franklin D. Roosevelt during a Bastille Day celebration ceremony at which former French Premier Edouard Herriot officiated.

LEOPOLD PLANS TO REMAIN AWAY

BRUSSELS, July 15—(AP) Prime Minister Achille Van Acker said today that King Leopold had decided against abdicating but nevertheless would not return to Belgium, thus leaving the whole "royal question" in a state of uncertainty.

The premier told newspapermen: "The government delegation which went to Salzburg has declared to King Leopold that the government was unanimous in thinking that if the King does not abdicate that parliamentary debates are inevitable.

"The King has decided not to return to his country. He has also decided not to abdicate. In view of this situation, the regent (Prince Charles) has refused the resignation of the government. In consequence, the government will go into office again. The cabinet will meet tomorrow."

Van Acker made the announcement after conferring with government leaders just returned from parleys with Leopold at his villa near Salzburg, Austria.

If the cabinet carries out its implied threat to hold a parliamentary debate on Leopold's action, a spirited verbal battle is expected. Anti-Leopold newspapers recently have been full of accusations about the monarch's attitude during the German occupation and anti-Leopold parliament members are known to be ready to amplify their charges.

The first reaction to Van Acker's statement was one of perplexity. Observers pointed out that obviously the King could not stay away from his throne indefinitely without some positive action yet neither abdicationists nor Leopoldists were willing tonight to even guess at the outcome.

Reds Approve 4-Party Front For Germany

Soviet Pattern for Rebirth of Nation Is Announced in Berlin Newspapers

BERLIN, July 15 (AP).—A Soviet-approved pattern for Germany's rebirth was announced in Berlin newspapers today with the formation of a united front of four political parties.

Contrasting sharply with the British-American policy of stifling all political activity in western Germany, the Soviet authorities gave the widest possible publicity to the coalition which the Communist - Socialist, Democratic Christian, Democratic Union and Liberal Democratic parties have achieved here.

Wilhelm Pieck, a longtime Moscow exile, headed the Communist central committee which engineered the movement toward unity.

A five-point program was adopted by committees of the four parties last night.

Its points are:

1. Co-operation in clearing Germany of Hitlerism and imperialistic, militaristic thought.

2. Energetic efforts for a quick rebuilding of economy to create work, bread, clothing and housing.

3. Restitution of justice and the basis of a democratic state.

4. Insuring of freedom of spirit and thought, including religious convictions.

5. Rewinning of the trust of other peoples and the elimination of racial frictions.

All British-American sectors of Berlin are included in the united front. Party subheadquarters in these sectors are fully as active as those in the Soviet part of the city.

ALLIED COUNCIL WILL BE SET UP IN BERLIN SOON

WHITEHEAD

FRANKFURT ON THE MAIN, July 15 — (AP) Within another four weeks battered Berlin will become once more one of the great government centers of Europe as the four power Control Council takes over its task of directing the governing of occupied Germany.

Already representatives of all 12 divisions of the United States group of the Control Council are in Berlin as an advance echelon to work out details of liaison and co-operation with the Russians, the British and the French preparatory to the first full dress meeting of the Control Council.

By mid-August the Central Control Council is scheduled to begin functioning, thus focusing in Berlin the Allied government of Germany.

As American representative on the Control Council Gen. Eisenhower will spend part of his time in Berlin working out policies and a multitude of details with Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov, Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, and other Control Council members.

Eisenhower, working in a spacious office here in a building which formerly housed the headquarters of I. G. Farbenindustrie, is expected to spend a large part of his time in Frankfurt, where the American occupation activities center.

Paris becomes of secondary importance, although communications zone headquarters will remain there until the redeployment program is completed. This headquarters directs the handling of supplies, communications and transportation for the occupation army in Germany.

Meanwhile Marseille, Cherbourg, Rouen and Le Havre will continue to be important centers for the Americans in the redeployment of troops and the shipment of supplies into Europe.

Both the 12th and Sixth Army groups are in the process of being dissolved. Their command functions have ceased. Gen. Omar Bradley is expected to leave his Wiesbaden headquarters by early August to take over his new job as veterans administrator in Washington.

The American occupation armies, Gen. George S. Patton's Third and Lt. Gen. Wade H. Haislip's Seventh, have established headquarters at Munich and Augsburg respectively. Patton has his advance headquarters at Bad Tolz and the Seventh is expected to move its main headquarters from Augsburg to Heidelberg.

In each of the two regions of the American zone of occupation there will be large military government detachments, one in the eastern region of Bavaria and the other in the western region, a region whose geographical boundaries have not yet been defined.

Where these detachments will be stationed permanently has not been announced.

MRS. HESS SEES 'CHANGE' IN MATE

HINDELANGE, Germany, July 15—(AP) Mrs. Rudolf Hess said today that her husband had "undergone certain psycho - physical changes" during his imprisonment in England, judging from his most recent letters.

Frau Hess, 45, has been living at this health resort with her eight-year-old son, Wolf Ruediger, since 1943, when her home near Munich was destroyed in an air raid.

She said Hess' last letters to her mentioned the "disappearance" of a chronic and incurable stomach trouble he had suffered, and the loss of all recollection except of herself and their child.

Her family physician explained the change, she said, as "only the natural accompanying antidote to deep thoughts built up in mental seclusion."

Frau Hess insisted that her husband's flight to Scotland on May 10, 1941, was as much a mystery to her as to the rest of the world. She said that she remained under house arrest at Munich for seven months afterwards and that the Gestapo watched her closely until the end of the war.

The first of Hess' monthly letters to her arrived in March, 1942, and the last in August, 1944, she said, but all were censored through Nazi party channels.

GREEKS WARN REDS

ATHENS, July 15 — (AP) The newspaper "Embros" editorially declared today that "we are and wish to remain Russia's friends but we shall never accept or become her slaves."

Referring to the "sombre days of the Balkan crisis," the newspaper added that "it is suggested that the Russian hand is behind the odious Balkan plot of hatred and envy against Greek glory. We do not know or believe it."

Chennault Lauds Chiang, Hits Critics of Chinese

KUNMING, China, July 15—(AP) Maj. Gen. Claire Lee Chennault, who has resigned as commander of the 14th U. S. Air Force, said today he had been shocked deeply by what he termed adverse criticism of the armies and government of China "recently made by irresponsible persons at home.

"I think it's about time for Americans to cease to be so concerned by the mote in our neighbor's eye," he declared in a statement.

Chennault, former leader of the Flying Tigers announced his resignation yesterday, saying he would remain until a new higher U. S. Force command is installed in Chungking and then return to the United States and retire from the Army.

His statement said that China's armies and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government were "no more faultless than any others."

"I have been a witness of eight years of war in China, and I have the deepest admiration for the Generalissimo's courage, foresight and unwavering loyalty to the cause we share," Chennault declared.

"I think it's time for us to remember that we owe China an immense debt."

Lauds Wedemeyer

Chennault said that Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, as commanding general of U. S. Army forces in China, had done a "great job," and that the Japanese now were being pushed back in retreat.

In his tribute to Gen. Wedemeyer, Chennault said that the "war was at a low ebb here when he assumed command. I think I can claim not to be easily discouraged and even I was discouraged. He brought his splendid energy and determination to attack a most difficult situation.

"Imperial headquarters at Tokyo must have been pained by the way we got on the job in China under Gen. Wedemeyer," Chennault continued. "Aided by American soldiers and airmen and the Chinese airforce, the Chinese armies halted what seemed likely to be Japan's last offensive. A heavy defeat has been suffered by the Japanese and they are being pushed back in retreat."

Praises United Team

Chennault said that one of the important factors in driving [illegible] has been the American team [illegible] of both nations—air, ground and supply are striving together for the great objective of pushing the Japanese from Chinese soil," he said.

"Under the leadership of the Generalissimo and of Gen. Wedemeyer the team is going to attain that objective. They are going to attain it sooner than some people think. Good speed and good luck to them. I regret that I cannot be with them at the end."

Chennault expressed every confidence in the 14th Air Force. "No man in this war has ever had a finer job than mine," he said, "or more magificent response from the men under his command, or finer help than I have received from the Chinese people."

Asked to Retire

Asked about the state of his health, Chennault said that "the new command gives me an opportunity for which I have long honed. Eight years ago I was retired from active duty because of my health. Most of those eight years have been spent in China.

"I have led a small force, limited in resources, against a stronger enemy for more than three years," he continued. "The Japanese now have been defeated in the skies of China. In view of this I have asked Gen. Wedemeyer to allow me to retire for a second time, keeping me here only as long as I am needed.

"I have received consent," the general added, then grinned and said "I'm still deaf, you know."

Actually Chennault, 54, is not deaf but his hearing has been impaired for many years as a result of flying in open planes before the days when cockpits were covered.

His resignation, announced simultaneously by Chennault and Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, new overall commander of U. S. airforces in China, left Army circles speculating over its possible effect on conduct of the war and American-Chinese relations.

Close to Chiang

Chennault is known as one of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's most intimate advisers. He came here in 1937 and guided the organization of a Chinese air force to fight the Japanese. After the Japanese attacked the United States, he formed the colorful Flying Tigers in July of 1941. Later he was reinstated by the U. S. Army Air force.

As far as is known, Chennault's decision has not yet been transmitted officially to the Chinese government. Chennault has a unique dual position as an American air force general and chief of staff of the Chinese Air force. His retirement as Chinese Air force chief of staff will automatically take effect under the new air force setup.

CHINESE SEIZE KANHSIEN BASE

Also Capture Chenghsien In Drive Along Seaboard

MOOSA

Chungking, July 15 (AP)—Chinese assault troops have recaptured the lost American airfield at Kanhsien, 250 miles north of Hong Kong, the Chinese high command said today, giving the United States 14th Air Force an advance base from which to lash China's "invasion" coast.

Chinese coastal forces at the same time plunged up the eastern seaboard and captured Chenghsien in Chekiang province, 117 miles south of Shanghai and only 59 miles southeast of Hangchow, Chinese headquarters said.

Veterans Storm Airfield

Kanhsien airfield, stormed and reoccupied Friday by veteran fighters of Free China, was the sixth former American airbase liberated from the Japanese in recent months. It had been abandoned by American flyers on January 30.

The airfield lies a short distance south of the town of Kanhsien, on the Kan River 200 miles west of the embattled southeastern coastal area of Amoy. Mopping-up operations against Japanese remnants still holding out in the streets of Kanhsien, the most important highway junction in southwestern Kiangsi province, were continuing, a Chinese communiqué said.

It was doubtful, however, that the bombed Kanhsien field could be put to immediate use for it is without communication with the main airfields of the Chinese interior and would have to be supplied by transports hopping the Japanese corridor from Hong Kong north to Hankow.

Headed Toward Suichwan

The main Japanese garrison of Kanhsien was pulling out to the northwest toward Suichwan, the first of the six American airbases recaptured by the Chinese.

The withdrawing Japanese gained up to 10 miles, reaching points 4½ miles south and 6 miles east of Suichwan, the communiqué said, placing that field in imminent danger of recapture by the Japanese. Another enemy column was moving on Wanan, an auxiliary landing field 16 miles east of Suichwan. The communiqué reported "fierce fighting" before Suichwan.

Beside Kanhsien and Suichwan, the Chinese have taken back from the Japanese the bases at Sinfeng, Yungning (Nanning), Liuchow and Tanchuk.

Thrust Nearer Kweilin

From Liuchow, Chinese forces following in the wake of withdrawing enemy troops made new progress along the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad and highway toward the triple-airfield base at Kweilin.

Chinese columns, striking along the highway, were approaching Yungfu, 31 miles southwest of Kweilin, a communiqué said, while other units pushing along the railroad were laying siege to Kwangminhu, 20 miles southwest of Yuntgu.

South Coast Hub Taken

Southeast of Canton, Chinese forces operating along the South China coast June 30 recaptured the important highway center of Limkong in the neck of the Luichow peninsula, the high command announced belatedly.

The capture of Limkong further disrupted shattered Japanese communications eastward from Indo-China and from Hainan Island.

East of the Luichow peninsula, the Japanese were reported maintaining their advance along the coast toward Canton, and bitter fighting also was raging below Amoy.

Fifty-six miles southwest of Amoy, Chinese regulars temporarily halted Japanese forces at Yunsiao, stemming a rapid enemy advance southwestward along the coastal highway toward the isolated Japanese garrison holding the port of Swatow.

Rear Guards Cleaned Out

The high command announced that Chenghsien had been seized after enemy remnants were mopped up. Enemy rear guards also were cleaned out from Tientai and Sinchang, on the Hangchow-Wenchow highway south of Chenghsien.

The Japanese rear guards were left by main enemy forces as the bulk of Japan's troops in Chekiang province withdrew northward toward the Hangchow Bay area.

United States pilots meanwhile ranged up and down the Japanese Honk Kong-Hankow corridor, blasting enemy convoys and Siang river shipping and for the second day struck into Indo-China to hammer Japanese positions at Trung Khang Phu, 4 miles inside the frontier.

Fighter-bombers, joining the ground battle near Kweilin, bombed enemy barracks at Pinglo.

14th Air Force Clears Japs from China's Skies

CHUNGKING, July 15—(AP) The U. S. 14th Air force in China sank, probably sank or damaged 43,000 tons of Japanese shipping and, virtually clearing the Japanese air force from the China skies, encountered and destroyed in the air only one enemy plane during the month of June, it was announced today.

The Japanese lost 11,950 tons of shipping definitely sunk during June, a figure more than double that inflicted by American pilots in May. China-based American fliers destroyed at least 293 small craft in operations largely centered in harassing Japanese troops withdrawing from South China northward along the Siang river.

During the month, 10 enemy planes were destroyed aground, headquarters said.

BRITISH PRESS DRIVE IN BURMA

CALCUTTA, July 15—(AP) British 14th Army troops have seized the initiative from Japanese forces in the Sittang river bend in South Burma and are besieging the main Japanese concentration point of Myitkyo, 74 miles northeast of Rangoon, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters said today.

British raiding parties attacked Myitkyo, 29 miles northeast of Pegu, with machine guns and grenades while Thunderbolt and Spitfire fighter-bombers blasted enemy troops in the area, a communique said.

Ninety miles to the north, Japanese artillery, covering the withdrawal of enemy troops toward Indo-China, shelled a British position on the Toungoo-Indo-China road.

Liberator bombers yesterday winged east of Rangoon across the Gulf of Martaban and hammered the Moulmein-Ye railroad, tearing up the track at a number of points in the Anin area.

In other air strikes, Thunderbolts bombed and strafed a troop area at Kalagy-Aunggyi, 15 miles southwest of Mokpalin, and other P-47s destroyed or damaged enemy huts at Kyubin in the Pegu hills.

Failure at Simla Laid to British And Moslems

PURDUE

Difference Over Single Seat on Interim Government Responsible for Impasse

SIMLA, July 15 (AP).—The failure of the Simla conference and the discarding of the Wavell plan for a new Indian government were blamed today on both British and Indian party leaders by conference participants and by observers.

The all-India Congress (Nationalist) party pinned responsibility upon the Moslem League, saying its attitude on the issue of Moslem representation in the proposed interim government was the immediate cause of the failure, but it added that the British were basically responsible in permitting the League's veto on a single point to block the Wavell plan despite the agreement of all other groups.

Chakravarti Rajagopalachari, who participated in the conference as a former Premier of Madras, declared that Viceroy Lord Wavell, having rejected the League's demand that it be the sole nominator of Moslems for the interim government's executive council, should have taken the "necessary consequential action" by forming a government without the League's participation.

Apparently voicing the view of the minorities involved, Master Tara Singh, who represented Sikhs at the conference, blamed the rigid refusal to concede by leaders of both the League and the Congress party.

Singh said the situation in the negotiations boiled down to the League's insistence, as the sole body representative of the Moslems, to nominate all Moslems to the council, while the Congress insisted, as the national party representing all communities, that it should have the right to name at least one Moslem for the interim government, and thus a dispute over only one seat "resulted in this gigantic failure."

Rajagopalachari asserted the British missed the greatest opportunity to stimulate the Indian war effort in their failure to take advantage of the Congress's willingness to co-operate and get into the government such men as Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru.

Meanwhile, despite Lord Wavell's statement that it was unlikely he would make further efforts to untangle the Indian problem in the near future, many observers here confidently looked for a fresh move when a new British Cabinet takes over as a sequel to the recent election in Great Britain.

U-Boat Crew Held

Germans To Be Confined as Prisoners on Martin Garcia Isle

BUENOS AIRES, July 15 (AP).—All crew members of the German submarine U-530, including the commander, Captain Otto Wermoutt, were brought to Buenos Aires this morning and placed aboard the Argentine naval auxiliary ship Cormoral, which left immediately for Martin Garcia Island, where the U-boat crew will be held as war prisoners.

Two buses under strong Argentine guard brought the Germans from Mar del Plata, where Wermoutt surrendered his 700-ton craft to Argentine authorities July 10. Martin Garcia Island is where officers and crew of the scuttled German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee also are held.

Pan-Arab Unit To Fight For Palestinian Land

Cairo, July 15 (AP)—Abdel Rahman Azzam Bey, secretary general of the Pan-Arab League, appealed to the league's member nations tonight to "save Palestinian land from the biggest aggression raid of all history—the raid of Zionist aggression."

Azzam Bey told delegates at the first meeting of the league's new economic subcommittee that the league intends not only "to protect the interests" of member states but also will "fight for the interests of all Arab states.

"The struggle for Palestinian land," he said, "is a struggle between international Zionist policy and the inherited right of a thousand years of an Arab nation."

He appealed to the delegates to look upon the problems of all Arab states "with sympathy and kindness" because "your sister nation has fallen into the claws of Zionist imperialism. . . ."

The economic subcommittee's first meeting was held at the Egyptian Foreign Ministry and was attended by representatives of nonmember Arab states as well as those of the league's members—Egypt, Syria, Lebanon, Iraq, Transjordan, Saudi Arabia and Yemen.

Latest Mail Dislocates Archeological Theory

Adak, Aleutians, July 15 (AP)—Marine Corporal Cornelius J. Roffelsen, of Fort Wayne, Ind., found an ancient metal stirrup in the Aleutians.

He sold it to Private Eugene Raychel, of Milwaukee, who prepared to send it to the Smithsonian Institution while various amateur archeologists pondered its origin and bearing on the history of the Aleutians.

Yesterday Lieut. W. C. Hill wrote Raychel asking him would he please return the stirrup which he (Hill) had purchased in Lima, Peru, and lost while on a tour of duty at Adak.

4 Y[illegible] On Lost Brazil Cruiser Die On Life Raft

Recife, Brazil, July 15 (AP)—Four United States radio (sound) operators aboard the Brazilian Cruiser Bahia, when the warship exploded and sank July 4, died on a life raft, according to Lieut. Com. Luis Clovis Oliveira, second in command of the Brazilian Destroyer Greenhalgh, which docked today with four survivors.

SENATE TO BEGIN DEBATE TODAY ON WORLD BANK PLAN

Three Days of Discussion Expected Over Bretton Woods Agreement.

APPROVAL IS SEEN

Wagner to Lead Fight for Bill; Minority, Led by Taft, Opposes Move.

WASHINGTON, July 15—(AP) The pocketbook test of America's widened role in world affairs—the question of United States participation in the Bretton Woods monetary agreements—comes up before the Senate tomorrow.

Administration leaders, who have insisted that unqualified approval of United States commitments to share in the 44-nation, $17,900,000,000 international monetary fund and bank is inseparable from overall plans for world peace, are confident that approval will be given with votes to spare. One Republican who opposes the plan said privately that it undoubtedly would be approved.

But the three days or so of debate that will precede the showdown may provide a foretaste of some opposition opinion when consideration is begun next week of the United Nations peace charter, even though ratification of that document is regarded as assured.

Minority Opposed

A preview of arguments to be presented against United States subscription of $3,175,000,000 to the proposed international bank's capital and $2,750,000,000 to the international monetary fund was given yesterday in a minority report by four Republican members of the Senate Banking committee. They declared "the net result of the present bill is to waste our money and accomplish nothing."

The majority of the committee had reported earlier that the program adopted by representatives of 44 nations last summer at Bretton Woods, N. H., "will help preserve peace by making possible an expansion of international trade."

The report was adopted by a 10 to 4 vote. The minority report was returned by Senator Taft (R-Ohio), who heads opposition to the program, and Senators Millikin (R-Colo), Butler (R-Neb) and Thomas (R-Idaho).

Wagner to Lead Fight

Chairman Wagner (D-NY) of the Banking committee, who has held out for blanket, unaltered approval of the program, will lead off the final administration drive tomorrow.

The asserted purpose of the $9,100,000,000 International Bank is to make or guarantee long-term loans for rehabilitation and development. The $8,800,000,000 monetary fund is intended to stabilize exchange and eliminate competitive exchange depreciation.

MIDDLE EAST PERIL EXISTS

Arab World May Be Next Test Of Big Three Unity

Washington, July (AP)—The oil-rich Middle East may be the next critical testing ground of Big Three unity, the Foreign Policy Association said today.

The private research organization offered this view as President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin assembled near Berlin for a face-to-face conference on international problems.

Suggesting the possibility of "open warfare" throughout the Arab world, the association's report served to focus official attention here on one of the trouble spots certain to be reviewed by the Big Three conferees.

Strategic Concern To Russia

One specific problem of the Middle East is the restoration of full independence of action to Iran. Throughout the war Russian troops controlled the northern half of that country and British troops the southern half while American transport forces operated the country's transportation lines.

The big powers have all pledged to withdraw from Iran within six months after the end of the war. Some weeks ago the Government at Teheran declared that meant the European war, and it called on all three powers to withdraw their armies at once.

Iran is of strategic concern to Russia to whom it affords both a border barrier against attack and an avenue for trade in the Middle East. At the same time it is of immense importance to Britain which relies upon it heavily for oil.

Violent Explosions Feared

The United States is committed principally to seeing Iran's independence fully restored and, as in Europe to establishing a political stability there which would promote peace rather than threaten war.

It is, however, in the situation with respect to Jewish and Arab claims on Palestine that the Foreign Policy Association finds the greatest danger.

"Many observers," the association declared, "believe that, before they are realized, the political aspirations of both Jews and Arabs in Palestine—fanned by outside sympathizers—will lead to violent explosions far more serious than the prewar riots which took place in that country or the more recent terrorist activities of small groups operating in the Middle East."

Both Sides Obtain Arms

Both sides have obtained arms, and the danger of open warfare throughout the Arab world does exist, the association continued.

The strategic location of the area on the important war and trade routes between Europe and Asia adds to the dangers of an outbreak which might result from some small beginning. The warnings of the Foreign Policy Association, while they come from a private agency, are in line with the privately expressed views of many officials here that the great dangers to a real peace in the next quarter of a century lie primarily in the Middle East.

Quick Action Necessary

The situation is somewhat comparable to that of the politically disorganized Balkans where there have been threatening exchanges between Greek and Jugoslav sources over allegations of oppression in Macedonia. The explosive possibility is that some trouble might break out between the two countries that would involve the interest of Britain as a protector of Greece and of Russia as the big power friend of Yugoslavia.

This is the kind of situation which makes it extremely important for the Big Three at Berlin to lay down machinery for immediate action on these small nation controversies as they arise and before they have time to develop into big power controversies.

NAVY DISCLOSES SINKING OF U-BOAT CARRYING MINES

WASHINGTON, July 15 — (AP) The Navy revealed today how a German U-boat, loaded with mines destined for planting in Atlantic seaboard waters, was rammed and sunk by the destroyer escort Thomas a year ago.

The mines were apparently intended for harbor entrances at New York or Halifax, but they found their way to the ocean floor when the Thomas ripped open the hull of the 1,600-ton submarine minelayer, the U-233, July 5, 1944. A surface battle preceded the ramming.

The U-boat was almost cut in two by the crash. The sumbarine, one of the largest German minelayers with a capacity of 66 mines, sank in a few seconds.

The Thomas, operating as part of a task group, was ordered late in June to proceed toward Cape Race, Newfoundland, to intercept an east bound submarine.

"We always had an ambition to ram an enemy submarine, and we got our wish that day," the Thomas' skipper, Lt. Comdr. David M. Kellogg, Seattle, Wash., said in a Navy statement.

"On July 5, the U.S.S. Baker, another destroyer escort, reported to the task group commander that she had a sub contact. The Baker attacked immediately with depth charges while the Thomas closed in at flank speed."

The Baker was under command of Lt. Comdr. N. C. Hoffman, Swampscott, Mass.

Survivors of the U-boat said the first depth charge attack caught them by surprise. The concussion tore a torpedo from its service rack, crashing it into an after torpedo tube with enough force to rupture watertight fittings, and the U-boat was forced to surface dead ahead of the Thomas.

"We were about 11,000 yards from the scene of action when the sub's bow broke water dead ahead," Lt. Comdr. Kellogg said. "The Baker opened fire. At 9,000 yards the Thomas opened fire with all forward guns, and continued rapid fire all the time she was closing in for the kill.

"Flames were shooting out of the sub's conning tower, but as we closed to 7,000 yards the smoke cleared and we could see him getting under way, trying to break off and hide in a fog bank about two miles distant. We were still closing at flank speed. We could see men jumping or falling off the U-boat's sides, but there were flashes from aft the conning tower and splashes off our port bow.

"Word was passed throughout the ship to stand by for a ram. At 250 yards we slowed to standard speed, and at 50 yards we went into emergency full stern with full right rudder to keep us on a collision course designed to hit the sub right at the conning tower."

He said the crash knocked men sprawling all over the Thomas, although they had been warned and were prepared for it.

The Thomas picked up 29 survivors of the U-boat, including her commanding officer, Kaptain Leutnant Hans Steen.

MRS. ROOSEVELT TALKS ON CHARTER

WASHINGTON, July 15—(AP) Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today in a discussion of the San Francisco charter that "awareness on the part of the individual of the obligation in this great work is the thing that my husband felt most important."

Mrs. Roosevelt, one of three women speakers on the program, "The Washington Story," broadcast over the American Broadcasting company, said in a talk that the late President "realized always that the war had to be won before any peace could really be set up in the world."

Other speakers were Mrs. Wendell L. Willkie, widow of the 1940 Republican presidential candidate, and Mrs. Eleanor McAdoo, daughter of former President Woodrow Wilson.

Mrs. Roosevelt said her husband "felt if we could get the machinery running, then we would have a better chance than ever before of making the people more aware that keeping a peace lay in their hands."

She added that Mr. Roosevelt believed it necessary to have the charter "accepted while the war was still going on and the United Nations were fighting together to win the war."

Mrs. Willkie said, "Wendell Willkie's greatest idea was that the United States should lead the world as a moral force. The spirit which brought men together at San Francisco is the same spirit for which he struggled."

Mrs. McAdoo said her father was "a supreme realist," and added: "He saw clearly that no League of Nations could possibly succeed unless the American people understood the need for it and consented to join it.

"The league isn't dead. It was reborn in San Francisco in a newer, more modern form. And this time, because Americans will back it up, it can't fail."

ARMY DISCLOSES FOOD SHIPMENTS

WASHINGTON, July 15 — (AP) The Army shipped 2,045,829 long tons of food, chiefly wheat and flour, for "wake of battle" feeding of civilians in liberated European areas during 1944 and the first five months of 1945.

The great bulk of the tonnage went to Europe after August, 1944, as the Allied advances began opening large areas of Europe, a War department statement said today.

(Earlier in the week, department officials said the Army will stop food shipments to civilians in the liberated countries on Sept. 1.)

Wheat and flour made up more than 70 per cent of the total, the Army said. It asserted that "minimum quantities of rationed foods have been exported for Europe's civilians. Total of canned meats, sugar and fats supplied during the period has been approximately 200,000 tons or 11 per cent of the food supplied. All of the meats supplied were under 1944 procurement as there has been no procurement of meats for civilian feeding since December, 1944."

The statement gave this breakdown of the total food shipped, in long tons of 2,200 pounds:

Wheat 910,351; flour 564,238; canned meats 87,717; fats 46,558; sugar 100,962; coffee 16,522; evaporated milk 62,892; dry skimmed milk 55,243; dried peas 124,251; dehydrated soup 51,558; salt 1,272; dehydrated eggs 9,204; peanut butter 300; canned fish 12,689; fish (wet, salt, dry etc.) 2,072.

Army Air Force To Mark 38th Birthday August 1

Washington, July 15 (AP)—The Army's air arm will celebrate its thirty-eighth birthday on August 1.

Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the organization of 2,300,000 officers and men ordered today that the date be observed as "Air Force Day," with airfields in this country opening their gates for public inspection of planes and facilities.

On August 1, 1907, an order was issued by the Signal Corps creating a division of aeronautics "to study the flying machine and the possibiliy of adapting it to military purposes." The nation's air force, as of that date, consisted of a captain and two enlisted men.

PLANT EXPANSION DURING WAR COST OVER 20 BILLION

WASHINGTON, July 15—(AP) The War Production board asserted today that the war has left geographical distribution of industry generally unchanged, despite a $20,300,000,000 expansion of the country's manufacturing facilities.

In a survey covering the period from July 1, 1940 through May 31, 1944, the agency said there has been "much less widespread relocation of industrial plants throughout the country than might have been the popular conception."

"Labor supply, existing transportation facilities, housing and above all the need for top speed combined to bring about the placement of the added facilities in the pre-war manufacturing centers," the report continued.

More than 13,000 facility additions are represented in the total expansion valuation of over $20,000,000,000. Of this, WPB said, $15,800,000,000 was in public financing and $4,500,000,000 in private funds.

Of the overall total, approximately $19,000,000,000 or 93 per cent was expended in 179 previously existing manufacturing areas. These areas, covering 451 counties, in 1939 had 84 per cent of the country's manufacturing wage earners and 81 per cent of the value of products, WPB said.

Big Cities Share

Over a third — $7,500,000,000—of the total expenditure was for facilities in 10 of the nation's leading industrial cities, as follows:

Chicago, Detroit, New York, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Houston, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, St. Louis and San Francisco.

Among the states, Ohio led with 1,293 facilities and authorizations totaling $1,677,000,000. Others close to the top ranked in this order:

Pennsylvania, 1,200 authorizations valued at $1,675,000,000; Michigan, 1,145 authorizations valued at $1,549,000,00; Illinois, 1,087 authorizations valued at $1,490,000,000; New York, 1,111 authorizations valued at $1,383,000,000; Texas, 441 authorizations valued at $1,259,000,000.

Cost of New Plants

Overall authorizations for new plants totaled $13,900,000,000, with more than half of this expenditure in the East North Central, Middle Atlantic and West South Central regions.

Expenditures totaled $4,200,000,000 for expansion of plants that made products during the war similar to those of peacetime, while $2,200,000,000 was spent for conversion of existing plants to the manufacture of war materials.

Facilities for aircraft production, WPB said, are concentrated primarily in the East, North, Central and Middle Atlantic regions, where 60 per cent of these authorizations were placed.

Although the Pacific and West South Central regions showed a large share of aircraft deliveries, only 8 and 6.8 per cent, respectively, of the authorizations were assigned there. This is due, WPB said, to the relatively low cost of constructing assembly plants as additions to existing aircraft facilities.

The distribution of new iron and steel is concentrated in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Utah and California, while synthetic rubber plants have been centered in the Southwestern states. Texas has 41 per cent of the total authorization.

Floating Drydock Serves 226 Ships in 18 Months

The ARD-13 Is Now on 'Front Battle Line' in Pacific

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP).—The ARD-13, a floating drydock, has provided a haven for 226 damaged ships in the Pacific during the last eighteen months, the Navy reported tonight.

Thousands of miles from a Navy yard, the ARD-12 (Auxiliary Repair Dock) has served as a workshop for repairs to virtually every type vessel up to cruiser size. More than 100 destroyers have been docked in its stern well.

The ARD-13, commanded by Commander W. L. Travis, of New Orleans, started its career in the Pacific in February, 1944. It is now on "the front battle line," the Navy reported.

The floating drydock resembles a ship in general appearance except at the stern, where the great well of the dock is located. The craft was built in 1943 by the Pacific Bridge Company at Alameda, Calif.

Tugwell Seeks U. S. Aid In Island Food Shortage

Puerto Rican Governor Confers With Washington Officials

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP).—Rexford G. Tugwell, Governor of Puerto Rico, arrived in Washington by plane today to discuss the island's "tight" food situation with Interior and Agriculture Department officials.

Mr. Tugwell also plans to consult with the Commodity Credit Corporation on the possibility of a resumption of negotiations for purchase by the United States of the 1946 Puerto Rican sugar crop and said he would try to arrange for sale of the large island tobacco crop.

A recent $4,000,000 reduction of an Interior Department revolving fund, used among other things for subsididzing the sale of essential food items in Puerto Rico probably will force a substantial modification of the government's food program for the island, Mr. Tugwell said.

Several of the food items may be taken off the subsidized list and sent to the island henceforth through ordinary private trade channels, he added.

Mr. Tugwell was accompanied to Washington by his naval aide, Lieutenant Commander Thomas Carston; Elmer Ellsworth, Coordinator of Insular Affairs for the Puerto Rican government; Jaime Benitez, Chancellor of the University of Puerto Rico, and Jose Bultrago, an officiaal of the university.

GLASS IS CHALLENGED ON PROLONGED ILLNESS

WASHINGTON, July 15—(AP) An Arlington, Va., Republican, said tonight he will challenge in the Virginia Court of Appeals the right of veteran Senator Carter Glass, (D), to hold his Senate seat through a prolonged illness.

John Locke Green, treasurer of Arlington county, said he plans to petition the court to declare the Senate seat vacated. In that event Gov. Colgate W. Darden, Jr., could call an election this November for a successor, Green explained.

Declaring the ailing, 87-year-old senator has not answered a Senate roll call since June 20, 1942, Green told a reporter:

"His seat is either abandoned or vacated. We have courts to decide just such questions and I intend to file the petition and see what happens."

Glass could not be reached for comment.

Minimum Wage of 65 Cents Urged by Senate Committee

Resolution Proposes 25 Cent Increase Within Stabilization Act.

WASHINGTON, July 15 — (AP) A Senate Labor subcommittee endorsed today a resolution declaring it is the sense of Congress that any hourly wage below 65 cents is "substandard."

It recommended that Congress give early consideration to amending the Fair Labor Standards act "with a view to raising the statutory minimum wage and broadening the coverage of the act." That law fixes 40 cents as the minimum wage which may be paid by businesses engaged in interstate commerce.

The resolution—introduced by Senators Pepper (D-Fla), La Follette (Prog-Wis) and Johnston (D-SC)—would direct specifically that the War Labor Board shall consider any wage under 65 cents an hour substandard.

At present, WLB accepts 55 cents as substandard. This means that wages can be raised to that level without regard for the Wage Stabilization program.

See 10 Million Affected

The subcommittee—composed of Senators Pepper, La Follette, Thomas (D-Utah), Tunnell (D-Del) and Aiken (R-Vt)—estimated in its report that 10,000,000 workers receive less than 65 cents.

This minimum rate, it is important to remember, would in no sense be a compulsory minimum," the report said. "It would be purely permissive, if an employer wished to raise his wage rates to 65 cents he would be permitted to do so."

The committee emphasized that the resolution if adopted "would not prevent the board from setting a higher minimum should it determine such a rate to be necessary to fulfillment of the requirements of announced policy."

"Despite the relatively high level of wartime wages," the committee's report declared, "millions of American workers and their families are today forced to exist on earnings insufficient to provide even the barest minimum standard of living consistent with health and decency."

"If this resolution is adopted, the maximum posible aggregate cost of wage increases to the industries affected would be about $4,000,000,000 a year. This figure, however, is based upon the unrealistic assumption that all workers receiving less than 65 cents an hour would immediately be raised to 65 cents," the group said.

Cost Put at $761,000,000

A more realistic estimate, the committee added, "for which the War Labor Board is the authority, places the total annual cost at $761,000,000."

"The cost of the proposal can be absorbed by American industry without substantially affecting current profit levels and in most instances within the limits of existing price ceilings," the report added.

"As for the postwar period, the guarantees of continued profits provided by Congress in the revenue laws give substantial assurance of the ability of industry in general to absorb whatever cost would be involved if the resolution is adopted."

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 15 (AP).—Thirteen flyers were killed and one was injured late yesterday in a crash of a Superfortress six miles south of Albuquerque.

Colonel Frank Kurtz, commandant at Kirtland Field, where the B-29 was based, gave no details of the accident, but private reports said the plane appeared to be attempting a forced landing. It sheared off a telephone pole.

Military authorities expected to obtain details of the accident from the injured man, First Lieutenant John P. Shaw, twenty-seven, who was reported not to be in critical condition.

Shapley Tells How Russia Subsidizes Its Scientists

Harvard Astronomer Cites Gifts of Homes and Private Cars

BOSTON, July 15 (AP).—Dr. Harlow Shapley, Harvard astronomer, recently returned from a three-week stay in Russia as chairman of the American delegation to the U. S. S. R. International Scientific Congress, said today that the Russian government is not sparing cash or effort on scientific development there.

Dr. Shapley said state scientists are given incomes, private cars and chauffeurs, town and country homes and unlimited laboratory facilities, to develop their experiments.

While waiting for seats at movies in Moscow, Dr. Shapley reported, patrons could see exhibits of scientific interest.

In an increasingly scientific age, he added, Russia seems to be aware that science is the effective tool in social evolution. He said elaborate ceremonies were held in the Kremlin for the award of "Hero of Socialist Labor" to distinguished scientists—a title that means the same as valor on the battlefield.

[Dr. Shapley, who is director of the Harvard College Observatory, and fifteen scientists flew from La Guardia Field on June 10 to attend the 220th anniversary ceremonies of the Russian Academy of Sciences held June 15-28].

VESSEL FROM SWEDEN ARRIVES IN BOSTON

BOSTON, July 15—(AP) The S.S. Belos, the first Swedish merchant ship to arrive here in more than five years, today docked at the Mystic docks with a cargo of 4,300 tons of wood pulp consigned to New England paper mills.

Her sister ship, the C.S. Consul Corfitzer, is due in New York tomorrow with an additional 4,100 tons of pulp.

Capt. O. N. Hellborg, skipper of the Belos, said that hundreds of floating mines were sighted in the Baltic, North Sea and Atlantic.

He said that his comfpany has contracted to ship wood pulp regularly to the United States ports of Portland, Me., Boston, New York and Baltimore, Md. These shipments are expected to alleviate the critical shortage of pulp used for manufacture into newsprint in this country.

Old Destroyer Is Beached After Cape Cod Collision

4-Stacker, Being Towed, and Collier Hit in Fog

BOSTON, July 14 (AP).—An old "four-stacker," identified by 1st Naval District headquarters as one of fifty destroyers turned over to Great Britain early in the war, was aground off Sakonett Point, R. I., after colliding with a collier.

A 1st Naval District spokesman said that the vessel had been "turned back to the United States to be scrapped" and was being towed to Philadelphia Navy Yard for that purpose when the accident occurred.

The Navy Department at Washington, however, said no destroyers had been turned back to the United States by Great Britain.

When the fifty old destroyers were turned over to Great Britain before the United States entered the war it was under an agreement in which the vessels were given outright in return for Atlantic air-base privileges.

The destroyer collided with the collier Winding Gulf near the west end of the Cape Cod Canal in a dense fog, the Navy said. The towline parted and later the Coast Guard cutter Hornbeam picked up the line and beached the craft on a reef.

The Winding Gulf, the Navy said, proceeded to Boston under her own power.

LA GUARDIA STAYS HOME AND CHIDES PRESIDENT

NEW YORK, July 15—(AP) Mayor La Guardia, who called off his proposed trip to France to celebrate Bastille Day there because the White House gave him permission to do so only in "a personal capacity," today offered President Truman the following advice in his weekly broadcast:

"If the President should visit any other country during or after the conference at Potsdam, I hope he visits France—and, Mr. Truman, if you do go to France, go as the President of the United States, not in a personal capacity nor as a private citizen.

"You know the French are sensibly sensitive. You should visit France by all means; it would be most encouraging to the good people of France."

The Mayor was invited to attend the Bastille Day celebration as a guest of the French government, but decided not to go after President Truman, at a press conference at the White House July 5, disclosed La Guardia would have to go as a private citizen.

FIRST WACS ARE HOME FROM SERVICE ABROAD

NEW YORK, July 15—(AP) The first contingent of WACs to be returned from Europe by air under the Army's redeployment program arrived today at La Guardia field.

The majority of the 67 WACs comprising the contingent completed more than a year's service in England or on the European continent. Some served as long as 24 months overseas.

S-Sgt. Bella Sharp of Leslie, S. C., with 86 discharge points, displayed the Bronze Star medal which she said she received for her work as a stenographer on pre-invasion plans for the First division. She wore six campaign stars on her European theater ribbon.

"I was the only one of the enlisted personnel in the First division," she said, "that knew when D-day was coming."

She said she did not plan to apply for a discharge.

Shanghai Forces Sell Clothes to Buy More Food

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15 (AP).—Japanese soldiers occupying Shanghai are selling their clothes, soap, tobacco and even stolen gasoline and tires in order to buy food, the China news agency said tonight in an English-language broadcast.

The Japanese military ration there is only two balls of cold rice a day, the dispatch added, and men "consider themselves lucky when they are able to get smelly salted fish."

West Coast Blackout To End On August 1

San Francisco, July 15 (AP)—The Western Defense Command today ordered the already-suspended dimout regulations on the West Coast terminated August 1, and advised governors of the eight Western States that blackout regulations no longer are required.

Maj. Gen. H. C. Pratt, commanding general, announced the end of the dimout rules, in effect since August 5, 1942, in public proclamation No. 23.

Dimout was to eliminate light which silhouetted ships at sea. Blackout was for protection of areas which might be attacked by the enemy.

N.Y. PAPER STRIKE TO BE CONTINUED

Deliverers Say Other Unions Offer Financial Aid

New York, July 15 (AP)—The head of New York's striking newspaper deliverymen said after a mass meeting today that the work stoppage would continue despite a warning from publishers that the strikers would be dismissed unless they returned to work tomorrow.

Joseph Simons, president of the newspaper and mail deliverers' Union (unaffiliated), also said "several unions affiliated with the newspaper industry have agreed to support the strike financially."

No Formal Vote Taken

The meeting had been called for the purpose of giving the strikers an opportunity to vote on whether they wanted to return to work, but Simons said no formal vote was taken.

"The men were here and heard what we had to say and I read the letters from the various unions which offered to support them," Simons said.

The strikers were warned last night by the Publishers Association of New York City that they would be dismissed immediately unless they reported back to work at their usual time tomorrow. The deliverymen already had ignored three War Labor Board directives and a previous ultimatum from the publishers.

Advised of today's action by the union, the publishers association, in a statement reiterated its warning that workers failing to report to work tomorrow would be dismissed.

Led To 'Brink Of Disaster'

Later, Edwin S. Friendly, general manager of the Sun and representative of the association, said in a broadcast that the strikers, by their action, "wrote one of the blackest marks in the history of trade unionism."

He said the union members had been misled to "the brink of disaster" by "irresponsible leaders," and added:

"We don't use the word 'disaster' lightly—nor is it easy to use that word. But it is the truth! Because the newspapers will continue to roll from the presses and the publishers will see that they are delivered."

Since that announcement, the WLB has canceled all provisions of the contract, which had been extended by the board pending negotiation on a new agreement.

Nearly all of the 1,700 strikers attended today's closed mass meeting. Not all were in favor of continuing the strike, however, it learned.

IT WAS ANTICIPATED HERE THAT BOTH TRUMAN AND PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL WOULD STAND FIRM FOR A POLICY WHICH WOULD GIVE BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATES A VOICE IN SETTLING AFFAIRS IN EASTERN EUROPE EQUAL TO THAT FOR WHICH RUSSIA HAS BEEN INSISTING IN THE DETERMINATION OF PROBLEMS OF THE WESTERN PART OF THE CONTINENT.

TRUMAN APPROACHED THE CONFERENCE WITH A POWERFUL BARGAINING POINT - THE PRODUCTION MIGHT OF THE GREATEST INDUSTRIAL MACHINE THE WORLD HAS EVER SEEN, PLUS INCOMPARABLE FINANCIAL RESOURCES.

BUT, SAY AUTHORITATIVE SOURCES, TENTATIVE RUSSIAN PROPOSALS FOR LARGE LONG-TERM CREDITS HAVE FAILED TO GET A FAVORABLE RECEPTION HERE.

THE LONDON SUNDAY TIMES SAID TRUMAN IS "UNDERSTOOD TO BE PREPARED TO AGREE TO LONG-TERM CREDITS FOR $6,000,000,000 AND IN VIEW OF THE ALMOST LIMITLESS REQUIREMENTS OF RUSSIA IN THE INDUSTRIAL FIELD, THE VALUE OF SUCH A LAVISH ACCOMMODATION CAN HARDLY BE OVER-ESTIMATED AS A BARGAINING COUNTER."

GUAM, JULY 16-(AP)-MORE THAN 100 IWO-BASED MUSTANG FIGHTERS DESTROYED OR DAMAGED 37 JAPANESE AIRPLANES YESTERDAY IN STRIKES AT SIX NAGOYA AREA AIRFIELDS.

THEY ALSO ATTACKED SHIPPING IN NAGOYA BAY AND RAILROAD YARDS IN LOW-LEVEL STRAFING ATTACKS.

THREE MUSTANGS WERE LOST.

MAJ.GEN.CURTIS E.LEMAY'S 20TH AIR FORCE SUPERFORTRESS CREWS, RETURNING FROM A DEMOLITION ATTACK ON THE KUDUMATSU OIL REFINERY, SAID BOMBING RESULTS WERE "GOOD TO EXCELLENT" THROUGH BROKEN CLOUD COVER.

IN THIS SECOND STRIKE ON THE NIPPON OIL COMPANY'S KUDUMATSU PLANT BY 50 TO 75 B-29S, EXPLOSIONS AND FIRES WERE VISIBLE FOR 100 MILES.

ONE BIG BLAST WAS VISIBLE 50 MILES OUT.

"IT TURNED THE CLOUDS AND HORIZON BLUE AND THEY STAYED THAT WAY FOR ABOUT 30 SECONDS," SAID CPL.WILLIAM T.LAYTON, RANCOCAS WOODS, MASONVILLE,N.J.

NO B-29 WAS LOST ON THE KUDUMATSU STRIKE.

ONLY EIGHT JAPANESE PLANES ROSE TO CHALLENGE THE MUSTANG SWEEPS OVER AIRFIELDS AT KAGAMIGAHARA, MEIJI, OKAZAKI, KOWA, KOMAKI AND NAGOYA-EAST.

THE ABSENT IHIYA GARRISON (LIKE AGUNI'S) EVIDENTLY HAD BEEN CALLED TO OKINAWA MORE THAN TWO MONTHS EARLIER TO AID IN THE FUTILE DEFENSE OF THAT LARGE ISLAND.

A FEW JAPANESE PLANES APPROACHED IHIYAA ON THE FIRST DAY BUT FAILED TO REACH THE AMERICAN INVASION FLEET. A TROPICAL STORM--COMPLETE WITH TYPHOON WARNINGS--MADE THE SHIPS WITHDRAW TEMPORARILY MONDAY BUT DID NO DAMAGE.

ACCIDENTS COST THE LIVES OF TWO MARINES AND INJURED 12. A SCORE OF NATIVES WERE WOUNDED BY THE PRE-INVASION BARRAGE AND SEVEN DIED. APPRXIMATELY 3,000 OTHERS WAVED WHITE FLAGS AND SURRENDERED IMMEDIATELY. NO ONE COMMITTED SUICIDE.

SHORTLY AFTERWARD THE JAPANESE LONGBOAT WAS SIGHTED APPROACHING FROM THE ADJOINING ISLAND. IT WAS ADORNED WITH A WHITE FLAG, AND THE SIX JAPANESE IT CONTAINED SAID THEY WANTED TO SURRENDER ALONG WITH 150 COMRADES THEY HAD LEFT BEHIND THEM.

THE IHIYA NATIVES, A PITIFUL BAND OF RAGGED OLD MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN, WERE DUMFOUNDED AS THEY WATCHED THE HELMETED.

MRS. KLONOWSKI, WAITING NEAR THE TELEPHONE FOR A CALL FROM "THE SERGEANT," WHOM SHE EXPECTS TO DOCK IN NEW YORK "ANY TIME," IS UNCERTAIN HOW TO GO ABOUT GETTING ROBERT HERE. HOWEVER SHE IS CERTAIN THAT HER SON WANTS TO DO ALL HE CAN FOR THE LAD, AND IF HE CAN'T ADOPT HIM, SHE WILL.

"WHAT I WANT TO KNOW IS HOW TO GET THE BOY HERE. EITHER EDDIE OR I WILL ADOPT HIM, AND HE WILL HAVE A GOOD HOME. EDDIE PROBABLY WILL BE ON A 30 DAY FURLOUGH, BUT I AM GOING TO BE RIGHT HERE AND IF I CAN ARRANGE IT, ROBERT WILL BE HERE WHEN EDDIE COMES HOME AFTER HIS NEXT ASSIGNMENT."

MRS. KLONOWSKI THINKS THERE IS TOO MUCH RED TAPE IN ROBERT'S PRESENT SITUATION. HER IDEA IS THAT ROBERT SHOULD BE PLACED ABOARD AN AMERICAN-BOUND TROOP SHIP, BROUGHT TO CHICAGO AS A GI WOULD BE, AND SHE WILL TAKE CARE OF THINGS FROM THERE IN.

ROBERT'S PARENTS AND THREE SISTERS WERE KILLED BY THE GERMANS AT KHARKOV. HE HAS BEEN WITH SGT. KLONOWSKI ALMOST CONSTANTLY SINCE THE UNITED STATES 44TH DIVISION RESCUED THE BOY FROM THE NAZIS.

Nimitz Announces Action Is Still Going On—Blow Follows Raid By Nearly 500 B-29's On Four Nippon Cities

JUL 17 1945

Guam, Tuesday, July 17 (AP)—The United States and British fleets, combined to form the greatest carrier striking force ever assembled, hurled some 1,500 planes at the Tokyo area today. The onslaught still is in progress.

The blow, starting at dawn, followed closely a 2,500-ton incendiary-bomb assault on four Japanese cities by nearly 500 American Superfortresses.

It was the latest in a series of attacks [redacted] and air for four days along the entire length of the enemy's home islands.

Nimitz Reports Attack

The naval shelling opened "the pre-invasion phase" of the war on Japan, in which the Allies rely upon the twin strategies of an ever-tightening blockade and destruction by shells and bombs "of every industry and resource which contributes to Japan's ability to make war," Admiral Chester W. Nimitz declared in a radio broadcast to America immediately following his announcement of the present operation.

The American fleet—the Third—shelled the enemy home islands of Honshu and Hokkaido on Saturday and Sunday and with its thousand-odd carrier planes burned out three Japanese industrial cities and destroyed or damaged 128 enemy vessels.

Yesterday it clamped on a radio blackout, and its whereabouts were unknown until this morning, when Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced that it had joined the British Pacific fleet in a gigantic and continuing blow against the Tokyo area. The American carrier planes had smashed the same area's airfields in a great strike one week ago today.

First Combined Operation

It is the first combined American-British operation of the war against the enemy homeland, and is commanded by U. S. Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr.

Nimitz identified one British carrier, one battleship, two cruisers and five destroyers, and it was clear that other unidentified units were participating.

He named the battleship King

FOUR JAP CITIES SET AFIRE BY HUGE FLEET OF B-29S

450 to 500 Superforts in Widespread Raid—Three Towns Demolished by Navy Guns —13 Others Are Hit by Planes.

Guam, July 17 (Tuesday) (A. P.).—Between 450 and 500 Superfortresses in a predawn attack today showered fire bombs on four Japanese cities over a 460-mile stretch.

The targets fanged from Oita on the northeast coast of Kyushu to Hiratsuka, thirty-four miles southwest of Tokyo. More than 2,500 tons of incendiaries were dropped on the four cities in the raid, which was the fifty-third fire bomb mission carried out from Mariana bases. The other cities hit were Kuwana, twelve miles southwest of Magoya, and Numazu, twenty-five miles southeast of famed Mount Fugi.

It marked the first raid carried out under the newly organized Gen. Carl A. Spaatz. Spaatz is expected here soon from Washington to take direct command.

Kuwana, a city of 42,000, is actually a part of the big Nagoya war production center. Numazu, with a population of 55,000, has several ordnance and armament plants. Hiratsuka, of 43,000 population, is an important aircraft and armaments center as well as a focal point for naval activities. It is an urban area of slightly less than a square mile with its most congested section forming an oblong pattern of about one-third square mile. Oita is the most important Kyushu city on the Inland Sea. Its naval air depot supplies airfields at Oita, Saiki and Usa. Its population of 76,000 is closely confined with a density of 26,000 to the square mile.

Fleet Scores Heavily.

The new raid followed a devastating succession of blows by United States sea and air power which virtually erased three Jap cities, struck heavily at thirteen others and sank or destroyed 107 surface craft over the week end.

The powerful Third Fleet all but leveled two Jap oil centers in northern Japan while its carrier planes burned another to the ground, winged offshore to knock off 108,000 tons of shipping and joined with American land-based aircraft to bomb and strafe thirteen additional Nipponese towns and cities.

[Japanese Domei News Agency early today said the fleet had withdrawned, presumably because of bad weather, but warned it might return any time and any place. Domei said 2,500 carrier planes took part in the strikes of northern Honshu and Hokkaido—1,500 Sunday, 1,000 Saturday. The agency claimed early reports indicated damage was "slight."]

Feeble anti-aircraft fire was the only opposition offered to the entire series of explosive assaults.

Battleship forces spearheaded by the 45-000-ton superbattleships Missouri, Iowa and Wisconsin, all but destroyed the iron and steel center of Muroran, on Hokkaido Island, yesterday. Carrier planes had burned out practically all of industrial Kushiro, on the same island, the day before.

B-29s Hit Oil Plant Anew.

B-29s made a return visit Sunday to attack the Nippin Oil Company plant at Kudumatsu, on Honshu, about five miles southeast of Tokyuama, with high explosives. Between fifty and seventy-five Superfortresses made the attack.

Returning B-29 crews said the bombing results were "good to excellent" and that fires and explosions were visible for 100 miles.

"It turned the clouds and horizon blue, and they stayed that way for thirty seconds," one pilot said. No Superforts were lost.

More than 100 Mustangs from their Iwo base struck at six Nagoya airfields and destroyed or damaged thirty-seven Jap planes and then pounced on shipping in Nagoya Bay and railroad yards. Three Mustangs were lost. Only eight interceptors came up to fight. Four of them were shot down, another was probably destroyed and two were damaged. One locomotive and a gasoline tank were blown up, two locomotives and other harbor, airfield and rail installations were damaged.

[Tokyo claimed Jap pilots "bagged a sizable number" of American planes, but admitted the American air forces "had not suffered serious attrition yet. Vague hints were thrown out of forthcoming "secret weapons."]

Other Areas Also Attacked.

Elsewhere in the Far Western Pacific, Navy search Privateers heavily attacked Korea; Army Liberators hit the Singapore area and shipping off southern Honshu; Thunderbolts ranged to the China coast, and attack and fighter bombers hit two Kyushu Island cities, carrier planes struck three airfields on Honshu.

Communiques from three American commands reported aerial assaults on eleven Jap cities: Muroran, Hakodate, Esashi, Kushiro and Shikabetsu, all on Hokkaido Island; Nagoya, Aomori, Sendai and Kudumatsu, all on Honshu, and Miyazaki and Kagoshima, on Kyushu. The Tokyo radio additionally reported that carrier planes also raided Otaru, Abashiri, Ashigawa and Obihiro, all on Hokkaido.

Muroran Takes Heaviest Blow.

The battleship shelling of Muroran blasted two steel plants, one synthetic oil factory, other war plants and left the city rocked with fierce explosions and fires. Saturday's bombardment of Kamaishi on Honshu set fires in the steel mills which spread to the water front.

In the Muroran shelling which lasted an hour, Rear Admiral Oscar C. Badger's big ships fired more than 1,000 tons of projectiles into Hokkaido's war industry plants and its transport and harbor areas. When the force withdrew, the Nippon Steel Company's large plant was rocking under a series of terrific explosions. In this plant was concentrated most of Muroran's gun and munitions production. Stores of munitions apparently were blowing up.

Sixteen-inch shells from the Missouri, Iowa and Wisconsin also destroyed or burned out most of the Wanishi Iron Works plant buildings at Muroran. One open hearth blast furnace and many coke ovens were damaged heavily. Great fires raged in a coal liquefaction plant producing synthetic gasoline. Flames boiled into the sky from gasoline and oil storage tanks.

Smoke clouds shrouding the city under a low overcast made accurate damage assessment difficult. Observation planes had to fly at less than 1,000 feet altitude. They encountered some anti-aircraft fire. But Jap shore batteries did not fire a shot against Badger's ships, which retired without damage.

In Saturday's attacks, ranging from Sendai on Honshu to Shibetsu in Northeast Hokkaido, nine American planes were lost but all except three air crewmen were rescued.

In the Muroran shelling, Badger's big ships fired more than 1,000 tons of projectiles into Hokkaido's war industry plants and its transport and harbor areas.

When the force withdrew, the Nippon Steel Company's large plant was rocking under a series of terrific explosions. In this plant was concentrated most of Muroran's gun and munitions production. Stores of munitions apparently were blowing up.

In this most destructive naval bombardment against any Japanese city, Badger's big battleships also shattered an important chemical plant and started fires spreading along the city's waterfront.

The Muroran shelling continued an hour. While it was in progress, Task Force 38 planes were ranging for the second successive day over Northern Honshu and much of Hokkaido. They caught Japanese ships trying to run westward

George V, completed since the war began; the fleet carrier Formidable, the six-inch gun cruiser Newfoundland, the 5.25-inch-gun light cruiser Black Prince, the destroyers Troubridge, Undine, Barfleur and Grenville and the Australian destroyer Quickmatch.

While not named by Nimitz in the present action, the British fleet carriers Illustrious, Indomitable and Indefatigable previously have been listed as operating in the Pacific—against the Sakishima group of islands south of Okinawa.

Japs Admit Attack

Probably 1,500 planes were engaged, adding the British carrier strength to the 1,000-plus rating of the American Third fleet carriers.

Americans Previously Named

No American ships were named but Nimitz's communiqués on the strikes of the past week have identified the carriers Lexington, Essex, Independence and San Jacinto; the new battleships Iowa, Missouri, Wisconsin, Indiana, Massachusetts and South Dakota; the cruisers Chicago, San Juan, Springfield, Atlanta and Quincy; and the destroyers DeHaven, Samuel N. Moore, John Rodgers, Schroeder, Cogswell, Heerman, Southerland, Aul, John W. Weeks, Colohan, Wedderburn, Rowe, Caperton, Frank Knox, Erben, Black, McGowan, Norman Scott and Remey.

[Since the Americans suffered no damage in their earlier strikes, it is fair to assume that all those named, and more, may be on the present Tokyo raid.]

Their primary mission probably was to attempt to find and destroy the remnants of the Japanese air force, but Nimitz' brief announcement, after receipt of flashed word that the assault was on, gave no details.

Tokyo already has suffered the loss of 53.6 square miles of the heart of the city from previous raids—principally from Superfortress firebombs—but the low-flying carrier planes could be expected to locate and destroy remaining pinpoint targets considered worthy of attack.

The combined fleet, the most powerful ever assembled in a single task force anywhere in the world, is under over-all comanmd of Admiral William F. Halsey, commander of the U. S. Third fleet.

The British commander under Halsey is Vice Admiral Sir Bernard Rawlings, with Vice Admiral Sir Philip Vian in command of British carriers.

(The fact that Vian, famed since Malta convoy days was listed as in command of carriers showed that the formidable certainly was not the only Royal Navy carrier in the operation.)

Other British task group commanders included Read Admirals E. J. Brind and J. Edelston—a hint as to the extensive nature of the forces involved.

Identifies Targets

Nimitz identified the targets only as being "in the Tokyo region" and said the carrier planes struck at dawn. His communique, issued at 10:15 a. m. Guam time (8:15 p. m., Monday, Eastern War Time), said the assaults were still in progress.

The spectacular American-British operation followed by a few hours a strike by 450 to 500 U. S. Superfortresses against four Japanese industrial centers with fire bombs.

Roaring out of the Marianas, the sky fleet dumped 2,500 tons of incendiary bombs before dawn on the four industrial cities spaced along a 460-mile stretch from the Tokyo area southwestward to the inland sea.

They hit 24 hours after a smaller force of Superforts, taking over the attack from the U. S. Third fleet, turned one of Japan's most important refining centers left on the inland sea into an inferno.

Today's targets were:

Hiratsuka, naval arsenal, aircraft and armaments center of 43,000 population, 34 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Numazu, ordnance, armaments, textile and electrical machine center of 55,000 about 55 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Kuwana, city of 42,000 and maker of bearings, aircraft parts, electrical equipment, machine tools and fine steels, 12 miles southwest of Japan's fourth city of Nagoya.

Oita, naval air depot and railway city of 70,000 on the southern island of Kyushu and that island's most important city on the inland sea.

As the Superforts struck, the Third fleet steamed somewhere off Japan today and the ashes of three northern cities flattened by its shells and bombs served notice on the enemy that henceforth no part of the home islands is safe.

Airfields, Harbors Wrecked

From Sendai—190 miles north of Tokyo—on for 470 miles to the northern tip of Hokkaido, cities, air fields and harbors were littered with the wreckage left by the fleet's man-made typhoon of fire and steel.

Apparently the weather forced Admiral William F. Halsey to break off the action Sunday after two days of merciless bombardment by his mightiest battleships and 1,000 planes from his carriers.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz in a communique yesterday said the weather had begun to hamper operations when planes took off Sunday.

The Japanese speculated that bad weather forced a let-up in the blows but warned that the fleet possibly would come back—a fairly safe assumption since fleet commanders have announced their intentions of striking at the very core of Japan's war production.

The first naval bombardment of Japan's shores in this century was a good starter toward that goal.

The steel city of Muroran on the southern shore of Hokkaido and Kamaishi, another one 275 miles north of Tokyo, were all but destroyed by naval bombardment.

Carrier planes leveled most of the port and industrial city of Kushiro, on the eastern coast of Hokkaido.

In all, 13 northern Japanese cities —16 by Tokyo's account—were struck, including Esashi, which is on the coast not far from the northern tip of Hokkaido, northernmost of the four main home islands.

Caught and sunk or damaged were 103 ships totaling 108,000 tons. Ninety-two enemy planes were destroyed or damaged and 27 locomotives were wrecked.

From all this action the U. S. fleet came away unscratched. Nine American planes and three crew members were lost.

Twentieth Air Force headquarters announced that a fire raid July 10 destroyed almost 75 per cent of Gifu, textile and aircraft making city 18 miles north of Nagoya.

Gifu joined the list of 38 Japanese cities damaged by incendiary raids, which will be almost doubled in size and fury when 8th Air Force veterans from Europe begin flying Superforts over Japan.

To Arrive In August

Lieut. Gen. Barney M. Giles, deputy commander of the newly-set up United States Army Strategic Air Forces, said the first contingent of the 8th Air Force would arrive in mid-August, after which 3,000 tactical and strategic air force planes could hit Japan in a single day.

Actually, Giles said, "there is nothing left as an individual target" in Japan worth even a 1,000-plane raid, but he pointed out that with Superfortresses on Okinawa "there will be a number of valuable targets within range on the Asiatic mainland."

through the Tsugaru Straits into the Japan Sea to escape the Third Fleet.

In the first strikes yesterday, nine ships and six small craft totaling 12,000 tons were sunk and nine ships and 30 small craft totaling 12,000 tons were damaged in the early morning.

Only four Japanese planes were destroyed on the ground and one was damaged. There was no air resistance.

In fuller but still incomplete reports on the carriers' Saturday air strikes, Nimitz said 25 ships and 25 barges totaling 41,000 tons were sunk and 25 ships totaling 43,000 tons were damaged. Some of these were caught in Tsugaru Strait but others were hit in the ports of Muroran, Hakodate and Aomori.

Among the ships sunk were two destroyer escorts, one large cargo ship, one medium cargo ship and three small cargo ships.

Five of seven train ferries plying between Hakodate and Aomori were sunk Saturday and a sixth was driven onto a beach, where it was smashed with four direct bomb hits.

This virtually knocked out the communications link over which Hokkaido's vital coal supples were ferried and steel and munitions produced in its factories were transported to Honshu.

Only one ferry ship was left and Task Force 38 planes were looking for it as they continued yesterday's raids.

The 360-foot-long, specially built ferry ships, designed to carry 25 loaded freight cars, hardly can be replaced during the war.

Truman and Churchill, both of whom came here Sunday, yesterday talked informally with each other and made separate unheralded tours of ruined Berlin while waiting for the Russian generalissimo.

NIGHT

It had been generally believed that Stalin and the Soviet foreign commissar, Vyacheslav Molotov, reached the German capital late yesterday and there was speculation in some quarters that the Big Three might have chosen to gather last night. Evening meetings are customary at the Kremlin in Moscow.

Leaders Retire

However, Soviet officials and German Communist party representatives finally retired after midnight without official word of the arrival of the Russian leaders.

The Communist party newspaper Deutsche Volszeitung went to press at 1:30 a.m. after holding open its forms in expectation of important news from Tass, the official Soviet news agency.

The secrecy which shrouded the movements of the Russian premier was in line with the traditional precautions which the plainclothes police of the Interior Commissariat take to protect their state leaders. Travelling by train more than 1,000 miles outside the red brick walls of the Kremlin, Stalin was venturing into a country whose population still was drugged by anti-Russian propaganda and intense hatred.

Truman and Churchill at any rate were awaiting the first session of the momentous conference which is believed to have the war with Japan high on the agenda and the peace of Europe definitely on the list of talks.

Emerging separately from behind the wall of secrecy and the thousands of crack American, British and Russian troops guarding the Kaiser Wilhelm castle, Truman and Churchill, each with his retinue of advisors and high military chiefs, travelled through the wreckage of Berlin during the afternoon.

It was the first time in history that an American president had visited Berlin. Truman, in fact, is the first American chief executive to set foot on German soil.

Churchill Visits Truman

Earlier, within the spacious confines of the conference area around the castle, with its aura of now-shattered German militarism, Churchill called on President Truman at 11:50 a. m. (4:50 a. m., E.W.T.), being driven there by his daughter, Mary Churchill. It was their first meeting.

The cigar-chewing British leader left Truman's luxuriously-furnished "little White House" at 12:30 p. m., walking away while his daughter, a junior commander in the Auxiliary Territorial Service, drove. In their own quarters, meanwhile, the American and British joint chiefs of staff held preliminary meetings among themselves.

Churchill was accompanied by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. They were greeted by Admiral William D. Leahy, President Truman's personal chief of staff.

What Truman and Churchill talked about was not known. All that was told the more than 200 Allied correspondents quartered in the press camp in the adjacent suburb of Zehlendorf was that it was a "courtesy" call.

Nevertheless there was much speculation in Berlin with regard to Russia's future role in the Pacific war. The defeat of Japan was the main problem on Truman's mind and Churchill has pledged Britain's aid.

To oldtime foreign dwellers in Moscow, it has seemed that besides the defeat of the Soviet Union's enemies in the west, one of Stalin's objectives is the defeat of Soviet enemies in the east—meaning first of all, Japan.

Invited to Tour

About 1 p. m., U. S. Marshal Fred Canfil, who was a sergeant in the President's World War outfit, arrived at the "Little White House" and urged the President to see the ruins of Berlin for himself. By 2:30 the President had decided to make a quick trip and by 3:30 p. m. the Presidential car was pulling out of the restricted area.

The President, who retired early last night and slept until 8 a. m., more than a hour beyond his usual rising time, was out of Potsdam for two hours.

He saw Berlin and inspected the famous second armored (Hell on Wheels) division, drawn up along the wide Avus super-highway built by Hitler between Potsdam and Berlin.

After taking the salute, Truman, looking natty in a blue suit and his familiar gray hat, sped into Berlin and passed triumphantly under the Brandenburg gate where he was saluted by Col. Gen. Alexander Gorbatov, Soviet commander of Berlin, and his deputy, Maj. Gen. Mikolai Barinov.

As the blistering sun beat down, the Presidential car, accompanied by a small secret service detail and Army riflemen under Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, American commandant of Berlin, moved through the ruins along Sibmarckstrasse, Berlinstrasse and through the blackened Tiergarten to Unter den Linden.

Berliners walking the streets or riding bicycles paid little notice as the cavalcade drove past the wreckage of the Reichstag, past breadlines and under giant photographs of the President, of Churchill and of Stalin, erected in the Russian section of the capital.

Truman's limousine stopped outside the war-wrecked Reichschancellery where Adolf Hitler whipped up the spirit of Nazism and reportedly met his death.

The President, shaking his head, told accompanying reporters:

"It (the destruction) is a terrible thing but they brought it upon themselves. It best demonstrates what man can do when he overreaches himself."

Churchill Sees Ruins

Ten minutes after the President left, Churchill and Eden and several other members of the British leader's personal party arrived at the Reichschancellery. Grimly biting his cigar, Churchill, in an obviously dour mood, got out of his car, unlike the President, and spent about half an hour stalking swiftly through the building which housed Hitler's greatest hopes and became the shattered monument to his failure.

Truman left Potsdam accompanied by Leahy, Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and his military and naval aides. Greeted by the Second Armored division's band as he moved on to the Avus, he bared his head, acknowledged the salutes, and then awarded a citation.

Standing in a half-track personnel carrier, he made the award to Company "E," of the 17th armored engineering battalion which spanned the Rhine under fire, and said:

"I am only sorry that I didn't get a chance to participate in some phase of this war myself."

The President, an old artillery officer, presented the award to battalion Commander Capt. James E. McAdam, of Birmingham, Ala., while the Second division's commander, Brig. Gen. John T. Collier, looked on.

Presented in turn with the emblem of the battalion, Truman said: "I'll take it to the White House and keep it in my office."

Berlin tours of the two Allied chiefs were so hurriedly improvised that Churchill, going to the city from Potsdam, found himself driving along the autobahn where the Second armored was lined up waiting for the President.

As a result, the prime minister was detoured over a by-pass through the woods so that the American ceremony could proceed without interruption.

Churchill was almost belligerent at the Reichschancellery. He stood aside defiantly near the spot where Hitler's body purportedly burned and asked Russian escorts how the Nazis had died there.

He inspected Hitler's office and visited older parts of the chancellery and descended through the stench into the underground shelter where Hitler and his sweetheart, Eva Braun, were said to have spent the last days of the siege of Berlin.

Although Churchill came out quickly, his daughter, Eden, and others remained below some time. As the uniformed prime minister reappeared, his bulldog countenance was screwed up against the smell.

Churchill Visits Truman and Both Western Leaders Examine Berlin Wreckage.

Potsdam, July 16 (A. P.)—President Truman talked with Prime Minister Churchill and toured the wrecked heart of Berlin today preliminary to the first Big Three meeting, at which the war with J[illegible]PAN will be a leading topic.

The first American President to visit Germany, Mr. Truman had an opportunity to see Adolf Hitler's ruined and looted Chancellery, the battle-scarred Reichstag and the wreckage of the Tiergarten.

Soviet spokesmen said they had no word that Premier Stalin and Foreign Minister Molotov had arrived in Potsdam, but added: "They will be here in time for the opening of the conference." The opening sessions, originally scheduled for today, apparently had been delayed until tomorrow.

Stalin and Molotov generally were believed to be in Potsdam.

Churchill, chewing dourly on a cigar, inspected the Reich's Chancellery during the afternoon and asked his Russian escort how the Nazis there had died.

The President slipped out of Potsdam for two hours for his tour. He inspected the United States Second Armored (Hell on Wheels) Division along one of superhighways Hitler built. This division is an American occupation force in Berlin.

Churchill Visits Truman.

Prime Mmister Churchill called on Mr. Truman for their first meeting since President Roosevelt's death, but this was described as simply a courtesy call.

Mr. Truman also conferred with Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, veteran of the Yalta conference, and with his chief of staff, Admiral William D. Leahy.

Stopping outside Hitler's Chancellery, the President shook his head at the destruction and told reporters:

"It is a terrible thing, but they brought it on themselves."

President Truman, an artillery captain in the last war, presented a citation to Company E of the Seventeenth Armored Engineering Battalion—which crossed the Rhine under fire — and commented:

"I am only sorry that I didn't get a chance to participate in some phase of this war myself."

He made the award from a half-track personnel carrier in which he stood with Secretary Byrnes, Admiral Leahy, and his military and naval aids. He wore a blue suit and the familiar gray hat.

He inspected the Second Armored Division in the company of its commander, Brig.-Gen. John H. Collier. Then his wide tour of Berlin carried him into some sections of the Russian occupation zone.

Saluted by Russians.

Passing through the Brandenburg Gate, he was saluted by Col.-Gen. Alexander Gorbatov, commander of Berlin, and by his deputy, Major-Gen. Nikolai Barinov.

The presidential car was accompanied by a small secret service party and a detail of Army riflemen.

Major-Gen. Floyd L. Parks, United States member of the Berlin Kommandatur, directed the party through streets of ruined buildings to the Kaiserdam, Bismarckstrasse, Berlinerstrasse, through the Tiergarten, the Grossestrum monument and Unter den Linden.

The President saw breadlines amid crumbling buildings, including the wreckage of the Reichstag and the debris which is all that remains of the famous Adlon Hotel, and pictures of himself among the Big Three along a road in the Russian section.

Berliners walking the streets or riding bicycles paid little attention to the procession.

The Second Division band played the Star Spangled Banner as President Truman arrived for the divisional inspection. Baring his grey head to the hot sun, he acknowledged the salutes of the soldiers.

Heavy and medium tanks, tank destroyers and other weapons extended two miles down the highway.

Presented in turn with the emblem of the Seventeenth Armored Engineering Battalion, the President said: "I'll take it to the White House and keep it in my office."

where some reports say Hitler's body was burned. With him were his daughter, Junior Commander Mary Churchill; Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, and several others.

The British leader spent nearly a half hour stalking through the rubble of the building. He inspected Hitler's office and visited older parts of the Chancellery.

Accompanied only by members of his personal party, he descended through stench into the underground shelter where Hitler and Eva Braun were said to have spent their last days during the Russian siege. Although Churchill came out shortly, his daughter, Eden and the others remained below for some time.

Military Leaders Present.

The whole hierarchy of United States and British military leaders was in Potsdam along with two American Cabinet officers, Secretary of State Byrnes and Secretary of War Stimson. Just who accompanies Stalin and Foreign Commissar Molotov to the Big Three conference has not been announced. Russia alone of the great world powers is at peace with Japan.

Mr. Truman flew to Berlin from Antwerp yesterday. He was the first American President to touch German soil since Wilson visited the beaten Reich of Kaiser Wilhelm II in 1919.

The scores of State and military leaders talked in an atmosphere as remote to the outside world as Shangri La. The 200 news men assigned to the momentous and closely guarded gathering got no closer than the adjacent suburb of Sehlendorf. The conference may last ten days to three weeks and the only authoritative news from it will come from the conferees themselves.

Stalin comes here after at least half a dozen conversations in Moscow with the new Chinese Premier, T. V. Soong, and a gala farewell dinner for Soong which suggested that the meetings had been fruitful. China, like the United States and Great Britain, is preoccupied with the Japanese war.

Mr. Truman, for his part, was said to see his role not as simply a mediator between two powerful Allies, but as a spokesman for a nation which is seeking to arrange a world structure in which its technological leadership and democratic ideals will have a greater play than ever before.

Stalin's Apparent Objectives.

Oldtime foreign dwellers in Moscow say it has seemed that Stalin has held closely to four objectives in directing the state affairs for the huge land mass and nearly 200,000,000 people who make up the Soviet Union.

His first objective—defeat of Soviet enemies in the west—has been achieved. The others are said to be:

1. Defeat of Soviet enemies in the east—meaning first of all Japan.

2. Consolidation of the outer defense system for Soviet territories, which, with the inclusion of the Carpatho-Ukraine in the Soviet Ukraine and the prospective inclusion of the northern half of East Prussia in Soviet Lithuania, would extend the Kremlin's dominion farther than was ever reached by the czars.

3. The crystallizing of wartime friendship with the Western Allies to endure through long years of peace to come, in which at the very least there would be tolerant non-interference by the others in the sphere in which each of the Big Three is to be dominant.

Virtually all European problems reported up for discussian in Potsdam bear in some way on the Soviet Union's outer defenses. One of the most pressing of these, of course, is the future of conquered Germany.

Stalin and Molotov at preceding Big Three meetings have succeeded in securing United States and British underwriting of Soviet policies in Europe.

Asia, which stretches from the Dardanelles to the Bering Strait off Alaska, now will contribute its share of issues of which the majority may have to be put off for still another Big Three rendezvous. Russia and Japan are bound by treaty to non-agression until next April.

Paul Wandel, chief editor of the German Communist publication, Deutsche Volks Zeitung, wrote: "We have no individual party interests any more. All anti-Fascist democratic parties are united now and seek permission from all the Allies to cooperate in the rebuilding of German life on a new basis. We hope that permission will be forthcoming from Potsdam."

Wandel recently returned to Berlin from exile in Moscow.

For the next 10 days to three weeks these three—a soft-spoken Missourian with a reputation for directness, a British aristocrat and a son of a Georgian cobbler—are expected to discuss hunger, reconstruction, boundaries and many other problems besetting Europe's conglomerate millions. It seemed certain, also that the war against Japan would be on the agenda.

Sixty-one-year-old President Truman, bronzed and at the peak of vitality after an eight-day Atlantic crossing during which he mixed work with relaxation, was ready to talk business at once with Churchill and Stalin. The President, who arrived by plane yesterday, took up residence 10 minutes away from the Big Three conference building, where the momentous talks will be held.

Reporters will be permitted in Potsdam, but not in the conference area, where the American delegation occupies ten residences. President Truman is reported in favor of brief, generalized reports by himself and the other two conferees as progress of the conference warrants.

London Visit Tentative.

The President's reported plan to visit London after the meeting was described as wholly tentative, and he will not visit France. It was reported that should the conference be prolonged unduly, the President would return immediately to Washington, where he would report promptly to Congress on the pariey.

The President, long an advocate of international co-operation, follows a policy based on a belief that reasonable men can agree generally as to aims and can resolve their differences over details by sober discussion.

He views as the primary United States objective just now the winning of the war with Japan, but he sees in recurrent European conflicts a threat to his country, and he is willing to lend all American help in solving the problems perplexing Europe's war-weary millions.

Men who know the President best say he is likely to follow the course which he pursued as chairman of the Senate War Investigating Committee, which won him the vice-presidency and sent him to the White House upon the death of President Roosevelt, whom he warmly supported in the Senate, though never softening reports directed at the administration's war program.

The President's associates said he met with his new Secretary of State, James F. Byrnes, immediately after the arrival of their separate planes from Brussels, where they had been driven by automobile after the cruiser Augusta, on which they crossed the Atlantic, docked at Antwerp.

After a strenuous day, which included acknowledgment of greetings from thousands lining the streets of Antwerp and Brussels, President Truman retired last night shortly after 10 o'clock.

Churchill Comes Later.

Prime Minister Churchill arrived in Potsdam shortly after the President. Mr. Truman, however, dined with his press secretary, Charles G. Ross, members of his staff and Secretary Byrnes. He conferred briefly with Gen. George C. Marshall, Chief of Staff, and Admiral of the Fleet Ernest J. King.

The European greetings to the American chief executive, which had begun with a salute by seven British men of war upon his arrival in British waters, continued through the arrival at Potsdam. During the trip from Antwerp to Brussels villagers lining the route waved hopefully to him.

Gen. Eisenhower and Admiral Harold R. Stark, commander of United States naval forces in Europe, had met the President on the deck of the cruiser and accompanied him as far as Brussels.

President Truman was reported amazed by the evidences of destruction he saw during his flight across the Rhine near Coblenz and over Kassel and other German cities. He was interested in the signs of agricultural activity he saw in scattered areas.

The President's party includes Byrnes, Gen. Marshall, Admiral King, Admiral William D. Leahy, his personal chief of staff; Ross, and a number of State, War and Navy Department experts who have gone over the agenda submitted by the other Powers and whipped into shape some clear-cut proposals for Mr. Truman to submit to the conference.

Belgian Paper Protests.

Brussels, July 16 (A. P.).—The newspaper La Lanterne, commenting on press arrangements for President Truman's trip through Belgium, protested today in an editorial that Belgian newspaper men had been given inadequate opportunity to cover the story.

"Without doubt our Allies have the greatest respect for freedom of the press and the greatest concern for freedom of information, but it appears it is exercised only when it benefits correspondents of American agencies and newspapers," La Lanterne said.

The Belgians, however, were not the only one to protest over the press arrangements. Up to the minute the cruiser Augusta docked with the presidential party aboard, Army, Navy and diplomatic officials declined to discuss the subject of the President's visit with American news men, telling them:

"It's a top secret, I can give you no information."

This attitude was taken despite the fact that most details of the President's passage through the country were known on every street corner.

Americans and other accredited correspondents finally sent a radio message to Press Secretary Ross aboard the Augusta asking that they be permitted to cover the President while he was in Belgium, but received no answer.

Just before the President left the Augusta the correspondents located a secret service man who was sent aboard with their appeal. They were then admitted to the pier.

Press Arrangements Studied.

Berlin, July 16 (A. P.).—American, Soviet and British press officials attached to the Potsdam delegations were reported to have conferred today on possible measures to assure the press of informative reports on the Big Three meeting.

Lieut.-Col. John M. Redding, U. S. A., in charge of the Berlin district Allied press camp, said last night: "I believe this will be the best covered of any Big Three conference, but my belief is subject to change without notice."

'BIG 3' SESSION MAY SHORTEN WAR AGAINST JAPANESE

WASHINGTON, July 16 — (AP) The Big Three meeting in Potsdam carries the possibilities of dealing major psychological blows to Japan.

President Truman is reported to hope that the war with Japan can be shortened. If the conference does have that result, it may be accomplished more by psychological than by military means.

From a strictly military point of view, in the opinion or American strategists, the great factor now governing the progress of the war against Japan is the speed of redeployemnt of the forces from Europe to the Pacific. It is unlikely that decisions taken at Potsdam could hasten this redeployment.

It is also considered improbable that any action which Russia might take against Japan either as a result of decisions made at Yalta or of those to be made at Berlin, could greatly hasten the conquest of Tokyo—unless it helped to persuade the Japanese to surrender sooner.

There are actually two great objectives ahead of American and Allied forces battling the Pacific enemy. The first, on a strictly military basis, is to invade and conquer Japan as Germany was conquered. No land force which lacked enormous naval resources could participate in such an invasion.

The second objective, however, is a land army job in the main. That is the clean up of powerful Japanese armies in Manchuria, Korea and north China. The assumption is that these armies may go on fighting even after Tokyo surrenders. Months or even years of time could be saved if the destruction of these enemy hordes was accomplished jointly by Russian, American and other Allied forces.

Similarly, much time and many lives could be saved by cracking the Japanese will to resist. One possible move to accomplish this by enlisting the support of any dissonant elements inside Japan, may be to define more exactly what unconditional surrender would mean for the defeated country. The United States has reiterated time and again that the surrender must be unconditional but ranking officials say this does not bar a definition.

PREINVASION, SAYS NIMITZ

Admiral Uses Term Concerning Shelling By Fleet

Guam, Tuesday, July 17 (AP)—Heavy naval shelling of Japanese homeland cities opened a new phase—"the preinvasion stage"—of the war upon the Nipponese empire, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said today.

"At this—the preinvasion stage—we rely upon two principal strategies to further our aim: first, an ever-tightening blockade of Japan's islands; second, destruction by shelling and bombing of every industry and resource which contributes to Japan's ability to make war," the Fleet Admiral reported in an address broadcast from his advanced headquarters.

Dominate Approaches

"The 16-inch guns of our battleships, opening fire on industrial targets on Honshu and Hokkaido, also opened an era in which we dominate the Pacific Ocean approaches to Japan, and when necessary the air above Japan," Nimitz stated.

"Conversely, the action highlights the desperate defensive position in which the Japanese now find themselves. We have paralyzed the will and the ability of the Japanese navy to come out and fight.

"From this stage we must take a series of certain and progressive steps until the will and the ability of the Japanese people to resist is broken. It is the aim of our forces fighting in the Pacific to achieve this final stage quickly and with a minimum of American lives and material resources."

Blockade Results Show

Of the preinvasion strategies, Nimitz said the first, blockade, is already showing results. Conquest of the Philippines and Okinawa and control of the adjacent sea areas has severed Japan from her resources to the south.

"Patrol planes and surface craft operating from Okinawa have all but cut the sea line between central China and the Japanese mainland. Vital raw materials formerly brought to Japan across the east China Sea are now being shipped by railroad a long distance north through Manchuria and then to Korea, where cargoes are loaded into ships to cross the Sea of Japan. But even this is now a perilous passage.

3024-28429

"From the Aleutians, the north Pacific force covers the Kuriles and sweeps into the Sea of Opkotsk.

Enemy Being Hammered In

"The enemy is gradually being hemmed in on all sides and he will encounter great difficulty in obtaining oil, coal, iron and ore and other matetrials formerly obtained in large volumes from outside sources of supply.

"Meantime, while we seek to deprive Japanese factories and munitions works of necessary raw materials we intend to carry out wholesale destruction of the factories.

B-29's of the Army's new Strategic Air Force, naval surface craft and carrier aircraft bombers of the Ttactical Air Force and the Air Wing work hand in hand doing this job.

"What we have achieved so far in the Pacific has been the result of applying the carefully co-ordinated force of our arms.

Due To United Effort

"That we are now able to hammer hard at the enemy's inner defenses i sdue to the united effort of the Army and Navy ably assisted by the British Pacific Fleet and our other capable Allies.

"There is an old proverb that the lifeblood of Japan is the water of the sea. The navy's surface ships, submarines and aircraft are working in concert to control that lifeblood. We intend to deny the enemy use of the waters surrounding him, even down to the detail of hampering his efforts to get fish out of it.

"That project had an auspicious beginning when the battleships Iowa, Misouri, Wisconsin, Massachusetts, Indiana and South Dakota and their escorts hurled hot steel into Japanese cities. As I speak these words our carrier aircraft are again striking at Tokyo, capital of the Japanese Empire."

Weather Hinted No Invasion Bar

Washington, July 16 (AP)—Vice Admiral Daniel Barbey hinted tonight that American forces may not wait until the end of the typhoon season to invade China or Japan.

Discussing invasion prospects in a radio interview, the 7th Amphibious Force commander said that while the weather is important "it will take more than a big wind to stop us."

Barbey said that landings in Japan and China are equal possibilities and that an invasion force could be readied within 30 to 90 days, depending upon the size of the force.

Could Be Ended In Year

Reiterating his prediction that Japan can be forced to surrender within a year if there is no slackening of the war effort at home, Barbey declared that Japan is "now at the crossroads."

"Her leaders must make a decision," he said. "She can follow the German example and see her cities destroyed or she can be realistic and save something for the future. If the Japs keep on fighting, then what happened to German cities and factories will seem like peaceful prosperity and perfect order by comparison."

Barbey expressed belief that a landing could be achieved without heavy casualties, because American forces will be able to pick the spot for invasion and mass overwhelming gun and air power on it.

JAPS WARNED ON FALSE HOPE

Told Counting On Allied Split Means Confusion

San Francisco, July 16 (AP)—A Tokyo broadcast declared today that Japan would fall into "irretrievable political confusion compelling surrender" if it pinned hopes of victory on a split among the Allies.

Amid persistent criticism and expressed fears of imminent invasion, Premier Kantaro Suzuki was reported to have called an emergency session of his Cabinet to discuss the war.

Orders More Production

In broadcasts heard by the Federal Communications Commission, the Tokyo radio said Suzuki had issued orders for increased production of war weapons and told Japan's regional governors that more food must be raised "to gain victory."

The reference to "political confusion" compelling surrender was made in a Domei agency dispatch quoting the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri Hochi. It demanded that war leaders take a realistic view of the world situation.

The newspaper said that Japan's leaders should learn rom the "tragic lesson" of Germany, which lost "its very national existence" because it went to war with Russia trying thereby to come to an understanding with Great Britain and the United States.

Other Domei dispatches beamed to the United States challenged President Truman's thesis that unconditional surrender would not mean the extinction or enslavement of the Japanese people.

Halsey Article Cited

One cited a magazine article by Admiral William F. Halsey advocating elimination of Japan's military clique and the Shinto belief in the divine origin of the Emperor.

That, said the Nippon Times, was the tipoff because "the effacement of Shintoism means the effacement of the Japanese race and that is what Americans like Admiral Halsey are threatening."

"It must be assumed," the Times concluded, "that the real aim of the Americans is to efface the Japanese race from the face of the earth and propagandistic statements to the contrary must be regarded as part of a sinister plot to dupe the Japanese."

Play Down Bombardment

Japanese broadcasts in the main played down the effects of the United States 3d Fleet's bombardment of northern Honshu and southern Hokkaido Saturday and Sunday.

A Domei correspondent at Kamaishi reported a heavy battering in residential districts, but said nothing about the industrial sections, including a big steel plant that went up in flames.

On the contrary, the Governor of Hokkaido was quoted by Tokyo as expressing the hope that "large numbers of people will come over to Hokkaido and help in the development of new lands."

"There is nothing to worry about," he added.

TOKYO NEWSPAPER RAISES SPECTER OF SURRENDER

Says It Will Be Compelled if Leaders Count on Allied Split.

San Francisco, July 16 (A. P.).—Unless her war leaders take a realistic view of the world situation and abandon hopes of victory through a split among the United Nations, Japan will be compelled to surrender, Domei, the Japanese official news agency, declared in a broadcast dispatch picked up here today by the FCC.

Quoting the Tokyo newspaper Yomiuri Hochi, Domei called such a hope superstitious, compared it to Germany's fatal blunder of plunging into a two-front war, and added: "Such political superstition when taken advantage of by the enemy is bound to produce irretrievable political confusion compelling surrender."

In another dispatch, Domei again questioned President Truman's assurance that unconditional surrender would not mean the extinction and enslavement of the Japanese people. It cited a magazine article by Admiral Halsey advocating the elimination of Japan's military clique and the doctrine of Shintoism, and it described this article as part of a campaign to instigate "passions of beastly hatred against the Japanese race."

The Nippon Times was quoted as saying that "the effacement of Shintoism means the effacement of the Japanese race and that is what Americans like Admiral Halsey are threatening."

Meanwhile today the Tokyo radio aired the views of a retired lieutenant-general who bluntly called upon the Japanese Army to "discontinued" itself from political activities. The general was identified as H. Ishiwara, said to have achieved distinction at the time of the Manchurian incident in 1931.

"The Army should devote itself solely to military operations," Ishiwara said, "while the Government and people must give the Army their fullest support by concentrating their maximum strength in political and economic fields. The Army intrinsically is an organization designed solely for military operations."

Sound Invasion Warning.

London, July 16 (A. P.).—The Tokyo radio said today that Premier Suzuki had called an emergency meeting of the Jap Cabinet and all regional governors at his home to discuss the war situation and prepare the Japanese people for invasion.

To regional governors the Premier gave this order, the broadcast said:

"All efforts must be concentrated on maintaning regional stability. Enemy attacks are becoming ever more violent, but let us have absolute faith in the preparation of our command against enemy landings on our homeland. The governors must make full use of the fighting spirit of the Japanese people."

The Premier also issued an order to production chiefs for "an immediate increase in the production of special weapons," the broadcast added.

U. S. CAN HURL 3,000 PLANES AT JAPAN IN DAY

Guam, July 16 (AP)—American land-based air power in the Pacific can hurl 3,000 planes at Japan in a single day by co-ordinating tactical and strategic air forces which now are being realigned for the great pre-invasion assaults on the homeland, Lieut. Gen. Barney M. Giles said today.

Reporting that the first contingent of Eighth Air Force B-29s under Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle "will arrive by the middle of next month," General Giles, the new strategic air forces deputy commander, added the pointed comment that in Japan itself "there is nothing left as an individual target" that is worth even a 1,000-plane raid.

Fury To Be Doubled

Under the new alignment, Giles explained, "fury of the B-29 program is about to be doubled." Superforts will concentrate their "full destructive weight where it will put Japan out of the warmaking business as fast as possible."

The 21st Bomber Command on Guam and old B-29 groups in China and India are inactivated; all are consolidated under the new USASTAF—official designation of U. S. Army Strategic Air Forces.

Doolittle's planes, after mid-August, "will be increased rapidly until his full force is in action," Giles explained.

After Superfortresses begin operations from Okinawa bases, "there will be a number of valuable targets within range on the Asiatic mainland", he said. Presumably Northern Japan, thus far untouched except by the Navy, also will come under B-29 attack.

Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, with Giles as his deputy, heads the consolidated strategic forces.

Under USASTAF will be two air forces "composed of very long-range bombers and long-range fighters to protect them," Giles said.

One is the 20th Air Force, which will continue to operate from Marianas bases, with support of P-51 Mustang fighters from Iwo Jima. (Now operating independently as the Seventh Fighter Command, the Iwo Mustangs formerly were part of the Seventh Air Force.) Maj. Gen. Curtis E. (Old Iron Pants) LeMay, of the old 21st Bomber Command, heads the new 20th Air Force.

The other strategic air force will be the Eighth under Doolittle—including B-29s and P-47s based in the Okinawa area. Transferred to its staff will be headquarters personnel from the old 20th Bomber Command which started American operations against Japan, Giles said.

The strategic air forces will be responsible directly to the joint chiefs of staff, particularly Gen. Henry H. (Hap) Arnold, Commander of U. S. Army Air Forces, and will collaborate with war-theater commanders. It will "provide machinery for pressing home the strategic bombing of Japan in the most efficient and devastating manner possible," Giles continued.

"Heavy bombardment weapons can and will be used for tactical purposes" later, he added, referring evidently to pre-invasion tactical strikes.

Already, he emphasized, B-29 raids are "practically an invasion" in themselves, and the enemy's country "is being destroyed."

New Okinawa Airfields

Associated Press Correspondent Richard Cushing reported today from Okinawa that new airfields there already were taking shape "and from the frequency of arrival of new and eager air units the stepped-up offensive from this threshold island impends."

Under Okinawa's new air organization, Gen. George C. Kenney's Far East Air Forces are operating Army tactical striking units; Second Marine Aircraft Wing planes are defending the island and fleet air wing planes under Navy command are blockading the Yellow and East China Seas.

Energetic, Brig. Gen. Thomas D. White, arriving to take command of the Seventh Air Force under General Kenney, heads a force composed chiefly of Central and South Pacific veterans—with some new units thus far unannounced, Cushing reported.

"We intend to flatten the enemy's homeland with all the weight we can muster," he announced. "Given time, the air war ought to be the decisive element in bringing Japan to our terms."

SUBS TURN DECK GUNS ON JAPAN, SAY NIPS

GUAM, Tuesday, July 17—(AP) The Tokyo radio today asserted American submarines had moved in close to the coast and shelled northern Honshu with their deck guns.

The bombardment struck Tshiri and Yowaya on the Shimokita peninsula at the northern end of Honshu, the enemy radio said, adding that the shelling was not destructive but rather a method of "intimidation."

The broadcast termed the use of submarines part of a U. S. fleet plant "to reconnoiter in force," and also described it as "a challenge for a final decisive battle with all the fighting power" of the American fleet. There was no Japanese answer, however, to the challenge.

MARINES TAKE IHIYA, 310 MILES FROM JAPAN

GUAM, July 16 — (AP) American forces have moved up to within 310 miles of Japan with the unopposed conquest of eight-mile long Ihiya island, 20 miles northwest of Okinawa.

Occupation of this island June 3 and of Aguni—35 miles west of Okinawa—six days later was announced today by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz.

Associated Press Correspondent Robert Geiger, who went ashore on Ihiya with the Marines, said the island was given the usual working over with rockets and shell fire but not a single Japanese soldier was found.

But 156 Japanese soldiers who watched the bombardment of Ihiya from a tiny nearby island sent over a party of six in a longboat under a flag of truce and surrendered to the Marines.

OUR FIGHTERS DOWN 24 FLIERS IN JAPAN

GUAM, Tuesday, July 17 (AP)—Mustang fighters from Iwo shot down twenty-four Japanese planes and possibly destroyed another sixteen in a dog fight over the Nagoya-Osaka area Monday. It was the first extensive opposition they had encountered in weeks of harassing raids over the empire.

A large force of P-51's ran into the Japanese planes en route to the homeland targets and the fight spread from 100 feet to three miles altitude.

Although the enemy interceptors dived from above in their first attacks, the Mustangs outflew the Japanese in seventy-five encounters. Two Mustangs were lost, neither due to direct enemy action.

After the dog fights the Mustangs strafed and damaged five fishing boats in the area.

KUSHIRA AIRFIELD BLASTED BY CORSAIRS

GUAM, Tuesday, July 17—(AP) Marine Corsairs hit Kushira airfield on Kyushu island on Saturday, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today in a communique which said no further information was yet available on the fleet and air bombardments of Hokkaido and Honshu over the week-end.

The Marine planes destroyed barracks, strafed two trawlers and on Kamiga island nearby strafed parked planes and hit a powerhouse.

Many Privateer planes set fires among ships in the Whamgpoo river at Shanghai Saturday night and struck an oil plant there.

AUSSIES MASSING FOR BIG PUSH ON BORNEO OIL FIELD

Japs Block Last Five Miles to Rich Wells at Sambodja.

RESISTANCE LIGHT

Troops Pushing Through Salt Marshes Protecting Oil Fields.

MANILA, Tuesday, July 17—(AP) The main Australian force in eastern Borneo appeared today to be massing for a strong blow that will drive the Japanese from positions blocking the last five miles into Sambodja and the first-rate military prize of the adjacent oil field.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique mentioned only that strong combat patrols were thrusting into enemy lines, striking opposition at some points.

Most of this opposition came from points inland from the coastal highway leading up to Sambodja, particularly along a road that winds up to a second rich oil field around Samarinda, 36 miles north of Sambodja.

In the drive on Sambodja, whose wells used to supply the now-ruined refineries of Balikpapan, Australians only yesterday had reported resistance was evaporating and capture of the oil center was expected at any time.

Penetrate Salt Marshes

A spokesman said there was no new information on these forces, which already had penetrated into the salt marshes which form a natural obstacle to the oil fields.

However troops thrusting northward into the hill country back of the coast northeastward from Balikpapan were running into stiff Japanese resistance.

One patrol hit a strong Japanese road block thrown up on the highway that links Balikpapan and Samarinda.

The block took advantage of strategic hills north of Mount Batochampar, six miles northeast of Balikpapan. The mountain itself was taken by storm after a heavy artillery barrage, it was announced yesterday.

Strafe Jap Positions

Search planes joined fighters in strafing Japanese positions along the northeast coast of Borneo.

Light Allied naval forces moved in to blast coastal positions east of Sambodja.

It was thought that the retreating Japanese have already sabotaged the oil wells and the coastal pipe line leading to Balikpapan.

Heavy artillery was employed by the Aussies and Dutch colonials to drive the Japanese from a 200-foot high position a half dozen miles northeast of war-wrecked Balikpapan. The Nipponese continued to resist north of the captured ridge.

Ground troops were closely supported by Allied airmen.

AUSSIES SCORE FIVE-MILE GAIN IN EAST BORNEO

Japs Fall Back as Troops Near Rich Oil Center

Manila, July 16—(AP)—Japanese resistance was melting into the jungle today as Australian troops pushed within five miles of the big Borneo oil field center of Sambodja in the swamps near the east coast.

The Aussies made five miles in two days, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported, after two weeks of hard-slogging in which gains usually were registered in yards against desperate enemy opposition.

A pipeline runs from Sambodja to the refineries at Balikpapan but it was suspected that both it and the wells would be found sabotaged by the retiring Japanese. The Balikpapan refineries were wrecked in the fighting for that port, now in use by the Allies.

Dutch Troops Gain

Six miles northeast of Balikpapan, Dutch colonial and Australian troops used heavy artillery that drove a small enemy holdout force from the top of 200-high "smashed stone ridge," which covered a jungle trail leading northward to the oil district of Samarinda, 60 miles distant. The Japanese still were resisting beyond the ridge, however.

The Australian coastal drive on Sambodja also was aimed utilimately towards Samarinda, which is 36 miles northwest of Sambodja.

Allied planes continued to support all ground operations and light naval forces shot up enemy positions on the coast east of Sambodja.

Jap Philippine Losses Increased To 428,732

Manila, Tuesday, July 17 (AP)—Over-all Japanese casualties in the Philippines campaign have risen to 428,732, as compared to total American Army losses in killed, wounded and missing of 54,502.

Nippon casualties were increased by 4,879 counted dead and 608 captured last week as American troops pushed mopping-up operations, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today.

American losses during the week were 60 dead and missing and 195 wounded.

Meanwhile, Philippine Army officers reported that Japanese Navy labor troops on the east coast of Luzon were left to starve, while regular army men in the same area were well fed. The officers found more than 400 of the navy laborers in caves, houses and beach areas north of Infanta town. Many had died of starvation and disease. Those still alive were so weak they could hardly move.

The Filipino officers called it striking evidence of lack of sympathy between the Nippon Army and Navy.

4,879 More Japanese Killed In Philippines

Manila, July 16—(AP)—American mopping-up operations in the Philippines cost the Japanese 4,879 dead and 608 captured in the past week, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

This brought the enemy casualties in the entire Philippines campaign to 428,732, including 10,768 prisoners. Most of the Japanese losses in the week were on Luzon where 4,222 of the dead were counted.

American casualties for the week were 62 dead, one missing and 195 wounded, bringing the total for the whole campaign to 54,502.

5th Air Force Planes Hammer Japs On Luzon

Manila, Tuesday, July 17 (AP)—Fifth Air Force dive bombers killed more than 300 Japanese and wrecked 400 vehicles near Kiangan in northern Luzon while a single Liberator search plane destroyed or damaged 37 enemy two-master cargo-carrying junks near Hong Kong, it was announced here today. Both actions occurred Saturday.

The 5th Fighter Command, which reported the Luzon action, said it was in the Kaingan area, where the Mustangs bombed pillboxes and other strong points held by enemy remnants.

The scene of the lone Liberator's strike was 35 miles southeast of Hong Kong.

Formosa Attacks Continue

American blockade planes meanwhile continued their incessant assaults on Formosa and the Asiatic coast.

Navy Liberators ranging around Saigon, Indo-China, on Saturday sank a 4,000-ton enemy freighter, a loaded 300-ton cargo ship and a motor launch and forced a river steamer aground.

Indo-China port facilities were hit at Quinhon.

Mustangs and A-26 attack bombers destroyed a station and other railway facilities on Formosa's west coast and hit the Taiharo sugar refinery, which makes alcohol for Japanese military fuel.

One Japanese plane was encountered over Formosa and another over Canton, China, and both withdrew.

Twenty liberators of the 13th Air Force, augmented by Australian bombers and fighters, attacked the islands of Celebes and Halmahera in the East Indies.

Yanks Win 2 Islands Off Okinawa As Jap Garrison Gives Up On Third

Ihiya Island, Okinawas, June 5—(Delayed)—(AP)—Rugged, tensed Marines of the Eighth Regimental Combat team splashed ashore on this little island 310 miles south of Kyushu June 3 behind a stiff rocket and shellfire barrage and beneath low-flying air cover—and found no one but docile natives.

But the only Japanese in the whole area—garrisoning a tiny island nearby—had watched the barrage and promptly rowed over in a longboat to surrender their entire 156-man garrison.

(Adm. Chester W. Nimitz today—July 16—announced the unopposed occupation of Ihiya and Aguni, June 3 and 9, respectively but did not mention the surrender of the third. Ihiya, eight miles long, is about 20 miles northwest of Okinawa's northern tip; Aguni is 35 miles west of Central Okinawa.)

"Well, it was a good training maneuver," remarked Maj. Gen. Leroy P. Hunt, of Berkeley, Calif., who commanded the Marine invasion.

The absent Ihiya garrison (like Aguni's) evidently had been called to Okinawa more than two months earlier to aid in the futile defense of that large island.

A few Japanese planes approached Ihiya on the first day but failed to reach the American invasion fleet. A tropical storm—complete with typhoon warnings—made the ships withdraw temporarily Monday but did not damage.

Accidents cost the lives of two Marines and injured 12. A score of natives were wounded by the pre-invasion barrage and seven died. Approximately 3,000 others waved white flags and surrendered immediately. No one committed suicide.

By noon yesterday (June 4) Col. Clarence R. Wallace, of Manitou, Colo., regimental commander, pronounced the island secure. It took that long to search the place.

Shortly afterward the Japanese longboat was sighted approaching from the adjoining island. It was adorned with a white flag, and the six Japanese it contained said they wanted to surrender along with 150 comrades they had left behind them.

The Ihiya natives, a pitiful band of ragged old men, women and children, were dumbfounded as they watched the helmeted, broad-shouldered Marines roll up in huge amphibious tractors.

Speaking only Okinawan dialect, they had trouble making American interpreters understand that this was the first time any sort of mechanical vehicle had moved along their roads.

Their roads frankly weren't built for vehicles, General Hunt agreed. "Engineering is our greatest problem here. There appears to be very little coral for surfacing roads."

Mothers coming down from the hills carried their babies on their backs in American-Indian style. Old men carried injured women on rude litters. There was only a sprinkling of men and women of military age among the civilians.

Almost every hut contained silkworms, and villages had little warehouses for storing raw silk. There were also small fishpacking and tile-making plants.

Maj. William C. Chamberlin, Chicago, said one small radio station on the island apparently was civilian-operated.

A tiny leper colony also was discovered on an isolated hilltop.

The Tokyo radio had announced the American invasion promptly, and said two battleships were sunk.

They weren't. There wasn't any opposition.

FIND JAP NAVY MEN STARVED ON LUZON

Infanta, Luzon, July 16 (A. P.).—Ill-clad Japanese Navy laborer troops starved on Luzon's isolated east coast while nearby Japanese Army contingents were well-fed and well-dressed, Philippine Army officers disclosed today. Lieut.-Col. Jaime Manzano, youthful regimental commander, said the bodies of more than 400 Navy laborers were found in caves, houses and on the beach north of Infanta, victims of starvation and disease.

"Those still alive were so weak they were barely able to move," he said. "They just lie there rolling their eyes and looking at you helplessly. One cried like a baby when we put food before him. He said he had never been treated so well, even by Japanese. He kept bowing gratefully to every one. His bones protrude pitifully. Many prisoners say others would surrender if they knew the treatment awaiting them instead of the torture they've been told to expect."

By contrast, Manzano reported, Army troops ten to twenty miles distant up the Agos River were well supplied. "It's more evidence of the lack of sympathy between the Japanese Army and Navy," he added. "The Japanese moved their supplies up river before we arrived on April 27 and it's impossible to starve them out."

Aliens in Philippines Now Free to Trade

Manila, July 16 (A. P.).—The United States Treasury Department today licensed thousands of previously blocked nationals such as Chinese, Spanish and Swiss, residing in the Philippines, to conduct normal business and to draw upon their bank accounts. Excluded are enterprises owned or controlled by Japanese, Germans, or other nationals living abroad whose funds and trading privileges are blocked by law.

Richard Krebs Wins Citation In Pacific

Manila, July 16—(AP)—Pfc. Richard J. Krebs—the author, Jan Valtin—has been awarded the Bronze Star for meritorious achievement against the Japanese at Mindoro and Mindanao, 24th Division Headquarters announced today.

As Valtin, he wrote "Out of the Night," based on fighting with the German underground. He's busy now writing "Japs Die Hard."

In the assault on Mindanao, he slogged up the invasion beach with rifle in one hand and typewriter in the other; and his friends said he typed away busily, later that day, beneath a rude shelter in the torrential downpour.

JAPS WERE JUST OUT FOR A RIDE

Guam, July 16 (A. P.).—Sgt. Blair E. Artz, Hegins, Pa., reports that four Jap fighter pilots gave the Superforts a regular fighter escort on the bombing of an oil refinery at Kudumatsu yesterday.

"The four Japanese pilots picked us up about thirty miles from land and seemed to take us right to the target and then part of the way out again," Artz related on his return. "At first, they blinked their lights at us from a distance. Then they slid in until they were practically flying close formation with us. They didn't shoot."

Artz made no attempt to explain the enemy action.

Tokyo Says Shiriya Shelled By Submarine

San Francisco, July 16—(AP)—Tokyo Radio said today an "enemy" submarine shelled Shiriya, at the northern tip of Honshu Island yesterday afternoon. The broadcast, monitored in San Francisco by the Federal Communications Commission said the operation proved "a vain offshore shelling" and "another blind bombardment with no effect at all."

McNUTT TO VISIT ISLANDS

San Francisco, July 16—(AP)—Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt leaves today for conferences in Hawaii on an economic survey trip to the Philippines where once he was United States High Commissioner.

He said last night President Truman requested the health and economic survey of the Philippines. He will make his report early in August.

BRITISH BLAME INDIANS FOR SIMLA FAILURE

London, July 16—(AP)—The British Press voiced sharp criticism today of Indian leaders, blaming them for breakdown of the Simla Conference called by Viceroy Lord Wavell to discuss his proposals for revision of the Indian Government.

"Once again the terrible jealousies and mistrust which divide Indian political parties have ruined a promising scheme," said the Daily Mail. "The world has witnessed a deplorable exhibition of political irresponsibility."

"The responsibility for failure of the Simla Conference was not Lord Wavell's," declared the News Chronicle. "It was Mr. Jinnah's (Mahomed Ali Jinnah, president of the Moslem League) and Mr. Jinnah's alone."

The Daily Telegraph said the conference had been wrecked by "the ancient hostility between Moslem and Hindu, and added that "so long as there exists among Indian leaders the same spirit of narrow sectarianism which frustrated Lord Wavell's attempt at a settlement, just so long will realization of dominion status for India be held up."

The Times of London said the outcome of the Simla Conference was a "profound disappointment," but asserted that "the determination of the British people to assist the Indian people to complete self-governmnt remains unchanged by this latest of a long series of setbacks."

The Times added that "opinion in Britain and India is united in demanding solution of the political deadlock by one means or another and looks to the Viceroy to try again when he thinks the time is ripe."

BRITISH VICHY DATA GIVEN TO FRANCE

Details Of Talks Handed Over For Petain Trial

JUL 17 1945

London, July 16 (AP)—The British Foreign Office said tonight it was turning over to the de Gaulle Government full details of secret negotiations with a self-described emissary of Vichy in 1940, but at the same time denied any agreement ever had been reached with Marshal Pétain that would save him from the French charge of treason.

Pétain told a high court commission, questioning him at Montrouge Fortress June 8 that Churchill or the British Government could say the word that would place his whole course as head of the Vichy state in its proper perspective.

Emissary Rougier

The British white paper acknowledged that secret negotiations were being conducted in Madrid and through Geneva in the autumn of 1940 with a Vichy emissary identified as Louis Rougier, the French philosopher.

The Foreign Office, however, asserted that Rougier's book, which recently revealed these negotiations, contained "not only a wholly misleading interpretation of the policy of His Majesty's Government . . . but certain serious misstatements of the fact 'in an attempt' to prove the exitsence of a secret agreement."

Weygand The Key

The British disclosed that they had suggested to Rougier that he give Gen. Maxime Weygand, then high commissioner of French North Africa, "first-hand evidence of the state of affairs both in this country and at Vichy" in an attempt to induce him to bring North Africa into the war on the Allied side "when the time was ripe."

The Foreign Office charged that Rougier in his book had deleted the name of General Weygand from the document dealing with these proposed negotiations in an obvious attempt "to support the contention that the note was intended not as a guide for conversations with General Weygand, but as a communication to Marshal Pétain."

BRITISH PRELATE URGES ACTION TO DECREASE DIVORCE

Canterbury, Eng., July 16—(AP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury urged today a nationwide network of public bureaus to help adjust marital troubles and check an increase in the divorce rate which he described as "a grave national problem."

In an address prepared for delivery at the Canterbury Diocesan Conference, the Archbishop urged mayors of every town in England to "take immediate steps" to establish such bureaus and declared that "public money should be available" to finance them.

He also demanded "ruthless" action by the Government to provide adequate housing to help restore the stability of home life, which he said was essential to national well being.

The Archbishop added, however, that "whatever remedial measures are devised they cannot avail much unless at the same time the community is deliberately determined to raise the general standard of honor, loyalty and obligation in marriage and sex relations."

"Very many marriages are broken up or imperiled for reasons directly or indirectly connected with the war," the Archbishop said.

He cited "long separations under unnatural conditions" and hasty wartime marriages.

The Archbishop cautioned, however, that the need for help was "not confined to service men and women" because "many civilians also have been obliged to live away from their homes" and some were unable to find proper homes."

"The first requirement is that in each locality experienced and sympathetic workers should combine to form a co-ordination policy," he said, "suggesting centers where married persons could discuss their troubles and obtain expert advice confidentially.

He proposed that the centers be equipped to offer "spiritu[illegible] medical, phychological and [illegible] help" by specialists who are [illegible]e and understanding people."

BRITISH WARY OF MONEY PLAN

Financial Press Sees Flaws in Bretton Woods Pact.

London, July 16 (A. P.).—A possibility that Britain would raise further objections to the Bretton Woods plan was suggested by articles in two of London's leading financial dailies today. With the plan coming before the United States Senate, financial circles here awaited congressional arguments as a prelude to eventual debate in Parliament.

The Financial Times said opinion in Britain as a whole had "probably hardened toward acceptance of the basic principles of the final act," but that utterances by Sir John Anderson, Chancellor of the Exchequer, suggested, "We do not intend just to put our signature on the dotted line, even if the American Senate passes on the legislation before it."

"We in this country will consider it entirely upon its merits," said the Financial Times. "It must not be assumed that we are out to raise bargaining points, but our position is a peculiar one. We have already suffered severely in the cause of others and still have to face up to the inexorable pressure of economic circumstances.

"The desire of most people in Great Britain is to follow an expansionist policy in world trade, but we must have room to turn around."

Would Give Blank Check.

The Financial News, taking note of the possibility of American dollar loans, said Britain would have to "give a blank sterling check to other nations."

"The grand total of these checks would be fixed, it is true, by the amount of the British contribution to the fund," the News said. "But there is nothing in the final act that would prevent any one of the member countries from using its quota entirely in the form of sterling.

"This may not appear to be a bad thing, for it would mean that the country concerned would increase its purchases from Great Britain. But, during the first post-war years at any rate, it is essential to export largely to countries which pay in hard exchange.

"Under the Bretton Woods plan there is a risk that an unduly large amount of our limited exportable surplus of goods would be bought up with the aid of sterling placed at the disposal of the fund."

'DRACULA' PROWLS LONDON STREETS

Residents Told To Bolt Windows Against Demon

London, July 16 (AP)—Police warned residents of two northeast London districts tonight to bolt doors and lock windows against a "Dracula man"—a mysterious bedroom prowler who police said may be a potential killer.

Scotland Yard took up the hunt for him today after receiving a number of complaints that a man with staring eyes and a throaty voice had been stealing into bedrooms and terrorizing women and young girls. Several said they awakened to find him gripping them by the throat.

In A Kind Of Stupor

So far he has chosen only ground-floor bedrooms and there have been no reports of serious injuries, but in one instance he was frightened off while tieing a rope around the neck of a 14-year-old girl.

"He seemed to be in sort of a stupor and stared at me with queer, piercing eyes for about a minute," said one of his latest victims, Jean Folkhard, a schoolgirl, who said she awakened to find him bending over her bed.

On All Fours

"Then his hands caught my shoulder and I scremed for mother."

In another incident the wife of an RAF flyer said she awakened and saw a man on hands and knees in her bedroom.

"He saw me and scrambled through a half-opened window," she said.

The bedroom raider was described as slightly built and about 50 years old. He wears a heavy overcoat with upturned collar and carries a powerful flashlight.

Police cars are maintaining all-night patrols in sections where the attacks have occurred.

Scotland Yard Hunts For 'Dracula Man'

London, July 16—(AP)—Scotland Yard hunted today for a "Dracula man" who reportedly has terrorized Northwest London by sneaking into bedrooms by night and gripping women and girls by the throat.

A dozen homes have been entered thus far, the Daily Mail said, but no one has been seriously injured.

Each of several women reported she awoke to find the intruder's fingers about her throat. One said a string has been drawn tightly around her neck, and another said the man paused long enough to ask for a kiss.

The intruder is no common robber. He scorns valuables within easy reach. Nobody has been able to give a good description of him because he blinds his victims with a flashlight.

Russians Start Breakup Of Big German Estates

Industry in Occupied Zone Is To Be Decentralized

LONDON, July 16 (AP).—The Moscow radio said today that a policy of breaking up and decentralizing German industry and of parceling big estates among small farmers has been instituted in the Russian-occupied zone in Germany.

The broadcast, quoting Councillor Mattern of Dresden, said that big German industries would be replaced by medium and small factories and home industry, and that "by autumn of this year all big estates in Saxony will be broken up and given to small farmers."

"Big estates of the supporters of Nazi militarism will be confiscated," the broadcast said.

German Navy Is Made To Mind Its Ps and Qs

LONDON, July 16 (AP).—What's left of the German Navy isn't being allowed to forget the etiquette of the sea.

Rear Admiral H. T. Baillie-Grohman, British flag officer at Kiel, made that clear to the crew of the 6,000-ton German cruiser Leipzig when it failed to pay what the admiral considered "proper respect" to his barge as it steamed past.

Baillie-Grohman immediately sent orders aboard the German warship, then retraced his course and slowly steamed past her again. This time the entire German crew lined the rail and gave a smart salute in traditional form.

Zionist Declares Jews Want to Leave Europe

Dr. Altman Asserts His People Have No Future There

LONDON, July 16 (AP).—Dr. Louis Altman, leader of the New Zionist Organization, said today it is "impossible for Jews to remain in Europe without causing friction."

He told a press conference that 80 or 90 per cent of the 1,250,000 Jews left in Europe "not only want to leave but are preparing to leave—legally or illegally. The Jews have no future in Europe," he asserted, "and I do not believe those that remain can exist there."

Dr. Altman said that the Zionist organization has a working force of between 25 and 30 per cent of the 500,000 Jews in Palestine.

He said he is in London to urge establishment of a Jewish national state in Palestine, "now when the world is being reshaped."

U. F. A. Making Movies Again

60,000 British Women Seek Passage To U.S.

London, July 16 (AP) — British wives and sweethearts of American service men are inquiring at the rate of hundreds a day at the United States Embassy about the quickest way to get to the United States.

The diplomats estimated there are about 60,000 such women.

The adjutant general's office announced today that the backlog of wives approved for transport to the United States and waiting for boat space had increased from 4,000 to 9,000 in the last few weeks.

At the embassy some of London's longest queues wait for information. Some of the women are accompanied by husbands or parents, some carry babies.

The Army estimates it will be at least nine more months before wives and fiancées can be shipped in large numbers.

LIGHTS ON IN LONDON

London, July 16—(AP)—Londoners celebrated until the early morning hours today as lights in the British capital went on full blast for the first time in nearly six years.

The strict war time blackout ended May 23, but the return of peacetime street lighting had been delayed to conserve fuel supplies and to repair damages to the lighting system resulting from German bombings.

Picadilly Circus—The Times Square of London—was the center of activity as huge electric signs in many colors turned nigth into day. The entire West End glowed under a multitude of new lights and in many sections there were red, yellow and green street lights —an experiment in new forms of street illumination.

Londoners paraded the brightly lighted streets in vast numbers, many of them dancing arm in arm and singing. It was the first time that many of the capital's thousands of children ever had seen the city fully lighted.

LONDON, July 16 (AP)—The establishment of non-commercial cafes, "something like American drug stores," was recommended today by Britain's Youth Advisory Council.

The council, appointed in 1943 by the Minister of Education, suggested that cafes of this type would enable young people to meet friends, talk, dance and obtain food and soft drinks in bright, cheerful surroundings.

WOULD RELEASE PLANE SURPLUS

U. S. Official Cites Benefits Expected From Policy.

Paris, July 16 (A. P.).—Responsible American officials here feel that a judicious handling of surplus air transports at this time might be extremely valuable in pending aviation agreement negotiations, and might bring long-time benefits to the United States aircraft manufacturing industry. Discussing the situation informally, an official called attention to a report from an American business source that some twenty C-53s, airline style twin-engine Douglas planes, which had been declared surplus, had been flown to the United States. The mouths of these people are watering for such planes, he said, and great use could be made of them through proper allocation direct from this theater.

His feeling is that American authorities should make the transports available as quickly as possible, giving foreign carriers consideration very close to the American. The reasoning is that in addition to the value of such treatment in seeking air rights—we are now negotiating with France, Belgium, Egypt, Lebanon, Portugal and the Netherlands—it would help develop a taste for American planes and thus create a continuing market for our industry.

The British may well attempt to sell their transports to foreign carriers before supplying their own needs, because British carriers must purchase from the home industry and that market therefore is assured. No European country has sufficient transports at present, and a huge potential market exists. The United States has transport types and world demonstration of their efficiency, but the British are pressing to get into the commercial race.

As an example of the interest in planes, the official told a story of a dismantled C-47 which the Army donated to the air transport ferrying branch of the R. A. F. for ground school purposes. Students eventually determined that all they lacked for a flyable craft was a set of engine mountings. These they made themselves, and they now fly the plane.

Channel Pipeline Breaks; Gasoline Drought Ends

Lille, France, July 16 (AP)—A break developed near here over the week end in the Allies' pipeline across the English Channel, and gasoline-starved motorists had a field day scooping up fuel that drained out.

The black-market price on gasoline dropped from $3.50 to $1 a gallon.

The underwater line, built from England to France about the time of the Saint Lo breakthrough to service American and British air forces operating on the Continent, sprung a leak late Friday and gasoline flowed out onto the ground for more than 24 hours.

Frenchmen came from miles around, bearing buckets, dishpans and even sponges, and gathered up every drop possible.

When the black-market price dropped, Allied military officials investigated on the ground that Government property was being sold, and the sales ceased.

German Arms For Use Against Japan Are Out

Frankfurt on the Main, Germany, July 16 (AP)—Germany's industrial might will not be revived by the Allies to be turned against Japan.

An authority in the production control agency of United States forces in the European theater said today that as far as American policy is concerned, German war machinery will be smashed for all time, and that American factories will forge the tools to defeat Japan.

Some products are being produced in German factories for the American army and may be used in the Pacific; but no effort will be made to produce heavy armaments, the authority said.

The Leica plant at Wetzlar is producing cameras. Hydrogen peroxide, used in fuel for V-1 bombs, is being shipped to the United States.

WHAT TO DO WITH NAZIS?

Yanks Weed Them Out But Don't Have Disposal Plan

Frankfurt on the Main, July 16 (AP)—American military authorities are weeding Nazi leaders and other dangerous elements out of German civil life by the tens of thousands, but today had reached no solution on what to do with them.

Some 70,000 Nazi war criminals and SS troopers are being held in jails throughout the American zone of occupation until it is decided whether they will be placed on trial or released.

Those named on Allied war-criminal lists, of course, will be tried for their crimes, but they are only a small percentage of the number held as the American Army goes about the slow and tedious task of screening Nazi leaders from government and industry.

G-5 Handling Task

The de-Nazification of Germany is one of the major tasks being handled by the G-5 (intelligence) division of United States Forces in the European Theater. Considerably more progress has been made since V-E day than is generally recognized, but the Americans still have no definite policy on what is to be done with the mass of Hitler's minions.

Discussing the de-Nazification program at a press conference, Brig. Gen. Clarence L. Adcock, assistant chief of staff of the G-5 section, said the solution would have to be a matter of high policy.

"We have got to solve what to do with them," he said. "We cannot put everyone who was on the Nazi party lists in jail, until we determine whether they were practicing Nazis or merely dues-paying members of the party. For the present we are jailing known Nazi leaders and the more obstreperous members and even yet our lists are not complete."

Probe Ordered

During the discussion representatives of the psychological warfare department remarked that at a church service yesterday in the village of Hoechst the minister had asked for donations from the congregation for "Christian members" who had been removed from offices or their jobs and now had no means of livelihood. The General immediately ordered an investigation of the incident.

Among subjects discussed by General Adcock were:

Food—Germany's food situation will continue to be serious throughout the winter.

Political Activity—Adcock said restrictions would be relaxed with authorities encouraging anti-Nazi parties representing a coss-section of the German people.

Coal—The crux of Germany's utter industrial collapse is lack of fuel to turn the wheels of plants providing essentials. Until fuel is available, German economy cannot be revived. Every effort is being made to get the coal mines operating.

Tax Problem Tackled

Finance—The military government has tackled the problem of tax collections, hoping to get money into the banks to meet the requirements of various mayors and thus to avoid the growth of any system of barter or black markets.

Displaced Persons—By fall all displaced persons camps will be operated by the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration. Four million DP's already have been cleared from the American zone and returned to their homelands, but 3,600,000 still remain.

Frauleins Adopt Nonfraternization

With 21st Army Group in Germany, July 16 (AP)—German girls who were most willing to flirt seem to get a kick now out of a little nonfraternizing policy of their own.

They ignore American and British soldiers who sidle up to them for a talk, and stubbornly refuse to return a smile.

Girls who used to make themselves conspicuously tempting to passing soldiers now promenade with German men.

The German men—many of them newly demobilized soldiers wearing uniforms altered to resemble civilian clothes—have appeared in greater numbers than ever before for escort duty.

CONFESS SHOOTING CAPTIVE U. S. FLYER

Freising, Germany, July 16 (A. P.).—A United States Third Army Military Commission on War Crimes said yesterday that two German policemen had confessed that they killed a young American flyer after he parachuted from an exploding bomber over the village of Langenselbold on December 12 last. He was Tech. Sgt. Donald Ludwig Hein of the United States Eighth Air Force.

Witnesses said Hein was captured by a gardener and a German soldier shortly after landing and was turned over to Police Chief Albert Bury and Policeman Wilhelm Haefner at the Langenselbold police station.

Bury testified that higher authorities instructed him in October, 1944, that Allied flyers guilty of "terror attacks" should not be treated as prisoners of war, but must be shot. Haefner said that, upon Bury's orders, he and two other policemen took Hein a short distance from the village and shot him in the head."

BELGIANS CALL PARLIAMENT

Session To Be Held Today On Leopold's Decision

Brussels, July 16 (AP) — Prime Minister Achille van Acker announced today after a four-hour cabinet meeting that Parliament would be convened tomorrow to work out the next step in the impasse produced by King Leopold's decision that he would not abdicate nor return immediately to Belgium.

Van Acker said that "due to the gravity of the situation" another cabinet meeting would be held tonight.

Meanwhile, rumors circulated that the King, through Regent Prince Charles, had sent a message to the Belgian people declaring that he wished to await the results of a general election before definitely making up his mind.

C-47s Leave 3d Army Gasless

BAD WIESSEE, Germany, July 16 (AP).—The United States 3d Army ran out of gas today for the first time since last September—and there were no C-47 planes around to haul in a supply.

An abnormal drain caused by movement of divisions being redeployed to the United States and the Pacific was blamed for the shortage. Gasoline pumps have been dry for three days.

Brussels Reports Say Leopold Will Return to Throne

Brussels, July 16—(AP)—The Belgian Cabinet met in emergency session today following an announcement by Prime Minister Achille Van Acker that King Leopold had decided against abdicating but also had decided not to return to Belgium immediately.

Rumors were current that the King had addressed a message to the Belgian people saying he wanted to await a general election before making up his mind on a course of action, but there was no confirmation of this.

Van Acker announced Parliament had been called into session tomorrow and that the cabinet was meeting again tonight, "due to the gravity of the situation."

The Prime Minister told newspapermen yesterday that in view of this situation, the regent, Prince Charles, "has refused the resignation of the government," and consequently the present government will go into office again.

The announcement was made after Van Acker conferred with government leaders just returned from talks with the monarch at his villa near Salzburg, Austria.

Awarded Croix de Guerre.

Oslo, July 16 (A. P.).—Capt. Herbert C. Melin of 262 North Grove street, East Orange, N. J., received the Croix de Guerre with gold-silver star in Bastille Day ceremonies Saturday in which the French Embassy in Norway awarded twelve American officers and enlisted men high military honors for outstanding accomplishments in the liberation of France.

TRIAL OF FIVE ITALIANS ENDS

Youths May Get Death Sentences For Crimes

Milan, July 16 (AP)—Five Italian youths—all in their twenties—faced possible death sentences as their trial, the first of its kind in northern Italy, ended today before an Allied military tribunal.

The five were accused of the possession of arms, looting and robbery with firearms, and the slaying of two civilians.

The tribunal was composed of American, British and Canadian army officers.

The defense pleaded the youths were victims of the manner of life under the Fascists during the past 20 years and especially in the past two years, when they served as Partisans and learned to live like "wolves." The defense admitted the youths erred, but asked the court for mercy.

Crimes Secondary

Capt. Louis G. Greenfield, former New York city attorney, acting as prosecutor, said crimes were secondary to the violation of the Allied proclamation prohibiting the possession of arms after May 30 under penalty of death.

Greenfield attacked the defense contention that the slaying of the two civilians constituted a part of the Fascist purge and declared the defense had failed to show the slain persons were Fascists.

The defendants said they were ordered by their Partisan leader to carry out the raid and holdup which resuletd in the killing of the civilians. The leader now is in prison awaiting a later trial.

Dissatisfied With Loot

Greenfield contended that the defendants were dissatisfied with their share of the loot allotted them by their former Partisan superiors in anti-Fascist activities and for their own personal aggrandizement decided on a career of crime and refused to turn in their guns as ordered by the Allied proclamation.

Greenfield told the jammed courtroom that the crimes were premeditated and committed "in cold blood" and that all five were equally guilty.

Professor Rescued From Gestapo Is Anxious To Return To America

JUL 13 1945

By STANLEY M. SWINTON

Aversa, Italy—(AP)—Prof. Alexander P. Gwiazdowski, former University of Michigan faculty member who abandoned his books to become a Polish underground leader, has won his four-year gamble with death.

Rescued from the Gestapo by the Red Army, the 62-year-old Polish-American scholar has arrived at the Allied reception center for displaced persons in this sleepy South Italy village.

Professor Gwiazdowski had returned in 1936 to his birthplace in Suwalki, Poland, to write a technical book which was to be his life work.

He had looked forward to that journey during his years as an American educator, first on the University of Toledo faculty from 1914 to 1918; as a University of Michigan professor from 1929 to 1935, and, lastly, at the Case School of Applied Science in Cleveland, from 1935 to 1936.

Joined Underground

In July 1939 the book was finished. Two months later the Wehrmacht swept through Suwalki, and the professor "got busy with Partisan and underground activities." He used a radio to secure news from Allied sources, and began to circulate bulletins; he helped to train 50 Polish youths to become underground leaders.

Gestapo spies betrayed the patriots. In May 1941, a mass raid scooped up 160 Poles, including the professor and his son, Richard, who was exchanged after two and one-half years imprisonment and is now a University of Pennsylvania student.

"For a year I was imprisoned in Suwalki and then for another year in the human slaughter house in Koenigsberg," the grey-haired scholar recalls. "Finally we were tried for high treason. Nineteen men and four women were beheaded. Only because I was an American did I escape with a sentence of seven years hard labor in Wartenburg, East Prussia."

Won Better Treatment

At first the prison was a living death. Then one day, the prison commandant called the professor in for questioning. He commented that as an educated man Professor Gwiazdowski must have studied German culture. In perfect German, the professor replied with a long quotation from the poet Goethe. From that day on he received better treatment than other prisoners.

"There is no explaining Germans," Professor Gwiazdowski shrugged. "The commandant had killed 1,500 people himself but somehow that simple quotation touched him and he ordered them to be better with me."

When Soviet troops neared the prison and Red Air Force flyers bombed the local railroad station, evacuation was ordered. When the professor, past 60, was unable to keep up with other prisoners and fell to the ground, a German guard threatened him with a pistol. The professor told him to go ahead and shoot; instead he called a higher officer.

"The officer pulled out his gun. And then he recognized me," Professor Gwiazdowski said. "I had never seen him before but he knew me. He and another German carried me four kilometers. Then they told me I could either stay behind or try to follow them. I stayed."

Found Shelter

The professor found shelter in an abandoned farm house with two Russian slave laborers. Next morning Soviet troops arrived. Suspecting he was a spy, the Russian major ordered him shot.

"Sometimes an old man is so tired he does not care if he lives or dies," Professor Gwiazdowski recalled. "In Russian, I told him to go ahead and shoot me if he didn't mind killing an American."

The surprised major put down his gun and began to talk. Soon Professor Gwiazdowski was on his way to the rear. That was the beginning of a long and weary trip across East Prussia and the Ukraine to Odessa, thence to Malta, Marseilles and, finally, to Aversa.

Now he looks forward only to his return to the United States and reunion with his family in Wyandotte. His wife, Agnes, and a daughter, Barbara, were interned by the Germans and exchanged several months ago. They are with a married daughter, Mrs. Murray G. Halstead, a University of Michigan graduate who lives at 2524 Van Alstyne Blvd.) Wyandotte.

There will be no return to teaching. "I am too old and tired," the professor said. "I have two inventions and they will bring enough for us to live upon."

Of all his misery and torment, one thing irritates the professor more than any other.

"The Germans charged me three marks for board and room each day they kept me in prison. They even confiscated my house at Suwalki and sold it to pay the bill. It is not very nice to have to pay to be in prison. I think I would like to get my house back."

Pope Stresses Power Of Films Upon Society

Urges Hollywood Group to Make Them Influence for Good

VATICAN CITY, July 16 (AP).—The influence of motion pictures on society was stressed by Pope Pius XII in an address before the Motion Picture Executive Committee of Hollywood here Saturday. His remarks were made public today.

"One wonders at times," the Pope said, "if leaders of the motion picture industry fully appreciate the vast power they wield in affecting social life, whether in the family or larger groups."

He asked whether the screen's output was "something that will make for a better citizen—industrious, law-abiding and God-fearing—who finds his joy and recreation in wholesome pleasure and fun?"

Asserting that "bad conversation corrupts morals," the Pope added, "How much more effectively are they corrupted by bad conversation when accompanied by conduct vividly depicted which flouts the laws of God and civilized decency?"

Firing Breaks Out in Syria

4 Policemen and Civilian Injured in Gun Battle With French

BEYROUTH, Lebanon, July 16 (AP).—Four Syrian policemen and a civilian were wounded Saturday in firing between police and French troops at the northern Syria town of Quamichley, near the Turkish border, the British said today.

The British said the French fired on the town from a fort near by after Syrian gendarmes had discharged a few shots on the French military post. The British intervened, occupying two French posts and confining the French troops to their barracks.

FINN OFFICERS SEIZED

HELSINKI, July 16 — (AP) An undisclosed number of military officers were arrested today in connection with a plot against the Finnish government, government sources said. The plot was revealed in parliament July 4 by Yrjde Leino, Communist minister of the interior, who said a group within the army had planned an armed reactionary uprising and secret stores of weapons and food had been found.

CHINESE TAKE RAIL CENTER

Capture Southwest Of Kweilin Announced By Chungking

Moosa

Chungking, July 16 (AP)—Chinese troops fighting toward Kweilin, site of a triple-airfield base abandoned last October by the Americans, have captured a railroad stronghold and are driving on Yungfu, 31 miles southwest of the city, the Chinese high command said today.

In a co-ordinated assault, Chinese troops seized Hwangminhu, on the [illegible] Kwangsi railroad, 51 miles so[illegible]weilin, on Saturday, a communique said. Part of the attack hit along the railroad, and part along the main Liuchow-Kweilin highway. Hwangminhu is 40 miles northeast of Chinese-controlled Liuchow.

Fleeing Japs Inetrcepted

Some of the enemy fled northward toward Paishou, highway center 25 miles west of Kweilin, but were intercepted and fighting continues, the communiqué added.

Other Chinese units on Friday seized Liukianghsien, 34 miles northeast of Liuchow on a winding highway that enters Kweilin from the south, and pushed on 7½ miles more, the high command said. These forces perhaps were seeking to outflank Kweilin from the east.

Reconquest of Kweilin would restore to Allied control the seventh of the former United States 14th Air Force bases yielded to Japanese offensives in the last year.

The Chinese made no mention of the fighting to the northeast in the Kanhsien area. There they had retaken an American-abandoned airfield, and last were reported mopping up in Kanhsien itself. The Japanese were said to be retreating northwest toward Suichwan, location of one of the six airbases already recovered.

Mustangs Strafe Jap Troops

United States 14th Air Force Mustangs, an American communiqué said, attacked a concentration of 1,000 Japanese troops Sunday at Pacooung in French Indo-China northeast of Caobang, wiping out the principal compounds and a command post.

Other planes killed 40 enemy troops swimming in the Yellow River in a swoop on Japanese gun positions, shot up locomotives and river shipping, and lashed at Japanese positions near Shaoyang (Paoking) in Hunan province.

NIGHT EDITION

CHINESE CLEAR KANHSIEN, GAIN NEAR KWEILIN

Sixth Former U. S. Air Base Recaptured From Japs

Chungking, July 15—(AP)—Chinese troops were reported mopping up Japanese remnants in the streets of Kanhsien today after capturing the airfield south of that Kiangsi Province city—sixth former American air base site to be regained by the Chinese in their current drive.

To the southwest in Kwangsi Province other Chinese forces were closing in on still another former American air base at Kweilin. The Chinese High Command announced today that one Chinese column had captured Hwangminkai on the Hunan-Kwangsi railway 50 miles southwest of Kweilin and was pressing on toward Yungfu, 32 miles from Kweilin.

Another Chinese column captured Liukianghsien, 35 miles northeast of Liuchow and was advancing toward Hsiujenhsien on a circuitous secondary highway leading to Kweilin. Chinese vanguards were reported 11½ miles from Hsuijehnsien, which is 47 miles east of Liuchow.

The major portion of the Japanese troops garrisoned at Kanhsien were reported retreating to the north in the direction of Wanan.

It was considered doubtful that the bomb-cratered Kanhsien airfield could be put to immediate use, for it is without overland communication with the Chinese interior and would have to be supplied entirely by air. It was abandoned by the U. S. 14th Air Force last January 30.

On the East China Cosat, meanwhile, Chinese troops recaptured Chenghsien in Chekiang Province, 117 miles south of Shanghai and 79 miles southeast of the industrial center of Hangchow, a Chinese communique said.

Further south the Chinese seized Limkong, important highway center in the neck of the Luichow Peninsula, further disrupting Japanese communications with their forces in Indo-China and on Hainan Island.

WEDEMEYER REGRETS CHENNAULT TO RETIRE

CHUNGKING, July 16 — (AP) Lt. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of U. S. forces in the China theater, said in a statement today that he had agreed with "deep regret" to the retirement of Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault as commander of the U. S. 14th Air force in China.

Coincident with Wedemeyer's statement, Chinese newspapers paid high tribute to Chennault who indicated reasons of health for his action.

Wedemeyer said Chennault had for eight years "led the fight against tremendous odds under the most trying and difficult circumstances. His outstanding leadership and his unquestioned ability as an airman have inspired those who served under him to accomplish almost incredible results against the enemy.

"The Chinese-American military team for which we labored so long is now on the verge of great accomplishments. On behalf of all the officers and men in the China theater I wish him Godspeed and every happiness."

shek's air chief of staff and commander of the Fourteenth Air Force. Like Lieut-Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, commander of United States forces in the China Theater, Chennault has been on close terms with the generalissimo.

Rumors preceding the resignation lessened some of the shock felt in various quarters when the news was announced. Clyde A. Farnsworth, Associated Press correspondent, reported from Kunming that Chennault actually had his resignation statement prepared, and ready for reading at a Kunming press conference July 12—two days before he announced it. The statement was not read at that time because Chennault's personal aid, Capt. Joseph Alsop, had been unable to get a phone call through to Wedemeyer and obtain permission.

Gen. Chennault plans to remain in China until a higher American Air Force command is installed in Chungking.

Chennault said yesterday in an interview that Americans should remember that "we owe China an immense debt."

He deplored recent criticisms of the Chinese Army and Government by what he called "irresponsible persons at home," adding that "I think it's about time for Americans to cease to be so concerned by the mote in our neighbor's eye."

Assembly, set for November 12 to introduce constitutional government in China, stirred a lively debate at a session of the Peoples' Political Council.

Several members argued that fresh elections should be held for the national assembly, which was chosen more than eight years ago. The assembly originally was scheduled to meet in 1937, but the war intervened.

During the debate, some council speakers criticized Gen. Shen Hsih-tsai, minister of agriculture and forestry, for his earlier administration as governor of Sinkiang province. Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek removed him as governor as a friendly gesture to Soviet Russia.

5 BURMA VILLAGES TAKEN BY BRITISH

CALCUTTA, July 16—(AP) British troops have captured five Japanese-held Burmese villages in the Sittang river bend northeast of Rangoon and are closing in on the pocketed enemy stronghold of Myitkyo after putting Japanese rearguards to flight, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten announced today.

The five villages are clustered 16 miles southeast of Pegu, which is 45 miles northeast of Rangoon, headquarters said.

Twenty-three miles northeast of Pegu, the British converged on Myitkyo after routing a Japanese mortar concentration at a point one mile southwest of the Japanese stronghold.

British troops followed the retreating enemy but were unable to regain contact, a communique said.

Spitfire and Thunderbolt fighter-bombers, joining the fight in the Sittang river bend where the Japanese were attempting to hold a bridgehead, bombed and strafed enemy troop concentrations. They also struck north to Kyaukkyi, 10 miles northeast of Rangoon, destroying huts and starting fires.

Liberator bombers meanwhile yesterday made a round-trip flight of 2,500 miles to the Malay peninsula where they bombed warehouses and shipping at the port of Songkhla in southern Thailand on the South China Sea.

MERCY OPERATION FOR BOY

South African Lad Flying to U. S. —Public Raises $9,264

PORT ELIZABETH, Union of South Africa, July 16 (AP)—Weymouth Pedlar, 5 years of age, who breathes through artificial throat tubes, will start from his King William's Town home tomorrow for the United States and an operation deemed necessary to save his life.

The child and his mother, Mrs. G. Pedlar, will board a plane here Friday for New York via London. Dr. Chevalier Jackson will perform the operation in Philadelphia.

A total of $9,264 was raised by the Eastern Province Herald to finance the trip.

Weymouth had eight operations at Port Elizabeth last September to remove warts from his vocal chords but his larynx closed. An emergency tracheotomy was performed and tubes were inserted, enabling him to breathe but rendering him speechless.

Juliana And Daughters Start For Netherlands

Ottawa, July 16 (AP)—Princess Juliana of the Netherlands and her three daughters left by train for New York city to sail for home, ending the five-year absence of the Princess from war-ravaged Holland.

A crowd gathered at Union Station to see them off. The Earl of Athlone, Governor General of Canada, and his wife, Princess Alice, and Prime Minister MacKenzie King led an official farewell group.

Juliana and her two oldest daughters, Princesses Beatrix, now 7, and Irene, now 6, fled Holland in 1940 to find refuge in a modest home at nearby Rockcliffe. Two-year old Princess Margriet Francisca was born in a hospital section declared Netherlands territory for the birth.

Juliana's husband, Prince Bernhard, returned to Holland before the nation was completely liberated.

HITLER REPORTED IN PATAGONIA

Dispatch from Montevideo Says Nazi Chief, 'Wife' Landed in Argentina.

CHICAGO, July 16 — (AP) The Chicago Times, in a dispatch from Vincent DePascal, Montevideo correspondent, today reported he was "virtually certain" Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun landed in Argentina and are on a German-owned estate in Patagonia.

"From information just received from Buenos Aires," DePascal wrote, "I am virtually certain Adolf Hitler and his 'wife,' Eva Braun, the latter dressed in masculine clothes, landed in Argentina and are on an immense, German-owned estate in Patagonia."

This information, which the writer said was received from "reliable channels" is that the two are living on one of a number of estates purchased to provide sanctuaries for the Nazi overlords "if and when their schemes for world conquest went awry."

"The pair reportedly landed," the dispatch continued, "on a lonely shore from a German submarine which supposedly returned to surrender to the Allies.

"There are reasons to believe the Argentine government may have known Nazi U-boats lurked off its shores. Certainly there are enough Nazi sympathizers in Argentina who would jump at the chance to give a haven to the living symbol of national socialism."

In this connection, the story said, "the utmost significance is now attached to the words of Gen. Basilo Pertine at a banquet on June 4:

"'I am glad to announce that our friends are safe at last.'"

"A federal inspector recently reported there was serious cause to believe leading Nazis had landed at San Julian in Patagonia, perhaps bringing with them bullion, jewels and other treasures which escaped Allied armies in their final dash to Berlin," the dispatch concluded.

SENATE GROUP ASKS CHARTER RATIFICATION

Foreign Relations Body Asserts Treaty Accords With U. S. Interests.

REPORTS PACT FORMALLY

But Warns It Will Be a Fraud Unless We Take Necessary Steps to Implement It.

Washington, July 16 (A. P.).—The Foreign Relations Committee formally reported the United Nations Charter to the Senate today. It expressed the opinion that this country will be "repaid many times" for its projected contributions to a world peace-keeping organization. In a favorable report on the document which it approved by a 21 to 1 vote last week, the committee said it had no hesitation in recommending Senate ratification because it believes the fifty-nation agreement "in accordance with our national interests."

Declaring that participation by the United States in the new league is essential, the committee said:

"But of far greater importance will be the determination with which our Government and our people will give to the organization their active and wholehearted interests and support. This will require on the part of our Government and of the people both an understanding of what the United Nations is designed to accomplish and also a realization of the limitations under which it must necessarily set out to do that task."

The committee said that unless the United States is "prepared to take all steps which are necessary to effectuate our membership in the United Nations, we would be merely deceiving the hopes of the United States and of humanity in ratifying the charter."

The committee report was submitted without senator shipstead (R.-Minn.) having announced how he stands on ratification. Senator Johnson (R.-Cal.) voted against it and all other members supported it.

SENATE DEBATE ON CHARTER DUE NEXT MONDAY

Washington, July 16—(AP)—A Senate drive to have the United Nations charter signed and sealed, ready for delivery to President Truman on his return from the Big Three meeting loomed today.

Scheduled to be brought before the chamber next Monday, leaders were hopeful the document could be sped through to ratification with a single week of debate.

This possibility assumed larger proportions with the virtual collapse of any reservation front. Senator Bushfield (R.-S. D.), old a reporter he has decided definitely to offer no reservations or amendments to the 50-nation agreement drafted at San Francisco.

Bushfield had been expected to spearhead a drive to define the power of this country's representative on the Security Council of the proposed peace-keeping organization. He said, however, this could wait until later legislation is introduced.

Adding emphasis to the senatorial hope for speed were reports that Mr. Truman might return from Potsdam earlier than he originally had planned.

Criticism Scored

Meanwhile, Senator George (D.-Ga.), told reporters that last week's hearings before the Foreign Relations Committee had convinced him that "there can be no legitimate criticism of the charter."

He described the document as carrying a "minimum commitment" by the United States on matters that call for domestic decisions, such as the use of American troops to aid in policing the peace.

If was the Georgia's Senator's opinion that Congress can deal with the question of the number of military forces and their disposition in both legislation and in a treaty which is expected to be made with the proposed Security Council.

Conclusions of Senate Committee's Favorable Report on United Nations Charter

JUL 17 1945

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP).—A partial text of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's report on the United Nations Charter, in which it said the committeemen "hereby report the same favorably to the Senate without amendment and recommend that the Senate advise and consent to the ratification thereof," follows:

Scope of Report

No effort will be made in this report to summarize the charter and the statute or to discuss the origins and meaning of their different sections. That has been done admirably in the report to the President, dated June 26, 1945, of the chairman of the United States delegation which is included in the printed hearings. This report, therefore, will be confined to a discussion of the principal points with reference to the charter which were brought out in the questioning of the witnesses during the hearings.

The General Assembly

Your committee gave special attention to the scope of the functions of the General Assembly, in view of its central position in the organization and of its relation to the Security Council, the Economic and Social Council and the trusteeship Council.

The General Assembly, on which all the member states will be represented, will have functions which may be broadly described as being to discuss, to deliberate, to recommend, to supervise various agencies, to elect certain officials, to approve budgets, and to initiate amendments. The United Nations will not be a super-state and the General Assembly will not be a legislative or law-making body. The General Assembly, nevertheless, will be an important forum where the public opinion of the world may be brought to bear effectively upon any matter within the scope of the charter or which relates to the powers and functions of any of the organs provided for in the charter. It will, in effect, be, as Senator Vandenberg so aptly described it, "the town meeting of the world."

The General Assembly will be concerned with the general principles of co-operation in the maintenance of peace and security, including the principles governing disarmament and the regulation of armaments. Further, it may discuss any question relating to the maintenance of peace and security brought before it by any member of the United Nations or by the Security Council. In addition, it may recommend measures for the peaceful adustment of any situation, regardless of origin, which it deems likely to impair the general welfare of friendly relations among nations. In all these matters the General Assembly may make recommendations, except in the case of a dispute or situation with which the Security Council may be currently dealing. The general Assembly also has broad recommendatory functions in connection with the trusteeship system and with economic and social matters of concern to the organization. It will elect the nonpermanent members of the security council, all of the members of the economic and social council, and certain members of the Trusteeship Council. It will participate with the Security Council in the election of judges of the International Court of Justice and in the admission, suspension and expulsion of members of the organization.

Pacific Settlement of Disputes and Means for Facilitating Peaceful Change

In the course of the hearings the committee examined carefully the role which the United Nations as an organization may be able to play in bringing about the pacific settlement of disputes and to effect "peaceful change."

The members of the organization voluntarily accept an obligation to settle their international disputes by peaceful means in such a manner that international peace and security and justice are not endangered. Moreover, they undertake to refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations.

Both the General Assembly and Security Council are given important roles in the process of peaceful settlement of such disputes as may arise. That of the General Assembly is one of discussion, consideration, and (with the exception of matters currently being dealt with by the Security Council) recommendation. The General Assembly, moreover, may contribute to "peaceful change" by recommending measures (Article 14) for the adjustment of any situation, regardless of origin, which it deems likely to impair the general welfare or friendly relations among nations.

The Security Council, in contrast to the General Assembly, is to be concerned not with the general welfare as a whole, but specifically with the maintenance of international peace and security, for which it has the primary responsibility. It is given broad powers to enable it to fulfil this responsibility, although it has no authority to impose terms of settlement. It has considerable discretion in the methods it may use to bring about a satisfactory solution of a situation or dispute which might menace the peace. It can recommend methods for effecting a peaceful settlement, or it can under Article 37 propose the actual terms of such a settlement. In addition, under Article 38 it has general authority, where all the parties to a dispute so request, to make recommendations with a view to pacific settlement of any dispute.

The committee feels that the powers of the General Assembly and those of the Security Council, backed in the first case by the assembly's prestige as the forum of the United Nations, and, in the other, by the council's position and particularly by the unity of its five permanent members, afford grounds for believing that, where called for, change may be brought about peacefully under the aegis of the United Nations.

Enforcement Functions of Security Council

The means for employing force which are made available to the Security Council are solely for the purpose of maintaining international peace and security and of restoring peace if it has been breached. Resort to such means is conditional upon a prior determination that a threat to the peace exists, or that a breach of the peace or act of aggression has occurred. This determination is for the Security Council to make. No other organ of the United Nations is competent to make it. If and when such a determination is made, the Security Council will take into account all pertinent facts and factors.

Action by the Security Council to maintain or restore peace need not, of course, terminate its efforts to bring about a satisfactory settlement. The Security Council, when taking forcible action, can simultaneously be taking steps to work out a settlement; and can, moreover, continue these efforts after the threat or breach of the peace or act of aggression has been removed.

The Authority of the United States Delegate on the Security Council

No attempt was made to define in the charter the powers and authority of the representatives on the Security Council of its members. This was, of course, because that is a matter which must be determined by each government for itself and is not appropriate for international agreement.

The committee believes that the authority of the United States delegate should therefore be determined after the charter has been ratified. However, the committee is convinced that any reservation to the charter, or any subsequent Congressional limitation designed to provide, for example, that employment of the armed forces of the United States to be made available to the Security Council under special agreements referred to in Article 43 could be authorized only after the Congress had passed on each individual case would clearly violate the spirit of one of the most important provisions of the charter. One of the fundamental purposes of the charter is to provide forces which will be immediately available to the Security Council to take action to prevent a breach of the peace. Moreover, if a reservation to this effect were to be adopted by the Senate, the very nature of the charter itself would be changed, and further negotiations with the other signatories of the Charter would unquestionably be necessary.

Preventive or enforcement action by these forces upon the order of the Security Council would not be an act of war but would be international action for the preservation of the peace and for the purpose of preventing war. Consequently, the provisions of the charter do not affect the exclusive power of Congress to declare war.

The committee feels that a reservation or other Congressional action such as that referred to above would also violate the spirit of the United States Constitution under which the President has well established powers and obligations to use our armed forces without specific approval of Congress.

The special position of the United States as one of the five permanent members of the Security Council whose approval is needed for any enforcement action needs to be emphasized once again in this connection. No United States forces can be employed, no enforcement action of any kind against a nation breaking the peace can be taken, without the full concurrence of the United States acting through its delegate on the Security Council.

The Monroe Doctrine and the Charter

The relation which would exist between the Monroe Doctrine and the Charter of the United Nations was carefully considered by the committee. It was brought out that the Monroe Doctrine remains completely unimpaired and that the purposes and objectives of the charter strengthen rather than weaken the doctrine.

The doctrine's purpose is to prevent aggression against the Western Hemisphere and to prevent any attempt from the outside to impose any non-American system of government on an American nation. The doctrine is essentially a policy adopted by the United States for its own defense, but it has been greatly reinforced by recent inter-American agreements which have assured common action by all of the republics of the hemisphere in resisting military or political aggression. One of the principal purposes of the charter of the United Nations is to utilize and mobilize collective means to these same ends everywhere in the world.

The charter provides means for dealing with any threat to the peace or security of the hemisphere, whether in the form of a direct attack or of political aggression. Most of these means are set forth in Chapters VI, VII, and VIII. Article 51 specifically recognizes that the member states have the inherent right of individuals or collective self-defense against an armed attack, pending the adoption by the Security Council of the necessary measures to deal with the attack. This means that in the case of a direct act of aggression against an American country, that is, in the case of the first contingency contemplated in the Monroe Doctrine, the United States and the other American Republics could proceed at once to the assistance of the victim of the attack.

The committee further directs attention to the fact that former Secretary of State Stettinius announced at San Francisco that it is the policy of this government to further implement this provision of the charter by negotiating a treaty with the other republics of the hemisphere, not later than autumn of this year, which will give permanent form to the act of Chapultepec. This act specifically provides that an attack against one American republic is an attack against all and calls for immediate collective measures against the aggressors. It also provides that the activities and procedures referred to in the act shall be consistent with the purposes and principles of the general international organization when formed.

With respect to the second aspect of the Monroe Doctrine, it was brought out in the course of the hearings that, under Article 2, paragraph 4 of the charter, all the members of the organization have the obligation to "refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations." Moreover, Paragraph 1 of this same article emphasizes that the organization is based on the principle of the sovereign equality of all its members and paragraph 7 specifies that nothing in the charter authorizes the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state. These provisions together with the machinery of the charter for the peaceful settlement of disputes and for maintenance of peace offer additional protection against any attempt at the kind of political aggression against which the Monroe Doctrine is directed.

Your committee, believing that both the Monroe doctrine and the inter-American system are effectively safeguarded under the charter, desires to emphasize its concurrence with the view that the basic purposes of both will be strengthened by the establishment of the organization.

Domestic Jurisdiction

The committee is convinced that the domestic jurisdiction of member states is amply safeguarded from intervenion by the organization. A special provision on this question was placed in Chapter 1, Article 2, which applies to all parts of the charter and to all activities of the organization. This provision reads as follows:

"Nothing contained in the present charter shall authorize the United Nations to intervene in matters which are essentially within the domestic jurisdiction of any state or shall require the members to submit such matters to settlement under the present charter; but this principle shall not prejudice the application of enforcement measures under Chapter VII."

If the security council, acting under Chapter VII, decided upon enforcement action, it would be deciding that the matter threatened inernational peace and security and, therefore, had already gone beyond the limits of domestic jurisdiction. The decision as to whether such enforcement measures should be taken would, of course, require the concurring votes of the permanent members of the security council.

The general assembly and the economic and social council are given recommendatory functions concerned with the promotion of higher standards of living, full employment, and conditions of economic and social progress and development. These organs also are charged with promoting solutions of international economic, social, health, and related problems, and with promoting international cultural and educational co-operation and respect for, and observance of, human rights and fundamental freedoms for all.

In this connection the question was raised as to whether such economic and social matters could be promoted by the organization without intervening in the domestic affairs of particular countries in view of the fact that the general assembly would have the right in these fields to make studies and to make recommendations on such matters provided these matters have international repercussions. In order to make it entirely clear that in making its studies and investigations of economic and social problems, the general assembly and the economic and social council would not intervene in the domestic affairs of member countries, the following statement of committee 3 of commission II of the conference report was approved by that commission:

"The members of Committee 3 of Commission II are in full agreement that nothing contained in Chapter IX of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals can be construed as giving authority to the organization to intervene in the domestic affairs of member states."

The Regulation of Armaments

The committee has examined with care Article 26, which provides:

"In order to promote the establishment and maintenance of international peace and security with the least diversion for armaments of the world's human and economic resources, the security council shall be responsible for formulating, with the assistance of the military staff committee referred to in Article 47, plans to be submitted to the members of the United Nations for the establishment of a system for the regulation of armaments."

It will be seen from this that the charter itself does not establish a system for the regulation of armaments. The Security Council is to prepare plans for such a system, but it will not do so until some time in the future. The military staff committee, on which the United States armed forces will be represented, will work on those plans, which cannot be adopted by the Security Council for submission to the members of the organization unless the United States concurs. Moreover, they will be only plans—only recommendations to the governments—and every country, including our own, will be free to accept or reject them according to its own conception of its national interest.

Non-Self-Governing Territories and the Trusteeship System

Chapter XI is a declaration by those members of the United Nations having responsibility for the administration of territories whose people have not attained a full measure of self-government. In this declaration the administering nations recognize certain principles which should govern their relations with such peoples.

In explanation of chapters XII and XIII it was pointed out that these chapters set up a system of international trusteeship in recognition of the need for a system which might cover territories which had been detached from Germany and Turkey at the end of the last war, i.e. existing mandated territories, and also territories which may be detached from enemy states as a result of this war. In addition the system would accommodate other territories which might be voluntarily placed under it by the responsible administering states. It was emphasized that the precise territories of the above categories which might be placed under the trusteeship system would be determined later by agreements among the states concerned, and these agreements would be subject to approval by the organization. The United States would, of course, be a state concerned with respect to any territory in its possession. Thus, for example, no island in the Pacific occupied by the United States could be placed under trusteeship without this government's consent, and therefore only on terms agreeable to the United States.

It was pointed out that careful consideration had been given to the security interests of the United States with respect to the trusteeship system. In this connection, as indicated earlier in this report, letters from the secretaries of war and navy stating that the military and strategic implications of the charter as a whole are in accord with the military interests of the United States were read into the record.

The charter contains no provision with reference to withdrawal. At the conference the United States delegation took the position that there should be no explicit provision in the charter either prohibiting the right of withdrawal or providing for voluntary withdrawal. It was felt by our delegation and a number of others that the inclusion of a provision expressly recognizing an automatic right of withdrawal might tend to encourage states to dissociate themselves from membership in the organization. On the other hand it was clear that it would not be appropriate to abridge the rights of a sovereign state to withdraw from membership.

The committee has fully satisfied itself that any member has the right to withdraw. No power is vested in the organization to compel a member to continue its participation in the organization or to penalize it for its action. The only penalty for withdrawal would be the displeasure of peace-loving people of the world incurred by a member if in their judgment its reasons did not constitute, in the light of circumstances at the time, adequate justification for so serious a step.

The interpretative statement adopted by the San Francisco Conference is authoritative on this question and met with the full approval of the committee. This statement, which appears in the report of the chairman of the United States delegation to the President, June 26, 1945, pp. 48-49 (pp. 28-29 as reprinted in the record of the committee), reads as follows:

"The committee adopts the view that the charter should not make express provision either to permit or to prohibited withdrawal from the organization. The committee deems that the highest duty of the nations which will become members is to continue their co-operation within the organization for the preservation of international peace and security. If, however, a member because of exceptional circumstances feels constrained to withdraw and leave the burden of maintaining international peace and security on the other members, it is not the purpose of the organization to compel that member to continue its co-operation in the organization.

"It is obvious, particularly, that withdrawls or some other form of dissolution of the organization would become inevitable if, deceiving the hopes of humanity, the organization was revealed to be unable to maintain peace or could do so only at the expense of law and justice.

"Nor would a member be bound to remain in the organization if its rights and obligations as such were changed by charter amendment in which it has not concurred and which it finds itself unable to accept, or if an amendment duly accepted by the necessary majority in the Assembly or in a general conference fails to secure the ratification necessary to bring such amendment into effect.

"It is for these considerations that the committee has decided to abstain from recommending insertion in the charter of a formal clause specifically forbidding or permitting withdrawal."

The legality of the right of withdrawal is not put in question through absence of specific permission in the charter. Both the security council and the general assembly could, of course, discuss a contemplated or completed withdrawal since both have responsibility jointly over questions of membership in the organization. Moreover, the security council would have responsibility concerning any threat to international peace and security resulting from or connected with a withdrawal.

It should be pointed out that a state which had withdrawn would be subject to the obligations of a non-member as stated in paragraph 6 of article 2 of the charter to act in accordance with the principles of the charter so far as may be necessary for the maintenance of international peace and security.

The International Court of Justice

Separate ratification of the statute of the international court of justice is not required inasmuch as the statute is an integral part of the charter.

The court to be established in accordance with the statute will be a new court, though its statute is based upon that of the now existing permanent court of international justice. It is expected that the permanent court of international justice will be terminated along with the League of Nations with which it was connected.

The court will be composed of fifteen judges, nominated by the national groups in the permanent court or arbitration under The Hague Convention of 1907, and elected by the general assembly and the security council, acting independently of each other.

The jurisdiction of the court will extend to legal disputes which the parties thereto agree to submit to the court. While a large number of the states represented at the United Nations conference favored compulsory jurisdiction in certain designated types of legal disputes, such a provision was not included in the statute. In Article 36 of the statute, however, there is a provision known as the optional clause under which states may make declarations agreeing to accept compulsory jurisdiction of the court in specified types of cases. Unless a state has accepted compulsory jurisdiction, it goes into court only of its own free will, by agreement in advance with the other party to the dispute. Many states have made declarations under the optional clause of the existing statute of the Permanent Court of International Justice, and these declarations, as between parties to the statute, will be continued according to Article 36. A commission of the conference recommended that other members of the United Nations should proceed to make similar declarations as soon as possible.

The charter does not permit the Security Council or the General Asesmbly to force states to bring cases before the court, nor does it, or the statute, permit the court to interfere with the functions of the Security Council or the General Assembly. Members of the United Nations agree to comply with decisions of the court in cases to which they are parties. If a party brings to the Security Council a complaint that another party has failed to comply with a decision, the Security Council may, if it deems it necessary, make recommendations or take action under Chapter VII of the Charter if it considers that peace and security are endangered as it would in any other situation involving a threat to the peace. This involves no enlargement of the authority of the Security Council.

The charter, in addition to providing that the Security Council and the general assembly may request advisory opinions on legal questions also provides that other organs of the United Nations and specialized agencies may request advisory opinions on legal questions arising within the scope of their activities, if so authorized by the general assembly. The court, however, is not bound to render an opinion when requested.

Your committee recommends that the Senate accept the international court of justice in the form and with the authority set forth in chapter xiv of the charter and the annexed statute of the court. The acceptance of this court will not interfere with existing agreements for the peaceful settlement of disputes or with the negotiation of new ones, but will carry forward the tradition of the United States as a champion of judicial settlement of disputes of a legal character.

Conclusion

The committee is satisfied that the charter represents a remarkable accomplishment in the process of developing international co-operation. While it may be that this is not a perfect instrument, the important thing is that agreement has been reached on this particular charter, after months and even years of careful study and negotiation, between the representatives of fifty nations. The virtual unanimity with which the results of the Dumbarton Oaks and the San Francisco conferences have been approved by the people of the United States and now by this committee, is the best proof now available that a sound and practicable foundation has been achieved on which to work for peace and security.

The committee points out, however, that neither this charter nor any other document or formula that might be devised can prevent war, and the committee would be performing a disservice to the public if its action with respect to the charter should indicate any such opinion on its part. The establishment of the United Nations will at best be a beginning towards the creation of those conditions of stability throughout the world which will foster peace and security.

The participation of our country in the United Nations will be essential to its success; in fact, the charter cannot even become operative if we do not ratify it. But of far greater importance will be the determination with which our government and our people will give to the organization their active and wholehearted interest and support. This will require on the part of our government and of the people both an understanding of what the United Nations is designed to accomplish and also a realization of the limitations under which it must necessarily set out to do that task. And above all it must be understood that to the extent to which we do participate actively in this organization, we will by that very process be overcoming the imperfections in the charter. Unless we are prepared to take all steps which are necessary to effectuate our membership in the United Nations we would be merely deceiving the hopes of the United States and of humanity in ratifying the charter.

The question of our membership in an international organization to preserve peace has been debated throughout our country and in this Congress as fully as any public issue in our history has ever been discussed. The committee feels that the people and the members of the Senate understand clearly the consequences and the requirements of our membership in the United Nations and that they are prepared to undertake the responsibilities of membership in order to enjoy the privileges which that membership may ultimately bring in the form of world stability. The committee is convinced that participation in the United Nations is in accordance with our national interests, and that our contributions to the United Nations will be repaid many times.

The committee, therefore, has no hesitation in recommending that the Senate advise and consent to the ratification of the Charter of the United Nations.

For the information of the Senate there is appended hereto and made a part of this report the President's address of July 2, 1945, and the text of the Charter and statute.

Martin Urges World Ban on Peace Training

Will Ask in House That U.S. Push Anti-Conscription; Idea Is Called Utopian

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP).—Representative Joseph W. Martin, of Massachusetts, House Republican leader, today proposed a world-wide ban on compulsory peace time military service, but advocates of a training program dismissed his idea as merely something "grand to contemplate."

Representative Martin announced in a statement that he will introduce tomorrow a resolution calling on the Administration to work for an international anti-conscription agreement "before the United States adopts compulsory military service."

Representative Clifton A. Woodrum, Democrat, of Virginia, chairman of the House Post-War Military Committee, which recently recommended a system of universal peace time training for this country, voiced the criticism.

"It would be a grand thing to contemplate . . . if all nations would beat their swords into plowshares and pruning hooks," the Virginian told reporters.

"But as shown in our hearings it has been the unanimous, emphatic judgment of every one of our diplomatic and military leaders that our national security demands a highly trained citizen reserve militia."

A voluntary system, he added, would not provide "a sufficient and adequate military establishment for our own security and to fulfill our obvious commitments."

Arguing for his proposal, Representative Martin said in a statement that if such a plan could be adopted "it would relieve . . . the nations of the necessity to assume this great new burden at a time when we must build, reconstruct and readjust the world to peace."

He declared that conscription "has never prevented war" and "is always viewed with suspicion and fear by other countries, forcing them to adopt the same policy."

Representative Martin said his resolution would urge the President, Secretary of State and the United States representative on the United Nations organization to work for his aim. He plans to propose only a House resolution, not requiring Senate action and not binding on the officials.

Representative Woodrum took exception to Representative Martin's suggestion along one other line. Representative Woodrum said his committee had recommended military "training," which would be as civilians, while Representative Martin had referred to military "service" in the armed forces.

"There's a world of difference between those two propositions," the Virginian asserted. "We ought to get them straight and remember that trainees would not be in in the Army unless called in by Congress or the President."

SENATE SEEN SURE TO BACK WORLD BANK

Measure's Enemies Concede Bretton Woods Be Approved

Washington, July 16—(AP)—Foes of the Bretton Woods plan for an international bank and monetary fund virtually conceded today that the Senate is sure to approve it.

"I'm afraid we haven't a chance to beat it," Senator Millikin (R.-Colo.) told reporters as the chamber prepared to open debate on legislation for United States participation in the program drafted by monetary experts from 44 countries at Bretton Woods, N. H., last Summer.

It calls for establishment of an international bank, capitalized at $9,100,000,000, to make or guarantee loans for rehabilitation and economic development, and an $8,800,000,000 monetary fund to be used for stabilizing currency exchange rates of the participating countries.

The measure already has been approved overwhelmingly by the House, and that chamber is deferring a Summer recess until later in the week in order to be able to concur in any minor changes the Senate may make.

Hope for Early Vote

Senate leaders were aiming for a final vote within three or four days, but discussion may be prolonged by argument over various proposed amendments.

Senator Thomas (D.-Okla.) has proposed one to establish the gold ounce as an official United States monetary unit. He hopes it would come into general world use.

Thomas also has another which could direct that the Treasury use any silver not held as security for outstanding currency to pay that part of the American subscription to the monetary fund which is not required to be paid in gold. The program calls for the United States to put $2,750,000,000 into monetary fund and $3,175,000,000 into the bank.

Long an advocate of a bi-metallic monetary base, Thomas' aim with his silver amendment is to promote world monetary recognition of the white metal.

There were indications however, that the Oklahoman would not have the support of the entire "silver bloc" for his proposal. Some members said they gained the impression in discussion with Secretary Morgenthau that the Treasury

Germans Face Fingerprinting Inside U.S. Zone

5 Civilian Police Experts Are Named to Help List About 3,000,000 Persons

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP).—An estimated 3,000,000 persons in the American occupation zone in Germany are going to be fingerprinted. Colonel Orlando W. Wilson, of Berkeley, Calif., chief of public safety in the internal affairs division of the American Group, Allied Control Commission, appealed today for fingerprint experts to aid in the "gigantic task."

Wilson outlined the task in a War Department statement which also announced the appointment of five civilian police experts and a fire department supervisor to the control group in Germany.

The United States will undertake within its occupation zone the fingerprinting "of every German who, in our eyes, is a criminal," Wilson said. This category will include "any one with any connection with the Nazi party and officers and non-commissioned officers of the German armed forces, in addition to persons within the mandatory arrest categories and persons arrested for security reasons," he said.

The civilians appointed to the safety organization included Lynn G. Adams, former head of the Pennsylvania State Police, directing rural police forces; Jonathon Harwood 3d, of the Rhode Island State Police, and Theo E. Hall, police chief of Wilmette, Ill., in charge of public safety planning and preparation of orders and reports on police matters, and George Swann, of Upper Montclair, N. J., official of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, who will supervise German fire departments.

Harwood has left for Germany and the others are expected to depart soon.

Taft Proposes Reduced Tax on '47 Business

Asks That Law Be Passed This Year So That Plant Owners May Plan Ahead

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP).—Senator Robert A. Taft, Republican, of Ohio, proposed today that Congress write a tax reduction law this year that will be effective for business in 1947.

The Senate is expected to act this week on a house-approved revision of the corporation tax laws designed to aid reconversion by boosting the cash position of business by about $5,000,000,000.

While Senator Taft said this meets his approval, he told reporters something ought to be done by Congress soon to let business men know what to expect in what he believes will be the first real surge of the civilian economy after the changeover from war to peace-time manufacture.

"I don't think it makes so much difference whether tax reductions are made in 1946," the Ohio Senator said. "Most businesses then will be engaged in getting back to civilian production and they won't be making much money anyway.

"But 1947 should see production in full swing again and business men, especially small-plant owners and those who plan to build new facilities, ought to know in advance what sort of taxes they are going to have to pay."

Senator Taft said he had no specific revenue proposals in mind, but that he believes the subject should have immediate study.

The bill which will go before the Senate this week would make these changes in the law:

1. Boost the specific exemption from the excess-profits tax from the present $10,000 to $25,000.
2. Fix next Jan. 1 as the maturity date for outstanding excess-profits tax post-war refund bonds.
3. Hasten refunds on carry-backs of net operating losses and unused excess-profits credits.
4. Speed refunds on the recomputation of deductions for amortization of emergency facilities.

ARMY DISCHARGE SCORE WILL CHANGE

Washington, July 16 (A. P.).—The new critical score for Army discharge, expected to be announced within the next two weeks, still will be based on points accumulated only up to May 12 last.

War Department officials said today that a new compilation of point totals, including those accumulated since May, probably would be made late this year.

The new critical score will be lower than the 85 points set in the interim score announced this spring, but the reduction probably will not be large. This lowering of the total score will make more soldiers eligible, on a point basis, for discharge even though they are unable to figure in new points earned since May 12.

Actually, there have been some instances where soldiers who lacked the required 85 points on May 12 subsequently became eligible. This arose out of the combat credit score. Awards in that category are based on the date of action instead of the date of award, and in some cases the awards postdated May 12 by some time.

The four factors for computing points will remain the same—service, overseas, combat and parenthood credit.

TRUMAN SEEKS RAIL WORKERS

Citizens Requested To Take Some Of 65,000 Jobs

Washington, July 16 (AP)—Manpower shortages on western railroads so gravely threaten the flow of supplies and men to the Pacific that President Truman today asked citizens to take some of the 65,000 vacant jobs.

There are approximately 100,000 jobs, including those open on the western roads, that must be filled to keep the railroads throughout the nation functioning efficiently, an Association of American Railroads spokesman said.

Engineers Needed Badly

President Truman, in a special statement issued at Potsdam, Germany, where he went for the Big Three conference, asserted:

"If the demands of the Japanese war are to be met, the railroads in the West must have additional man power immediately."

The most pressing need of the railroads, the A.A.R. spokesman said, is for engineers, firemen, conductors, brakemen, switchmen and hostlers. Second in need are train dispatchers, yard masters, telegraphers, signalmen and similar workers. Next in demand are unskilled workers.

The War Manpower Commission accorded top priority to seventeen western railroads for the inter-regional recruitment of workers.

4,000 Only Fraction Needed

Qualified workers in 22 occupations can be referred to the western rail lines, the WMC added, without requiring certificates of availability.

The President said that the 4,000 experienced railroad men recently furloughed from the Army for 30 days to help out in the crisis are "only a fraction of the number needed."

"Any patriotic American who is not already engaged in essential war work can make a real contribution toward the defeat of Japan by applying for a job on a western railroad during this emergency period," the President added.

He also urged that those now working on railroads continue on their jobs.

The Association of American Railroads said the most urgent needs throughout the country were:

Twelve thousand skilled workers, such as trainmen, electricians, carpenters, signalmen and similar workers.

Eighty-eight thousand nonskilled workers, such as track laborers and maintenance workers, freight and express handlers, waiters, porters, cooks, etc.

Sixty per cent of the needed workers are wanted for the western railroads, the A.A.R. said, with jobs open in 75 different classifications.

Look To Discharged Veterans

Application should be made to the local offices of the railroad retirement board or to the local United States Employment Service offices.

The railroad association said it hoped to recruit some of the needed workers from discharged war veterans. It added that some 350,000 former railroad workers are now in the armed forces.

The current railroad labor force, the A.A.R. said, includes 115,000 women, or four times the prewar average. Many of them are doing heavy manual labor in shops and on tracks, the A.A.R. added, "just like the men."

Mexicans also have been brought into the United States for track maintenance.

In Chicago, Mayor Edward J. Kelly called a press conference together with Col. I. Sewell Morris, chairman of the Western Railroad Urgency Committee, to discuss a concerted drive to recruit railroad workers.

Mayor Kelly, who said that 8,000 of the 65,000 workers are needed in Chicago, read a telegram from Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson asking citizens of Chicago to 'didicate themselves to the job of helping the Army and the railroads obtain the manpower necessary to move supplies and soldiers westward."

Unions To Co-Operate

Patterson's telegram said Chicago is the largest railroad center in the world and added "how well it does its job in moving the men and munitions of war will have a direct bearing on the length of the Japanese war."

Mayor Kelly, in urging persons to take even part-time jobs "to keep the wheels rolling," said the railroad unions have agreed to take in all workers recruited in the drive.

Colonel Morris said 846,091 troops were moved across the country by train in June, not counting troop movements of less than 40 men and furlough traffic, and the total will be far higher in July. He said more than 100 Army Transportation Corps officers have been assigned to the western railroad manpower project in Chicago to assist the roads with their manpower problem during the redeployment period.

OBJECTIONS FILED TO ICC RATE ORDER

Petitions for Reconsideration Submitted by Three Groups, Two of Them Opposed

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—Ten Northeastern States and numerous industrial organizations petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission today for reconsideration of the commission's recent decision on railroad class rates.

Two separate petitions, one from the Governors of six New England States and the other from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Maryland, were filed. Both requested deferment of the effective date of the ICC order, which was set for Aug. 30.

A third petition was filed by the southwestern steering committee, representing the States of Arkansas, Kansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas.

This petition stated that the ICC order is "just and reasonable in every respect" and will "result in non-discriminatory, non-preferential and non-prejudicial rates," but requested "certain slight alterations in the order."

It also asked that the railroads be allowed nine months from the date on which an amended order embodying their recommendations is issued in which to present uniform classifications. Informal estimates had been that it might take years.

The New York-New Jersey-Pennsylvania-Maryland petition asserted that the ICC's conclusion that the present class rates are unlawful because they are not on a uniform level throughout the country east of the Rocky Mountains "is not supported by the findings, is contrary to and without support in the evidence and does not justify the order requiring an increase in the class rates" in the "official" or eastern portion of the country.

The New England petition, which voiced the objections of the six Governors and ten commercial organizations, presented similar arguments.

It asserted that "the record in these proceedings not only affords no legal basis whatsoever for, but in fact precludes, an order directing an increase in the existing intraterritorial class rates applicable within official territory."

It added that the record failed to establish that the lack of uniformity between class rates has resulted in differences in the relative charges actually paid or required to be paid by shippers.

W. P. B. Cancels 21 Tire Tube Plant Projects

Curb on Sewing Machines Is Lifted, More Leather for Civilian Use Released

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP).—The War Production Board today canceled twenty-one plant expansion projects for the manufacture of truck tires which, if completed, would have cost about $11,000,000.

The W. P. B. said the projects were in varying stages of completion and that it is unable at the moment to state how much has already been spent.

The projects, scattered from coast to coast, were eliminated primarily because of reduced demand for tubes from the armed forces.

Two projects for making air-curing bags and tire flaps were halted at the same time. Air-curing bags are rubber tubes used to inflate tire casings during the curing process.

All restrictions on production of sewing machines for domestic use were lifted today by the W. P. B., which cautioned that this would not mean any great increase in the number of sewing machines reaching retail channels within the next few months. It simply means that sewing machines now may be made to the extent that materials are available without priority assistance.

The W. P. B. has authorized delivery of small commercial electric motors without its authorization regardless of quantity. This allows manufacturers to ship unrated orders, after filling orders carrying priorities.

More leather will be available for such civilian items as luggage, footballs and other athletic equipment, and furniture upholstery, the W. P. B. announced today. The agency lifted three of its restrictions covering the use of leather, and relaxed a fourth. It said, however, that military and essential items still will have first call on all leather.

Lumber for emergency home repairs—except on farms—now may be purchased without the necessity of obtaining authorization from the Federal Housing Administration, it was announced today by the National Housing Agency and the W. P. B. A home owner now may buy lumber directly from a distributor by certifying that he needs it for emergency repair. Farmers will continue to obtain lumber for emergency repairs through county committees of the Agricultural Adjustment Agency.

Surplus metal helmets purchased by the government for air-raid wardens were exempted from price control today. The O. P. A. said they have been selling substantially below the retail price of $1.10 each.

The O. P. A. also announced a retail ceiling of $1.79 each for 700,000 new stirrup pumps bought by the Office of Civilian Defense for fighting fires in the event of air raids. The surplus pumps, together with a ten-foot hose and a pair of nozzles for each, were described as suitable for tree-spraying, whitewashing and watering gardens.

OWI TO ABOLISH FOREIGN BUREAU

Washington, July 16 (A. P.).—The Office of War Information has decided to abolish its foreign news bureau, which supplies the American press with news from foreign broadcasts, principally Japanese.

Neil Dalton, director of OWI domestic operations, said today the decision resulted from the recent action by Congress in reducing the agency's appropriation. He estimated that the step would save about $70,000 a year.

Matthew Gordon, bureau director, has notified employees that it will be abolished thirty days after the twenty-four employees have received formal notification. The twenty-four employees include about a dozen editors.

Dalton said discussions are under way with the Federal Communications Commission to see what arrangements can be worked out for distributing foreign news. He said he thought the news undoubtedly would continue to be available in some form. The actual monitoring of foreign broadcasts is conducted by FCC. The OWI foreign news bureau digests and distributes the broadcasts.

Rio de Janeiro, July 16 (AP)—Gen. Mark Clark was awarded the Brazilian Order of the Southern Cross by President Getulio Vargas today in a ceremony in Catete Palace.

Clark, who commanded Brazilian troops in Italy as commander of the 15th Army Group, was here for a national celebration planned for Wednesday honoring Brazil's returning veterans.

The Order of the Southern Cross in a lesser class also was conferred upon Lieut. Gen. Willis Crittenberger and Maj. Gen. Donald Brann.

B-29 LOSS OVER 1 PER MISSION

Total Is 291 For 21st Bomber Command Operations

Washington, July 16 (AP)—Losses of Superfortresses have averaged only slightly more than one airplane per mission since the 21st Bomber Command began operations last fall.

An Army Air Forces summary issued today reported that a total of 261 missions had been flown by the 21st Command since it went into action from Marianas bases in November, and that between then and last July 9 losses numbered 291 Superfortresses.

20th Command Data Lacking

These figures do not cover the 20th Command, which started operations from Southeast Asia bases on June 6, 1944, striking targets on Kyushu, southernmost of the enemy's home islands, and on the mainland. Records for the 20th Command were not immediately available, but they were expected to lift the total loss of B-29's well above the 300 mark.

The heavily armed bombers of the 21st Command knocked 760 Japanese planes out of the air and destroyed 159 more on the ground, incidental to their primary mission of putting bombs on the target.

All Causes Included

The total losses of B-29's, it was explained, were from "all causes," which would include losses due to weather, mechanical failure and other reasons as well as those shot down by Japanese fighters, suicide planes and anti-aircraft fire.

The size of the B-29 missions has varied from the original 20 or 30 to the 500-plus plane attacks in recent months.

The largest number of Superfortresses lost in a single operation is nineteen, which failed to return after a raid on Tokyo last May.

From November, 1944, when the 21st Bomber Command began operations against the enemy home islands from bases in the Marianas, to last June 15, a total of 61,055 tons of bombs was dropped on strategic targets. Of this, 46,473 tons went down on "urban targets" (presumably in saturation type attack) and 14,582 on precision targets, where individual factories or installations were selected.

An accounting of results obtained in the bombing of 26 enemy cities between last March 23 and July 9 showed that incendiary attacks had damaged 56 square miles, or 51 per cent, of Tokyo; 8 square miles, or 51 per cent, of Kobe; 15.6 square miles, or 26 per cent, of Osaka, and 8.9 square miles, or 44 per cent, of Yokohama.

FOOD SHORTAGES TO LAST INTO '46

Not Much Relief Can Be Expected This Year, Anderson Says.

WASHINGTON, July 16 — (AP) Secretary of Agriculture Anderson declared tonight that, on the basis of present indications, civilians will have to wait until 1946 for any material improvement in the domestic food situation.

"Because of the time it takes to produce food, not much relief from actual shortages can be expected during 1945," he said.

"The supply of food we have available to use at this time was fixed by what was done a year or more ago, just as what we do now will determine the food supply that will be on hand next year."

For the months ahead, he said, meats, food fats and vegetable oils, sugar, condensed and evaporated milk and canned fruits and vegetables will continue in short supply. In addition rice and dried beans will get shorter. The only bright spots, he said, are milk, wheat, potatoes and fresh vegetables.

"The total demand for meat will continue far above our supply," he said.

Anderson gave this picture of the prospective food supply—a picture which he described as "not an optimistic one on the whole"—in a talk over the American Broadcasting company network and at a news conference held earlier.

The report on the food outlook—the first broad one given by him since he became secretary of agriculture July 1—said the government was taking "positive steps" to deal with shortages.

SENATORS OPPOSE WAGE RISE CURB

Washington, July 16 (A. P.).—Five Senators took a stand today that the Government ought not to impose barriers against wage raises up to a rate of 65 cents an hour. They asked that Congress take a similar stand by approving a resolution directing that the War Labor Board consider as "substantial" all wages under 65 cents.

This would leave employers free to raise wages to that rate without WLB approval. WLB now recognizes 55 cents as the minimum standard wage. Further, the five Senators recommended that Congress consider soon amending the fair labor standards act to raise the statutory minimum wage and broaden its coverage. This law, generally known as the Wagner act, requires that firms engaged in interstate commerce pay a minimum of 40 cents an hour.

The recommendations came from a labor sub-committee composed of Senators Pepper (D.-Fla.), Thomas (D.-Utah), Tunnell (D.-Del.), La Follette (Prog.-Wis.) and Aiken (R.-Vt.). The resolution was introduced by Pepper, La Follette and Senator Johnston (D.-S. C.).

VINSON IS NAMED TREASURY HEAD

WASHINGTON, July 16 — (AP) President Truman today nominated Fred M. Vinson as Secretary of the Treasury and John W. Snyder to step into Vinson's post as director of war mobilization and reconversion.

Snyder, former St. Louis banker, succeeded Vinson only last April as federal loan administrator.

Confirmation of both appointments by the Senate was considered a foregone conclusion.

Tthe nomination of Vinson, 55-year-old Kentuckian, was sent to the Senate earlier than planned. President Truman had expected to send it up after he returned from his present trip to Potsdam. It was transmitted today at the suggestion of retiring Secretary Morgenthau so Vinson could proceed at once with pressing financial decisions.

No successor was named at once for Snyder. His name went to the Senate a few hours after that of Vinson. The latter's was accompanied by two others.

Mr. Truman submitted the appointment of Theron Lamar Caudle, Wadesboro, N. C., as assistant attorney general to succeed Tom C. Clark, now attorney general.

Harold William Judson of California was nominated as assistant solicitor general succeeding Hugh B. Cox, who resigned giving "personal reasons."

Caudle, 41, has been U. S. attorney for the Western district of North Carolina since 1940.

Judson, 45, practiced law in Kansas City, Mo., in 1925 and 1926, and later in Los Angeles before entering the Navy in 1942. He is a native of Essex, Vt.

on account of sex. Congress and the several states shall have power, within their respective jurisdictions, to enforce this article by appropriate legislation. This amendment shall take effect three years after the date of ratification."

Backed By Parties

The majority stressed that both political parties had recommended such an amendment last year and added that before the proposal became law it would require ratification by 36 states.

"The arduous and efficient service rendered by women . . . during the present war has clearly demonstrated that women are capable of fully participating in the economic activities of this country," the report asserted.

One minority report was signed by Reps. Celler (D.-N. Y.), Lane D.-Mass.), Gorski (D.-Ill.), Feighan (D-Ohio) and Gwynne (R-Iowa). The other was written by Rep. Hobbs (D.-Ala.) and endorsed by Rep. Russell (D.-Texas). Said Hobbs:

"The power here sought to b taken away from the states is to regulate the home, the marriage relation, the welfare of children and parents, property rights of wives, widows, and orphans, and the health, happiness and morals of most of the sovereign people. . . . It is with horror that Congress should contemplate this proposal."

have Butler reconsider his decision.

Mr. Butler's term expires next November. The Senator, who said Butler had remained in office as long as he has only because of the war crisis and at the request of the Justice Department, gave no intimation whom he may have in mind for the appointment.

The letter of Senator McMahon to Mr. Butler follows:

McMahon Letter

"As you and I are both aware, there has been some comment in the Connecticut press on the subject of your proposed retirement.

"You will recollect that last January you told me that you would not be a candidate for reappointment when your term expires in November. I asked you at that time to reconsider your decision, but you stated that it was final. You also informed me that you had notified the Attorney General of your decision.

"During our pleasant conversation here about two weeks ago, you reiterated your decision to retire at times.

Added to the actual shortage is a big problem of distribution. Germany's damaged railroad system may have to be supplemented by American Army transport to move even the limited supplies that the district affords.

War department officials were said to be pressing for a decision on the appointment of a food director because of the acuteness of the situation.

Gillette, long a member of the Senate Agriculture and Foreign Relations committees, also has been mentioned recently as a possible appointee for assistant secretary of state if James F. Byrnes, the new secretary, makes expected sweeping changes in the department after his return from the Big Three meeting.

Gillette Under Consideration As Food Head in Germany

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP) Former Senator Guy Gillette of Iowa was reported under consideration today for appointment as director of food production and distribution in the American-occupied portion of Germany.

Gillette, whose resignation as chairman of the Surplus War Property board became effective July 15, conferred with President Truman before the latter left for the current Big Three meeting, but there has been no public indication of the White House attitude on the appointment.

If Gillette is named to the post, he would operate directly under Lt. Gen Lucius Clay, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's deputy for civil affairs in the American zone. General Eisenhower is the U. S. representative on the Allied Control Commission for Germany.

The Germans have been told to pitch in and produce food, with the warning that the alternative is hunger. This is less of a problem in the eastern breadbasket portion of Germany, occupied by the Russians, although the Soviet has contended that most of the producing areas there are so devastated that they can supply little more than their own population.

Western Germany, occupied by the Americans and British, is a deficit food area even in normal

SEEKS GLASS'S SEAT

Washington, July 16 (A. P.).—John Locke Green, treasurer of Arlington County, Va., plans to petition the Virginia Court of Appeals to declare the veteran Carter Glass's Senate seat vacant.

Green, in challenging the right of the 87-year-old Virginian to hold his seat through prolonged illness, declared that Glass has not answered a Senate roll call since June 20, 1942.

"His seat is either abandoned or vacated," Green told a reporter. "We have courts to decide such a question and I intend to file the petition to see what happens."

In the event the seat were declared vacant, Gov. Colgate W. Darden Jr. could call an election, this November for a successor, Green explained.

Congress Engages In New Battle Over Equal Rights For Women

Washington, July 16—(AP)—A battle over equal rights for men and women began in Congress today. The House Judiciary Committee touched off the controversy by filing a majority report urging adoption of legislation proposing an equal rights amendment to the Constitution.

The report said such action is needed to halt what it termed discrimination against women in the form of lower pay schedules, and to prevent their exclusion from many jobs.

Vigorous Protests

Protesting vigorously, seven committee members filed two minority reports condemning the suggested amendment.

They asserted it would take away many rights women need, such as special health laws, and that it would be "mischief breeding" and "confusing." It would, they said, raise such questions as whether a wife shouldn't be equally liable with the husband for support of a family or paying alimony.

The majority report, unsigned, recommended simply that Congress submit to the states this proposed constitutional amendment:

"That equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or any state

BUTLER PLANS TO QUIT POST ARE CONFIRMED

U. S. Attorney Not to Seek Reappointment—Praised by Senator M'Mahon

Washington, July 16—(Special)—Sen. Brien MacMahon (D.), of Connecticut, today confirmed reports that U. S. Attorney Robert P. Butler will not seek reappointment for another term by releasing a letter he has written Mr. Butler praising his work and stating he had sought to

W. A. Gallahan to Head Salary Stabilization Unit

Succeeds A. D. Burford in Internal Revenue Bureau Post

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP).—W. A. Gallahan has been appointed head of the government's salary stabilization unit, the office that has something to say about whether a salaried person can get a rise in pay.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue announced today that Mr. Gallahan succeds A. D. Burford as deputy commissioner of the bureau in charge of the salary stabilization unit.

Mr. Gallahan has been acting deputy commissioner since January. Mr. Burford, who has suffered a prolonged illness, has been assigned as special agent-in-charge at Dallas, Tex., at his own request. Mr. Gallahan, forty-eight, has served in the Treasury Department for twenty-six years.

Tthe salary stabilization unit administers the wage and salary stabilization act of 1942 as it applies to salaries in excess of $5,000 a year and also salaries of less than $5,000 paid to administrative, executive and professional personnel who are not represented by a labor organization. Mr. Burford has been head of the unit and Mr. Gallahan his assistant ever since it was created in October, 1942.

BUTTER POINTS CUT TO STOP SPOILAGE

Washington, July 16 (A. P.).—Stores sold butter at sixteen ration points a pound today as the Government put into effect a major segment of its plan to improve the meat situation.

Elsewhere on the food front, the Republican Congressional Food Study Committee issued a statement saying that an increase in the price of bread and a reduction in the quantity produced may result from failure of the administration to provide adequate sugar supplies.

The reduction from twenty-four to sixteen points for creamery butter is expected by the OPA to prevent deterioriation in retail stores during the season of peak butter production. Farm or country butter remains unchanged at twelve points a pound, and margarine continues at fourteen points.

A ten-million pound increase in civilian butter supplies is expected next month, the OPA said, as a result of a cut in the amount ordered set aside for military use.

Householders have been buying less butter in the last two or three weeks, the OPA said in announcing the point cut a fortnight ahead of the date it previously reported such action probable.

The OPA warned however, that the point value would be increased again if butter sells too rapidly.

The Republican Food Study Committee's report on bread quoted Representative Jenkins of Ohio, chairman of the unofficial group, as saying most bakers have had to make up losses on bread output with profits from such sweet goods as rolls, cakes and pastries.

He asserted that sugar quotas for bakeries have been cut to 60 per cent of their 1941 volume and that many bakers report they actually are able to obtain only 44 to 50 per cent.

Citizens Urged to Order Winter Fuel Oil at Once

O. W. I. Asks Inactive Nurses to Return to Duty

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP).—The Office of War Information said today:

"The government needs and asks its citizens in this 188th week of the war against Japan to:

"Order your next winter's fuel oil immediately. Military requirements leave 5,500,000 barrels less storage space than last year. Home tanks can help make up the deficit and prevent shortage later.

"Return to duty if you are one of the 30,000 inactive graduate registered nurses or a trained nurse's aide. Your local hospital needs you to help care for a record number of patients.

"Buy only what you need and at ceiling prices. Compliance with price, wage and rationing controls will save your money and help prevent the ruinous inflation that, in the last war, came after fighting had ceased.

"Apply for only as much canning sugar as you will use. If essential civilian food requirements are to be met next winter, all the sugar allotted for home canning must be used for this purpose.

"Help care for the wounded or fill another important Navy job by joining the Waves. Twenty thousand new recruits are needed and food and housing allowances have been substantially increased. See your nearest Navy recruiting office."

U. S. Plans to Use Portion Of Idle Silver for Money

Senator Says Treasury Will Free 300,000,000 Ounces

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP).—Senator Abe Murdock, Democrat, of Utah, told the Senate today that the Treasury and President Truman have agreed that 300,000,000 ounces of idle government silver shall be used for money.

In effect, this "monetization" means the Treasury can issue $387,000,000 in silver certificates, holding the 300,000,000 ounces as backing for this currency.

Senator Murdock told reporters the action will "help the prestige of silver money throughout the world." He said also it would save money in two ways:

1. For the interest, which would have to be paid if the $387,000,000 were obtained by borrowing. (Senator Murdock estimated this interest at $7,740,000 a year.)

2. It would put $246,000,000 into the Treasury as "seigniorage."

Here's what the Senator meant by that: The Treasury now has 694,212,000 ounces of silver bullion which is "free silver" in that it has not been committed for monetary use. This silver cost the government an average of 47 cents an ounce. To "monetize" any of this silver would instantly bring the value of that portion of the metal stock up to $1.29 an ounce, since that is the lawful price of monetary silver.

At 47 cents an ounce, 300,000,000 ounces originally cost the government $141,000,000. If this much silver were monetized, its value would leap to $387,000,000. The difference in value, or "profit" to the Treasury, would be $246,000,000. This is called "seigniorage."

Senator Murdock also said issuance of silver certificates would be less inflationary than issuance of "credit money."

'A' CARD HOLDERS WHO MOVE MAY GET NEW TIRES

Washington, July 16—(AP)—Passenger car owners, including "A" card holders, became eligible today for new tires for a bona fide change of address that required a special gasoline ration.

This is the first time since the beginning of tire rationing that any "A" card holders have been eligible for new tires.

"This extension of the eligibility is particularly needed now that increasing numbers of persons are moving from one city to another," OPA said in announcing that:

These persons may apply for new tires if they have a tire failure while making a permanent change of residence, regardless of the type of ration they hold:

1. War workers moving from one city to another as production shifts from one type of war goods to another and to civilian goods.

2. Members of the armed forces moving to a new port.

3. Discharged veterans returning home or moving to another city to accept a job.

Before being eligible to apply, a motorist must have been issued a special gasoline ration for the trip.

27,000 in 12 Steel Casting Plants Win WLB Order

WASHINGTON, July 16 (AP)—The War Labor Board ruled today that certain wage adjustments and vacation and shift differentials for 27,000 employes of twelve steel casting companies should be retroactive in "most cases" to the date when union contracts with the company terminated. Industry members dissented.

Denied were the union's requests for an extension of the retroactive provisions relating to time and a half on six prescribed holidays and for an earlier retroactive date than Aug. 26, 1944, in the case of employes of the American Steel Foundries, Chicago.

The companies affected are National Roll and Foundry Company, Avonmere, Pa.; Mackintosh, Hemphill Company of Pittsburgh, Fort Pitt Steel Casting Company, McKeesport, Pa.; National Malleable and Steel Casting Company, Cleveland; Continental Foundry and Machine Company, McConway & Torley Company, Reliance Steel Casting Company and United Engineering and Foundry Company, Pittsburgh; Electric Steel Castings Company, Indianapolis; National Erie Corporation, Erie Pa., and Symington-Gould Corporation of Rochester, N. Y.

Labor Efficiency Gains In Merchant Shipyards

Washington, July 16 (AP)—Labor efficiency in merchant shipyards has increased 27 per cent in two years, the Maritime Commission reported today.

With the increase in the productivity of workers, a drop in employment has been considerably greater than the decline in ship construction, the commission said. Twenty-seven per cent more tonnage per man was delivered in the first six months of this year than in 1943.

In 1943 an average working force of 673,000 employes built 6,810,800 lightship tons of vessels. (Lightship tons indicate the weight if a ship were put on a scale and weighed.) This was an average of 1,686 pounds of ship per employe per month.

In the first half of 1945 average employment was 454,374 and tonnage was 2,926,700, or an average of 2,147 pounds of ship per man.

Only One WAC Knew Date of D-Day in Europe

New York, July 16—(AP)—WAC Staff Sergeant Bella Sharp of Leslie, S. C., who proved that little ladies can keep big secrets, returned here yesterday from Europe, arriving by air with the first full contingent of WACS to come home under the Army's redeployment program.

Sgt. Sharp, who worked as a stenographer on pre-invasion plans, said she was the only one of the enlisted personnel of the first division who knew when D-Day was coming.

Disproving male propaganda that women are impatient guardians of a secret, Sergeant Sharp kept the D-day news well under her overseas cap. She won the Bronze Star Medal, six campaign stars on her European Theater Ribbon and 86 discharge points for her service. She says she will not ask for a discharge.

She arrived with a group of 67 WACS, most of whom had served more than a year in Great Britain or in Europe. Several were overseas two years.

TRUMAN LACKS TIME FOR DE GAULLE VISIT

WASHINGTON, July 16 —(AP) State department officials said today President Truman's omission from his European itinerary of a visit to France was not meant as a rebuff to General de Gaulle.

"It is nothing of the sort," a spokesman said, explaining that Truman "has had to refuse many bids to visit the chiefs of other European countries because of pressing domestic matters."

The President's skirting of France in his trip from Antwerp and Brussels to Potsdam, site of the Big Three conference, had stirred speculation in diplomatic quarters here that De Gaulle was being ignored.

Madigan Named To Aircraft Board

Washington, July 16 (A. P.).—M. J. Madigan of New York city has been appointed a member of the Aircraft Production Board, it was announced today.

Madigan takes the place on the board formerly held by Lieut.-Gen. William S. Knudson, who has returned to private life. Madigan will continue as assistant to Under-Secretary of War Patterson.

AIR PRIORITIES TIGHT

WASHINGTON, July 16—(AP) The War department announced today it will not grant air priorities to travelers "denied sleeping car accommodations" under the 450-mile no-Pullman order of the Office of Defense Transportation.

A "substantial increase" in requests for air priority has followed the sleeping car ban, the department said.

Asked about the statement, Army officials said it did not mean that priorities on air trips of less than 450 miles would be denied if urgent missions directly connected with the war effort were involved.

2,375 TROOPS ARRIVE

NEW YORK, July 16—(AP) Two ships, the U. S. army transport Torrens and the freighter Thaddeus Kosciuszko, arrived today from Europe with 2,375 troops for reassignment.

The Torrens, a former Norwegian ship making its first Atlantic crossing since the beginning of the war, carried 2,001 men, members of the 214th field artillery group, 209th field artillery, 425th field artillery, Ninth air force, First tactical air force, 288th railhead company, 474th ordnance evacuation company and the Eighth infantry division.

Aboard the freighter which carried 374 men were members of the 3052nd quartermaster salvage collecting company, the 6837th, 6838th, 6839th, 6840th, 6841st, 6842nd and 6843rd quartermaster detachments.

They were scheduled to go to Camp Kilmer, N. J.

ASSOCIATED PRESS AVIATION EDITOR

BERLIN, JULY 16-(AP)-ALLIED AND ENEMY OFFICERS ARE GENERALLY AGREED THAT THE WAR WOULD HAVE LASTED LONGER AND BEEN MUCH TOUGHER IF NAZI GERMANY HAD STARTED HER UNDERGROUND AIRCRAFT AND OIL PRODUCTION PROGRAM SIX TO 10 MONTHS EARLIER.

AMERICAN OFFICIALS SAY THE UNDERGROUND PLANTS WERE VIRTUALLY INVULNERABLE AND AIR ASSAULTS WOULD NECESSARILY BEEN DIRECTED AGAINST FEEDER FACTORIES, TRANSPORTATION AND STORAGES OF FINISHED PRODUCTS. THEY ASSERT THAT WHILE THE FINAL OUTCOME WOULD HAVE BEEN THE SAME, THE AIR FORCES WOULD HAVE HAD CONSIDERABLY GREATER OPPOSITION AND A MORE DIVERSIFIED TASK.

ONE OFFICER SAID THE SUBTERRANEAN INDUSTRY WOULD HAVE HAD TO BE STARVED TO DEATH, JUST AS THE NAZI MILITARY MACHINE DIED OF THIRST FOR PETROLEUM.

FULL DETAILS OF THE GERMAN UNDERGROUND SYSTEM HAVE NOT YET BEEN RELEASED BUT TWO MAJOR TYPES OF CONSTRUCTION HAVE BEEN SHOWN TO TOURING AVIATION WRITERS.

JUL 18 1945

THE TYPE PREVIOUSLY DESCRIBED WAS A LOW COST, BASILY CONSTRUCTED SEMI-UNDERGROUND PLANT INTENDED PRINCIPALLY AS AN AIRCRAFT ASSEMBLY UNIT.

A PRIME EXAMPLE OF THIS WAS AN INSTALLATION AT MUHLDORF, NEAR MUNICH, ONE OF SEVEN SUCH PROJECTS, INTENDED FOR THE ASSEMBLY OF MESSERSCHMIDTS 262S, A TWIN-ENGINE, JET-PROPELLED FIGHTER WHICH COULD BE CONVERTED TO BOMBER AND RECONNAISSANCE USE.

THE OTHER TYPE IS AN UNDERGROUND FACTORY BLASTED INTO THE MOUNTAINSIDE, SUCH AS THAT AT EBENSEE, AUSTRIA, NEAR SALZBURG, WHERE PETROLEUM NOW IS PRODUCED FOR THE ALLIES. NEXT TO THE OIL PLANT WAS A VAST CAVE FOR ME-262 ASSEMBLY.

A GERMAN OFFICIAL SAID THE BERLIN AIRCRAFT ASSEMBLY PLANT HAD NOT BEEN STARTED.

HE EXPLAINED THE MAJOR SHORTAGE WAS MANPOWER, AND THAT ONLY 8,000 SLAVE LABORERS WERE AVAILABLE WHILE 20,000 WERE NEEDED.

THE EBENSEE PLANT STARTED PRODUCTION LAST FEBRUARY. IT IS CURRENTLY PRODUCING ONLY 500 TONS DAILY BECAUSE OF INABILITY TO GET MORE CRUDE OIL. PEAK CAPACITY IS RATED AT 300,000 TONS ANNUALLY WHICH WOULD MAKE IT THE LARGEST CRUDE REFINERY IN THE REICH. THE OUTPUT WAS BROKEN INTO 10 PER CENT GASOLINE, 35 PER CENT DIESEL OIL, 6 PER CENT PARAFFINE, 10 PER CENT ASPHALT, 10 PER CENT HEATING OIL AND 29 PER CENT LUBRICANTS. A CAVE FOR HIGH OCTANE GASOLINE PRODUCTION HAD BEEN STARTED ON A MOUNTAINSIDE ACROSS THE RIVER.

A197

THE EBENSEE AREA ACTIVITIES, AS ELSEWHERE, WERE UNCOVERED BY AERIAL RECONNAISSANCE BUT ALLIED AIRFORCES DEEMED BOMBING UNNECESSARY BEFORE THE PLANTS STARTED PRODUCING.

GERMAN AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION ABOVE GROUND WAS REGARDED AS ASTOUNDING IN VIEW OF THE HEAVY ALLIED RAIDS ON BOTH GREAT AND SMALL MANUFACTURING CENTERS.

AIR EXPERTS BELIEVE ATTACKS ON PETROLEUM AND TRANSPORTATION, AIDED BY THE NEAR-OBLITERATION OF VITAL INDUSTRIES LIKE BALL-BEARINGS, WERE MORTAL BLOWS TO HITLER'S WAR MACHINE. THE ACTUAL PRODUCTION OF AIRCRAFT, HOWEVER, RANGED JUST BELOW HALF OF THE TOTAL PLANNED.

HERE ARE SOME FIGURES ON THE ACTUAL, COMPARED WITH THE PLANNED PRODUCTION OF ONE AND TWO-ENGINED CONVENTIONAL AND ALL TYPES OF JET AIRCRAFT: JULY, 1943, 980 AND 1600; JANUARY, 1944, 980 AND 2,000; JULY, 1944, 1,870 AND 3,100; NOVEMBER, 1944, 2,420 AND 3,500; JANUARY, 1945, 1,620 AND 3,500.

THE HIGHEST PRODUCTION OF JET AIRCRAFT WAS 250 IN FEBRUARY, 1945. SINCE THAT TYPE HAD TOP PRIORITY, THE OUTPUT COULD HAVE RISEN RAPIDLY. THE JETS CARRIED THE THREAT OF CONSIDERABLE POTENTIAL DANGER TO THE ALLIED EFFORT BUT PRESENTED NO PROBLEM WHICH THE ALLIES WERE NOT PREPARED TO MEET.

FRANKFURT ON THE MAIN, JULY 16 -(AP)- GERMAN UNIVERSITIES, PURGED OF SUBVERSIVE ACTIVITIES AND COMPLETELY DENAZIFIED, WILL BEGIN TO REOPEN THEIR DOORS BY SEPT. 1, WITH MEDICAL AND THEOLOGICAL SCHOOLS HAVING TOP PRIORITY, THE UNITED STATES GROUP CONTROL COUNCIL ANNOUNCED TODAY.

THE SCHOOLS MOST IMMEDIATELY AFFECTED ARE THE MEDICAL DEPARTMENTS OF HEIDELBERG, MARBURG AND ERLANGEN UNIVERSITIES AND THE THEOLOGICAL DEPARTMENTS OF AT LEAST EIGHT RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS IN THE AMERICAN ZONE.

"ANY PHASE OF TECHNICAL EDUCATION CONDUCIVE TO GOOD MILITARY GOVERNMENT SUCH AS THE PROCESSING OF FOOD, THE BUILDING OF ROADS AND THE MEDICAL AND SPIRITUAL WELFARE OF OUR PEOPLE HAS OUR BLESSING AND WILL BE GIVEN EVERY ASSISTANCE POSSIBLE," A GROUPD CONTROL COUNCIL

"BUT OTHER ACADEMIC PHASES, SUCH AS PHILOSOPHY AND HISTORY WILL HAVE TO WAIT," THE SPOKESMAN ADDED.

HIGH ON THE AGENDA FOR AN EARLY OPENING WERE EIGHT THEOLOGICAL SCHOOLS OF THE KATHOLISCH-PHILOSOPHISCH-THEOLOGISCH-HOCHSCHULEN CLASS -- SCHOOLS WHOSE CURRICULA OFFER COURSES OTHER THAN RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION. BUT ONLY THOSE COURSES LEADING TO THE PRIESTHOOD WILL BE PERMITTED AT THIS TIME. ONE OF THESE SCHOOLS IS AT FRANKFURT AND SEVEN ARE IN BAVARIA, THE MOST IMPORTANT ONE BEING AT FREISING, THE SEAT OF CARDINAL FAULHABER.

WHEN THE HEIDELBERG MEDICAL SCHOOL OPENS IT WILL BE UNDER A NEW HEAD. THE FORMER HEAD HAS BEEN ARRESTED FOR POLITICAL ACTIVITIES, AS HAVE THOUSANDS OF OTHER EDUCATORS WHO BENEFITED UNDER THE HITLER REGIME.

THE GROUP CONTROL COUNCIL SPOKESMAN SAID THAT PAINSTAKING CARE HAD BEEN TAKEN IN SCREENING THE PROFESSORS, AND CITED MUNICH UNIVERSITY AS AN EXAMPLE. HE SAID THAT ONLY 35 OF THE 250 FACULTY MEMBERS WITH FULL PROFESSORSHIPS THERE WERE NON PARTY MEMBERS.

UNLIKE THE GROUP CONTROL COUNCIL'S PLAN FOR CHURCHES, WHICH ARE FINANCED BY A CHURCH TAX AND A STATE SUBSIDY, NO FISCAL SCHEME FOR THE UNIVERSITIES HAS YET BEEN ANNOUNCED.

"FORMERLY THE SCHOOLS WERE FINANCED BY THE STATE AND THE FACULTY MEMBERS WERE CIVIL SERVANTS, AT LEAST TECHNICALLY," THE SPOKESMAN SAID. "SOME UNIVERSITIES DID HAVE SMALL ENDOWMENTS BUT THEY LOOKED TO BERLIN TO PAY THE BILLS. THE FINANCIAL QUESTION WILL NOT BE SETTLED UNTIL THE QUADRIPARTITE MEETING AT BERLIN."

THE SPOKESMAN SAID THAT IT MIGHT BE TWO AND POSSIBLY FIVE YEARS BEFORE THE UNIVERSITIES WOULD BE GIVEN CARTE BLANCH TO OPERATE AS THEY CHOSE.

FREISING, GERMANY, JULY 16-(AP)-THE TRIAL OF TWO MORE GERMAN POLICEMEN FOR THE MURDER OF A BALTIMORE, MD., FLIER LAST DECEMBER WAS COMPLETED TODAY AND THE LAST TWO OF THE SIX DEFENDANTS WILL GO ON TRIAL TOMORROW.

THE FLIER, SHOT TO DEATH AFTER HE PARACHUTED FROM A BURNING BOMBER, WAS T/SGT. DONALD LEY HEIN, WHOSE NEXT OF KIN IS MRS. HELVA M. HEIN OF (2002 WOLFE ST.) BALTIMORE.

A SIX-MAN COURT HEADED BY COL. JAMES R. SPERRY OF COLUMBUS, O., SAT TODAY AT THE TRIAL OF KARL HENKEL, 40, AND WILHELM PLITT, 45, MEMBERS OF THE POLICE DEPARTMENT OF LANGENSELBOLD, A SUBURB OF HANAU. AS IN THE CASE OF TWO MEN TRIED YESTERDAY THE VERDICT WILL REMAIN SECRET UNTIL THE TRIAL OF ALL SIX DEFENDANTS IS COMPLETED.

THE TWO TRIED YESTERDAY, POLICE CHIEF ALBERT BURY, WHO ADMITTED HE ORDERED THE SLAYING, AND WILHELM HAEFNER, WHO SAID HE KILLED THE FLIER WITH A SINGLE SHOT THROUGH THE HEAD, TESTIFIED TODAY AT THE TRIAL OF HENKEL AND PLITT.

IT WAS HENKEL AND PLITT WHO WALKED TO A WOOD AT THE EDGE OF THE VILLAGE AND WATCHED WHILE HAEFNER KILLED THE SERGEANT. HAEFNER SAID THE VICTIM WAS NOT INFORMED OF WHAT WAS GOING TO HAPPEN, AND DID NOT FLINCH WHEN THE PISTOL WAS POINTED AT HIS HEAD FROM A DISTANCE OF ABOUT 15 FEET.

THE FLIER HAD PARACHUTED FROM A FLAMING BOMBER TWO HOURS EARLIER AND HAD BEEN MARCHED TO THE POLICE STATION BY A GARDENER AND A GERMAN SOLDIER WHO CAPTURED HIM. THESE WITNESSES TESTIFIED THAT THE AIRMAN WAS UNARMED.

HENKEL AND PLITT TESTIFIED THEY HAD NOTHING TO DO WITH THE FLIER'S DEATH. BUT THE PROSECUTOR, LT.COL. ALBERT LANGELLUTIG OF CHICAGO, BROUGHT HAEFNER TO THE STAND AND HE TESTIFIED THAT HE TOLD PLITT AS THEY WALKED TO THE WOODS WHAT WAS GOING TO HAPPEN.

"I PROTESTED," HENKEL SAID. "I HADN'T KNOWN HE WAS TO BE SHOT."

"I WOULD NEVER COMPLY WITH AN ORDER LIKE THAT," PLITT SAID, REFERRING TO A "SECRET ORDER" THE POLICE CHIEF, BURY, SAID HE HAD RECEIVED CALLING FOR SUMMARY EXECUTION OF ALL ALLIED "HORROR FLIERS." "HENKEL AND I DIDN'T DO ANYTHING," PLITT ADDED.

EGERN ON THE TEGERNSEE, BAVARIA, JULY 16-(AP)-THE MAJOR READ GEN.EISENHOWER'S ORDER RELAXING THE BAN ON FRATERNIZING.

"WHEW," HE SAID SOFTLY. "IT'S GOING TO BE JUST LIKE SATURDAY NIGHT IN JOPLIN, MO., WITH ALL THESE GIS AND ALL THESE FRAULEINS."

BUT THERE WAS NO ABRUPT CHANGE.

THE ORDER, ALLOWING AMERICAN SOLDIERS TO TALK TO GERMAN GROWNUPS ON THE STREETS AND IN PUBLIC PLACES, IS ALMOST 48 HOURS OLD NOW.

PERHAPS IT IS STAGEFRIGHT. MAYBE THEY ALL FEEL A LITTLE SHEEPISH. BUT ANYWAY, THE AMERICAN SOLDIER HAS FLOUNDERED AROUND THESE TWO DAYS AND HAS SCARCELY MUSTERED UP COURAGE TO WHISTLE WHEN HE SEES A GERMAN GIRL.

A SERGEANT AND TWO PRIVATES ARE A FAIR EXAMPLE. THEY HAD BEEN AMONG THOSE SCREAMING THE LOUDEST AGAINST THE ORDER THAT KEPT THEM FROM EVEN TALKING WITH GERMANS, SAYING IT WAS "CRUEL AND INHUMAN."

BILLETED IN ONE OF THE PICTURESQUE LITTLE CHALETS RIMMING THE SHORES AT THIS LAKE RESORT, THEY HAD BEEN EXPOSED DAILY TO SCORES OF BRONZED BAVARIAN AND AUSTRIAN BELLES SUNBATHING.

THESE THREE SAT IN A JEEP TODAY PARKED AT THE EDGE OF A SOFTBALL DIAMOND. THEY WERE NOT FRATERNIZING. THEY WERE JUST TALKING ABOUT IT.

"IT SAYS THAT 'CONVERSATION WITH ADULT GERMANS ON THE STREET AND IN PUBLIC PLACES' IS OKAY," THE SERGEANT SAID.

A GI BEGAN UNTANGLING HIS LEGS FROM THE FRONT SEAT OF THE JEEP.

"DOES THAT MEAN---"

"IT MEANS JUST WHAT IT SAYS," THE SERGEANT SAID. "CONVERSATION!"

"CAN'T YOU EVEN TOUCH THEM?" THE SOLDIER ASKED.

THE THIRD SPOKE UP.

"WHAT," HE ASKED, "IS 'PUBLIC PLACES?'"

THAT WAS AS FAR AS THEY HAD GOT.

THERE MAY BE SEVERAL REASONS BESIDES BASHFULNESS.

THOSE WHO CAME SWASHBUCKLING ACROSS FRANCE AND BELGIUM SWEEPING LADIES OFF THEIR FEET HAVE FOUND THE FRAULEINS JUST DO NOT SWEEP.

FOR ONE THING, MOST OF THEIR MENFOLK ARE HOME NOW. THE DISCHARGE OF GERMAN SOLDIERS BY TENS OF THOUSANDS DAILY HAS PROVIDED ESCORTS FOR MOST YOUNG WOMEN--ESPECIALLY THE MOST ATTRACTIVE ONES.

AND ON THE AUTHORITY OF THE CAMP'S CASANOVA (EVERY CAMP HAS ONE), SOUR BLACK BREAD, CHEESE AND SAUERKRAUT DO NOT EXACTLY MAKE FOR THE BREATH OF SPRING AMONG GERMAN GIRLS.

"ANYWAY, YOU KNOW," HE SAID, "MOST GERMANS HAVEN'T HAD SOAP FOR SIX MONTHS."

CHURCHILL SHOWED AN INTENSE INTEREST IN WHAT THE RUSSIANS KNEW ABOUT THE FATE OF THE CHANCELLERY'S LAST RESIDENTS--DEMANDING TO KNOW IF THEY ALL DIED AND HOW.

AT TIMES, HE STOOD MODDILY LOOKING AT THE RUINS AND THEN HE WOULD POKE THROUGH THE WRECKAGE. ALTHOUGH APPARENTLY TIRED AND SHOWING THE EFFECTS OF THE DAY'S ALMOST SUFFOCATING HEAT, CHURCHILL WALKED BRISKLY AS HE INSPECTED AS MUCH AS POSSIBLE OF THE REMAINS OF HIS SWORN ENEMY'S LAST LAIR. EDEN, IN CONTRAST, SEEMED BRIGHT AND CHEERFUL.

AMONG UNOFFICIAL SOURCES THERE WAS A GENERAL BELIEF THAT THE BIG THREE CONFERENCE WOULD NOT END BEFORE JULY 26, WHEN BRITAIN'S ELECTION RETURNS WOULD BE ANNOUNCED. ON INTERNATIONAL ISSUES, HOWEVER, BRITISH OBSERVERS AFFIRMED THAT CHURCHILL AND CLEMENT ATTLEE--WHO MIGHT BECOME PRIME MINISTER--WOULD SPEAK WITH ONE VOICE IN NEGOTIATING IN THE DISCUSSIONS.

VIRTUALLY ALL THE EUROPEAN PROBLEMS REPORTED UP FOR DISCUSSION IN POTSDAM BEAR IN SOME WAY ON THE SOVIET UNION'S OUTDER DEFENSES, INCLUDING THE MOST IMMEDIATELY PRESSING ONES--THOSE RELATING TO THE BOUNDARIES OF THE NEW EUROPE AND THE FUTURE OF CONQUERED GERMANY.

TRUMAN, FOR HIS PART, WAS SAID TO SEE HIS ROLE NOT SIMPLY AS A MEDIATOR BETWEEN TWO POWERFUL ALLIES, BUT AS THE SPOKESMAN FOR A NATION WHICH IS SEEKING TO ARRANGE THE WORLD STRUCTURE IN WHICH ITS TECHNOLOGICAL LEADERSHIP AND DEMOCRATIC IDEALS WILL PLAY A GREATER PART THAN EVER BEFORE.

"ACTUAL COMPLETION OF THOSE EQUIPMENTS WOULD ENABLE THE JAPANESE TO MEET ENEMY CARRIER PLANES TWICE OR THRICE AS LARGE AS THOSE THAT OPERATED LATELY."

THE NEWSPAPER MAINICHI PROMISED THAT THE UNITED STATES WOULD NEVER WIN AIR SUPREMACY OVER THE JAPANESE MAINLAND BECAUSE NIPPON'S SUICIDE PILOTS WOULD USE THE CARRIER PLANES AS THEIR "MAIN PREY," AND AMERICAN LAND BASED AIRCRAFT FROM OKINAWA WERE TOO SHORT-RANGED TO BE EFFECTIVE.

TURNING TO THE BIG THREE MEETING IN GERMANY, TOKYO PREDICTED THEIR DELIBERATIONS WOULD BE "CENTERED ON JAPAN," BUT THE CONFERENCE WOULD "REACH AN IMPASSE" BECAUSE THE THREE NATIONS WERE NO LONGER BOUND IN THE COMMON CAUSE OF DEFEATING GERMANY.

TRUMAN IS SELECTED TO PRESIDE AS BIG THREE CONFERENCE OPENS; FLEET STILL HAMMERS AT HONSHU

TRUMAN PRESIDES AS 'BIG 3' OPEN VICTORY MEETING

'Preliminary Exchange of Views' Takes Place at First Session.

LITTLE FORMALITY

President Host to Russian Premier at 'Little White House' Luncheon.

By DANIEL DE LUCE

POTSDAM, July 17 — (AP) The big three held the first full-dress session of their great victory conference at 5 p.m. today, and President Truman was invited to preside during the conference. A joint communique issued by Truman, Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill also said the meeting lasted 1½ hours during which "a preliminary exchange of views took place on the matters requiring decision by the heads of the three governments."

The war against Japan unquestionably ranked high on the agenda of the three governmental chieftains, their foreign secretaries, and military advisors.

The communique text:

"The Berlin conference of the heads of the governments of the United Kingdom, the United States of America, and the Soviet Union met this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Truman Presides

"By invitaton of his two colleagues, the President of the United States of America will preside at the meeting of the conference.

"The preliminary exchange of views took place on the matters requiring decision by the heads of the three governments.

"It was decided that the three foreign secretaries should hold regular meetings with a view to preparing the work of the conference."

There was no indication as to what specific "matters requiring decision" had been touched upon, or how strongly, at this first parley in which Missouri-born Truman occupied the chair once reserved for the late President Roosevelt.

It was generally considered by observers however, that out of more than a score of major problems varying from occupation policy to setting the date of the peace conference, the most importance was attached to whether Stalin will change Russia's role in the Pacific war from a passive to an active ally against Japan.

Joint Communique

The communique was issued to correspondents shortly after 11 p.m. at a special meeting. Other than its brief wordage, the only added comment from the American officer who read it aloud was to stress that it was a joint communique from the heads of all three governments.

"Please don't assume that it's strictly an American announcement," he said.

Whether the opening session devoted much attention to the Pacific war problem was not known, but as soon as it ended, Truman conferred during the dinner hour with Secretary of War Henry Stimson, Admiral Ernest F. King and Generals George Marshall and H. H. "Hap" Arnold.

There was a minimum of formality as President Truman, Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill opened their discussions which may secure the peace of Europe, speed victory over Japan and settle the basis of the German peace treaty.

Early defeat of Japan was reported to be a primary purpose of President Truman.

Strict official secrecy was maintained around the meeting site—the Kaiser Wilhelm palace, bordered by flowers, a lake and miniature park, all in striking contrast to the ruins of Berlin itself.

Stalin Luncheon Guest

Stalin met President Truman for the first time at noon in an hour-long conference at the "Little White House" and shared a simple, mid-western style luncheon with him.

Churchill entertained Secretary of War Stimson at luncheon, and was believed to have discussed the Pacific war with him.

These relatively brief luncheons and a sudden cancellation by Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. Army chief of staff, of a planned review of American troops, had been early indications that the first session of the great conference was about to begin.

An unconfirmed rumor said Stalin came here ready to make definite commitments concerning the Pacific war. Churchill's length talks with U. S. military chiefs indicated that the battle ag Japan was one of the major to come before the Big Three.

Stalin, whose absence yesterday caused a postponement of the opening, arrived in Berlin Monday afternoon with Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, it was learned. His whereabouts were one of the best-kept secrets of the momentous parley.

Riding in a glistening black limousine and preceded by half an hour by special green-capped Soviet guards, Stalin arrived at the "Little White House" at 11:50 a.m. with Molotov and two high Russian officers. He was greeted by Truman's military and naval aides, and then was taken to the President's second-floor office.

The two leaders, Molotov and Secretary of State James F. Byrnes talked for an hour there through the aid of interpreters—V. N. Pavlov, who has assisted Stalin at every Big Three conference, and Charles E. Bohlen, veteran of the U. S. Department of State.

What they discussed remained an official secret. Afterward Truman, attired in a brown business suit, presided at luncheon which included fried liver and bacon with onions, baked ham, creamed spinach, string beans, julienne potatoes pumpernickel bread, jam, sliced fruit, cookies, candies, and cigars.

Admiral William D. Leahy, Truman's personal chief of staff attended the luncheon, which ended at 1:45 p.m. Stalin, wearing a fawn-colored uniform, sat at the President's right. Afterward they posed for pictures on a rear porch.

In his quarters, meanwhile, Churchill received Stimson, who had just toured Berlin and had remarked after viewing the ruins that "I feel as though I have done a distasteful duty."

Last night Churchill entertained Gen. Marshall at dinner, and talked lengthily with him afterward, probably about the war in the east.

All day long, explosions rocked the entire Berlin-Potsdam sector, emanating apparently from the Russian zone of occupation.

The blasts, occurring about hourly throughout the day, still were unexplained tonight, but possibly were only supervised demolition work. They added a darkly foreboding touch to a day already dismal from storm clouds and dashes of cold, hard rain.

FIRST BIG 3 SESSION NOW ON IN POTSDAM

JUL 18 1945

Moscow Radio Says Truman Is Presiding—Pacific War Reported High on Agenda—Stalin Lunches With President.

De Luce F Vdcdro

Potsdam, July 17 (A. P.).—The Big Three conference opened this afternoon with a minimum of formalities and indications that President Truman, Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill had the Pacific war at the top of the list of topics. (The Moscow radio said Truman was to preside).

The conference is expected to lay the framework of the eGrman peace treaty and to seek settlement of many worldwide questions that hold the answer to the future of Europe.

Mr. Truman's first objective as he began conversations with the leaders of Great Britain and Russia was reported to be the early defeat of Japan.

Gen. George C. Marshall, United States Army Chief of Staff, whose presence at the full dress opening of the Big Three conference would be essential, canceled at the last minute his planned formal review of American troops in Berlin.

Premier Stalin earlier conferred with President Truman at the Little White House.

The Generalissimo, attired as a marshal of the Soviet Union, was accompanied by Foreign Commissar Molotov. They were guests at luncheon of the President and Secretary of State Byrnes. The party talked for an hour.

The conference had been delayed a day by the lateness of the Russian leader. Mr. Truman met Churchill informally yesterday and during the wait summoned American shipping experts to Potsdam.

Stalin in Potsdam Two Days.

The two Soviet leaders arrived in Potsdam two days ago, it was disclosed. There was no explanation, however, why the opening of the conference had been delayed yesterday.

Churchill ate luncheon with Secretary of War Stimson after entertaining Gen. Marshall, chief of staff of the United States Army, at dinner last night. Stimson's views on the Pacific war were understood to have been given to Churchill. Stimson arrived after touring the wrecked center of Berlin, remarking of the sight: "I feel as though I have done a distasteful duty."

The Russians appeared at Mr. Truman's residence at 11:50 A. M. with their official interpreter, V. N. Pavlov, and were greeted by the President's military and naval aids and then by Mr. Truman and his Secretary of State in their offices on the second floor.

Charles E. Bohlen of the State Department was the American interpreter. Pavlov has accompanied Stalin to all the previous Big Three meetings. The six were together for an hour before going to lunch.

Truman Wears Brown Suit.

Mr. Truman wore a brown business suit and sat at the head of the table. The Generalissimo's uniform was fawn-colored with silver-edged stars on the epaulets. He sat on the President's right.

Pavlov and Molotov sat to Stalin's right in that order, while Byrnes, Bohlen and Admiral William D. Leahy, Mr. Truman's personal chief of staff, were at the President's left in that order.

Mr. Truman had seen Prime Minister Churchill informally yesterday when the British leader called to pay his respects.

The luncheon was concluded at 2:45 P. M. The menu included creamed spinach, fried liver and bacon, smothered with onions, baked ham, julienne potatoes, string beans, pumpernickel bread, jam, sliced fruit, cookies, mint candies and cigars.

It was the kind of easy-going meeting without frills, which delights the democratic Missourian making his debut in the world's biggest political circle. For Stalin—whose pleasures also have been simple except when the Russian tradition of gorgeous formalities requires Herculean fetes—it was an opportunity to size up at leisure the successor of President Roosevelt.

Topics of Talk Not Revealed.

Mr. Truman is just getting used to the sometimes cumbersome business of interpreters, but this was a smooth beginning.

What they talked about remained secret.

Stalin met Byrnes at the Yalta conference. Bohlen went to Moscow after that meeting in the Crimea as State Department trouble shooter, assisting Ambassador W. Averell Harriman in tripartite efforts to form a Polish government satisfactory to the United States, Russian and

30.24-28455

Great Britain.

Both Stalin and Churchill threw protocol overboard in going themselves to pay their respects first to President Truman, the freshman member. Although Potsdam is in the Russian zone of occupation, the American and British quarters there are territorial islands. Soviet authorities have scrupulously avoided making any claim to being "host" Power. The Potsdam meeting, they would have it be known, is a conference among three co-equal hosts. There are no "guests."

JUL 18 1945

Not Like Russian Banquets.

The luncheon varied considerably from the Russian affairs which last hours and require champagne, often by the cases. This one lasted less than sixty minutes. The participants left the table and went to the rear porch of the American villa overlooking a tree-ringed resort lake. They posed for pictures at the top and half way down the stairs. Three official United States Army and three Russian photographers recorded the event. No pictures were taken of the Generalissimo entering or leaving the little White House.

Stalin wore a single decoration, believed to be the Gold Star of the Hero of the Soviet Union.

The luncheon was a great occasion for Navy Filipino service men from the Presidential yacht Potomac, who had not known what guests to expect when they were getting the dining room ready early in the morning. The presidential aids who first bid the Russians welcome were Brig.-Gen. Harry Vaughan and Capt. James R. Vardaman, United States Navy.

Mr. Truman directed Vice-Admiral Emory S. Land, chief of the United States Maritime Commission, to proceed to Germany as soon as possible, indicating that world shipping and utilization of the United States's greatest merchant fleet in history would play a part in the discussions.

Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the United States Army Air Forces, is on the conference scene.

The President's call for Land came as no surprise. In pre-conference discussions with his staff before he left Washington, President Truman decided to direct the top shipping official to stand by and be prepared to join the Big Three parley. Land attended the Roosevelt-Churchill Quebec discussions and furnished advice at later Big Three meetings.

Agenda Covers Wide Range.

The parley agenda will cover a worldwide range of subjects, including territorial disputes, occupation, rehabilitation and stabilization.

American and British newspapers which reached here predicted that the question of Russian participation in the Pacific war would be a likely question for discussion. They also forecast that the three Allied leaders would take up the problem of administrative control of Germany.

The President had as dinner guests last night Edward Pauley, chairman of the American section of the Tripartite Reparations Commission; Joseph E. Davies, the President's special emissary to London; W. Averell Harriman, Ambassador to Russia, and Secretary Byrnes.

President Favors Publicity.

A formal communique will be issued at the conclusion of the conferences, which will be conducted in strict secrecy, although it has been reported that President Truman favors earlier communiques when progress of the parley warrants.

This was the procedure he followed during the secret inquiries of his Senate War Investigating Committee when war security kept many things off the record.

President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill toured devastated Berlin in separate inspections yesterday. President Truman said that the sight of the wrecked city strengthened his determination to leave unexplored no avenue for keeping the peace in the future.

Speculation Over Topics

BERLIN, July 17 (AP)—There was no indication of what specific "matters requiring decision" had been touched upon at today's meeting of the Big Three, but it was generally considered by observers that out of more than a score of major problems, from occupation policy to setting the date of the peace conference, the greatest importance was attached to whether Premier Stalin would change Russia's role in the Pacific war from passive to active.

Whether the opening session devoted much attention to the Pacific war was not known, but it was remarked that President Truman conferred at dinner with Mr. Stimson, Admiral King and Generals Marshall and Arnold.

Although Potsdam is in the Russians' zone of occupation, they avoided making any claim of being the "host" power but insisted that the conference was among three equal hosts.

In Berlin, German Communist circles hailed the meeting as assuring tripartite collaboration in European reconstruction, in suppression of the remains of fascism, which the Communists say still exists in Spain and Portugal, and in efforts to restore the recovery of France and Germany.

STALIN TAKES OWN GUARDS WITH HIM

Potsdam, July 17 (A. P.).—Green-capped Russian special frontier guards appeared at the Little White House today half an hour before Premier Joseph Stalin arrived and took positions alongside the American military police. A shiny black Packard limousine, followed by two open cars, drove up at 11:50 A. M.

The car was of the same type used by Russian officials in Moscow and put at the disposal there of such dignitaries as Prime Minister Winston Churchill, President Eduard Benes of Czecho-Slovakia and Gen. Charles de Gaulle of France. It has bullet-proof glass and presumably is armored.

There was no mistaking the profile and mustache of the military figure sitting on the jump seat behind the major-chauffeur. With Stalin in the back were Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov and two high Russian officers, whose names Americans could not determine readily.

The group of four marched up to the porch of the Little White House, where Stalin cordially shook hands with President Truman's military and naval aids and with the President's old-time war buddy, United States Marshal Fred Canfil of Kansas.

Stalin's Zavtrakh Awaits President

Potsdam, July 17 (AP)—President Truman, the freshman of the Big Three, has yet to run the toast-making gantlet of a Stalin "Zavtrakh."

But the time is nearly at hand.

"Zavtrakh" is a Russian word used variously for "tomorrow morning" and "breakfast."

But when the Soviet Premier invites Truman to a "Zavtrahk," as he assuredly will in return for the President's hospitality today of baked ham and fried liver, it will mean a state banquet with the food ranging from Caspian caviar to Louis XVI pastries—and toasts in everything from hunter's vodka with the power of liquid fire to the rarest of old Caucasian wines.

Great Hopes Expressed

Truman's friends are betting the President will make a competent Zavtrahk debut. He has, they say, stamina of many sorts.

A Soviet toast, like a Churchill speech in the House of Commons, is not idly thought up or dully expressed.

Stalin is not a loquacious man, but American and British personages who have heard him in action at Zavtrakhs during the last year call him truly eloquent.

His favorite topics for the benefit of Anglo-American auditors in the past have been England's stand alone in 1940, America's contributions in both wealth and blood to the common victory and the need for mutual confidence and co-operation among the wartime allies in the future.

Air Cover By Carrier Planes In Night Attack Proves Unnecessary—Copper Smelters And Aircraft, Electrical And Engine Plants Targets

Guam, Wednesday, July 18 (AP)—The British battleship King George V and escorting ships joined the United States Pacific Fleet's 45,000-ton dreadnought, Iowa, and other powerful warships in a great bombardment force to shell copper and war-industry plants at Hitachi, only 80 miles from Tokyo, early this morning.

NIGHT

This was the first time British Men o' War had fired shells into the Japanese homeland.

(The Japanese Domei agency, acknowledging the bombardment of the Hitachi area hours later said it extended as far southward as Mito, only 55 miles northeast of Tokyo. The English-language broadcast beamed to North America described the force, however, as "a small number of surface craft" and said the assault caused "only slight damage."

(The enemy radio also said "a small number" of Superforts were ranging over the northeastern Kanto (Tokyo-Yokohama) district "on a nuisance night raid mission" while the bombardment was in progress.)

The bombardment followed only a few hours a 1,500 carrier plane attack on the Tokyo region, extending northeast to Hitachi, by aircraft launched from the world's most powerful naval force, the combined U. S. Third Pacific and British Pacific fleets.

The great battle line, including some of the most devastating battleships of both the American and British navies, stood off the eastern Honshu coast in a rainy, misty night, steadily throwing their 2,700-pound 16-inch shells into Hitachi's highly concentrated aircraft, electrical and Diesel engine plants and copper smelters.

Within Six Miles of Shore

Correspondents watching the thrilling show from aboard Adm. William F. Halsey, Jr.'s warships reported the dreadnaughts closed to within about six miles of shore.

The Japanese offered no opposition.

The attack was begun about midnight Tuesday, Japanese time (11 a.m. Tuesday, Eastern Standard Time) and continued two hours.

Overhead, British and American carrier planes flew a protective escort but their defensive cover proved unnecessary. The Japanese still declined to attack the world's most powerful naval force by sea or air, presumably hoarding their aircraft for the invasion they know can not be far off.

Low, thick clouds prevented aerial observers from immediately estimating damage of the attack, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said in a communique announcing the bombardment. The Admiral, in a broadcast to the United States yesterday, termed this bombing and bombardment phase the "preinvasion stage" of the Pacific war.

The bombardment force of battleships and their accompanying cruisers and destroyers started to run in toward Hitachi, at the north end of the Kanto plain, late yesterday after the Tokyo area had been swept for more than eight hours by fighter and bomber flights from both U. S. carrier task force 38 and carriers of the British Pacific fleet.

Halsey, in overall command of the combined American-British fleet, has not yet reported any results of yesterday's concerted strikes over the Tokyo area.

Thousand-plane U. S. carrier sweeps on July 10, which opened the Third fleet's audacious capering up and down nearly half of Japan's eastern coastline, destroyed or damaged 342 Japanese airplanes. Air assaults Saturday and Sunday over northern Honshu and Hokkaido sank or damaged 374 ships and small craft totalling 159,000 tons.

Although Nimitz did not announce the names of any ships participating in the Hitachi bombardment except the British King George and the American Iowa, it was possible that all of the British ships named by him yesterday—the cruisers Newfoundland and Black Prince and the destroyers Troubridge, Barfelur, Undine and Grenville and the Australian destroyer Quickmatch—were in on the attack. Other U. S. battleships which bombarded Honshu and Hokkaido targets last week—the Missouri, Wisconsin, Indiana, South Dakota and Massachusetts—along with the cruisers Chicago, Quincy, San Juan, Springfield and Atlanta, probably were firing their 6 and 8 inch shells into Hitachi's industrial targets.)

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz declared these new blows, a continuation of week-long smashes by the Third Fleet along the Nippon coast, marked the "pre-invasion stage" of the war.

The bombarding force, led by the great new battleship Iowa, struck the industrial area of Hitachi, only 80 miles from Tokyo.

This smashing blow by night followed the eight-hour or longer attack on Tokyo district targets by the American and British carrier planes, in the first combined naval operation.

B-29's Blast Cities

The B-29s started the day of terrific blasting at Japan's dwindling industrial centers and air fields with a pre-dawn raid on four cities. They were Hiratsuka, Numazu, Kuwanan and Oita, located along a 400-mile stretch between Tokyo and the inland sea.

The planes of the combined carrier force, under the overall command of the Third Fleet's Adm. William F. Halsey, strafed and bombed air fields and other targets between Tokyo and Hitachi—the bombardment target.

The British task force, which Nimitz said included the battleship King George V, the carrier Formidable, the cruisers Newfoundland and Black Prince and screening destroyers, was commanded by Vice Adm. Sir Bernard Rawlings. Vice Adm. Sir Philip Vian commanded the carriers.

Units of the British Pacific fleet had previously been in action along the Ryukyu islands, south of Japan, but it was the fleet's first blow at the enemy mainland.

The joint operation with the U. S. Third Fleet seemingly put an end to discussions about whether American and British task forces could operate together. Some critics had claimed the British ships were too slow and not prepared for refueling and resupplying at sea.

All reports indicated the Japanese were still offering only token opposition to the mighty naval force which has cruised 600 miles north of Tokyo along the homeland coast and back again, bombarding and bombing again and again.

Never before in naval history has a fleet ranged up and down virtually half of the enemy's coast line with such impunity.

Nimitz announced that carrier plane sweeps last Saturday and Sunday over northern Honshu and Hokkaido destroyed or damaged 374 Japanese ships and small craft, 129 railroad locomotives and a variety of factories, oil tanks, railroad yards and stations, warehouses, ammuniton depots, canneries and other targets.

American losses in action were 24 aircraft, 10 pilots and six air crewmen.

Thirty-seven Japanese planes were destroyed and 45 damaged in the two days, Nimitz announced; a revision of previously reported enemy losses.

No Superforts Lost

B-29 flyers returning to Marianas bases from the Tuesday raid declared they observed conflagrations spreading in all four cities. All B-29s returned.

Other air activity, announced Tuesday, included the first raid by Navy patrol privateers from Ryukyu bases against Japanese-held Shanghai. The attack was made Monday by six planes, which struck at tree-top level.

Lt. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead arrived at Okinawa to direct expanding operations of the Fifth Air Force. The Fifth and Seventh Air Forces, now based on Okinawa, have been sending bombers and fighters against southern Japan.

U.S.S. Iowa's 16-Inch Guns Lead Pounding Of Mainland Mills

FARON JUL 18 1945

Guam, July 17 (AP)—A daring naval task force steamed within 80 miles of Tokyo tonight (Japan time) and shelled industrial targets around Hitachi on the heels of an eight-hour raid on the Tokyo area by 1,500 planes from American and British carriers.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced the shelling while it was still under way, only a few hours after he reported that carrier planes had knocked out 374 Nipponese vessels and 129 locomotives in their week-end sweep over northern Japan.

The new battleship Iowa, with her 16-inch guns, led the bombardment group in the closest approach of any United States naval task force to the Japanese capital.

Four More Cities Raided

A curtain of steel from the Iowa and supporting cruisers and destroyers hammered at Hitachi's vital copper smelter and aircraft parts plants, previous target of Marianas-based Superforts. Meanwhile, nearly 500 planes from the Marianas lashed at four other Nipponese cities today.

It was the third naval bombardment of Japan's coastal industries within four days. The Iowa presumably led the bombardment ships in close to shore for the night attack upon the plants, which lie about a mile off the coast.

One Week's Attacks

In a week, Admiral William F. Halsey's 3d Fleet has ranged from Tokyo to the northern end of Japan and back again, smashing with bombs and shells vital steel, munitions and oil plants, shipping, and rail transportation and airfields.

Japan has taken all this without more than token resistance.

Today's unprecedented assault on the Tokyo area was part of a preinvasion attack by 2,000 or more Allied planes, ranging from stubby little fighters to giant Superforts.

First Anglo-U.S. Attack

It was the first combined American-British operation against the Japanese homeland and the fourth carrier blow in eight days, including the Saturday-Sunday attack on northern Japan in co-ordination with naval shellings that crippled the steel-mill cities of Muroran and Kamaishi.

The week-end air-sea bombardment was the most damaging blow the fleet has dealt the Japanese homeland.

Vice Admiral John S. McCain's carrier planes caught hundreds of ships and surface craft scurrying out of harbors. But 374 did not get away.

As a result reliable estimates placed Nippon's remaining usable shipping at less than 2,000,000 tons. The enemy's always inadequate railroad transport was dealt an equally heavy blow.

It was too early for reports on the damage done today, said Correspondent James Lindsley in a dispatch from the 3d Fleet, but not too early to conclude that the Japanese had again been caught flat-footed or else were hiding from aerial combat.

Lindsley said the clouds of carrier planes swept in across the Jap coast from Choshi, a coastal city directly east of Tokyo, as far north as Hokoda. The area abounds in airfields—an estimated 72 to 80—evidently set up originally to defend Tokyo from just such blows as today's.

140 Craft Definitely Sunk

The revised toll of carrier-plane damage last Saturday and Sunday included:

SUNK—140 ships and surface craft, totaling 71,000 tons and including nine small warships.

DAMAGED—234 vessels, totaling 88,000 tons and including ten warcraft.

Eighty-four locomotives were destroyed and 45 damaged. Military installations, ammunition dumps, airfields, factories and transportation facilities were wrecked on northern Honshu, the main island of Japan, and Hokkaido, northernmost island, to which Japanese have been fleeing from Superfortress raids.

37 Jap Planes Destroyed

Thirty-seven Japanese planes were destroyed and 45 damaged. This is a decrease of ten from the previously announced total, but an increase of eight in the number destroyed.

This record damage, inflicted despite "extremely adverse" weather which has harried almost every American carrier attack on Japan, cost the attacking forces 16 airmen and 24 planes. No United States ships were lost.

The Jap Shipping Losses

The tabulation of Japanese shipping losses in the two days showed:

SUNK—An old destroyer, 2 destroyer escorts, 2 patrol craft, 4 picket craft, 25 cargo ships, 6 train ferries, 1 oiler, 3 tugs, 59 luggers and 37 other craft.

DAMAGED—Seven destroyer escorts or gunboats, 3 patrol craft, 1 transport, 34 cargo ships, 9 oilers, 3 train ferries, 1 LST (landing ship, tanks), 1 tug, 1 trawler, 1 dredge and barge, 86 luggers and 87 smaller craft.

The same carrier airmen combined with British flattop forces in today's attack on Tokyo and its surrounding network of airdromes—the second attack in a week.

For at least eight hours the raiders swarmed through a thick haze to bomb, rocket and strafe pinpoint targets.

1,000 Planes Struck Before

The combined American-British attack, under command of Admiral Halsey, came exactly a week after 1,000 planes of the United States 3d Fleet roamed virtually unopposed over most of the 80 airfields encircling the Nipponese capital.

Admiral Nimitz's terse communiqué, issued while the attack was still under way, ended the one-day mystery as to the whereabouts of the mighty 3d Fleet since two of its task forces, led by battleships, shelled steel centers in northern Japan over the week end.

A few minutes after issuing the communiqué, Nimitz said in a radio talk to the United States that that shelling opened "the preinvasion phase" of the war and that Allied plans called for the destruction by shells and bombs of "every industry and resource which contributes to Japan's ability to make war."

Nimitz identified the battleship King George V, the carrier Formidable, the cruisers Newfoundland and Black Prince, the destroyers Barfleur, Grenville, Troubridge and Undine, and the Australian destroyer Quickmatch as part of the British task force under command of Vice Admiral Sir Bernard Rawlings.

Other British Ships In Area

That these ships were not all was made plain when he listed Vice Admiral Sir Philip Vian of Malta convoy fame as commander of British carriers—plural. Previous British fleet operations had disclosed the presence of the carriers Illustrious, Indomitable, Indefatigable and Victorious in those waters.

A further hint that the British forces were not small was seen in identification of two other Royal Navy admirals besides Rawlings and Vian. They were Rear Admirals E. J. Brind and J. Edelston.

Suicide Planes Fail To Slow B-29 Raid

DOPKINS JUL 18 1945

Guam, July 17 (AP)—Plowing undamaged through a flight of Baka "flying bomb" suicide planes and enemy rocket fire, more than 450 Superforts left "general conflagrations" billowing from four more Japanese war centers today.

Returing crewmen reported very little enemy fighter plane opposition—but Japanese fighters tackled raiding Mustangs Monday in a spectacular, far-ranging dogfight that ended with 40 enemy planes downed or probably downed.

The reappearance of interceptors may have resulted from a direct prod by the Emperor. Tokyo radio said Hirohito had sent a court councillo rto visit the army air force headquarters, thus proving his "deep interest in the present situation of our air force."

Four Industrial Centers

Targets of the B-29's—stretched along 460 miles of the homeland from Tokyo to the Inland Sea—were:

Hiratsuka, an arsenal, aircraft and armaments center, 34 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Numazu, ordnance-armaments producer, 55 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Kuwana, tool and parts producing center, 12 miles southwest of Nagoya.

Oita, naval air depot and important rail center on Kyushu.

Because of almost complete cloud cover, bombing was by instrument.

The strike was the 53d fire mission against Japan from Marianas bases.

Tokyo Lists Others

Superforts also hit Odawara and Chigasaki southwest of Tokyo on Sagami Bay, radio Tokyo announced. The Japanese admitted fires were started in Hiratsuka and Numazu and a "few" other cities but they were extinguished early this morning.

[A Tokyo broadcast heard in New York today said that 60 Okinawa-based American bombers and fighters had raided Kyushu Island for three hours this morning, striking at the cities of Kagoshima and Miyazaki among other targets. The attack began about 9 A.M., Japanese time, according to the broadcast recorded by the Associated Press.

[About 230 Okinawa-based bombers and fighters worked over Japan yesterday, Radio Tokyo said.]

"Will Fight Enemy Attacks"

Japanese airforce headquarters said the visit by Hirohito's emissary "filled us with awe and trepidation" and "all men of our special units are pledged to meet enemy attacks."

Commenting on the carrier-based plane strikes of last Sunday, Radio Tokyo said that many persons were reported killed and wounded "but the damage was slight."

An Army Air Forces summary issued in Washington reported Superfort losses have averaged only slightly more than one plane per mission since the 21st Bomber Command began its assaults on the empire from the Marianas last Thanksgiving Day. Losses "from all causes" between then and July 9 totaled 291 B-29's on 261 missions. In the same period B-29 gunners knocked down 760 Japanese planes and destroyed 159 more aground.

Dogfight Over Nagoya

Monday's spectacular dogfight between enemy interceptors and Iwo Jima Mustangs flared suddenly over devastated Nagoya and some of its 75 individual encounters took place a scant 100 feet above the ground. Only two Mustangs were lost in the raid—neither due to direct enemy action.

Brig. Gen. Ernest Moore said his 7th Fighter Command Mustangs "are going to make everyone in Japan feel the war," and indicated they will strike daily at the Empire's small cities and towns while heavier planes batter the large industrial centers.

Other Air Fleets Busy.

Patrol bombers of the Seventh Fleet and Fifth Air Force, meanwhile, destroyed, damaged or forced aground forty-two more enemy blockade runners ranging from junks to a 4,000-ton freighter-transport, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today. Largest shipping bag was that of a single Liberator which made repeated low-level strafing runs on thirty-seven two-masted cargo carriers hugging the China coast thirty-five miles southeast of Hongkong, destroying or damaging all of them.

Marine Corsairs struck Kushira airfield on Kyushu and fleet search planes fired shipping and an oil plant at Shanghai in other week-end naval strikes.

Three hundred Japs died on Luzon under the dive-bombing attacks of Fifth Air Force planes.

All B-29's Back at Base

GUAM, Wednesday, July 18 (AP)—B-29 fliers returning to Marianas bases from yesterday's attacks on Japan said that they had observed conflagrations spreading in all four cities struck. All of the more than 450 Superfortresses returned.

U.S. PLANES BLAST 30 JAP VESSELS

GUAM, Wednesday, July 18—(AP) Land-based naval air power, tightening what Adm. Chester W. Nimitz termed the "pre-invasion" blockade of Japan, sank or damaged 30 more small enemy vessels in strikes ranging from Japan to China, today's fleet communique reported.

Corsairs of the second Marine aircraft wing from Okinawa struck shipping and ground installations in and around Kyushu Monday, damaging 10 small ships at Aburatsu, striking a boat yard and strafing luggers at Tonura Cape, and damaging two luggers and lighthouse installations on Kyushu's southern coast.

Avengers and Corsairs of the same wing hit the Sakishima group, off Formosa, the following day. A Liberator of Fleet Airwing 18 left an enemy fishing vessel sinking off Haha Jima in the Bonins.

Privateers sank a coastal patrol vessel and a trawler southeast of the homeland island of Shikoku Monday and destroyed three smaller craft and damaged five others off southern Honshu.

Other far-ranging Privateer searched aircraft damaged a tug at Shanghai, strafed a lighthouse off Chekiang province, and damaged six small coastal cargo vessels near the island of Tsushima.

BRITISH BOMBER FORCE MAY GO TO PACIFIC

GUAM, Wednesday, July 18 — (AP) A British heavy bomber force may be assigned to the war against Japan.

This was disclosed today in an announcement by the U. S. Army Strategic Air forces (USASTAF) headquarters at the conclusion of a series of conferences between British Air Marshal Sir Hugh Lloyd and Lt. Gen. Barney M. Giles, strategic air forces commander, at the latter's headquarters.

The announcement said the conferences involved primarily discussions of "the possible assignment of a British heavy bomber force to work under USASTAF."

With Lloyd were seven staff officers representing the British and joint chief of staff. Among them was group Captain J. G. Gordon-Finlayson, who has been assigned as liaison officer to USASTAF. Lloyd and others are enroute to Washington and Great Britain.

Night Shelling of Takahagi

By JAMES LINDSLEY

Associated Press Correspondent

WITH THIRD FLEET BOMBARDMENT FORCE, off Japan, July 17—Striking in the most exposed spot yet, a powerful and shifty bombardment unit of Admiral Halsey's fleet climaxed its audacious blows of the last week by pumping shells into prime industrial targets north of Tokyo tonight.

The targets include the great industrial plant at Takahagi in the Hitachi area, about eighty miles north of Tokyo on the Honshu coast.

Immediate objectives at Takahagi were a concentration of railroad yards and lines leading south and recently developed war production factories.

Stress Peace Warrior

GUAM, July 18 (AP)—The newest propaganda leaflets being dropped on Japan stress that the Japanese can have peace with honor, even under unconditional surrender.

Bearing pictures of a dozen Japanese militarists and addressed to Japanese military leaders, the text of the pamphlet is based on President Truman's V-E Day speech telling the Japanese they could end the war with unconditional surrender.

"Your future lies in your own hands," says the message to Japanese military leaders. "You can choose between a wasteful, unclean death for many of your forces, or a peace with honor."

These new leaflets, bearing President Truman's picture, are being dropped at the rate of 1,000,000 daily on Japan by Superfortresses.

Radio Broadcast Shows Navy's Disregard of Japanese Power

JUL 18 1945

GUAM, Wednesday, July 18—(AP) Disregard for the Japanese military was evident in an unprecedented U. S. Navy action today in permitting radio broadcasts from the attacking fleet while the bombardment was in progress.

A code word—"Phonograph"—broadcast from the battleship Iowa was the tipoff that the operation had started, and gave Admiral Nimitz the signal to release his communique announcing the bombardment.

Mutual broadcaster Jack Mahon disclosed that the battle line of some of the biggest warships was within 10 miles of the Japanese coast, and that the coastline itself was shelled over a 20-mile area. He said the area was crowded with 500,000 Japanese.

CBS Correspondent Gene Rider claimed the force was the largest yet employed to pummel Japan, and that fleet planes flew through a rainfilled night to help direct the fire of the guns.

Rider said that at 10 minutes past midnight, no shore batteries had opened fire, although the fleet was attacking what should have been one of the most heavily fortified areas in Japan.

"There'll be little sleep for the Japs tonight and maybe for many nights to come," NBC's Joe Hainline observed. "No one knows, least of all the Japs, when and where the Third Fleet will strike again."

The Blue network's Norman Paige, making his first radio report, was interrupted momentarily when a salvo of the Iowa's guns knocked his transmitter off the air.

B-29 Catches A Jap Roof

Guam, July 17 (AP)—B-29 crews have brought back a souvenir from a town of the Japanese homeland—inadvertently.

It's a large piece of tin roofing, snagged on the wing of a Superfort piloted by Capt. Samuel B. Hanford, Saybrook, Conn., over Sakai, a suburb of Osaka. The crew ripped it to bits to provide souvenirs for all.

The 10th Air Force explained the bomber entered the intensely hot updraft from the flaming target just in time to catch the soaring roofing on a wing.

BORNEO FOE SLOWS DRIVE ON SAMBOJA

Australians Engage in Sharp Patrol Work — Sepinggang Airstrip Is Already in Use

MANILA, Wednesday, July 18 (AP)—Australian ground forces on Borneo, measuring their advance in yards, continued today to meet stubborn Japanese resistance as they pushed northeast from Balik Papan.

They were on the main highway to Samarinda, some sixty miles ahead, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported in today's communiqué.

The Australians put Sepinggang airfield into use, little more than a fortnight after its capture.

Stiffening resistance also appeared to have stalled an Australian column Monday on the outskirts of the Samboja oil fields.

For the second consecutive day, sharp patrol activity marked the campaign to win control of Borneo's most productive oil lands.

Sepinggan airdrome, whose 4,620-foot runway is capable of expansion to 12,000 feet, will provide a base for Netherland-piloted Mitchell bombers, the Royal Australian Air Force announced, as well as for other Allied bombers and fighters.

AUSSIES NEARING BORNEO OIL FIELDS

Manila, July 17 (A. P.).—Strong combat patrols smashed scattered Japanese resistance today as the Australian Seventh Division slogged through coastal salt marshes toward the Dutch East Borneo oil fields at Samboja, northeast of fallen Balikpapan.

The oil fields lay five miles ahead of the main Aussie force. Its output formerly moved through the marshland pipe line to the now-ruined refineries of Balikpapan.

Other Dutch and Australian units, advancing northward out of Balikpapan, had gained more than six miles on the road to a second rich oil field at Samarinda, thirty-six miles beyond Sambodja by a more circuitous route. These troops encountered heavy Jap road blocks in the vicinity of Mount Batochamper, six miles north of Balikpapan. The mountain was taken yesterday after a heavy artillery barrage. Again today the artillery was called up to blast out the road blocks before the troops could continue their advance.

FLYERS SINK 100 JAP CRAFT

Attacks On River Boats Staged In Three Chinese Areas

Manila, Wednesday, July 18 (AP)—Mariner patrol planes of the United States 7th Fleet wrecked more than 100 river ships in attacks at Amoy, Swatow and the Hong Kong area of China, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced in today's communiqué.

A headquarters spokesman said there was no indication of enemy evacuation attempts in the river craft.

Bombers and fighters of the 5th and 7th air forces flew more than 200 sorties Sunday over Kyushu, southernmost Japanese home island, and small islets leading south to their Okinawa base.

Liberators Pound Airfield

More than a score of 7th AAF Liberators pounded the enemy airdrome at Usa, industrial town where imitation American articles are manufactured. More than 35 Mitchells and 30 Thunderbolts of the 7th AAF delivered a sizzling attack on Tomitaka airfield, on the east coast, causing fires and explosions by a low-level bomb raid. One Japanese plane was shot down by Mustangs as it took off from burning Kuamamoto runway.

Thunderbolts strafed and damaged a locomotive as they escorted Liberators on bombing runs. A tug and three barges were fired and damaged at Cap Mi Harbor on the west coast.

Two Thunderbolts Lost

Two Thunderbolts were lost to enemy action.

The Mustangs continued their daily neutralization strikes over Formosa Sunday with an attack on Takao, while a 5th AAF Liberator bombed Mako naval base in the Pescadores.

A navy Liberator strafed Japanese troop concentrations 50 miles northeast of Swatow, causing a number of casualties.

A dozen 5th Air Force Liberators bombed Honan Island arsenal and Tienho airdrome Sunday, causing one large fire and one big explosion as well as smaller fires.

5th Air Force Set To Hit Harder

Manila, July 17 (AP)—Seventh Fleet and 5th Air Force patrol bombers destroyed, damaged or forced aground 42 more enemy blockade runners, from junks to a 4,000-ton freighter-transport, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today.

And from Okinawa, Associated Press Correspondent Richard Cushing reported the arrival of Lieut. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead to direct expanding actions of his 5th Air Force against Japan's home islands.

Advance Echelons

Fifth and 7th Air Forces already had established advance echelons in the fast-developing Ryukyus bases as part of Gen. George C. Kenney's Far East air forces. Brig. Gen. Thomas D. White, commander of the 7th, also is on Okinawa.

Largest shipping haul reported by MacArthur's communiqué today was 37-two-masted cargo carriers destroyed or damaged in repeated strafing runs by a single Liberator, 35 miles southeast of Hong Kong.

Loaded Freighter Sunk

Three navy Liberators further paralyzed Indo-China communications by sinking a loaded 350-ton freighter 12 miles south of Saigon and a motor launch 95 miles south, then forcing a river steamer aground and heavily damaging a 4,000-ton freighter-transport.

Mustangs and Invader bombers Saturday hit hard at Formosa's industrial and railway targets on both east and west coasts, concentrating on the Taiharo sugar refinery and on railroad tunnnels in which the enemy frequently has sheltered locomotives and rolling stock.

EUROPEAN VETS REACH PHILIPPINES

MANILA, Wednesday, July 18—(AP) More than 4,200 American veterans from Europe—first service troops sent directly from the European theater to the Pacific—were in their new camp, 35 miles south of Manila today.

The 4,275 vets of Africa, Sicily and Italy landed on a muddy dock at dawn Tuesday, welcomed by two bands. These troops represented nearly all service branches of the Fifth [illegible] They comprised four [illegible] soldiers, the remainder negroes.

Lt. Gen. W. D. Styer, commander of Army forces of the western Pacific, said this first direct redeployment from Europe was carried out in good shape and the morale of the men "is very good." He added he expected another transport later in the month "and thereafter we plan regular arrivals direct from Europe," Styer said.

"This first transfer has come through in good shape and the morale of the men is very good."

Wanted Furloughs Home

However, some soldiers told correspondents "things would have been much better if we'd been given furloughs at home first." Many served overseas for more than 20 months before coming here.

Joseph Crine, tech. 3/g, of Belmont, Mass., said he had 32 months' service and 74 points.

The troops did not seem at all surprised by mud and rain. "You should'a seen it in Italy," jeered one soldier.

Lieut. Egan Driggott, of Chicago, led a detachment of medium automotive maintenance troops. They had kept trucks and half-tracks running for eighteen months in the red clay of Tunisia and the black bogs of Italy.

Home First Choice

Frank Radzissezki, tech. 5/g, of Erie, Pa., remarked, "This job has to be done and we're here to do it, but I'd like to have gone home directly into the Pacific war zone from Europe without a trip home arrived today to a wet, sloshy welcome after a month's journey from Italy.

The 4,275 veterans of Africa, Sicily and Italy landed on a muddy Manila dock in the damp dawn. Two bands played as the men moved from LCM's to freight cars which carried them to their new camp 35 miles south of here.

Whites And Negroes

They came from nearly every service branch of the 5th Army, ranging for railway construction to bridge repair and ordnance. There were four companies of white troops, but the remainder were Negroes. None is considered combat men, but all have been through considerable action.

The first man ashore was Private Joe Archilla, of New York city. He ended one of the swiftest boomerang trips on army records. He left Newport News, Va., last April 5 for Italy, then turned around and headed for the Pacific.

Going To Small Units

Lieut. Gen. W. D. Styer, commander of army forces of the Western Pacific, said the pack-laden arrivals would be assigned to small units on Luzon to continue their special service functions.

"We expect another transport later this month and thereafter we plan regular arrivals direct from Europe," Styer said.

"This first transfer has come through in good shape and the morale of the men is very good."

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Brennan, 420 Calvin avenue.

Luzon Foe Improvises Weapons

MANILA, Wednesday, July 18 (AP)—Improvising makeshift weapons, remnants of Japanese troops on Northern Luzon attempted desperately today to carry on their fight in the shattered Kiangan pocket, under attack by the American Sixth Infantry Division.

A mortar hastily built from a length of three-inch galvanized water pipe was found in one Japanese position. Its base was part of the frame of a wrecked truck.

In Kiangan defile, other Red Star Division doughboys found land mines made of 75-mm. shell cases filled with picric acid explosive. Hand grenades filled with picric acid, and sections of Japanese 37-mm. shell cases—evidently also intended for makeshift mines —were also found.

The Sixth Division have killed 329 Japanese in the past forty-eight hours, division headquarters reported.

JAPS' OKINAWA GUERILLA CHIEF AND AIDES SHOT

By ROBERT GEIGER

OKINAWA, July 17—(AP) The Japanese commander of all guerilla forces on Okinawa has been killed by Yanks who trailed him to a masterfully camouflaged hideout in the northern mountains, Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell disclosed tonight.

The enemy officer, Lt. Col. Tokiharu Aoyagi, was shot and killed as he attempted to flee from an American patrol organized by Maj. Silas W. Bass of Los Angeles, 27th Division headquarters commandant.

When Americans captured Yontan and Kadena airfields the first day of the Okinawa invasion, Aoyagi retreated northward, fighting desperately from hill to hill. Aoyagi, former commander of the Japanese air sector of Okinawa, disappeared during the battle which broke the last organized Japanese resistance on the island.

Then the Yanks learned the wiley enemy officer had assumed command of all guerrillas and Major Bass organized a 60-man patrol to capture him and remnants of a Japanese battalion. Commanding the patrol was Capt. Andrew B. Campbell of 175 Ridgewood street, West Hartford, Conn.

The patrol climbed almost perpendicular cliffs through brush so thick it had to be cut away and in sweltering heat. Even the trails were camouflaged by planting bushes in them where they branched off from the main paths.

Aoyagi was betrayed by a tiny wisp of smoke above a neatly camouflaged cabin in the bottom of a draw.

Moving in stealthily, Lt. Wallace S. Amioka of Honolulu, got within five feet of a grayhaired, gray goateed Japanese sitting in the shade reading. It was Aoyagi. He was dressed in a stripped kimona.

When Aoyagi heard Amioka he jumped up and ran toward the hills but riflemen dropped him and he died 20 minutes later.

Another patrol killed a Japanese lieutenant and two orderlies.

Aoyagi's hideout contained high food, ammunition and weapons to last a large group of fighters for a year. A large part of the food and arms were stolen from the Americans.

Yank, 15, Sent Home From Okinawa

Okinawa, July 17 (AP)—Fifteen-year-old Pfc. Edward A. Miller, of Columbus, Ohio, who enlisted when 14 and served through most of the Okinawa campaign as a front-line rifleman, was sent home today for an honorary discharge.

Miller holds the Okinawa record for being the youngest soldier sent home with the least points. He has 16.

Miller declined to reveal how he got into the army eleven months ago.

In Okinawa Campaign

After completing fifteen weeks' rifle drill at Camp Robinson, Arkansas, he was sent overseas in February, 1945. He served in Hawaii and was then transferred to the 32d Infantry Regiment. And landed on Okinawa early in May, participating as a rifleman until the island was taken June 21.

His parents are Mr. and Mrs. James A. Miller, of Columbus.

Aleutians Blast Kills 4

Adav, Aleutians, July 17 (AP)—Four navy personnel were killed, a fifth was missing and nine were injured today by a heavy explosion in a small building where navy fire fighters and hospital corpsmen were battling a blaze.

Japs Slew 2000 Filipinos

Mayor and Colonel Tell of Massacre of Natives in Luzon Town.

Infanta, Luzon, July 17 (A. P.).—Filipinos in this isolated coastal town of Luzon told today of a Japanese massacre of 2,000 natives in wholesale slaughter and looting which rivaled their infamy in Manila. They raided scattered outlying districts, stabbing and slashing Filipinos in their beds, declared Lieut.-Col. Jaime Manzano.

Most of those who sought desperately to escape were shot down as they fled. Bodies of men, women and children were strewn about huts and the streets of the settlements two months ago.

Mayor Faustino P. Juntereal told the correspondents that the Japanese massacred the natives after finding American canned goods and learning of guerrillas in the villages. Juntereal said that the death toll might have been even higher than the estimated 2,000, but that was the best figure available.

Infanta is fifty miles east of Manila across the Sierra Madre mountains, and is reachable only by plane or by water. The wrecked town's main street has been converted into a landing strip for cub planes.

Flee by Water.

"About 300 Japs entered surrounding communities at night and slipped into the houses," said the mayor. "I saw hundreds of bodies later and many houses were wantonly burned. The worst was at Alitas community of 500 persons. Only a few managed to escape through the swamps."

The Filipinos made Luzon's largest scale evacuation by water to escape additional Japanese vengeance. Manzano said that 7,000 civilians were removed from the Infanta vicinity to the Polillo Islands, off the east coast.

Facilities were scant. Five launches furnished the motive power. For sixteen nights they pulled the strings of native boats loaded with evacuees.

Capture Of 4 Japs By Woman Is Stymied

Saipan, July 17 (AP)—If it hadn't been for the Geneva convention, Charlotte Ann Fegan, Red Cross worker, of South Bend, Ind., would have been the first woman to capture a Japanese here—in fact, four of them.

The former schoolteacher and her mobile canteen driver, Pfc. Anan White, of Sulphur, Okla., were driving their refreshment van to serve returning B-29 crewmen with doughnuts and lemonade when four Japanese soldiers appeared just off the road.

Three Japanese were waving their hands and the fourth a white flag.

Miss Fegan and Miss White ignored them and raced to an infantry camp. The latter picked up four soldiers and they returned to the spot. The Japs were still there and still ready to surrender.

Miss Fegan said she didn't go back with them, "because the Geneva convention forbids me to participate in any type of military activity, even prisoner taking."

Jap And Korean PW's Give To Red Cross

Saipan, Marianas, July 17 (AP)—Japanese and Korean prisoners of war have donated $4,520.60 from their trust fund accounts to the International Red Cross.

The donors have expressed the desire that one half of the donations be applied for the welfare of civilians on Saipan.

The prisoners were informed they could make voluntary contributions. There was no solicitation. All prisoners on the pay roll contributed.

Plane Taxis 200 Miles in Rescue Trip

Reaches Okinawa With Six Army Airmen Although Unable to Leave Water.

Okinawa, July 17 (A. P.).—A Navy Dumbo twin-engine plane taxied more than 200 miles to bring six rescued Army airmen to Okinawa. It was the longest taxiing trip ever made by an amphibious seaplane.

The Dumbo broke off its wing tip and stabilizer alighting off the coast of Japan to pick up the six airmen. They were the crew of a Mitchell bomber, Truck Lick, which was hit by anti-aircraft fire on a bombing-strafing mission on a Kyushu Island airfield.

Although the B-25's tail was shot up, Lieut. Ricardo Rondinelli of Arecibo, Puerto Rico, set his ship down on the sea without mishap. Water rushed into the plane. Rondinelli, who was the last to leave, was completely submerged when he opened the pilot's escape hatch. A second later the Truck Lick sank.

The six-man crew crowded into a life raft designed for four.

Two hours later the clumsy looking Dumbo was attracted by tracers from Rondinelli's Singla pistol.

The Dumbo alighted beside the raft, but a high wave broke off the right wing tip and vertical stabilizer. Unable to fly, the Dumbo proceeded across the choppy Western Pacific, covering a distance equal to that from Cleveland to Buffalo.

Rondinelli's crew members were Lieut. Nick Liebrock of 3063 Godwin Terrace, New York; Lieut. Arnold C. Sayer of 3436 76th street, Jackson Heights, New York; Staff Sgt. Frederick E. von Schwerdtner of Baltimore, Staff Sgt. Warren F. Kimmy of Ashtabula, Ohio, and Staff Sgt. Ray Yhelaton of Philadelphia.

Japs Claim 'Counter Plan' To Defeat American Fleet

JUL 18 1945

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17—(AP) Tokyo radio claimed today that Japanese arms have a "counter-strategy" for the relentless American fleet and aerial bombardment which has hit Japanese industrial targets for the third time in four days without so much as a chopstick reported raised in opposition.

"It is vitally necessary that we preserve our strength and strike with lightning speed," Domei said. "We must wait patiently until the time is ripe. We must not play into the enemy's hands."

Domei recalled that in 1904 Admiral Kamimura had waited to catch the Russia fleet and knock it out, and concluded: "As in 1904, the Japanese must also wait the right moment."

Admitting that Kyushu island is within reach of land-based American planes from Okinawa and Iwo Jima and that B-29s repeatedly rake the empire as far north as the Kanto district, Domei offered this thought: "This bluntly reveals the seriousness of the war situation."

Another Tokyo broadcast said that Premier Kantaro Suzuki saw the emperor at the unusual hour of 5 p.m., today to report on "general administration" after a cabinet meeting lasting more than two hours.

This step attracted attention despite Suzuki's announced determination not to resign, because of military setbacks, in the manner followed by his two war-time predecessors, Hideki Tojo and Kuniaki Koiso.

Meanwhile Tokyo filled the ether with extensive speculation on two other topics:

1—Its apparently private war which it has been waging on Ternate in the Dutch East Indies in the absence of any Allied confirmation, and

2—The Big Three conference in Potsdam which it alleges will disclose serious differences between Marshal Stalin on one hand and Prime Minister Churchill and President Truman on the other.

A Domei dispatch reported that Japanese defenders now have "wiped out" unidentified Allied forces which it claims two weeks ago invaded Ternate island west of Halmahera in the Indies. It listed 18 Allied ships sunk or heavily damaged in the operation. No confirmation of this alleged action has come from any Allied source.

It also expressed fear that Allied troops on Borneo might soon cross the Makassar straits to invade the important Dutch island of Celebes to the east.

Watch Big Three Conference

Meanwhile, in an obvious effort to continue the Japanese propaganda line that Anglo-Russo-American cooperation is largely imaginary, Domei broadcast a long speculative account of the Big Three meeting in Potsdam which insisted that 'divergencies of interest" were appearing which would split the Big Three and mark the end of their collaboration, which it claimed was merely an expedient against Germany.

Japanese concern that the Big Three meeting might turn Russian eyes eastward became evident, however, in a Tokyo broadcast of a commentary in the important newspaper Asahi Shimbun.

After claiming that the most important topic at Potsdam would be "the allotment of war booty," the commentary said that other likely subjects for discussion would be "the ticklish Levant problem, the Dardanelles issue and the continued mess in Greece."

Last but not least, the Asahi

mentioned the East Asia problem as one of the definite subjects that is to be brought up in the conference the broadcast said.

"By taking up the East Asia issues in the meetings, the Anglo-American nations will try to turn the Russian eye to East Asia in an attempt to avoid friction with the Soviet Union which is now in a most favorable position with her hands entirely free from the war."

JAPS SAY THEY WAIT TO STRIKE

Domei Says Forces Prepare for Decisive Moment.

San Francisco, July 17 (A. P.).—The Japanese Domei News Agency said in a radio broadcast today that "our forces are waiting for the decisive moment to smash the enemy, beyond his ability to recover, with one deadly stroke."

The dispatch, beamed to occupied Asia and monitored by the Federal Communications Commission, declared:

"Our crack army and navy forces are not permitting these enemy activities without a counter-strategy.

"For that decisive moment of battle, it is vitally necessary that we preserve our strength and strike with lightning effect. We must not move until the time is ripe. We must not play into the enemy's hands."

Domei's broadcast was made just before the United States Third Fleet, for the third time in four days, stood off the shores of Japan and shelled industrial targets. Domei frankly pointed out that the fleet was indulging in a "systematic" attempt to destroy military and production facilities, that southern Japan's Kyushu Island has come within the perimeter of land-based American planes on Okinawa and Iwo Jima, and that the B-29s range from Kyushu to Kanto in the north.

Admits Serious Situation.

Recalling that the fleet attacks were the first on the Japanese homeland since the British, Dutch and American fleets attacked Shimonoseki in 1864, Domei brooded, "This bluntly reveals the seriousness of the war situation."

Domei also recalled the Russo-Japanese war and that on August 4, 1904, Admiral Kamimura defeated the Russians and gained control of the Japan Sea, and added, "As in 1904, the Japanese must await the right moment."

Of the week end shelling by the United States fleet of Kamiishi and Muroran, Domei said:

"The attack was limited to shelling a part of our production facilities. There is no need to over-estimate the value of the production facilities of these two cities. Thus, in recalling the sea battle of Fusan, we must bring every effort to production until the time is ready to strike."

Attack Upon Celebes Expected, Tokyo Says

JUL 18 1945

San Francisco, July 17 (AP)—Radio Tokyo today voiced fear that Allied troops who have invaded Borneo might soon vault the narrow Makassar Straits to make the near-by Dutch island of Celebes the next battlefront in the East Indies.

"Phenomenal success" in strengthening the defenses of the Japanese-held island was boasted in the enemy broadcast heard here.

Tokyo radio continued to fight the unconfirmed battle of Ternate Island, west of Halmahera in the Moluccas. For two weeks it has insisted that "enemy" troops landed on Ternate, which is directly east of Celebes's jutting tip.

Claims Invaders Killed

A Domei dispatch reported that Japanese forces "wiped out the greater part of the invaders" on July 11 and have almost concluded mopping-up operations in which they inflicted 300 casualties. Tokyo has not attempted to give the nationality of the alleged invaders. No Allied source has reported a landing.

Domei said the fighting was "apparently stalemated" on the east coast of Borneo, opposite Celebes, except for minor gains by Allied troops near Samarinda, north of Balikpapan.

Tokyo radio claimed at least 4,000 Allied (Australian and Dutch) officers and men killed or seriously wounded up to yesterday. It listed eighteen Allied naval and transport vessels sunk or heavily damaged.

Note Unsatisfactory

Another broadcast reported the Japanese Government "not quite satisfied" with the United States note acknowledging American responsibility for the sinking of the Japanese relief ship Awamaru in the East China Sea on April 1.

Sadao Iguchi, Board of Information spokesman, declared his Government wants further details of the disciplinary action taken against the American submarine commander responsible. The Navy has revealed that he was relieved of his command and court-martialed, but has declined to make public the result of the hearing.

Jap Premier Sees Emperor For Report At Unusual Hour

San Francisco, July 17 (AP)—Premier Kantaro Suzuki went to the Imperial Palace at the unusual hour of 5 P.M. today to submit a report to Emperor Hirohito on "the general administration," Tokyo radio announced.

The broadcast was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

Heretofore Suzuki's predecessors, Premiers Hideki (The Razor) Tojo and Kantaro (The Tiger) Koiso have been ousted after military setbacks.

Among "general administration" topics Suzuki and Hirohito may well have discussed the very pressing topic of the unprecedented three-day bombardment of Japan's homeland by Admiral William F. (Bull) Halsey's 3d Fleet, the continued air striges by 1,000 to 1,500 Allied carrier planes without any Japanese retaliation and the growing and more frequent Superfortress and small-plane raids.

JAPAN TAKES OVER ALL CIVILIAN CARS

SAN FRANCISCO, July 17—(AP) Admittedly faced with an acute transportation problem, the Japanese army has taken over control of all automobile production and existing motor cars, the Japanese war ministry disclosed today.

Attempting to unravel the critical problem of moving war supplies and food, the ministry announced in a domestic broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications commission that the new control measure includes horse and ox carts, handcars, bicycle trailers and even carrying poles.

Early in July the government launched a "militarization" program of all railroad facilities.

'Split-Second' Setup Speeds News Of Pacific

San Francisco, July 17 (AP)—Fast delivery of news from the Pacific, such as Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's announcements on fleet attacks against Japan while they are still going on, were described by the 12th Naval District here today as "split-second" communications.

The navy setup, under Rear Admiral Joseph R. Redman, involves seven radio circuits from Guam to San Francisco. Reports from fleet forces and correspondents are relayed through Guam to the Associated Press and other news services in San Francisco.

Four of the channels are teletype circuits, exclusively for use of the press. Keys pressed at Guam directly operate printers in the Associated Press and other offices.

Little Hope For Banning War Training, British Say

London, July 17 (AP)—Responsible British quarters said today they saw little hope for immediate realization of a world-wide ban on compolsury peacetime military service proposed in Washington by Representative Martin (R., Mass.), House minority elader.

"An admirable suggestion—one which follows the point of view of the British Government after the last war," said a Foreign Office commentator, but added:

"It is unlikely that it will be accepted."

The spokesman said one obstacle was that "so many continental countries regard compulsory military training as one of the normal duties of citizenship."

Difficulties Cited

Some other officials in diplomatic quarters, declining to be quoted directly, said such a policy would be hard to enforce. It would be difficult, they commented, to draw the line between military forces and outwardly voluntary organizations, such as youth movements, which might be used to screen mass military training.

Representative Martin said he would ask the Truman Administration to work for an international conscription agreement "because United States adopts compulsory service."

BRITISH SEND DATA ON PETAIN PARLEYS

London, July 17 (A. P.).—Full details of secret negotiations in 1940 between the British Government and a self-described Vichy emissary have been forwarded by the Foreign Office to the French Government on the eve of Marshal Petain's trial on treason charges. In announcing its action, the Foreign Office emphasized that no agreement ever had been concluded with Vichy through the medium of these negotiations, or any other channel.

Petain, who goes to trial on July 23, declared at a preliminary examination before a French high court commission on June 8 that at the very moment of his first meeting with Adolf Hitler at Montoire he was negotiating for a secret treaty with Britain which guided his future actions. The aged marshal told the court that Prime Minister Winston Churchill or the British Government could say the word that would place his whole course as head of the Vichy regime in its proper perspective.

Four U-Boats Not Accounted For

London, July 17 (AP)—Four German submarines on the Admiralty's list of U-boats known to have been commissioned before V-E day still are not definitely accounted for, an Admiralty spokesman said today, but he expressed belief they probably are at the bottom of the sea.

The submarine U-530, which surrendered to Argentine authorities at Mar Del Plata recently, was one of five knon German submarines which were not surrendered but cannot positively be recorded as destroyed, the spokesman said.

He explained that records listed them as "doubtful sinkings."

The theoretical time limit of their endurance expired last month, however, and the unexpected appearance of the U-530 is not causing any official anxiety over the whereabouts of the other four.

Cunard Says U.S. Lines Get Start At Its Expense

London, July 17 (AP)—Sir Percy E. Bates, chairman of the Cunard White Star Line, protested today that while his ships were busy transporting United States troops, American air and shipping lines were getting a start in the commercial field.

He told stockholders that, under the United Maritime Authority agreement governing all Allied ships until six months after the end of the Japanese war, Cunard's big ships were being "compensated" only at the rate of half their pre-war earnings.

"We are very naturally sensitive to suggestions of 'reward' for others on our routes," Sir Percy declared.

"For instance," he continued, "an American air service operating for its own profit between New York and the United Kingdom at advertised fares is an assault on our long-established good will, which we are powerless to meet because of our well-understood preoccupation with the carriage of American troops.

"A further assault is threatened in the circumstantial reports from the U.S.A. of a number of P. 2 ships (19½ knots, 550 passengers), to be ready for commercial operation in the autumn."

East Indies To Be Free

London, July 17 (AP)—Prof. H. A. Logemann, Dutch Minister of Colonies, today promised the Dutch East Indies their freedom under the Royal House of Orange and said that the Netherlands would foresake imperialism.

He called for volunteers for the Pacific war among members of the home guard in the Netherlands, in a broadcast over the Dutch radio.

London Paper Assails Secrecy At Potsdam

London, July 17 (AP)—The liberal News Chronicle declared today that an "atmosphere of excessive mystery" surrounded the Potsdam conference, damaging world morale.

"That blessed word security may be invoked to conceal the movements and meeting places of the chief figures, even though this is questionable," the newspaper said. "But what justification is there for hiding from the world even the barest skeleton of the agenda?"

Steamers For Britain

EIRE A REPUBLIC, DEVALERA SAYS

DUBLIN, July 17—(AP) Prime Minister Eamon de Valera told the Dail (Parliament) today that "Eire is an independent Republic associated as a matter of her external policy with the states of the British Commonwealth."

Explaining Eire's constitutional position after promising last week to elaborate on a cryptic assertion that Eire was a Republic, de Valera cited five constitutional articles, including one declaring the state to be "sovereign, independent and democratic."

"We are an independent republic since December 19, 1937, the day our new constitution came into operation," he asserted.

Replying to opposition leader Jakes Dillon's question of last week, "Are we or are we not a member of the British Commonwealth?" the Prime Minister said:

"This is a question for which the material necessary for a conclusive answer is not fully available.

"Statesmen of the Commonwealth have, I think, adopted the view of Joseph Demaistre that 'in all systems there are relationships which it is wiser to leave undefined.'"

Declaring that critics have argued that the External Relations act of 1936 made Eire a monarchy, de Valera asserted, "I do not think any constitutional lawyer of repute would attempt to maintain such a thesis."

He said that under the act the British King was permitted to act for Eire in diplomatic and international affairs so long as Eire is association with Australia, Canada, Great Britain, New Zealand and South Africa.

BELGIAN CHAMBER IN MOVES TO BALK LEOPOLD'S RETURN

BRUSSELS, July 17 — (AP) The Belgian chamber of deputies voted overwhelmingly today to continue the regency under Prince Charles and to prevent King Leopold III from re-assuming the throne without parliamentary consent.

The vote was 98 to six, with 32 members abstaining. The bill, introduced by Premier Achille Van Acker, now goes to the senate for action, probably tomorrow.

The chamber gave Van Acker's measure speedy approval after he criticized Leopold's arguments against abdication — declarations which the prime minister said were reminiscent of those employed by Belgium's pre-war Fascists.

Leopold, in a letter sent from St. Wolfgang, Austria, to his brother, Prince Charles, declared he was ready to bow to the will of the people, but wished that their decision be determined in a general election.

Criticizing the parliament, three-fifths of whose members favor his abdication, Leopold attacked what he called "a lack of coordination between parliament and the nation, which does not permit me to know the exact situation."

Van Acker, reading the letter to a noisy assembly of deputies, asserted that "the government considers that the distinction made between parliament and the nation recalls sorrowfully the opposition created by certain groups" before the war.

Leopold said parliament members opposing his return were acting contrary to the wishes of a majority of Belgians.

"Far be it from me," Leopold wrote, "to impose myself on my country. x x x My person means nothing.

"If I were convinced that my abdication corresponds to the desire of the nation, I should not hesitate one moment to do so. But whereas parliamentary opposition rose against me, my information made it clear that an important majority in the country insisted upon my return x x x.

"I shall therefore wait until the regular elections have reestablished harmony between the chamber and the public attitude before taking definite action. But only the wish of the nation can make me resign."

DEPUTIES VOTE BILL TO GOVERN BELGIAN THRONE

Would Make King's Return Subject to Consent of Parliament.

LEOPOLD'S LETTER IS READ

Sovereign Declares He Will Bow to Will of People Expressed in Regular Election.

Brussels, July 17 (A. P.).—The Belgian Chamber of Deputies voted today to prevent King Leopold from resuming the throne until he receives consent of Parliament. The vote was 98 to 6, with thirty-two members abstaining.

The bill, introduced by Prime Minister Achille Van Acker, now goes to the Senate—probably tomorrow.

The action was taken after Van Acker had read a letter from Leopold saying that he would bow to the will of the people as expressed in a regular election—thus suggesting that he wished a plebiscite to be held upon the question of whether he should retain his throne. The King is staying in Bavaria.

Catholics Quit Cabinet.

Earlier today the Catholic party's six Cabinet Ministers had announced that they were resigning from the Government.

The Catholic party is pro-Leopold. The decision to resign was announced by Minister of Information Edmund Ronse after a meeting of the Parliament Right-wing members. The resignations weer apparently in protest against a parliamentary debate which the Cathalic Ministers predicted would align the Government against the King.

Leopold In Salzberg

Leopold, a captive of the Germans during the war, has remained in Salzburg, Austria. It was recently announced he would neither abdicate for return immediately to Belgium.

Ronse said the Catholic ministers had asked Premier Achille Van Acker to hand their resignations to Regent Prince Charles.

"I thought I could not associate myself with a debate which will be profoundly unfortunate for the country, because it will inevitably end up in the Parliament taking a position against the King," Ronse stated.

"Conditions Of Democracy"

"I consider this debate as against the Constitution. Respect for the law and for the Constitution are essential conditions of democracy."

Ronse said he spoke only for himself in making the statement, but it was believed his views were held by the other Catholic ministers.

3 Unexplained Explosions Rock Berlin and Potsdam

By The Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 17—Three terrific explosions, apparently emanating from the Russian zone of occupation, rocked Berlin and Potsdam early this morning and still were unofficially explained at noon.

The blasts rattled windows in the area where President Truman and Prime Minister Churchill are quartered for the Big Three conferences, and caused bomb-weary Berliners to cast apprehensive glances skyward.

American officers charged with security in this sector said they had received no reports on the cause of the blasts, but added that the Russians had been doing considerable demolition work and that the explosions might be connected with it.

The first blast occurred about 9 A. M., and the other two at one-hour intervals.

War's Over, Yank Just Discovers

Berlin, July 17 (AP)—It took a Big Three conference for John Spato, of Jamaica, Long Island, N.Y., to learn that the war was over.

A soldier in the 36th Infantry Division, Spato was captured in September, 1943, in the Salerno fighting. Because of serious wounds he has been hospitalized most of the time since then and lately had been in a hospital which the Russians took over.

But he spoke no Russian and his immediate attendants spoke no English so the war's end was just another day to him. Also his condition was not good enough for him to be greatly interested in the excitement around him.

Word of his location filtered to the American 133d Evacuation Hospital and Pfc. Raymond Wrenn, of Iola, Texas, drove his ambulance out to pick him up. But Spato was under special treatment and the hospital personnel refused to let him go.

Returning with Corporal Milton Kolarov, of Wayne, Mich., a military government soldier who speaks Russian, Wrenn convinced hospital officials that it was all right for them to go in and see Spato.

It was Kolarov who broke the news to Spato that the war in Europe had ended. Spato now is in the 113th Evacuation Hospital and is glad to be among Americans again and to know it is all over at last.

TWO GERMANS TO HANG FOR HEIN'S DEATH

Sentenced For Shooting Baltimorean Who Parachuted From Plane

Freising, Germany, July 17 (AP)—Two German policemen were convicted today and four other defendants acquitted by a United States military commission holding a trial for the murder of a Baltimore flyer who parachuted from a burning bomber last December.

Albert Bury, police chief who testified he had ordered the shooting of Tech. Sergt. Donald Ley Hein, was sentenced to hang along with Wilhelm Haefner, the policeman who said he fired the fatal shot.

Sentence Subject To Review

The finding of the six-member commission of the United States 3d Army is subject to review by General Patton.

The four defendants acquitted were Wilhelm Plit and Karl Henkel, two other policemen in the town of Langesbold, in which the shooting occurred, and Albert Loeser and Lieutenant Kalte, officials of the Hanau district.

During the trials, held for two defendants at a time over a three-day period, Bury and Haefner admitted their part in the slaying of the young sergeant.

Bury said he ordered Haefner to kill Hein because of secret orders received last October from higher authorities.

Flyer Shot In Head

Haefner testified calmly that he had marched the flyer to a woods on the edge of the village and then fired a single shot through his head from a distance of fifteen feet. He said the victim was not informed of what was going to happen and did not flinch when the pistol was pointed at him.

A seventh defendant, SS Colonel Hellwege-Emden, has been arrested in the British zone in Germany and will be brought to trial later.

Victim's Father Pities Those Under Nazi Lash

Upon hearing that a United States Military Commission had sentenced two German policemen to hang for the murder of his son, the Rev. George F. Hein, pastor of Faith Lutheran Church, said yesterday:

"I was expecting something like this. It is only a matter of real justice being done. There was no real reason to take the life of my son.

"It was a fiendish thing to do, and represents the fruit of the Nazi philosophy. It shows the way the world is going without God.

"On the other hand, I feel some pity for those fellows who were under the lash of the Nazi gang. I hope some good will come out of this."

Another Son In Navy

The Rev. Mr. Hein said that another son, Walter Hein, 17, who was graduated from City College last June, enlisted in the Navy and left yesterday to begin training at Bainbridge. When the brother left, he knew that Sergeant Hein was dead, but did not know he had been murdered by the Nazis.

"Walter wants to study for the ministry," said his father, who lives at 1920 East North avenue. "But he thought, on account of his brother, he ought to get into this thing and get it over with."

It was only two days ago—about six months after Sergeant Hein was reported missing—that the Rev. Mr. Hein learned of his son's fate.

The flyer's wife, Mrs. Melva M. Hein, who lives at 2002 North Wolfe street, wanted to know what had been done by the commission with the other defendants in the case. When told they had been acquitted, she said:

"I suppose the commission knows what it is doing. They have all the facts in the case. Nothing they can do now will bring Donald back."

Sergeant Hein was married in June, 1941. He entered the service in March, 1943, and went overseas in September, 1944.

The sergeant, a radio operator, had been listed as missing since December 12 in a War Department message sent to the family on January 2.

Details Not Given

No details were given, and the father made several trips to Washington, interviewing War Department officials and, later, members of the 8th Air Force, who had flown with his son, when they returned.

Sergeant Hein's plane was shot down returning from a bombing mission over Germany, and only one man was seen to parachute from the ship, the father was told. The fate of the other nine members of the crew has not been learned.

The plane caught fire or exploded. It had discharged its load of bombs and was flying over enemy territory with its radio shut off.

The 8th Air Force members, who talked with the father, comforted the Rev. Mr. Hein with the probability that it was his son who escaped from the plane. They explained that as a radio operator he had a good chance to escape from the ship.

ceived from the War Department stating that Sergeant Hein had been killed in action.

Then came the news on Monday that police at Langenselbold, Germany, had confessed to shooting the flyer. In the dispatch—contained in a copy of The Evening Sun delivered at the Hein home—the name appeared, however, as Tech. Sergt. Donald Ludwig Hein, instead of Donald Ley Hein.

Identification later was established by the murdered sergeant's serial number.

According to the military commission, Hein was captured by a gardener and a German soldier and turned over to Police Chief Albert Bury and Policeman William Haefner at Langenselbold.

Haefner testified that on Bury's orders he and two other policemen took Sergeant Hein a short distance out of the village and shot him in the head.

Bury said he had orders from higher authorities not to treat Allied flyers guilty of "terror attacks" as prisoners of war, but to shoot them.

Goebbels's 'Clubfoot' Explained By Brother

Wiesbaden, Germany, July 17 (AP). Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels's older brother, Hans, said today the former Nazi propaganda minister did not have a clubfoot, as the world supposed, but was victimized in childhood by a bungling doctor, who deformed his foot in an operation.

Hans Goebbels, now a prisoner in Allied hands, told American Army officers that "Joseph twisted his foot between a chair and a couch. He could not walk. A doctor was called and performed a needless operation, with the result that Joseph's foot remained permanently deformed."

The propaganda minister has been reported killed in the Reichschancellery in Berlin. The Moscow radio said on July 3 that his body had been "unmistakenly identified."

...sh Restore Order After Hamburg Riots

With 21st Army Group in Germany, July 17 (AP)—Order was restored in Hamburg by British soldiers today after two days and nights of brawling between gangs of Germans and homeless Italians.

At least one man died, several were injured, and 25 were arrested.

The British have ordered a three-day 7.30 P.M. curfew for all Hamburg civilians, beginning today, to make certain no new outbreaks arise. The curfew hour had been 10 P.M.

Military government authorities said the trouble started on the evening of July 13 when some Germans, many of them newly-freed prisoners of war, began "making a nuisance of themselves with the wives and daughters" of displaced Italian families.

RED WRITER CALLS U. S. TOO LENIENT

Moscow, July 17 (A. P.).—M. Mikhailov, Soviet publicist, said today in Red Star that under American occupation rules in Germany in "some places Nazi followers receive quite wide possibilities for their undermining and provocative work." In an article entitled "Strange Prisoners" he referred to a Munich A. P. dispatch.

[Howard Cowan, an Associated Press correspondent, said in a dispatch from Munich on July 11 that the press department of the American Military Government in Bavaria had a staff of German newspapermen circulating among the German population and writing articles that are passed on to Allied correspondents by the military government. Frequently the German reporters have written bold criticism of the Russians, and even of the Americans, Cowan reported. He said that American Military Government officials explained they had the Germans writing such articles to obtain a candid cross section of German opinion.]

The Red Star quoted the A. P. Munich dispatch as saying, "Some Germans in the American occupation zone in Germany have received permission to spread Nazi propaganda with the aim of creating a split among the Allies."

[Cowan's dispatch contained no such statement.]

The Red Star article also said that, in the releases written by the Germans, the Americans were warned that "the Germans will become bolsheviks if the United States does not take a friendly position toward Germany."

Franco Declares Spain To Return to Monarchy

JUL 19 1945

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ

MADRID, July 17 — (AP) Generalissimo Francisco Franco declared tonight that Spain was entering the preparatory period for return of the monarchy, which he must guarantee the "essentials" of the Falangist movement.

He told cheering members of the Falange National council that when the time came to make the change the Spanish Cortes (parliament) would be handed a law establishing the royal regime. The monarchy, he emphasized, was his only possible successor.

In a 35-minute speech, Franco reaffirmed his faith in the Falange, asserted that his regime was misunderstood abroad, and attacked communism. While discussing monarchy he made no direct reference to Prince Juan, heir presumptive to the now non-existent Spanish throne, who has said he would not reign over a Falangist regime.

(The 32-year-old prince, third son of the late King Alfonso XIII, declared in a statement issued at Lausanne, Switzerland, last March 22, that Franco's regime was modelled on the Axis totalitarian system and was contrary to the "character and tradition" of the Spanish people. He called upon Franco to resign and bring lasting peace to Spain by restoration of the monarchy, warning that Spain was in danger of another civil war).

Franco, in declaring that the nation was heading toward the traditional form of Spanish political government said "the institution we are to forge must prove stronger than the mistakes which may be made by individual rulers. The best law will be of no avail if the Fa... gist spirit weakens."

Franco said "we must fix my succession in accord with the majority of Spaniards. I must declare that there is no room for option in the regime to be chosen, which is the traditional regime and which I defended repeatedly.

"I always said that we were going by steps toward it. I am not ignorant of the dangers of this step, but I am certain that this monarchy must have all the guarantees to incarnate our greatest monarchs."

Attacks Communism

The generalissimo, discussing outside attacks on Spain, said they stemmed from the so-called "liberal democracy of France and communism generally."

"Communism is the negation of everything in Spain's national life which is Catholic, proud, intelligent, and based on individual liberty," he declared.

"To understand Spain is to understand the Catholic mind, its ethical principles, its spiritual conception x x x. Spain upholds a system of social justice, of social welfare and of common solidarity among the people. The Communist paradise consists of egoistic miseries."

Franco asserted the Spanish regime maintained an "independent policy throughout the war" and said that the late President Roosevelt and the British government had paid tribute to Spain's nonbelligerency.

He declared Spain wants "her independence coupled with dignified cooperation with other countries" in the postwar world. He said although Spain remained neutral during the European war there "were moments when intervention would have brought great material advantages." He added that Spain's neutrality had aided the Allies during the North African invasion.

"Spain looks forward to normal and happy relations with all peoples," the generalissimo said. "One can desire international relations without being Communist or internationalist."

FRANCO MOVE CALLED RUSE

Aim Is To Keep Himself In Power, Diplomats Believe

Washington, July 17 (AP)—Francisco Franco's announced intention to restore a monarchy to Spain is regarded by diplomats here as a move designed to maintain himself in power.

They think also he has a fairly good chance of succeeding unless countries which are critical of his Government because of its Nazi and Fascist connections during the war take some overt action to unseat him.

For some time now, Francisco's main political problem has been regarded by Spanish experts here as being to ride out the wrath which the Allied world and particularly Russia have loosed against him. It is a question whether this storm will be stirred to the point—possibly by Stalin at the Big Three meeting at Berlin—where Franco will be blown out of power.

U.S. Not Co-Operating

The Spanish dictator's announcement to a meeting of his Falange at Madrid today about the monarchy reflected the predicament in which he finds himself.

Recently Washington has made clear in several instances that it was not taking measures to cooperate with Spain economically and even London has pursued a cool policy. The United Nations voted at San Francisco to ban from their membership any regime established with Nazi or Fascist aid.

American officials were not surprised at the announcement which many regarded as a kind of camouflage on Franco's part. Some said they had expected also that personnel changes would be announced in the Government as part of the same maneuver.

Policy—Hands Off

Washington's basic policy toward Madrid is to keep hands off and see what happens. Unquestionably there would be general jubilation here if Franco were overthrown, but no one seems to have word of any forces within Spain powerful enough to bring that about.

There has been some speculation that Stalin would demand at Berlin that the Big Three agree on a program to force Franco out of power. Others speculate, however, that in an effort to minimize all European problems, including some touchy ones in eastern Europe, Stalin will not make a fuss about Spain.

Possibly the man in the middle on the whole issue is Prime Minister Churchill who once raised a whirlwind of criticism for himself by offering kindly words for Franco's technical neutrality during the war.

Churchill's Attitude

Since that time Churchill has held back any further good words for Spain though Britain's official line is believed to have been somewhat more sympathetic with Spanish problems than that of the United States. On one occasion, however, Churchill almost violently rejected a proposal from Franco that the two of them have a conference and agree on a plan to "save" western Europe, as Franco put it, from Communism.

If the Spanish leader stays in power long enough to put over his monarchy idea the reaction to it would largely depend on the world conditions existing at the moment the new monarch moved in. But diplomats agree here that it would be more readily received, if it were to be received at all, in Britain that in either the United St... or Russia.

More than 8,300,000,000 lire was reported deposited in German Government accounts in Italian banks and an additional 1,200,000,000 lire in cash was confiscated from German army organizations.

The recovery was directed by Lieut. Col. John W. Clarke, senior Military Government finance officer, of Chicago.

Chinese Capture of Port Menaces Jap Supply Line

By SPENCER MOOSA

CHUNGKING, July 17—(AP)—Chinese troops, in a new invasion of Indo-China aided by mutinous Japanese [illegible] captured the impo[illegible] Indo-Chinese seaport of Moncay on Tokyo's direct shipping supply route to land-isolated southeast Asia, the Chinese high command said tonight.

NIGHT

In the Chinese interior, other forces of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's armies beat their way into the suburbs of the former American air base city of Kweilin and cut the enemy garrison's main escape route to the north, a communique said.

If the Chinese recapture Kweilin, with its three airfields, it would be the seventh U. S. 14th Air Force base to revert to American-Chinese control in recent months. Targets of American bombers, however, indicated that the Chines may have lost again the base at Suichwan, 290 miles north of Hongkong.

Moncay, in the extreme northeast corner of Indo-China on the Gulf of Tonkin, was a favorite overnight sheltering-place for Japan's supply boats sneaking along the South China coast to supply 200,000 beleaguered enemy troops in Indo-China, Malaya, Thailand and Burma.

The Chinese occupied Moncay after a mutiny of puppet troops in the Indochina-China border town of Tunghing July 7, the Chinese reported. The puppet soldiers surrendered to attacking troops of Free China with all their arms, and the Chinese, taking advantage of the situation, forced the Japanese to flee from Tunghing.

Sever Overland Link

The Chinese said their troops pursued the Japanese into Indo-China and occupied Moncay, two miles south of Tunghing, the same night. The occupation of the port, apparently only lightly garrisoned, severed the enemy's only remaining, tenuous overland highway link between Indo-China and China. It also widened the new Chinese corridor to the South China coast, the only link between the interior and the sea.

Adding to the disruption of Japan's sea supply routes to southeast Asia, U. S. 14th Air Force fighters winged from inland bases to the Indo-Chinese coast yesterday and blasted enemy shipping from Moncay 96 miles southwest to the bigger port of Haiphong.

Other Chinese attack troops, operating along the China coast 210 miles east of Moncay, recaptured the coastal highway town of Tinpak, 165 miles southwest of Canton, recutting Japanese communication lines between Canton and the Luichow peninsula, the high command said.

Retaking Tinpak, the Chinese struck at the rear of Japanese forces which are pushing eastward along the coast, either to build up an anti-invasion wall or to join Japanese forces in the Canton area. The Chinese command reported that the enemy troops had advanced from Yeungkong, 120 miles southwest of Canton, to the area of Yanping, 86 miles southwest. This represented a 34-mile enemy advance.

Fight in Mountain Town

In another action in Indo-China, the high command reported fighting 131 miles northwest of Moncay near the mountain town of Trung Khanh Phu. A communique said a force of 300 Japanese from Trung Khanh Phu drove four miles north to the Chinese border, pushed over and broke into Yoyo township south of the Chinese highway center of Tsingi.

The Chinese inflicted more than 100 casualties and forced the Japanese to withdraw to their original positions at Trung Khanh Phu, 19 miles northeast of Caobang.

Fierce fighting was reported raging 400 miles southeast of Chungking for control of Kweilin. Advance Chinese elements infiltrated the outskirts of that Kwangsi province capital while major forces, pushing up from the southwest, reached a point nine and a half miles from Yungfu, 31 miles southwest of Kweilin. This represented a gain of 11 1-2 miles.

At the same time, 57 miles northeast of Kweilin, the Chinese drove a wedge across the Kweilin-Hengyang railroad to Chaishu, cutting the enemy's retreat line from Kwangsi to Hunan province. Whether the Chinese had the strength to hold this roadblock remained to be seen.

Another column of Chinese veterans captured an enemy-held point six miles north of Ining, a highway junction 11 miles northwest of Kwelin, the Chinese communique said.

American fliers yesterday went to the aid of Chinese forces in Kiangsi province where the Japanese, having abandoned the former U. S. base of Kahsien, were last reported advancing within four miles of nearby Suichwan, the first of six bases recovered in the current Chinese drive.

An American communiqué said fighters attacked Japanese troop concentrations in the Suichwan area, destroyed buildings and silenced gun positions. This possibly indicated that the Japanese had retaken that town with its near-by airstrip.

Other American planes ranged over North China, hitting bridges on the Japanese-operated Peiping-Hankow railroad.

Soong Returns From Moscow

Chungking, July 17 (AP)—Premier T. V. Soong returned today from Moscow after a visit of more than two weeks in the Russian capital, during which he conferred with Premier Stalin and other high Soviet officials.

Soong was accompanied on his return to Chungking by Apollon Petrov, Soviet Ambassador to China.

The Chinese Premier had been in Moscow since June 30 and had had four meetings with Stalin.

Chinese Capture Indo-China Town

JUL 18 1945

Chungking, July 17 (AP)—Chinese forces have occupied Moncay, in the northeasternmost corner of French Indo-China, the Chinese high command announced today.

Moncay is on the Chinese-Indo-China border, near the Gulf of Tonking coast, 135 miles northeast of Hanoi, capital of Indo-China, and 90 miles southwest of Yunging (Nanning), in China.

The high command said that Chinese forces occupied the town after a mutiny of puppet troops directly across the border in the Kwangtung province town of Tung Hing on July 7. The puppet units surrendered to Chinese national forces with all their arms, the announcement said.

Pursued Across Border

The Japanese at Tung Hing were forced to retreat across the border. Chinese forces pursued them into Indo-China and occupied Moncay the same night, the high command said.

Meanwhile, some 500 miles to the northeast, Chinese vanguards have infiltrated into the outskirts of Kweilin, former American airbase city 90 miles northeast of recently recaptured Liuchow, the Chinese announced.

Other troops pushing up the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad from Liuchow have advanced to within 40½ miles of Kweilin, abandoned last October by the United States 14th Air Force. This advance placed the Chinese moving along the railroad at a point within 9½ miles of Yungfu, which is 31 miles southwest of Kweilin.

Other Chinese forces drove a wedge into the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad between Kweilin and Chuanhsien, 67 miles northeast of Kweilin, thus cutting off enemy retreat from the former airbase along the rail line which runs through Hengyang. The rail line was cut 8 miles northeast of Hsinganhsien, which is 33 miles northeast of Kweilin.

The high command also announced the recapture of Tinpak, a coastal highway town on the South China Sea, 175 miles southwest of Canton.

Capture of this town severed Japanese communications with Luichow Peninsula and Hainan Island to the south, the Chinese said.

Enemy Intercepted

A body of Japanese troops from Luichow Peninsula and which had previously struck eastward beyond Tinpak to the highway junction of Yeungkong, 125 miles southwest of Canton, drove northeastward along the Yeungkong-Canton highway on July 12, but was intercepted by Chinese forces, the high command said.

These Jap troops had moved, it was surmised, either in an attempt to maintain communications between Hainan and Canton, or simply to join other forces in the Canton area.

The high command reported fighting on the French Indo-China border north of Trung Khan Phu (Chungchingfu), which is 19 miles northeast of Caobang and 4 miles from the frontier.

The announcement said that between 200 and 300 Japanese from Trung Khan Phu on July 7 infiltrated into the vicinity of Yoyo township inside Chinese territory south of Tsingsi, a highway center 22 miles north of Trung Khan Phu.

Ellender Asks Inquiry In Chennault Retirement

Cites 'Cloak of Secrecy,' Hints 'Grave Injustice'

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP).—Senator Allen J. Ellender, Democrat, of Louisiana, demanded today an investigation of the circumstances of Major General Claire L. Chennault's retirement from the Army Air Forces in China.

Ellender, asserting the explanation for replacing Chennault "is clothed in secrecy," told the Senate it must have been a "great disappointment" to the founder of the Flying Tigers.

"He was not a graduate of West Point and it is well known that they look down on reserve officers," Ellender said. "Genius and heroism can't be taught. There may have been a grave injustice done here to a great general."

In a resolution Ellender asked the Military Committee to make an inquiry.

Chungking Council Praises Chennault

Chungking, July 17 (AP)—The Peoples Political Council adopted unanimously today a resolution praising Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, retiring commander of the United States 14th Air Force, for his "magnificent contribtuion to China's war effort."

Chennault, who commanded the famous Flying Tigers of the American Volunteer Group before Pearl Harbor, has also been serving as Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's air chief of staff.

KUNMING, China, July 17 (AP)—A Signal Corps construction company commanded by Maj. Edmund B. Johnson of Newburgh, N. Y., has completed the Kunming-Kweiyang link of a military telephone system that he says "eventually will reach Tokyo."

The line, about 400 miles long, was built at the rate of five miles a day over some of China's most rugged country. Direct communication now is possible between Kweiyang, in Kweichow Province, and Calcutta.

Most of the equipment was brought from the United States.

Calcutta, July 17 (A. P.).—British forces have cleared Japanese troops from the Heho-Taunggyi road—along which some Japanese were fleeing toward Thailand—up to a point two miles northwest of Taunggyi, 100 miles southeast of Mandalay, Southeast Asia Command Headquarters said today.

Some 210 miles to the south, bitterly resisting enemy forces held firmly to positions near the junction of the Pegu-Sittang canal and the Sittang River near Myitkyo, twenty-nine miles northeast of Pegu. The Japanese have fortified a railway bridge at nearby Nyaungkashe and have established various forward strongpoints which are being probed.

ARGENTINA DENIES HIDING HITLER, EVA

Decides To Give U-Boat To Allies, Probes Sub Reports

JUL 19 1945

New York, July 17 (AP)—The French Brazzaville radio, monitored by NBC, tonight quoted "the South American newspaper, La Critica," as saying Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun have taken refuge on Queen Maud Island in the Antarctic.

Buenos Aires, July 17 (AP)—César Ameghino, Foreign Minister of Argentina, today denied there was any truth to a report that Adolf Hitler and his reported bride, Eva Braun, were in the Argentine.

[A Chicago Times correspondent at Montevideo sent out a story stating that the pair had reached the Argentine coast by the German submarine U-530 and were living on a German-owned estate in Patagonia.]

The Argentine Government said it had disarmed the U-530, which surrendered to Argentina on July 10 at the Mar Del Plata naval base, to the United States and Great Britain.

Ameghino told a press conference today that a report that one or possibly two submarines had been sighted off San Clemente del Tuyu was "being investigated."

He said that the Governmer.t's only information regarding the reports of submarines off the Argentine coast came from Ismael Mendez, telephone station manager at San Clemente del Tuyu.

Reports Coastal Patrol

The Foreign Minister said that for two months before the U-530 surrender several days ago at Mar del Plata, Argentine police and naval patrol planes had kept a constant watch along the coastline and that "an investigation of the course U-530 followed to our shores does not indicate it approached the coast until the day it showed up at the Mar del Plata base. However, the vigilance of the Federal police was intensified and extended into the interior of Patagonia, even to Estancias, owned by Germans."

Regarding the newest submarine reports, the editor of the Dolores El Tribuno told the Associated Press that more than 100 persons saw two submarines off San Clemente del Tuyu shortly before 11 A.M. today. The vessels surfaced near the mouth of the River Plate about three miles off shore, the editor said.

Not Accounted For

The police station in General La Valle, 120 miles south of Buenos Aires on the Atlantic Coast, told the Associated Press that what seemed to be a submarine had been seen navigating off San Clemente point, 15 miles from General La Valle.

The navy ministry said the submarines could not possibly be Argentine as all were at their bases.

[The British Admiralty said yesterday that four German submarines had not been accounted for.]

Mendez, the San Clemente telephone manager, said he personally had seen a submarine from the rooftop of his station. "I saw it navigating and surface. Two Argentine naval planes flew over it. Then the submarine quickly sank from view and has not appeared since."

TWO MORE GERMAN SUBS ARE HUNTED

BUENOS AIRES, July 17—(AP) Argentine naval authorities are investigating reports that one and possibly two submarines were sighted off San Clemente Del Tuyu today only a few days after the German U530 surrendered at Mar Del Plata.

(The British admiralty said yesterday four German submarines had not been accounted for.)

The editor of the newspaper El Tribuno of Dolores, near the Atlantic coast, told the Asssociated Press there was no doubt that two submarines were sighted by more than 1000 people shortly before 11 a.m. today. The editor said the vessels surfaced three miles off San Clemente.

The Navy ministry said it had no confirmation.

Official announcement of the government's decision was set for 3 p.m. Eastern War time.

The cabinet agreed on this action after studying a report submitted by a committee of four foreign ministry officials. The report said Argentina's declaration of war against Germany and Japan tied her "closely with the position of the United Nations."

Whereabouts of the submarine in the two months between the time Germany capitulated and the vessel was surrendered have not been explained.

Hitler Reported in Argentina

Chicago Paper Hears Fuehrer and Eva Braun Were Landed There by U-boat.

Chicago, July 17 (A. P.).—The Chicago Times declared today in a dispatch from Vincent de Pascal, a Montevideo correspondent, that it was "virtually certain" that Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun—the latter dressed in male attire—landed in Argentina and are now living on one of a number of immense German-owned estates in Patagonia, purchased some time ago to provide sanctuary for the Nazi overlords "if and when their schemes for world conquest went awry."

The pair are reported to have landed on a lonely shore from a German submarine which is supposed to have returned to surrender to the Allies, de Pascal went on to say and added: "There are reasons to believe that the Argentine Government may have known that Nazi U-boats lurked off its shores. Certainly there are enough Nazi sympathizers in Argentina who would jump at the chance to give a haven to the living symbol of National Socialism."

In this connection, the story said, "the utmost significance is now attached to the words of Gen. Basilo Pertine at a banquet on June 4: 'I am glad to announce that our friends are safe at last.'

"A Federal inspector recently reported there was serious cause to believe leading Nazis had landed at San Julian in Patagonia, perhaps bringing with them bullion, jewels and other treasures which escaped Allied armies in their final dash to Berlin."

cneck up on a report that Adolf Hitler and Eva Braun are hiding out in Argentina.

It directed the American Embassy in Buenos Aires to follow up a "Chicago Times" story from Montevideo which said Hitler and his alleged wife have found haven in Patagonia.

Argentina has assured other Allied governments that it would not harbor Axis war criminals.

The "Chicago Times" story was from correspondent Vincent DePascal. He said he was virtually certain that Hitler and the woman he is supposed to have married in Berlin's last days "are on an immense, German-owned estate in Patagonia."

"The pair reportedly landed on a lonely shore from a German submarine which supposedly returned to surrender to the Allies," DePascal wrote.

SCARCITY OF PORK SHOWN IN SURVEY

Ottawa, July 17 (A. P.).—The decline of the empire of hog production built in Canada and the United States during the war was painted in somber figures in the Department of Agriculture's review of conditions today.

The figures, given urgency by the need of Europe for meat, are:

In January, 1944, North American hog population reached the record level of 99,000,000 head. In January, 1945, this figure had been reduced to 74,000,000, and a further reduction is probable by the end of this year unless the present trend is checked.

Continental Europe, before the war, accounted for about 26 per cent of world swine production, but in 1945 the total is about 50,000,000 head, or less than 19 per cent. Shortages of feed may lead to further reduction in European pig production by 1946.

In June the Canadian Meat Board, in charge of bacon exports to Great Britain, had received about 235,000,000 pounds, compared with 394,000,000 pounds a year earlier.

At the halfway mark in 1945 it appeared that inspected hog slaughterings in Canada were more than 1,750,000 head smaller than the record total for the first half of 1944.

The enlarged wartime production roused hopes that Canada would be able to retain indefinitely the major British market formerly held by Denmark, but now some authorities say that unless the Dominion can show large-scale production will be maintained Great Britain is apt to look to Europe for bacon supplies.

FLYER'S ROMANCE

Ottawa, July 17 (A. P.).—A squadron leader of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Gordon Carter of 85 Parkway Road, Bronxville, N. Y., waited today for the passport authorities to write another chapter in a romance that began when a French girl helped him escape to England after his plane had been shot down during a raid on Lorient in February, 1943.

The French girl, Janine Jouanjean, helped more than 100 other Allied airmen escape from the Germans. Now she is Mrs. Carter. They were married a week after Carter's return to France on May 9—he had been shot down again and spent fourteen months in the Sagan prison camp in Germany.

Now en route to his Bronxville home, Carter was born of British parents in France, where he lived for thirteen years. He came to the United States several years ago to attend Dartmouth College. When the war began he went to Montreal, joined the R. C. A. F. and became a navigator. He was later decorated by King George at Buckingham Palace.

By virtue of their marriage, his wife became a British subject. She is waiting for a passport and other papers to allow her to join her husband in the United States.

Truman Peace Power Hinted

Washington, July 17 (AP)—Two Republican senators predicted today that Congress will authorize the President to exercise peace-keeping police powers at his discretion.

This would settle the controversy over authority to be granted the American representative on the proposed World Security Council of the United Nations.

Senators Vandenberg, of Michigan, and Millikin, of Colorado, said in separate interviews that they believe the Foreign Relations Committee pointed the way toward a solution of this issue in its formal report recommending ratification of the United Nations Charter.

Committee's Contention

Vandenberg helped fashion the Charter as a delegate to the San Francisco conference. Millikin led the critical questioning of Charter proponents in hearings, but later announced he was satisfied and would vote for ratification.

The committee report declared that any attempt to require advance congressional approval in each instance before American troops could be used at the direction of the Council would "violate the spirit" of the Charter.

Such a proposal may be made by Senator Bushfield (R., S.D.) and others when subsequent enabling legislation is considered.

Vandenberg's View

Agreeing with the committee view, Vandenberg said he interpreted this to mean that the President could instruct the American delegate to vote for or against the use of force, including United States divisions, where the only question involved was one of a policing nature. He suggested that as an added precaution the President may be required to report to Congress the decision he had made.

Under this system Vandenberg said Congress would retain the sole right to declare war. Noting that it is difficult to draw a line at where police action stops and actual warfare begins Vandenberg suggested that no definition be attempted.

He said the country has gone 150 years without drawing any such line between presidential and congressional powers.

Millikin's Opinion

JUL 19 1945

With somewhat the same viewpoint, Millikin said he thought there is no question that the Security Council must have some forces immediately available to it. He added that the President should make the American part of the decision on when to use them so long as only policing activity is involved.

The committee report asserted that preventive or enforcement action taken by the military forces at the direction of the Security Council would not be an act of war, adding:

"Consequently, the provisions of the Charter do not affect the exclusive power of Congress to declare war."

Could Veto Use Of Force

In this connection, the report pointed out that the United States, holding one of the five permanent seats on the eleven-member council, can veto any use of force if it chooses.

But Senator Shipstead (R., Minn.), a committee member who was not recorded either for or against approval of the Charter, complained that testimony about the authority of the American representative had been "confused."

Shipstead said that while he had "no objection to the treaty being reported to the Senate without prejudice on my part," he wants this issue clarified before a final vote is taken.

DE GAULLE VISIT TO U.S. ARRANGED

French Leader Will Arrive Soon After Big 3 Talks

Washington, July 17 (AP)—Definite agreement has been reached between the United States and France that Gen. Charles de Gaulle will visit this country shortly after the Big Three meeting ends.

American officials confirmed this today, although they still withheld an official statement because an exact date for the French leader's trip remains to be fixed.

De Gaulle announced several weeks ago that he had accepted an invitation for the visit from President Truman. Lack of prompt United States confirmation was taken in some places as indicating a cooling of French-American relations, but officials said today the silence was a matter of diplomatic etiquette, and did not reflect the President's attitude.

Both Parties Satisfied

Both American and French officials seemed well satisfied today with the way arrangements for the general's trip are shaping up.

Clearly, de Gaulle will want to talk with Mr. Truman at length on decisions made by the Big Three in their Potsdam meeting now in session.

One of the most important problems which will have to be taken up is the Syrian situation since the bloody outbreak last month which led Prime Minister Churchill to send British troops to that country.

Little Done On Syria

At that time big-power negotiations were suggested to settle the difficulties over Syria and Lebanon, but so far little has been done. It seems unlikely that the Big Three will have time to go thoroughly into the intricate tangles of Levantine affairs.

Present indications are that de Gaulle's visit to Washington will be brief, since France is busily preparing for nation-wide elections in October. De Gaulle came to see President Roosevelt for a few days last summer, but he has not yet had a chance to talk with President Truman. It has been indicated that press of business at home will force Mr. Truman to return directly from Potsdam without visiting European leaders.

ARMED SERVICES GET FIRST CALL ON ALL RAIL CARS

Nation's Passenger Cars Are Placed in Transportation Pool.

TO CURTAIL SERVICE

ODT Director Appeals to Public to Avoid Unnecessary Trips.

JUL 19 1945

WASHINGTON, July 17 — (AP) The armed services today got first call on virtually all of the nation's railway passenger cars.

The Office of Defense Transportation has placed all passenger coaches, baggage and express cars in a big pool to be available on demand for the use of the armed services.

The action does not automatically curtail service available to civilians, but sets up the mechanics for making more passenger equipment available for use in the redeployment of troops from Europe to the Pacific. And in the end, the agency emphasized, there will be less equipment for civilian use.

The order, which affects more than 30,000 cars of various kinds, provides that they be used for such purposes as the ODT may direct.

This means that the agency may order any car affected by the order into any service. And as the impact of redeployment increases, ODT said, it probably will become necessary at times to cancel regularly scheduled passenger trains.

However, Vice President C. H. Buford of the Association of American Railroads said "an effort will be made to select equipment in a way that will avoid the need for discontinuing regular trains outright."

"This order," said Buford in a statement, "makes it mandatory for the railroads to do the things they have been doing on a voluntary basis and that is, furnish equipment for the movement of military personnel in preference to civilian business.

"Present plans contemplate a large increase in military movements which will call for the use of passenger equipment in excess of any previous demands and the needed equipment will have to be withdrawn from civilian service from time to time.

"It is hoped that ways can be found to meet the military needs without unduly crippling any particular area."

ODT said in its announcement, "travel will become more uncomfortable than ever before."

ODT Warning

Director J. Monroe Johnson again appealed to the public to avoid all unnecessary rail trips, and predicted persons leaving home on unnecessary journeys may find it impossible to return.

Johnson elaborated in a radio talk tonight, saying:

"It is high time for anybody planning a pleasure trip to give up wishful thinking.

"We've got to stop this traipsing around the country on pleasure trips and get down to the job of winning the war. The sooner we do this, the sooner the war will be won."

Asked whether further steps to curtail civilian travel would be taken, Johnson replied:

"They certainly will be taken when and if necessary."

Under the terms of the order, effective immediately, any railroad in possession of any passenger car, baggage car, express car, or combination passenger and baggage car, "shall cause such car (1) to be used for such purpose and in such service as the ODT shall direct, (2) to be leased, rented, hired or furnished to such other railroad, carrier or other person as ODT shall designate."

This step followed closely an order eliminating 895 sleeping cars from runs of 450 miles or less in order to make the cars available for troops use.

Still further curtailment of sleeping car service for civilians is in prospect, with indications that another 1,500 sleepers will be shifted to military use within the next few months.

Approximately two-thirds of all pullman sleeping cars already are assigned to military use.

A Pullman representative said today's pooling order includes parlor cars. However, it is unlikely that many of them will be pooled as they can seat comparatively few persons.

23 Marines, Taken Sick On Train, Criticize Food

Miami, Fla., July 17 (AP)—Twenty-four Marines—23 of them sick with dysentery apparently caused by bad food—arrived in Miami today to tell another chapter in the controversial issue of railroad transportation furnished to America's fighting men.

The Marines, all air crewmen with an average of 50 missions in seven Pacific campaigns, were sent here by troop sleeper from El Centro, Cal., to attend operational training school at Opa Locka Naval Airbase.

Instances Of Hardship

Pfc. Ed. Linebarger, of Batesville, Ark., wearer of four battle stars and the Presidential unit citation, acted as spokesman for the group and in an interview with the Miami Daily News he cited the following instances of hardship on the journey:

1. Meals of "mouldy green stuff they told us was chicken liver."

2. Having to pass through air-conditioned coaches occupied by German prisoners of war en route to the dining car.

3. Traveling in an unventilated car.

4. A water supply that sometimes worked but generally didn't.

Their 3,000-mile trek started five days ago in El Centro, Linebarger said, and the Marines "sweated, cussed and carried on" through the discomforts of the regulation troop sleeper with their ordeal made more difficult by the dubious quality of the food.

RAILROADS IN WEST GET JOB PRIORITY

JUL 18 1945

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—Seventeen Western railroads today had top priority for 65,000 workers needed to move troops and supplies to the Pacific.

The War Manpower Commission said that qualified workers in twenty-two occupations can be referred to the Western rail lines without requiring certificates of availability. This development followed an appeal by President Truman from Potsdam, Germany, late yesterday for citizens to take some of the 65,000 vacant jobs. Mr. Truman said:

"If the demands of the Japanese war are to be met, the railroads in the West must have additional man power immediately. Any patriotic American who is not already engaged in essential war work can make a real contribution toward the defeat of Japan by applying for a job on a Western railroad."

The Association of American Railroads said that about 100,000 jobs, including the 65,000 on the Western carriers, must be filled to keep the nation's railroads functioning efficiently. Needed most are engineers, firemen, conductors, brakemen, switchmen and hostlers. Second in need are train dispatchers, yard masters, telegraphers and signalmen. Application should be made to the local officers of the Railroad Retirement Board or to the local United States Employment Service Offices.

TRUMAN URGES SINGLE SURPLUS GOODS CONTROL

Asks Congress to Reverse Itself by Abolishing 3-man Board.

GILLETTE'S STAND DEFENDED

President Says Former Senator Was Right in Insisting on Decisive Action.

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—President Truman asked Congress today to reverse itself and place control of surplus property disposal under a single administrator, rather than a three-man board. The President thus reopened a 1944 fight over the disposition of billions of dollars' worth of war goods which the Government is beginning to sell in volume as the result of the defeat of Germany.

Mr. Truman noted that last year Secretary of State Byrnes, then War Mobilization Director, had urged the appointment of a single administrator, rather than the three-man control which Congress finally put into effect.

"I think experience has proved him right," Mr. Truman said. "In a field which calls for quick and decisive action, it is undesirable to dilute responsibility for the disposal of surplus property."

Former Senator Guy Gillette of Iowa recently resigned as Surplus Property Board chairman and the Senate last week confirmed William Stuart Symington of St. Louis to replace him. Other members of the three-man board and former Gov. Robert A. Hurley of Connecticut and Lieut.-Col. Edward H. Heller of San Francisco.

Effective Performance.

Mr. Truman told Congress that he was "convinced that the effective performance of the vast administrative tasks remaining for the disposal of the surplus property imperatively requires that authority to make decisions and responsibilities for those decisions should be centralized in a single official." Surplus Property Board officials concurred in the opinion that Mr. Truman intended to make Symington, who took his oath as chairman only yesterday, the new administrator if Congress acts favorably on the recommendation.

Neither Symington, who was president of the Emerson Electric Manufacturing Company of St. Louis, nor Hurley, would comment immediately on the President's message. Heller was absent from his office.

The conclusion that President Truman would prefer Symington as sole administrator was based on the fact that he is the only board member named by Mr. Truman. In addition, SPB had a long record of conflict between the former chairman, Gillette, on the one hand, and Hurley and Heller on the other.

Gillette Report.

In an informal report to Mr. Truman before his departure, Gillette recommended the single-administrator form of organization. Gillette also advocated the removal of SPB from the control of the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, holding that the agency lacked freedom of action and should be responsible only to Congress. A bill proposing such a separation has been introduced by Senator Stewart (D.-Tenn.).

Surplus goods are selling at the rate of $50,000,000 monthly, with the Government recovering something less than 35 per cent of its costs. However, the inventories of surpluses on hand are mounting steadily, and returns to the taxpayer are expected to drop the longer goods are held.

House leaders said that the President's recommendations would not be acted upon until after that Chamber returns from a summer recess, probably early in October.

Truman to Use 1798 Statute to Deport Aliens

Would Expel Dangerous Foreigners Not Subject to Immigration Laws

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP).—President Truman today reactivated a 1798 alien-enemy statute which makes possible the deportation of dangerous alien enemies who are not subject to ouster under immigration laws.

By proclamation issued through the White House, the President authorized Attorney General Tom C. Clark to ship back to their respective countries aliens he considers dangerous to the security of the United States.

The provision made effective by the proclamation is part of the alien enemy act of 1798. The first part of the act, authorizing the arrest and internment of dangerous aliens, was made effective by President Roosevelt when America entered the war. The second part, authorizing deportation, has now been invoked by President Truman.

The Justice Department explained that up to now alien enemies who have been deported have been voluntary repatriates or have been persons sent home because of immigration law violations. The department added that many dangerous aliens could not otherwise be deported because they have not been found to have violated immigration laws.

The department said it will announce shortly what steps it intends taking in view of the President's action.

Senators Press Job-Aid Plea Of Truman

JUL 18 19

Washington, July 17 (AP) — Six Democratic senators teamed today to carry out President Truman's request for broadened unemployment benefits during reconversion, including higher payments to veterans.

Going further than similar legislation introduced in the House, Senator Kilgore (W.Va.) said the measure represents "a sincere attempt" to carry out Mr. Truman's May 28 plea for "decent unemployment benefits (to) serve as a bulwark against postwar deflation."

Representative Doughton (D., N.C.) said last week that he introduced his measure at Administration "request" and declined to state his own opinion of it.

Would Amend GI Bill

The Senate bill, in addition to augmenting state unemployment benefits with Federal funds to bring payments to a maximum of $25 a week and extending the duration of payments to 26 weeks in any year, would:

1. Amend the so-called GI Bill of Rights to increase veterans' "unemployment benefits from a flat $20 a week to $25 for single persons and $30 for those with dependents. In addition, veterans would have to serve only 90 days instead of the present nine and one half months to qualify for the maximum of 52 weeks of payments.

2. Provide for payment of travel allowances to workers referred to new jobs in another city by the United States Employment Service. These allowances would not exceed amounts paid to civilian employes of the Government.

3. Extend benefits to Federal workers, maritime workers, agricultural processing workers and those employed in small firms not now covered by state laws.

Would Change Tax Act

4. Amend the Federal Unemployment Tax Act to extend its provisions to employers of one (instead of eight) or more, effective January 1.

The House bill made no additional provision for veterans, nor did it include travel allowances or coverage of agricultural processing workers.

Kilgore, listing as cosponsors Senators Murray (Mont.), Wagner (N.Y.), Thomas (Utah), Guffey (Pa.) and Pepper (Fla.) said in a statement prepared for floor delivery:

"We trust that, with unemployment already appearing in substantial amounts in many sections and with the grave danger of large-scale, nation-wide unemployment looming over our heads, the two houses of Congress will move speedily in considering these bills."

Hart Opposes Bretton Woods Bank Fund in Senate Debate

WASHINGTON, July 17—(AP) Senate Republicans split wide over the Bretton Woods world bank-fund today, one group wanting to have nothing to do with it and another backing it as a benefit to the U. S. and the world.

The plan calls for a $9,100,000,000 international bank to make or guarantee loans for rehabilitation and economic development, and an $8,800,000,000 fund to stabilize currencies.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), resuming his all-out fight against the legislation on the Senate floor, summed up his arguments:

1—That the dollar is "the only stable" currency and before long all American dollars subscribed to the fund will be grabbed up and there will be a scarcity.

2—That the U. S. will be forced "into the moral obligation of lending more and more money abroad."

Senator Hart (R-Conn), former admiral, joined Taft's forces. He said he was favoring the United Nations charter but as for Bretton Woods, the probable gains would be "badly over-balanced by the risks involved."

"The world may and probably does overestimate our physical capacity for over altruism," Hart contended.

He agreed with Taft that this is not the time to seek to stabilize currencies. Taft has contended that this must be done by "self regeneration" of nations, then a world bank may be a sound proposal.

30.24-28465

"The nations which look to us for further help would do well to be moderate in their demands upon us," Sen. Hart said.

"A powerful America is necessary," Hart said. "We must keep America strong—strong for our own purposes, hope of the world or not," he declared.

Leading the other republican wing, Senator Tobey (R-NH) called the banking setup an essential part of the postwar world of "economic cooperation." He spoke as a delegate to the Bretton Woods, N. H., conference at which the plan was drawn up.

Punching back at Taft, he said, "It is fantastic to say that the British, the French, the Russians, the Latin American countries have no credit standing."

Senator Aiken (R-VT) joined Tobey, asking whether those who are saying the Russians would misuse the fund "are not the same who a few months ago were saying the Russians would stop at the border and not invade Germany."

Crowley Questioned

The question of financing Russia came up also before the senate banking committee questioning Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, on the bill to increase the export-import bank capital to $3,500,000,000.

Questioned by Taft, Crowley denied that a loan of a billion of the expanded capital had been pledged to Russia, but he added that he would not call this an unreasonable sum to help the USSR in the next year of reconstruction.

Taft told the senate later that the move to add $2,800,000,000 to the export-import bank "proves that the supporters of Bretton Woods don't think it is adequate enough by itself."

Crowley said the export-import bank needs the extra capital—a "conservative amount"—to finance foreign trade in the next 12 months.

If Russia should get a billion in credits, Crowley said, the remaining $1,800,000,000 of the increase would go to other European countries to finance purchase of American goods, including Belgium, Holland, Poland and Italy.

BRETTON WOODS LAUDED BY TOBEY

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—Senator Tobey (R.-N. H.) today described the Bretton Woods agreements as an "essential part of a well-rounded program of post war economic co-operation."

Saying that the plans grew from the experience of the twenty years between the two great wars and are thef ruit of three years of negotiations, he told the Senate in the first speech from the Republican side in favor of the proposals:

"We have learned from bitter experience that international problems can be settled only by international co-operation. Bretton Woods means international co-operation for peace."

The Senator was one of the American delegates to the conference at Bretton Woods, N. H., last summer which framed the program for an $8,800,000,000 international monetary fund and a $10,000 international bank

CROWLEY ASKS TRADE LOANS

JUL 18 1945

Taft Opposes Lending to Aid U. S. Commerce.

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—Foreign Economic Administrator Leo T. Crowley told the Senate Banking Committee today $1,000,000,000 is a reasonable figure for Export-Import Bank aid to finance post-war trade with Russia.

At the same time Crowley disclosed restrictions in lend-lease shipments to France under the recently negotiated $2,575,000,000 agreement for war aid to that country.

He testified in behalf of House legislation to increase from $700,000,000 to $3,500,000,000 the lending powers of the Export-Import Bank of which he is chairman as FEA head. The $2,800,000,000 increase, he said, was a "conservative amount" of what is needed to finance foreign trade for the next twelve months.

Critical Period Ahead.

"The United States is approaching an extremely critical period with respect to financing of its foreign trade," he told the committee. "The problem has the most profound implications for the reconversion of war industries at home. Unless foreign markets for the products of American heavy industry can be found during the period which lies immediately ahead, many war-expanded industries will be obliged severely to curtail their operations and, accordingly, to reduce their employment of labor."

Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) said that he opposed financing markets for American goods abroad with American money, but agreed that war-ravaged nations needed some immediate help. Crowley said that lend-lease aid must end as soon as the Japanese war ends, except for some amounts to facilitate the movements of troops back home.

Bank Aid to Russia.

Taft asked if it were true that this Government already had pledged $1,000,000,000 Export-Import bank aid to Russia. Crowley denied this, and added: "I wouldn't say, however, that a billion dollars would be an improper amount to finance export trade to Russia."

Regarding France, Crowley said in reply to questions that all commitments to that nation were being turned down where they call for deliveries after December 31, 1945. Crowley said that the Export-Import Bank expansion would, if Russia gets $1,000,000,000 in credits, leave $1,800,000,000 for other European countries to help finance purchases of United States goods.

He mentioned the Low Countries, Poland and Italy as among the nations to receive credits, but said that nothing substantial would be left for Britain. Crowley left the impression that he expected aid to Britain to be handled by separate congressional action.

Draft-Ban Stirs Brisk Proposal Dispute

Washington, July 17 (AP)—Disarmament arguments of 25 years ago echoed in Congress today as legislators took sides on a proposed international ban upon peacetime military training.

The suggestion came from House Republican Leader Martin (Mass.) in the form of a House resolution calling on United States officials to negotiate such a pact with other nations.

Administration leaders immediately turned thumbs down on the proposal, declaring it "as unworkable as disarmament." But Republicans rallied to its support, asserting "it's just as practical as the peace agreements reached at the San Francisco conference."

"It's A Fine Idea"

"It's a fine idea and I think the people are for it," Representative Kearney (R., N.Y.) said. "People are sick of wars and this looks like one way to prevent them. I would certainly like to see it worked out."

Acting Chairman Thomason (D., Texas) of the House Military Committee agreed that the plan would be popular and had a "fine theory." But he said it would not work.

"Must Be Realistic"

"I don't believe the millennium has arrived," Thomason said. "As long as chaos exists and there are international outlaws in the world we can't any more abandon our defenses than a city can drop its police force."

Thomason, to whose committee the proposal will probably be referred, added:

"I don't think any such idea would get out of any committee under present world conditions. We must be realistic, not idealistic."

Kearney's Retort

"Nothing is impossible until it's tried," Kearney replied. "You might just as well say the San Francisco peace conference agreements won't work."

Martin contended that conscription "has never prevented war" and "is always viewed with suspicion and fear by other countries." He also said that if his plan were adopted it would relieve nations of "a great new burden" during reconversion to peace.

Chairman Woodrum (D., Va.) of the House Postwar Military Policy Committee, which has recommended a broad program of universal peacetime training, termed Martin's proposal "comparable to the disarmament plans after the last war."

"It would be a grand thing to contemplate," Woodrum said, "but our national security demands a highly trained citizen reserve militia."

Little Food Relief Due This Year, Nation Told

Washington, July 17 (AP)—Americans can expect food shortages for many months to come.

So saying in a "frank report" last night, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson added:

"We are likely to dine on more simple fare, minus the choice roasts, the thick, juicy steaks and much of the sweetening of prewar years."

Anderson gave this picture in a radio talk in which he said his first examination of the situation since entering the Cabinet on July 1 convinced him that little, if any, improvement could be obtained before next year's production season.

"Takes Time To Produce"

He assured consumers, however, that his department is taking "positive steps" to increase production.

But "because it takes time to produce food not much relief from actual shortages can be expected during the rest of 1945. The supply of food we have available to us at this time was fixed by what was done a year or more ago, just as what we do now will determine the food supply that will be on hand next year."

While waiting for greater production, Anderson said, his department will try to obtain better distribution of available supplies by "choking off" black markets and by reducing military, other governmental and foreign relief demands to minimum requirements.

He said the department would also seek supplementary production and supplies in other parts of the world, particularly South America.

Meats, food fats and vegetable oils, sugar, condensed and evaporated milk, and canned fruits and vegetables will continue short, he said. In addition, rice and dry beans will decrease. Except for wheat, potatoes and most fresh vegetables, the 1945 crops will not be adequate for all the demands. About the only bright spot was said to be the milk supply.

Brazil Moving Mountain Of Iron Ore For War

Washington, July 17 (AP)—With American technical co-operation, Brazil is moving a mountain of iron ore from the interior to the seacoast for shipment to the steel furnaces of Great Britain's war industry, says the Office of Inter-American Affairs.

The scene of the effort is the Rio Doce Valley, a region with an incredibly rich and almost inexhaustible deposit of iron ore at one end, a small but adequate port at the other, and a 330-mile railroad connecting the two.

Vital For War

The ore is important to the United Nations' war effort for its amazingly high quality and its abundance. The highest possible yield of metallic iron from haematite ore is 70.4 per cent, and a considerable part of this Brazilian deposit has a content of 69.7 per cent.

By comparison the best-known United States ore—from the Lake Superior region—contains about 51 per cent. The Brazilian ore also has a phosphorus content averaging not more than one per cent—phenominally low, says the OIA.

In 5-Mile Area

The source of this ore extends over an area 5 miles long and 1 mile wide. It includes four mountain peaks which are roughly estimated to contain a total of 300,000,000 tons of high grade, low phosphorous ore, plus almost limitless reserves of lower grades. The part now being worked is Cauê, about 4,600 feet high—surface mining which extends down the mountainside to about 3,500 feet.

The region, called Rio Doce (Sweet River) for its main stream, contains about 25,000 square miles. Other assets there in addition to iron are gold, manganese, bauxite, nickel, mica, rock crystal and semi-precious stones. Scores of waterfalls on the larger river have been surveyed to determine their adaptability for a development on the model of United States's TVA.

North Of Rio De Janeiro

Itabira, the site of the mine, and Vitória, the outlet on the coast, are on virtually the same latitude about 300 miles north of Rio de Janeiro.

The job of harnessing this out-of-the-way component to the Allied war machine has devolved almost entirely on Brazilian and American officials and technicians, with the British furnishing the shipping and the market for the ore.

HOUSE O.K.'S TWO JUNKETS

JUL 1945

Major Committees To Make On-The-Spot Probes Abroad

Washington, July 17 (AP)—The House today voted two of its major committees—Foreign Affairs and Interstate Commerce—authority to make on-the-spot investigations abroad.

The Foreign Affairs trip brought protests of "useless junketing" and "globe-trotting expeditions" but nobody raised a voice against the Commerce Committee's planned voyage.

The Foreign Affairs Committee plans a $50,000 trip to Russia, the Balkans and other European nations in the wake of the war. It will study relief, lend-lease and general government.

Paper And Oil To Be Studied

The Commerce Committee plans specific investigations of world newsprint supplies, international aviation and oil reserves among other things.

Protesting the Foreign Affairs trip, Representative Cox (D., Ga.) declared it was a product of "injured vanity." The Foreign Affairs Committee felt slighted, he said, because its members have not been on earlier European visits.

Representative Sabath (D., Ill.) defended the projected trip, saying Congress should get its foreign information first hand, rather than depending upon reports from the State Department.

Steinman Heads Mission On Supply of Newsprint

Publishers Leaving Soon to Study Scandinavian Output

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP).—J. Hale Steinman, director of the War Production Board's printing and publishing division, heads a special mission of newspaper publishers leaving soon to determine the newsprint supply situation in Scandinavian and other European countries.

The mission will leave this country within the next ten days, it was announced today.

Members who will accompany Mr. Steinman, publisher of "The Lancaster (Pa.) Intelligencer," are William G. Chandler, president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association and chairman of its newsprint committee since 1931; Richard W. Slocum, general manager of "The Philadelphia Bulletin" and a former member of the W. P. B.'s newspaper industry advisory committee, and Dr. Gerard Larocque, technical consultant of the newspaper industry serving as paper engineer to the mission.

"The loss of newsprint production in the United States and Scandinavia as well as a worldwide shortage makes the need of obtaining adequate supplies of newsprint for the maintenance of a free press in the United States and liberated Europe a matter of vital concern to the press and the government of this country," the W. P. B. said.

Swedish Ship Brings 4,100 Tons Wood Pulp

New York, July 17 (AP)—The Swedish freighter Consul Corfitzen arrived today with 4,100 tons of wood pulp—a part of a series of such shipments designed to alleviate the critical shortage of newsprint in America.

Her sister ship, the Belos, docked at Boston July 15 with 4,300 tons of pulp and other ships are scheduled to arrive soon in Portland, Maine; Boston, New York and Baltimore.

Army Is Asked to Return 30,000 Men to Coal Mines

Discharges and Furloughs Are Sought in Congress Resolution

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP).—Release of men in the armed services to work in coal mines was sought today by Senator Harley M. Kilgore, Democrat, of West Virginia, and Representative John W. Flannagan, Democrat, of Virginia.

They introduced identical resolutions to put the Senate and House on record as urging the War Department and War Manpower Commission to:

1. Discharge from the Army immediately 10,000 former miners estimated to be eligible through the point system;

2. Borrow from the Army 20,000 additional experienced coal miners serving in the territorial United States to work in mines; and

3. Halt all recruitment of workers for other jobs in coal mining areas.

An unofficial committee which Representative Flannagan heads has already been turned down twice on requests that the armed forces release 30,000 former miners.

Government and industry officials say the nation faces a shortage of between 30,000,000 and 37,000,000 tons of coal this year.

The resolution declared that the War Department and the W. M. C. —"the agencies of the government having to do with the conditions of inadequate man power now gravely affecting the bituminous coal industry . . . have failed and refused to take any action designed to avoid or even to alleviate the present serious shortages of labor existing in the industry."

On the other hand, it continued, they have "continued to retain experienced coal miners in the Army who are now eligible for discharge under the point system . . . have declined to release on furlough any coal miners now serving in the Army . . . for the purpose of returning such men to the coal mines for a limited period of time."

Chiropractors Get Food Rights

Washington, July 17 (AP)—The OPA today authorized licensed chiropractors to certify extra food rations for medical reasons.

The action was part of a general simplification of rules governing "illness rations," designed to take care of liberated war prisoners, Axis internees and others needing additional food to recover their health.

"With increasing numbers of people suffering from dietary deficiencies coming back to this country, these steps are necessary to make the rations more readily available," OPA said.

Local Board Authority

Under the new regulations, OPA field offices may delegate to local ration boadsr authority to issue rations for illnesses that formerly required special handling and individual review by medical committees.

The new plan permits the local boards to honor certificates signed "by any licensed practitioner authorized by the laws of the State in which he practices to diagnose and treat the illness for which certification is made." Formerly only those practitioners eligible to register under the Federal narcotic law could certify applications for extra food. This ruled out such practitioners as chiropractors.

ACTION UNLIKELY IN JUDGE'S CASE

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—Some members of a House Judiciary sub-committee said privately today that they believe there is little likelihood that former Judge Albert W. Johnson of Lewisburg, Pa., would be impeached. The sub-committee, however, has taken no action and has reached no decision on what its recommendations will be, individual members told a reporter. A final decision rests with the full House.

They also said that trial of Johnson before the Senate in impeachment proceedings could accomplish no practical purpose, since Johnson has resigned. In addition, he waived all rights to his statutory full-pay pension of $10,000 yearly. The judge, who is 72, remains under investigation, meanwhile, by a Federal Grand Jury.

AUSTIN MENTIONED FOR SUPREME COURT

JUL 19 1945

WASHINGTON, July 17—(AP) Senator Warren R. Austin, Vermont Republican, received an endorsement for the Supreme Court today from Senator Hatch (D-N.M.), one of President Truman's closest friends and supporters in the Senate.

The New Mexican's action cut off virtually all speculation as to other possible appointees to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Justice Owen J. Roberts.

It is known that Hatch has been making an informal survey of sentiment among labor leaders, political figures and others as to whether they thought the President should appoint a Republican.

Roberts' retirement left Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone as the only member of the party on the High Tribunal.

Lending emphasis to Hatch's endorsement of the tall Vermont senator was the fact that Hatch previously had come out for Judge Sam G. Bratton of the Tenth Circuit court for the place.

Hatch said it was his "considered opinion," however, that appointment of a Republican "would be wise" and that Judge Bratton concurred. He expressed a belief that appointment of Senator Austin "would meet with universal approval throughout the country."

Unanimous Vote Confirms Vinso

Washington, July 17 (AP)—Fred M. Vinson was confirmed unanimously today by the Senate as Secretary of the Treasury.

The voice vote came shortly aft the Senate Finance Committee h approved, without hearings, the a pointment of Vinson and that J. John W. Snyder to succeed him as director of war mobilization and reconversion.

Both nominations were submitted only yesterday by Mr. Truman. Quick confirmation for Snyder also is indicated.

Vinson, 55-year-old Kentuckian who also has served as Director of economic Stabilization and preceded Snyder as Federal Loan Administrator, will take over from Henry Morgenthau, Jr., who is the sixth Cabinet officer serving under President Roosevelt to step out.

According to present plans, no successor to Snyder as Federal Loan Administrator will be appointed at least until Mr. Truman returns from Europe.

Informed officials expect Snyder to keep a finger in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for the present. As loan administrator he has been in charge of it. These officials believe Snyder won't hold both titles simultaneously, but his new position gives him such sweeping authority that he can decide RFC policy matters.

SAYS GENERAL STAFF 'FOUND' HIGHWAY DATA

WASHINGTON, July 17 (AP)—The Senate War Investigating Committee heard today that the Army General Staff was three or four months learning of its chief engineer's opinion that continued work on the Pan-American Highway would interfere with the war effort.

Lieut. Gen. Eugene Reybold, chief of engineers, told the committee that he reported to the director of the Requirements Division, Army Service Forces, on April 9, 1943, that "it was not believed that work already done has been carried out without interference to the war effort, or that work remaining to be done can be accomplished without such interference."

Brig. Gen. K. T. Hertford, representing the General Staff, said it knew nothing of this opinion until it was "found" between July 3 and Aug. 29, dates when a study was begun and finished on revisions in the military program.

Senator Mead, chairman, commented:

"It seems unbelievable that a report which would close a great project would simply be made and filed," and asked that the Army present witnesses at a session on Friday who could tell "what happened between April 9 and Oct. 31."

The highway project was shut down on Oct. 31, after the War Department had spent $42,715,591 on it.

ACADEMY-PLAN ACTION PUT OFF

Vinson Says Expansion Looks To 6,000 Midshipmen

JUL 1945

Washington, July 17 (AP)—A move toward navy acquisition of St. John's College at Annapolis was delayed today, but Representative Vinson (D., Ga.), chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee, declared:

1. The Navy plans expenditure of approximately $70,000,000 at the Naval Academy, increasing its size from the present 3,400 to between 6,000 and 7,500 midshipmen.

2. "The property of St. John's College is the only logical site" for new dormitories which will be necessary with this expansion.

3. It will be necessary for the Academy to acquire also three city blocks between the present Academy wall and King George street, Annapolis, as well as a plot owned by the Navy Athletic Association in West Annapolis.

4. House committee action on the proposal to acquire St. John's, third oldest college in the nation, will be taken within a few weeks.

Vinson originally had called on a subcommittee to report today findings it made on an inspection trip to Annapolis several weeks ago, but the group lacked a quorum and could not meet.

Quick Senate Okay Of Snyder Seen

Washington, July 17 (AP) — John W. Snyder, 49-year-old banker, from Arkansas and Missouri, will be the new "Assistant President."

President Truman yesterday nominated him as Director of War Mobilization and Reconversion, succeeding Fred M. Vinson. The Senate is expected to approve the nomination promptly; also that of Vinson to be Secretary of the Treasury.

Snyder now is Federal Loan Administrator. Mr. Truman put him in that office just two and a half months ago. There Snyder also succeeded Vinson, who was loan administrator only one month.

Streamlined The RFC

Under Snyder's leadership the Reconstruction Finance Corporation was streamlined for its reconversion role. Subsidiary corporations were merged into the RFC.

In his new job, Snyder will give orders to Government agencies, issue decrees governing civilian participation in the war, and supervise the whole change-back to peace.

Formerly, Snyder had the job of selling surplus plants, equipment and aircraft, but had to follow policies of the Surplus Property Board. Now he will be directly over that agency.

Snyder has been a small-town and a big-city banker. He says little publicly, works hard, gets along with people and has been a pal of Mr. Truman for 25 years.

EASTLAND IS AMAZED

Washington, July 17 (A. P.).—Senator Eastland (D.-Miss.) told the Senate today he was "amazed" that the Army had denied a report that French Negro troops raped from 2,000 to 5,000 German women in a subway. He first voiced the charge a month ago in the Senate and he quoted today from a Reuters dispatch from Stuttgart in which the Army officers of the Sixth Army Group Headquarters said it wasn't true.

Eastland said he got his information from American generals who couldn't be doubted. Senators Wheeler (D.-Mont.), McClellan (D.-Ark.) and Revercomb (R.-W. Va.) promptly said they had heard the same story on their trip to Europe.

30.24-28467

"The Army should not resort to deception," Eastland told the Senate. "There should be an open, frank and fair disclosure of the facts. The Army should not attempt to whitewash it."

He asserted that the French troops were in uniforms provided by the United States and that the German people thought they were Americans.

952,098 Got Jobs During May

JUL 19 1945

Washington, July 17 (AP) — The War Manpower Commission today reported a May total of 952,098 job placements through the United States Employment Service.

Of these, 69,600 were jobs for veterans of this war, an increase of 400 over April.

The over-all total was four per cent greater than in April and fourteen per cent above May a year ago, WMC said.

Eighty-five per cent of all May placements were in essential or locally necessary jobs, WMC said.

SIGN APPROPRIATION BILL

WASHINGTON, July 17 — (AP) President Truman today signed a $769,364,850 appropriation bill financing operations of seventeen home-front agencies for the current fiscal year.

Containing $35,000,000 for the Office of War Information and $250,000 for the Fair Employment practice committee, the bill was the last of the big supply measures of the present Congress.

It was held up on Capitol Hill more than a month as Southerners sought to withhold funds from the FEPC.

Navy To Pay Fares Of Some Men On Leave

Washington, July 17 (AP)—Many navy enlisted men on leave will go home and return to duty at Government expense hereafter.

The new regulations apply to men returned from overseas for rehabilitation leave, prior to reassignment. The Navy said about 25,000 men a month will be affected.

Under the new plan, such a sailor will be ordered to temporary duty at one of 36 naval establishments—the one nearest the point to which he is going on leave. The cost of his journey to the naval establishment will be paid, but he won't have to get there until his leave (plus travel time) has expired. He will also draw pay and subsistence during his absence.

Formerly personnel returning from overseas for reassignment had to pay their own travel costs when they reported, after leave, to various naval establishments throughout the country.

The new plan will not apply to men going on leave from ships entering coast ports who remain assigned to those ships.

"Largest" Opium Haul Reported In Capital

Washington, July 17 (AP)—Treasury agents today arrested two men and seized what they said was the "largest haul of opium ever found in the District."

Held for the grand jury after arraignment before United States Commissioner Neeham C. Turnace were Lee Chung Tung, 41, and Lee Fook Loy, 27. Bond was set at $5,000 and $2,500, respectively.

Federal Narcotics Agent Le Roy Morrison testified that large amounts of crude and prepared opium were found, plus equipment for manufacturing smoking opium. The agents said they took six and one-half pounds of crude opium valued at $20,000.

General Buckner's Will Is Filed For Probate

San Francisco, July 17 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, Jr., Pacific war hero killed in Okinawa, left the bulk of his estate to his wife, who, he wrote, "has brought nothing but happiness into my life."

The will, written in the General's handwriting on February 18, 1937, was filed for probate today. The estate was described only as "Valued in excess of $10,000."

In addition to the provision for the widow, Mrs. Adele Blanc Buckner, the General bequeathed $5,000 in cash to his oldest son, Simon Bolivar Buckner 3d, an army officer; to his daughter, Mary Blanc Buckner, one half the residue after the bequests to the widow and son: to a third child, William Clairborne Buckner, the rest of the estate.

William, a cadet at West Point, will receive his father's class ring, family portraits, letters and documents and relics of George Washington.

WRIGHT ENGINEER IS KILLED IN FALL

'Murder at the Hands of Enemy Agents' Theory Is Discarded.

CHICAGO, July 17—(AP) Arthur J. Sikora, 39, engineering manager of the Wright Aeronautical Corp., at Cincinnati, plunged to death from a Loop hotel window today and company officials said his death appeared to have occurred accidentally.

At first, Varley Young, head of the company's public relations department, expressed suspicion in Cincinnati that Sikora might have been "murdered at the hands of enemy agents," however, officials of Curtiss Wright Corp., the parent concern, said in New York further evidence revealed "no evidence" to support this theory.

Young later agreed that the conclusion of accidental death was "the answer."

Sikora plummeted 14 stories from his room in the Palmer house early today. Police found his pajama clad body on the roof of a sixth floor court after a hotel guest telephoned that "a man just fell past my window."

Police Capt. Thomas F. Duffy also expressed the belief the death was accidental. The window in Sikora's room was open from the bottom three feet, Duffy said, and there was a 22-inch radiator just below the window. He said Sikora might have lost his balance in trying to raise or lower the window.

Free Press Propects Good

Chicago, July 17 (AP)—Prospects for a world-wide free press are encouraging, especially the possibility that Russia "will relax its strict press regulations," Wilbur S. Forrest, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune, said today.

Forrest, who recently completed a 40,000-mile mission to further postwar press and communications freedom, addressed the Rotary Club.

The New York editor, who was accompanied on the press mission by Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, and Dean Carl W. Ackerman, of Columbia University Graduate School of Journalism, said relaxation of regulations in Russia "does not mean that Russia will completely abolish censorship in our time."

"There is a distinct possibility, however, that Russia will relax its strict press regulations and permit American and other foreign correspondents to travel freely and report what they learn and see," Forrest asserted.

"The Russians insist they already enjoy 'freedom of the press'," Forrest declared. "It is not our notion of what constitutes freedom, however.

"We were surprised at the willingness of both Soviet officials and newspaper men to talk freely, to express their ideas and to listen to our views. They told us:

"'We have fought victoriously as allies. We have reached mutual understanding at such conferences as Yalta. Therefore, it should not be impossible for us to get together on other matters, such as the flow of news between our countries'."

Forrest said the blackout of a free press "in many countries today contains the germs of serious misunderstandings."

BOY'S GI ADOPTER TOLD OF HIS 'STRIKE'

Sergeant Hears Of Ukrainian Child's Unhappiness

Chicago, July 17 (AP)—Sergt. Edward Klonowski, who "sort of adopted" a 10-year-old Ukranian boy he rescued from the Nazis in Italy, didn't know until today his charge had been on a hunger strike in England.

Klonowski reached Boston yesterday and telephoned his mother, Mrs. John Klonowski, of Chicago, today on her birthday.

She told him Associated Press dispatches from England had described how the boy, Robert Sokowski, had stopped eating for a time because he was afraid the sergeant had sailed for the United States without him.

"I've been sweating it out, too," Mrs. Klonowski said her son told her, adding that he expressed the hope "Little Bob" soon would be able to get into the United States.

Pending a decision by the Polish ...tion and the British Home Office on his entry into the United ...tes, "Little Bob" is being quartered in a hospital in Bury St. Edmunds, England.

Mrs. Klonowski said she told her son he was "absolutely right" in adopting the boy.

"We may not be so young," she said, "but I guess we could take care of him."

...bandoned in Air, Superfort Has Not Yet ...een Located

GRAND RAPIDS, Minn., July 17 —(AP) Whereabouts of a B-29 Superfortress, abandoned by its crew because of overpowering gasoline fumes, remained a mystery tonight.

The plane was carrying a large supply of gasoline for a training flight but aviation experts expressed the belief that the huge craft had crashed by this time. Lt. Edward J. Szycher of Bayonne, N. J., and the other ten crew members abandoned the ship Sunday night after the fumes from a gasoline leak had overpowered Lt. Keith Hudson of Highpoint, N. C.

When the crew left the bomber it was 9,500 feet high and Lt. Szycher said he set the automatic pilot on a due west course. He said he believed the ship would fly for hundreds of miles before crashing through lack of fuel or into a mountainside.

Meanwhile, members of the crew prepared to go to Minneapolis Wednesday to undergo physical checkups by a flight surgeon. They will return to their base at Pyote, Texas, when the examinations are completed and they are released.

Capt. Paul A. Timm, search and rescue officer for the Second Air Force, left for his base at Colorado Springs, Colo., today. Before leaving, he said he did not believe the plane was in this area.

Willys Making Civilian Version Of Army's Jeep

20,000 Units Due in 1945 for Farms, Road Building and Variety of Purposes

TOLEDO, July 17 (AP).—Another post-war automobile—the Willys-Overland civilian version of the famed military jeep—is rolling off assembly lines here.

Without interruption to its output of the Army vehicle, Willys-Overland has begun production on a schedule calling for approximately 20,000 of the peace-time units during the remainder of 1945.

The civilian version was described by company officials as combining successfully for the first time the basic functions of the tractor, light truck, mobile power unit and passenger conveyance.

Tomorrow the company plans to demonstrate the vehicle's adaptation to farm uses.

Outlining the peace-time uses of the new jeep, Charles E. Sorenson, president of Willys-Overland, said that besides serving hunters, fishermen, farmers, contractors and oil drillers, "it will be used as a truck tractor for road hauling, road construction and dock and railroad repairing and many other purposes."

The peace-time version of the jeep closely resembles the military vehicle with a number of mechanical alterations to adapt it to wider utilization.

Mr. Sorenson said the company's schedules for military jeeps call for a total approximately 90,000 units running well into the fourth quarter of 1946.

The War Production Board authorization for civilian jeeps, he said, was in addition to approval for the production of the conventional type of passenger car. The Willys-Overland quota of this type is 8,000 units during 1945. Mr. Sorenson did not say when the company would start producing the conventional type of passenger automobile.

"It still to be determined is the price of the civilian jeep we have evolved for the manufacture of the civilian jep and other motor vehicles," Mr. Sorenson said, "is designed to keep our employment at a high level through the reconversion and into the post-war period as the curtailment of military production makes civilian materials available. We plan to furnish our dealers as quickly as possible with the vehicle which we know will be greeted by a large waiting market."

Another Utah PW Dies Of Wounds

Fort Douglas, Utah, July 17 (AP)—For the second time within ten days German prisoners of war will sing hymns today while the body of a comrade—one of nine slain by an American soldier's machine-gun fire—is lowered into a grave here.

Friedrich Ritter, 49, died Friday of peritonitis at the Kearns (Utah) Hospital as a result of wounds suffered when Private Clarence V. Bertucci, 23, of New Orleans, sprayed the tents of sleeping PW's with bullets July 8.

Officers at the fort here did not report the death of the ninth victim until yesterday.

Bertucci, who was a guard at the Salina (Utah) prison camp and who admitted the shooting, is still under examination at the Bushnell General Hospital in Brigham.

DODD'S PETITION DENIED BY COURT

Justices Rule Federal Attorney Must Take State Bar Examination.

HARTFORD, July 17—(AP) The application of Thomas J. Dodd, Jr., of Lebanon, federal attorney recently assigned to prosecute Axis war criminals in Europe for the United Nations War Crimes commission, to be admitted to the Connecticut Bar without examination was turned down today by the State Supreme court.

Justice Newell Jennings, who wrote the Supreme Court decision, said that while Dodd's work as special assistant to the attorney general of the United States "appears to have been excellent in quality as well as extensive in quantity," he is not entitled to admission to the Connecticut bar on his present application, a decision in which the other Justices concurred.

Suggest He Take Exam

The Supreme Court suggested that Dodd again take the regular examination, which he failed to pass shortly after his graduation from Yale Law school in 1933.

Dodd, in his application, showed that he was an active lawyer in South Dakota, which served as the basis for recommendation by the New London county bar that he be admitted without examination. This recommendation led to Dodd's taking the oath of attorney in open court early this year despite opposition by William H. Shields, New London lawyer, who then took his fight to the Supreme Court.

Jennings, in his opinion, wrote that "the only claim that has been made or can be made" is that Dodd "has not actually practiced for at least ten years" in South Dakota within the meaning of the rules of the court for the admission of attorney's to practice in Connecticut.

"The difficulty of Dodd," continued the Justice, "stems from the fact that he did not, so far as appears, try any cases in that court, did not maintain an office in South Dakota, and lived there for not more than one out of ten years. The most that can be said is that he was admitted there to the integrated bar, that he has since been carried on its rolls as an active member and that soon after his admission he entered the federal service where he has practiced law ever since."

Dodd, currently on leave of absence from the U. S. Attorney's office here to join the War Crimes Commission at Paris, received wide attention as a government prosecutor in 1942 when he came to Hartford to smash an alleged spy ring.

Four men, Gerhard W. Kunze, former National Bund leader; Otto Willumeit, Wolfgang Ebell and Anastase Vonsiatsky, pleaded guilty to the conspiracy and received sentences ranging from five to 15 years. In the same espionage case, the Rev. Kurt Molzahn of Philadelphia was found guilty by a jury after a month's spectacular trial and sentenced to 10 years in prison. After Germany's surrender, some of these men were freed by the U. S. Supreme court.

In seven years as federal prosecutor in various parts of the country Dodd has been a trial lawyer in more than 295 cases, serving as the government's chief counsel.

Fifty WACs Arrive In U.S. For Discharge

New Castle, Del., July 17 (AP)—Fifty WACs with sufficient points to be discharged arrived here yesterday with the first group of WACs down home from Orly Field, Paris, by the second foreign transport group.

Several of the WACs, including Staff Sergeant Marion E. Evans, 23, Lenola, Pa., and Sergt. Evelyn J. O'Neil, 34, Alexandria, Va., found romance overseas.

Sergeant Evans said she plans to wed a Detroit Army major, whom she met in England, as soon as possible. Sergeant O'Neil immediately placed a telephone call to Nichols General Hospital, Lexington, Ky., to assure her fiancé, Master Sergeant James A. Hamilton, wounded in a bomber crash overseas, that she will be with him soon.

k Market ices Lower

Closing Losses of One to Three Points Widespread at Close.

NEW YORK, July 17—(AP) The Market today suffered one of its sharpest drops in about two years with heavy selling attributed to thoughts that the big Allied smash at Japan might bring a quick surrender and result in a temporary domestic upset of reconversion and economic programs.

The direction was downward from the start but liquidation was more or less orderly until the final half hour when a deluge of offerings put the high speed ticker tape as much as three minutes behind actual floor transactions. Closing losses of one to three points were widespread. There were a few recessions of four to five. Transfers of 1,560,000 shares compared with 790,000 Monday and were the largest since June 29.

In addition to Far Eastern developments, bearishness still was based partly on fears of further anti-speculation moves. "Stickiness" of some recent low-interest bond refundings was a factor. Delaware & Hudson announced that no bids had been received for the road's proposed $50,000,000 refunding issue.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was off 1.7 points, widest relapse since Nov. 8, 1943. The market was "broad," 980 stocks registering. Of these, 815 were losers, 55 gainers and 110 unchanged.

Conspicuous on the nose-dive were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Baltimore & Ohio, U. S. Rubber, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union "A," American Water Works, Anaconda, General Electric, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak and Johns-Manville. An exception was Electric Power & Light which held an advance of 3-8 at a peak for 1945.

Railway bonds weakened all along the line. At Chicago wheat was off 3-8 to one cent a bushel, oats 1 3-8 to 1 7-8 and rye two to 2 7-8. Cotton fell $1.20 to $1.50 a bale.

Stumbling in the Curb were Electric Bond & Share, Pan American Airways warrants, Solar Aircraft, Humble Oil and Pantepec. Turnover here was 430,000 shares versus 310,000 yesterday.

Labor Law Tightened For Girls 16 And 17

New York, July 17 (AP)—The wartime measure permitting employment of girls 16 and 17 years old on Federal Government contracts will be revoked October 1, the division of public contracts of the Department of Labor announced today.

Signed June 30, the revocation order was one of the last acts in office performed by the former Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins. It was issued on the advice of the War Manpower Commission that the labor supply would be adequate for war production without the 16 and 17-year-old girls.

All such girls working on Government contract on October 1, however, will be permitted to continue on their jobs until completion of contract, providing their work is not hazardous.

Under the Walsh-Healey Act of 1936, no contractors doing Federal Government work could employ boys under 16 or girls under 18. War-time necessity, however, prompted the Labor Department to relax the act in 1942 to permit employment of girls under 18.

JOB OUTLOOK CITED BY MRS. WOODHOUSE

NEW YORK, July 17—(AP) Mrs. Chase Going Woodhouse, democratic representative from Connecticut, said today that "of the 18,000,000 women employed in America at the industrial peak, a summer ago, 2,000,000 have lost their jobs."

"But there are new endeavors for America's women," she said in a lecture at Teachers college, Columbia university. "There are community projects, guidance groups and a greater diversity of jobs open."

Mrs. Woodhouse, who is director of the institute of women's professional relations and professor of economics at Connecticut College added:

"Among women facing the biggest readjustment are those just out of college a few years ago who stepped into high-paying, staff promotion jobs.

"Women need to be taught more about job responsibility; they pick up and leave their jobs too readily. I don't believe the economic status of women has advanced with their output."

WHILE THE WEATHER WAS INCLEMENT, THE FEELING PREVAILED THAT THE CONFERENCE PRELIMINARIES HAD SOUNDED AN OPTIMISTIC NOTE. THIS WAS TRUE ESPECIALLY IN THE WAY STALIN AND CHURCHILL DISREGARDED PROTOCOL FOR THEIR PERSONAL VISITS TO THE PRESIDENT TODAY AND YESTERDAY.

FURTHER, THERE WAS THE FACT THAT THE RUSSIANS--ALTHOUGH POTSDAM IS IN THEIR ZONE OF OCCUPATION--AVOIDED MAKING ANY CLAIM OF BEING THE "HOST" POWER, BUT RATHER INSISTED THE CONFERENCE WAS ONE AMONG THREE CO-EQUAL HOSTS.

INSIDE BERLIN, GERMAN COMMUNIST CIRCLES HAILED THE MEETING AS ASSURING TRIPARTITE COLLABORATION IN EUROPEAN RECONSTRUCTION, IN SUPPRESSION OF THE REMAINS OF FASCISM, WHICH THE COMMUNIST DECLARE STILL EXISTS IN SPAIN AND PORTUGAL, AND IN EFFORTS TO RESTORE THE RECOVERY OF FRANCE AND BELGIUM.

(A MOSCOW BROADCAST SAID MR. TRUMAN PRESIDED AND THAT THE SESSION OPENED AT 5 P.M. AFTER A PRELIMINARY EXCHANGE OF OPINION ON QUESTIONS REQUIRING DECISION OF THE THREE HEADS OF GOVERNMENT, IT WAS DECIDED THAT THE THREE FOREIGN MINISTERS WOULD MEET REGULARLY TO DEAL WITH THE PREPARATORY WORK OF THE CONFERENCE, THE BROADCAST, RECORDED BY THE SOVIET MONITOR IN LONDON, ADDED.)

STABILIZATION. INSERT BIP 3 (Day) xxx stabilization

ADM. WILLIAM D. LEAHY, TRUMAN'S PERSONAL CHIEF OF STAFF, AND THE JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF ARE ON HAND FOR ADVICE ON PURELY MILITARY PROBLEMS SUCH AS CONTINUATION OF THE WAR AGAINST JAPAN.

AFTER DINNER THE PRESIDENT AND HIS GUESTS WENT OUT ON THE LAWN SLOPING DOWN TO A LAKE AND LISTENED TO A 50-PIECE AMERICAN BAND, DIRECTED BY CHIEF WARRANT OFFICER FRANK ROSATO OF NEW ORLEANS AND BROUGHT HERE BY MAJOR JAMES A. COLQUITT OF THOMASTON, GA.

THERE WAS STILL NO DECISION AS TO WHETHER THE PRESIDENT WILL VISIT LONDON AFTER THE CONFERENCE, SINCE THE DURATION OF THE DISCUSSIONS AND THE PRESIDENT'S DESIRE TO MAKE AN EARLY REPORT TO CONGRESS WILL BE THE DETERMINING FACTORS.

PRESS-BIG THREE

BY KENNETH L.DIXON

BERLIN, ULY 17-(AP)-NEWS ✱ THE BIG THREE CONFERENCE FOR THE TIME BEING WILL BE LIMITED TO PREPARED STATEMENTS FROM WHITE HOUSE PRESS SECRETARY CHARLES G.ROSS AND A BRITISH PRESS SECRETARY.

PREVIOUSLY ARMY PERSONNEL HAD BEEN GATHERING NEWS, WHICH THEN WAS ISSUED BY U.S. AND BRITISH OFFICERS IN CHARGE OF THE ALLIED MILITARY PRESS CAMP AT BERLIN, BUT THIS PRACTICE NOW HAS BEEN STOPPED.

THE PUBLIC RELATIONS STAFFS HEREAFTER WILL RELAY WITHOUT COMMENT THE STATEMENTS ON THE CONFERENCE PREPARED BY THE WHITE HOUSE AND BRITISH PRESS SECRETARIES. THEIR FIRST RELEASE WAS GIVEN OUT TODAY, DESCRIBING GENERALISSIMO STALIN'S FIRST MEETING AND LUNCHEON WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN.

SOME OFFICIALS SPECULATED THAT WITHIN THE NEXT FEW DAYS SOME PROGRAM OF REGULAR PRESS CONFERENCES AND COMMUNIQUES FROM THE SESSIONS MIGHT BE WORKED OUT. BUT AS YET THERE IS NO INDICATION OF THAT.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN APPARENTLY FAVORS A FAIRLY OPEN MEETING, WITH COMPLETE REPORTS ON WHAT TAKES PLACE. BUT HE IS NOT PRESSING THAT ISSUE RIGHT NOW. THIS IS HIS FIRST BIG THREE SESSION AND HE WANTS TO SEE HOW THE LAND LIES BEFORE TAKINGTOO DEFINITE A STAND.

PREMIER STALIN'S FEELING AGAINST VEN MEETINGS IS LONG SINCE A MATTER OF PRETTY DEFINITE RECORDS.

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL ALSO APPARENTLY IS INCLINED TOWARD THE CLOSED-SESSION POLICY. AT LEAST HE HAS KEPT A CLOSE CHECK ON THE CENSORSHIP OF HIS OWN COMMENTS UP NOW. WHILE ALMOST ANYTHING CAN BE WRITTEN ABOUT THE SAYINGS AND DOINGS OF TRUMAN AND HIS DELEGATION, CHURCHILL REFUSED TO PERMIT THE USE OF DIRECT QUOTATIONS WHILE VISITING THE RUINED REICHSCHANCELLERY YESTERDAY.

CRITICISM OF THIS CENSORSHIP OF SOME OF CHURCHILL'S REMARKS WAS UNDERSTOOD TO HAVE BROUGHT A NEW DECISION THAT DIRECT QUOTATIONS ATTRIBUTED TO THE DIGNITARIES WOULD NOT BE CENSORED IN THE FUTURE EXCEPT FOR MILITARY SECURITY.

(SOME LONDON PAPERS CRITICIZED WITH INCREASING ACIDITY THE "BLACKOUT" OF THE BIG THREE PARLEY, CHARGING THE PRESS WAS DENIED FACILITIES FOR COVERING THE REAL NEWS AND HAD TO BE CONTENT WITH A "BLIZZARD OF HADNOUTS ON TRIVIALITIES.")

"WE HAVE GOT TO SOLVE WHAT TO DO WITH THEM," ADCOCK SAID. "WE CANNOT PUT EVERYONE WHO WAS ON THE NAZI PARTY LISTS IN JAIL UNTIL WE DETERMINE WHETHER THEY WERE PRACTICING NAZIS OR MERELY DUES-PAYING MEMNERS OF THE PARTY. FOR THE PRESENT WE ARE JAILING KNOWN NAZI LEADERS AND THE MORE OBSTREPEROUS MEMBERS, AND EVEN YET OUR LISTS ARE NOT COMPLETE."

SINCE THE END OF THE WAR IN EUROPE, MILITARY GOVERNMENT TEAMS HAVE HAD MORE TIME TO WEED NAZIS OUT OF LOCAL CIVIL GOVERNMENTS AND TO SO DEGREE OUT OF UTILITIES AND SERVICES, BUT ADCOCK EMPHASIZED THAT THE JOB WAS NOT SIMPLE.

JUL 18 1945

AT TH PRESENT, ADCOCK SAID, AMERICAN AUTHORITIES ARE CONCENTRATING ON ELIMINATING NAZIS FROM POSITIONS OF AUTHORITY IN THE U.S. ZONE, BUT THE PROCESS OF SCREENING LEADERS FROM GOVERNMENT AND INDUSTRY IS SLOW AND TEDIOUS.

PMS BUDGET
NIMITZ BARBEY (400)
BY LEIF ERICKSON

GUAM, JULY 17-(AP)-CURRENT FLEET BOMBARDMENT OF THE JAPANESE HOMELAND IS THE "PREINVASION STAGE" OF THE WAR, FLEET ADM.CHESTER W.NIMITZ STATED TODAY WHILE IN WASHINGTON VICE ADM.DANIEL BARBEY WARNED BLUNTLY THAT INVASION OF EITHER JAPAN OR CHINA MAY NOT WAIT UNTIL THE END OF THE TYPHOON SEASON.

RADIO TOKYO, NOT TO BE OUTDONE IN THE BROADCASTING OF INVASION WARNINGS, PREDICTED EARLY LANDINGS ON JAPAN AND DECLARED:

"THE HOMELAND DECISIVE BATTLE IS THE DECISIVE BATTLE OF ALL DECISIVE BATTLES."

JUL 18 1945

NIMITZ, BROADCASTING TO THE UNITED STATES JUST 45 MINUTES AFTER FLASHING THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT THE COMBINED U.S. AND BRITISH PACIFIC FLEETS WERE MAKING "THE MOST POWERFUL" CARRIER PLANE ATTACKS OF THE WAR ON THE TOKYO AREA, SAID:

"THE 16-INCH GUNS OF OUR BATTLESHIPS, OPENING FIRE ON INDUSTRIAL TARGETS ON HONSHU AND HOKKAIDO, (SATURDAY AND SUNDAY) ALSO OPENED AN ERA IN WHICH WE DOMINATE THE PACIFIC APPROACHES TO JAPAN, AND WHEN NECESSARY THE AIR ABOVE JAPAN.

"AT THIS--THE PREINVASION STAGE--WE RELY UPON TWO PRINCIPAL STRATEGIES TO FURTHER OUR AIM: FIRST, AN EVER-TIGHTENING BLOCKADE OF JAPAN'S HOME ISLANDS; SECOND, DESTRUCTION BY SHELLING AND BOMBING OF EVERY INDUSTRY AND RESOURCE WHICH CONTRIBUTES TO JAPAN'S ABILITY TO MAKE WAR."

BARBEY, COMMANDER OF THE SEVENTH AMPHIBIOUS FORCE WHICH LANDED GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S TROOPS ON MANY SOUTHWEST PACIFIC ISLANDS AND THE PHILIPPINES, IN AN NBC RADIO INTERVIEW, SAID WEATHER IS AN IMPORTANT INVASION FACTOR BUT "IT WILL TAKE MORE THAN A BIG WIND TO STOP US."

THE TYPHOON SEASON VIRTUALLY ENDS IN OCTOBER, BUT ROUGH WEATHER MAY BE EXPECTED THROUGHOUT THE WINTER IN THE WESTERN PACIFIC. HOWEVER, TWO TYPHOONS WITHIN THE PAST SIX MONTHS FAILED TO STOP U.S. PACIFIC FLEET ACTIONS.

BARBEY SAID LANDINGS MIGHT BE MADE IN EITHER JAPAN OR CHINA AND THAT 30 TO 90 DAYS WOULD BE REQUIRED FOR PREPARATIONS, DEPENDING UPON THE SIZE OF THE INVASION FORCE.

A19FX

NIMITZ, POINTING OUT THAT JAPAN HAD FAILED TO RESIST LAST WEEK'S 1,000 PLANE CARRIER RAID ON TOKYO OR EITHER THE 1,000-PLANE RAIDS OR BATTLESHIP BOMBARDMENTS OF HONSHU AND HOKKAIDO, ASSERTED:

"WE HAVE PARALYZED THE WILL AND THE ABILITY OF THE JAPANESE NAVY TO COME OUT AND FIGHT. FROM THIS STAGE WE MUST TAKE A SERIES OF CERTAIN AND PROGRESSIVE STEPS UNTIL THE WILL AND THE ABILITY OF THE JAPANESE PEOPLE TO RESIST IS BROKEN."

LOVER OF THE LIGHTER NOTE, NIMITZ CONCLUDED:

"THERE IS AN OLD PROVERB THAT THE LIFEBLOOD OF JAPAN IS IN THE WATER OF THE SEA. THE NAVY'S SURFACE SHIPS, SUBMARINES AND AIRCRAFT ARE WORKING IN CONCERT TO CONTROL THAT LIFEBLOOD. WE INTEND TO DENY THE ENEMY USE OF THE WATERS SURROUNDING HIM, EVEN DOWN TO THE DETAIL OF HAMPERING HIS EFFORTS TO GET FISH OUT OF IT."

NIGHT LEAD HITACHI

BY LEIF ERICKSON

GUAM, WEDNESDAY, JULY 18-(AP)-THUNDERING WARSHIPS OF THE U.S. THIRD FLEET, PACED BY THE SUPERBATTLESHIP IOWA, SHELLED THE HITACHI WAR INDUSTRY CENTER 80 MILES NORTHEAST OF TOKYO TODAY IN THE THIRD SUCH ATTACK ON THE ENEMY HOMELAND WITHIN FOUR DAYS.

"SOME OF THE MOST POWERFUL BATTLESHIPS OF THE THIRD FLEET, INCLUDING THE USS IOWA, WITH CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS," LAUNCHED THE ASSAULT, ADM. CHESTER W. NIMITZ SAID IN ANNOUNCING THE ACTION.

THE FIRST SALVOS WERE FIRED AT 11 P.M. TUESDAY, TOKYO TIME, (10 A.M., U.S. EASTERN WAR TIME). NIMITZ SAID THE BOMBARDMENT "IS CONTINUING."

THE HEAVY NAVAL SHELLINGS OF JAPAN HAVE OPENED A NEW PHASE OF THE PACIFIC WAR--"THE PRE-INVASION STAGE"--NIMITZ SAID BOLDLY IN AN EARLIER STATEMENT.

JUL 18 1945

THE TARGET AREA INCLUDED THE TOWN OF SUKEGAWA, ADJOINING HITACHI. AN EYEWITNESS REPORT FROM ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT JAMES LINDSLEY ALSO NAMED TAKAHAGI. (MAPS INDICATE THE LATTER PLACE IS EITHER PART OF, OR NEAR, THE HITACHI DISTRICT, A WAR-BOOMED INDUSTRIAL CITY.)

THE BOMBARDMENT FORCE, AS IN THE EARLIER SHELLINGS OF KAMAISHI AND MURORAN, ACTED IN COMPLETE DISDAIN OF WHATEVER IS LEFT OF THE ENEMY'S NAVY, AND OF THE JAPANESE AIR FORCE.

CASTING RADIO SILENCE ASIDE WITHIN THE SHADOWS OF THE NIPPON COASTLINE, THE WARSHIPS PERMITTED BROADCASTS TELLING OF THE ATTACK--AN EVENT UNPRECEDENTED IN AMERICAN NAVAL HISTORY.

THE BIGGEST SHIPS OF THE FORCE, SUCH AS THE MIGHTY IOWA, CLOSED WITHIN 10 MILES OF THE COASTLINE TO HURL THEIR ONE-TON SHELLS FROM THEIR 16-INCH GUNS SAID ONE BROADCAST. IT WAS MADE BY JACK MAHON, MUTUAL CORRESPONDENT. NOT ONLY INDUSTRIAL TARGETS, HE ADDED, BUT 20 MILES OF THE CROWDED SEABOARD AREA WERE POUNDED. HE ESTIMATED A HALF MILLION JAPANESE LIVE IN THAT SECTION.

ANOTHER WARSHIP BROADCAST, MADE BY NBC CORRESPONDENT JOE HAINLINE, REPORTED THE SNARLING GUNS OF THE FORCE WERE HURLING SHELLS INTO THEIR TARGETS AT THE RATE OF 50,000 POUNDS OF STEEL A MINUTE.

"IF THE FIRES WHICH CAN BE SEEN ON SHORE ARE ANY INDICATION," HE SAID, "THE AMERICAN THIRD FLEET IS DOING ITS JOB WELL."

HITACHI OFFERED MANY VITAL TARGETS. IN IT AND THE ADJOINING TOWN OF SUKEGAWA ARE CONCENTRATED COPPER MINES, A SMELTER AND REFINERY, THE HITACHI ENGINEERING WORKS, AIRCRAFT ENGINE PARTS PLANTS, AS WELL AS FACTORIES PRODUCING PREDICSION INSTRUMENTS AND VULNERABLE TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES LINKING THE AREA BY RAIL WITH TOKYO.

TO SMASH THESE PLANTS THAT KEEP THE ENEMY WAR MACHINE GOING, THE VESSELS OF ADM. WILLIAM F. HALSEY'S THIRD FLEET HAD TO STEAM CLOSE SHOREWARD. THE FIVE-INCH GUNS OF THE DESTROYERS SPEAK MOST EFFECTIVELY FROM A RANGE OF FIVE MILES OR LESS.

HITACHI, WHOSE PRE-WAR POPULATION OF 82,000 HAS DOUBTLESS SWOLLEN CONSIDERABLY OVER THAT FIGURE, IS THE THIRD WAR PRODUCING CENTER TO FEEL THE CRUSHING WEIGHT OF SHELLS FROM FORCES OF THE THIRD FLEET WHICH APPARENTLY ROAM AT WILL UP AND DOWN THE NIPPONESE COAST.

A218KX

THE STEEL CITY OF KAMAISHI, 350 MILES NORTH OF TOKYO AND APPROXIMATELY 270 MILES NORTH OF HITACHI, FELT THE FIRST BLOWS LAST SATURDAY, WITH THE BATTLESHIPS MASSACHUSETTS, INDIANA AND SOUTH DAKOTA LEADING THE ATTACK.

THE NEXT DAY MURORAN, SOME 250 MILES NORTH OF KAMAISHI, WAS STRUCK BY A FORCE THAT INCLUDED THE IOWA, MISSOURI AND WISCONSIN. PRESUMABLY THIS SAME FORCE, OR PARTS OF IT, PROWLED ON BACK DOWN THE JAPANESE COAST AND UNLEASHED THE BOMBARDMENT ON HITACHI TODAY.

SHELLING OF HITACHI WAS ANOTHER OPERATION IN THE BOLD PROGRAM OF THE FLEET TO LOCATE AND DESTROY JAPAN'S WAR SUPPLIES AND THE PLANTS THAT MAKE THEM.

ADMIRAL NIMITZ POINTEDLY DECLARED:

"AT THIS--THE PRE-INVASION STAGE--WE RELY UPON TWO PRINCIPAL STRATEGIES TO FURTHER OUR AIM: FIRST, AN EVER TIGHTENING BLOCKADE OF JAPAN'S HOME ISLANDS; SECOND, DESTRUCTION BY SHELLING AND BOMBING OF EVERY INDUSTRY AND RESOURCE WHICH CONTRIBUTES TO JAPAN'S ABILITY TO MAKE WAR.

"THE 16-INCH GUNS OF OUR BATTLESHIPS, OPENING FIRE ON INDUSTRIAL TARGETS ON HONSHU AND HOKKAIDO, ALSO OPENED UP AN ERA IN WHICH WE DOMINATE THE PACIFIC OCEAN AND APPROACHES TO JAPAN, AND WHEN NECESSARY, THE AIR ABOVE JAPAN.

"CONVERSELY," HE WENT ON, "THE ACTION HIGHLIGHTS THE DESPERATE POSITION IN WHICH THE JAPANESE FIND THEMSELVES. WE HAVE PARALYZED THE WILL AND THE ABILITY OF THE JAPANESE NAVY TO COME OUT AND FIGHT. FROM THIS STAGE WE MUST TAKE A SERIES OF CERTAIN AND PROGRESSIVE STEPS UNTIL THE WILL AND THE ABILITY OF THE JAPANESE PEOPLE TO RESIST IS BROKEN."

THE HITACHI BOMBARDMENT FOLLOWED AN AIR ATTACK BY COMBINED UNITS OF THE U.S. THIRD FLEET AND THE BRITISH PACIFIC FLEET, HAILED AS THE GREATEST CARRIER FORCE EVER ASSEMBLED.

JW229PCW

JUL 18 1945

ONE MAJOR PLANT OF THE HITACHI ENGINEERING WORKS NEAR THE CITY OF 82,000 POPULATION WAS HEAVILY SMASHED IN JUNE BY A SUPERFORT DEMOLITION ATTACK WHICH DESTROYED 97.5 PER CENT OF THE AIRCRAFT ENGINE PARTS PLANT'S ROOF.

THE NIGHT BOMBARDMENT OF HITACHI'S VITAL COPPER, SMELTER AND AIRCRAFT PARTS PLANTS FOLLOWED A DAYLONG AIR ASSAULT BY COMBINED UNITS OF THE U.S. THIRD FLEET AND BRITISH PACIFIC FLEET ON TOKYO AREA TARGETS. IT WAS THE GREATEST CARRIER FORCE EVER ASSEMBLED.

PRESUMABLY THE BOMBARDING FORCE, WHICH INCLUDED BATTLESHIPS, CRUISERS AND DESTROYERS, STEAMED IN DARINGLY CLOSE TO THE JAPANESE CITY. THE DESTROYERS' FIVE-INCH GUNS USUALLY ARE FIRED FROM EFFECTIVE RANGES OF FIVE MILES OR LESS.

THE GREAT 16-INCH GUNS OF THE IOWA, BELCHING FORTH THEIR 2,700-POUND PROJECTILES, LED THE BOMBARDMENT SALVOES.

IN ONE WEEK, ADM. WILLIAM F. HALSEY'S THIRD FLEET HAS RANGED FROM TOKYO TO NORTHERN JAPAN'S HOKKAIDO ISLAND AND BACK AGAIN, SMASHING AT TARGETS WITH ITS GUNS AND AERIAL BOMBS.

TARGETS HAVE INCLUDED STEEL, MUNITIONS AND OIL PLANTS AND SHIPPING AND RAIL TRANSPORT FACILITIES.

THE JAPANESE HAVE TAKEN IT ALL WITHOUT MORE THAN TOKEN RESISTANCE.

NIMITZ DESCRIBED XXX THIRD GRAPH ORIGINAL, ELIMINATING LAST TWO GRAPHS BEGINNING "HITACHI IS" AND ENDING "AROUND TOKYO."

ADDITIONALLY HEAVY DAMAGE WAS DONE TO INDUSTRIES AND LAND TRANSPORTATION DURING THE AIR SWEEPS WHICH WERE COORDINATED WITH NAVAL BOMBARDMENTS OF STEEL CENTERS ON NORTHERN HONSHU ISLAND AND NEARBY HOKKAIDO, NORTHERN REFUGE FOR JAPANESE FLEEING FROM SUPERFORTRESS RAIDS ON INDUSTRIAL CITIES.

NIMITZ LISTED THE FOLLOWING SHIPS AS SUNK IN ADDITION TO THE NINE SMALL WAR VESSELS:
E SIX FERRIES, ONE LARGE CARGO SHIP, ONE MEDIUM OILER, 12 MEDIUM CARGO SHIPS, 12 SMALL CARGO SHIPS, THREE TUGS, 59 LUGGERS AND 37 MISCELLANEOUS CRAFT.

DAMAGED VESSELS, BESIDES THE TEN WARCRAFT, WERE NAMED AS: THREE TRAIN FERRIES, ONE TRANSPORT, ONE LARGE CARGO SHIP, ONE MEDIUM OILER, 14 MEDIUM CARGO SHIPS, EIGHT SMALL OILERS, 19 SMALL CARGO SHIPS, ONE LANDING SHIP TANKS, ONE TUG, ONE TRAWLER, ONE DREDGE AND BARGE. 86 LUGGERS. AND 87 SMALLER CRAFT.

DAMAGE ON THE GROUND INCLUDED 84 LOCOMOTIVES DESTROYED, 45 DAMAGED--THE HEAVIEST SINGLE TOLL OF NIPPONESE RAIL TRANSPORTATION EVER TAKEN BY ALLIED FORCES.

ALSO DESTROYED OR DAMAGED WERE FACTORIES, OIL TANKS, RAILROAD YARDS AND STATIONS, WAREHOUSES, LIGHTHOUSES, HANGARS, POWERHOUSES, BRIDGES, BARRACKS, RADIO STATIONS, AMMUNITION DEPOTS, CANNERIES, PAPER MILLS, AND DOCKS.

JAPANESE AIRCRAFT FIGURES WERE REVISED DOWNWARD TO 37 DESTROYED AND 45 DAMAGED.

THIS REPRESENTED NO SUBSTANTIAL CHANGE IN PREVIOUS FIGURES.

TWENTY-FOUR AMERICAN AIRCRAFT AND 16 FLIERS WERE LOST IN THE ATTACKS.

ALL OF THE DAMAGE REPORTED IN THIS COMMUNIQUE IS IN ADDITION TO HAVOC RAISED BY SHIP BOMBARDMENTS ON THE STEEL MANUFACTURING CITIES OF MURORAN ON HOKKAIDO AND KAMAISHI ON NORTHERN HONSHU. IRON AND STEEL PLANTS WERE KNOCKED OUT AND THE CITIES SET ON FIRE. CARRIER AIRCRAFT ELIMINATED VIRTUALLY EVERY TRAIN-FERRY USED TO HAUL RAW MATERIALS FROM HOKKAIDO TO KAMAISHI.

WITH THE U.S.THIRD FLEET OFF JAPAN, JULY 17-(AP)-BRITISH AND AMERICAN CARRIER PLANES--NEARLY 1,500 OF THEM--OPERATING FROM THE MOST FORMIDABLE FLEET EVER ASSEMBLED, SCOOTED OFF INTO THE MURKY DAWN TODAY TO HAMMER ANEW TOKYO'S AIRFIELDS AND MILITARY INSTALLATIONS.

FULLY EIGHT HOURS AFTER THE FIRST BRITISH AND AMERICAN PLANES LEFT THE DECKS OF THE COMBINED FLEET, THERE STILL WERE NO REPORTS OF AERIAL OPPOSITION.

WAVE AFTER WAVE OF THE ALLIED PLANES BORED THROUGH THE THICK HAZE OVER A 35-MILE STRETCH OF JAPANESE COAST FROM TOKYO NORTHWARD, WHILE THE MASSED FLEET CIRCLED DARINGLY NEAR THE HOMELAND SHORES.

TARGETS OF THE OVERWHELMINGLY POWERFUL STRIKES LIE IN THE SAME GENERAL AREA STRUCK SUCCESSFULLY BY AMERICAN CARRIER PILOTS JULY 10.

MINGLED WITH THE FAMILIAR AMERICAN HELLCATS, CORSAIRS, HELL-DIVERS AND AVENGERS TODAY WERE BRITAIN'S SEAFIRES, A CARRIER VERSION OF THE FAMED SPITFIRE; FIREFLIES, A FIGHTER-BOMBER TYPE; AND WALRUS, A CARRIER-BASED AMPHIBIOUS SCOUT PLANE. BRITISH PILOTS ALSO WERE FLYING HELLDIVERS AND AVENGERS.

JUL 18 1945

IT WAS TOO EARLY FOR REPORTS OF DAMAGE INFLICTED ON THE ENEMY BUT NOT TOO EARLY TO CONCLUDE THAT THE JAPANESE AGAIN HAD BEEN CAUGHT FLAT-FOOTED, OR ELSE WERE HIDING FROM AERIAL COMBAT.

THE CLOUDS OF CARRIER AIRCRAFT SWEPT IN ACROSS THE ENEMY COASTLINE FROM CHOSHI, COASTAL CITY DUE EAST OF TOKYO, AS FAR NORTH AS HOKODA. THE AREA ABOUNDS IN AIRFIELDS--AN ESTIMATED 72 TO 80--- EVIDENTLY SET UP ORIGINALLY TO DEFEND TOKYO FROM JUST SUCH STRIKES AS TODAY'S.

IN THE JULY 10 ATTACK, 100 JAPANESE AIRCRAFT WERE DESTROYED ON THE GROUND, 231 WERE DAMAGED ON AIRFIELDS, TWO WERE SHOT OUT OF THE AIR, AND HANGARS, SHOPS, FACTORIES AND TRAINS WERE HEAVILY DAMAGED. SEVERAL SMALL CRAFT WERE SUNK.

(TOKYO SAID THEY RAIDED AIRDROMES AND MILITARY INSTALLATIONS IN SIX PREFECTURES FOR FIVE HOURS. NEITHER TOKYO RADIO NOR PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS MADE IT CLEAR WHETHER THE ATTACKS CONTINUED THROUGHOUT THE DAY.)

AMERICAN AND BRITISH PACIFIC FLEETS, FORMING THE MIGHTIEST CARRIER TASK FORCE EVER ASSEMBLED, CRUISED PERHAPS 200 MILES OFFSHORE AS WAVES OF FIGHTERS, DIVE BOMBERS AND TORPEDO PLANES SWEPT OFF FLATTOP DECKS FOR AT LEAST EIGHT HOURS.

THEY ROARED IN OVER A 35 MILE STRETCH OF COASTLINE APPROXIMATELY 50 MILES EAST AND NORTH OF THE JAPANESE CAPITAL. EIGHT HOURS AFTER THE ATTACK STARTED IN THE MURKY DAWN THEIR WAS NO WORD OF JAPANESE RETALIATION, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT JAMES LINDSLEY REPORTED FROM THE SCENE.

WITH APPROXIMATELY 500 SUPERFORTS LASHING AT FOUR INDUSTRIAL AND TRANSPORTATION CENTERS, AT LEAST 2,000 PLANES WERE HURLED AGAINST JAPAN IN TODAY'S PRE-INVASION ATTACK. (THE TOTAL WILL PROBABLY MOUNT WELL ABOVE 2,000 WHEN REPORTS FROM IWO JIMA AND OKINAWA BASED FIGHTERS

THE BLOW, BRINGING BRITISH CARRIER UNITS INTO JAPANESE WATERS FOR THE FIRST TIME, WAS QUICK FULFILLMENT OF TOKYO'S WARNING YESTERDAY THAT HALSEY'S THUNDERING FORCE WOULD BE BACK TO WREAK NEW HAVOC.

NIMITZ, A FEW MINUTES AFTER ISSUING HIS COMMUNIQUE, SAID IN A RADIO TALK TO THE UNITED STATES THAT SHELLING OF THE ENEMY'S HOME ISLANDS OPENED "THE PRE-INVASION PHASE" OF THE WAR AND THAT ALLIED PLANS CALLED FOR DESTRUCTION BY SHELLS AND BOMBS OF "EVERY INDUSTRY AND RESOURCE WHICH CONTRIBUTES TO JAPAN'S ABILITY TO MAKE WAR."

A 500-PLANE SUPERFORTRESS FIRE RAID ON FOUR JAPANESE CITIES POSSIBLY AN HOUR AHEAD OF THE FLEET CARRIER ATTACKS GAVE ADDED POINT TO THE ADMIRAL'S WORDS. THE B-29S STARTED CONFLAGRATIONS IN ALL FOUR CITIES: NUMAZU, KUWANA, HIRATSUKA AND OITA.

TARGET OF THE CARRIERS' TORPEDO-BOMBERS AND FIGHTERS WAS IDENTIFIED ONLY AS "THE TOKYO RAGION," BUT THE PRIMARY MISSIONS PROBABLY WERE TO SEEK OUT AND DESTROY THE VANISHING JAPANESE AIR FORCE AND TO DEMOLISH PIN-POINT TARGETS LEFT STANDING BY THE B-29 FIRE RAID THAT ALREADY HAVE BURNED OUT 53.6 SQUARE MILES OF TOKYO.

THE FIRST BARE ANNOUNCEMENT GAVE NO WORD OF RESULTS.

TODAY'S OPERATION WAS THE FIRST IN WHICH THE ALLIED FLEETS HAVE UNITED AGAINST JAPAN ITSELF. JUL 18 1945

NIMITZ NAMED NONE OF THE AMERICAN SHIPS, BUT DECLARED, "THE COMBINED FORCES OFF JAPAN FORM THE MOST POWERFUL STRIKING FORCE YET ASSEMBLED AS ONE UNIT IN THE PACIFIC."

EARLIER COMMUNIQUES ON THE AMERICAN STRIKES AT JAPAN JULY 10, 14 AND 15, NAMED THESE SHIPS:

BATTLESHIPS: IOWA, MISSOURI, WISCONSIN, INDIANA, MASSACHUSETTS AND SOUTH DAKOTA.

CARRIERS: LEXINGTON, ESSEX, INDEPENDENCE AND SAN JACINTO.

CRUISERS: CHICAGO, SAN JUAN, SPRINGFIELD, ATLANTA AND QUINCY.

DESTROYERS: DEHAVEN, SAMUEL N.MOORE, JOHN RODGERS, SCHROEDER, COGSWELL, HEERMAN, SOUTHERLAND, AUL, JOHN W.WEEKS, COLOHAN, WEDDERBURN, ROWE, CAPERTON, FRANK KNOX, ERBEN, BLACK, MCGOWAN, NORMAN SCOTT AND REMEY.

(SINCE NIMITZ HAS ANNOUNCED THAT THE AMERICAN VESSELS RECEIVED NO DAMAGE IN THE PREVIOUS ATTACKS, IT WAS LIKELY THAT ALL OF THOSE NAMED ARE PARTICIPATING IN THE SPECTACULAR DISPLAY OF STRENGTH OFF THE ENEMY'S DOORSTEP.)

THE CARRIER PLANES STRIKING THE TOKYO VICINITY WERE THE MOST NUMEROUS EVER SENT AGAINST THE ENEMY IN A SINGLE OPERATION. THE AMERICAN FLEET HURLED 1,200 PLANES AGAINST JAPAN IN THE TOKYO STRIKES OF LAST FEB.16, 17 AND 25, THE PREVIOUS RECORD.

THE THIRD FLEET ON ITS RECENT DESTRUCTIVE SALLIES AGAINST HONSHU AND HOKKAIDO USED MORE THAN 1,000 PLANES IN EACH OPERATION.

THE JAPANESE AIR FORCE, ABOUT WHOSE WELFARE THE EMPEROR HAS BEEN INQUIRING, ACCORDING TO TOKYO'S OWN BROADCASTS, SHOWED A SUDDEN SPURT OF ACTIVITY MONDAY IN CHALLENGING AMERICAN ARMY MUSTANGS, BUT LOST AT LEAST 24 OF ITS CAREFULLY-HOARDED FIGHTERS IN ONE SHORT, VICIOUS DOGFIGHT OVER NAGOYA.

ONLY ONE ENEMY RECONNAISSANCE PLANE ATTEMPTED TO GO NEAR THE THIRD FLEET EITHER SATURDAY OR SUNDAY, AND IT WAS SHOT DOWN, WHILE 86 OTHERS WERE DESTROYED OR DAMAGED ON THE GROUND.

WHETHER THE ENEMY WOULD RISE TO MEET THIS NEW CHALLENGE FROM THE BRITISH-AMERICAN ALLIES REMAINED TO BE DETERMINED.

WHEN ADMIRAL HALSEY RESUMED COMMAND OF THE THIRD FLEET SIX WEEKS AGO, HE EXPRESSED HOPE THAT THE JAPANESE FLEET, IN RETIREMENT FOR MONTHS, MIGHT COME OUT AS A GESTURE, BUT ADMITTED HIS HOPE WAS FAINT BECAUSE "THEY HAVE DAMNED LITTLE LEFT TO GESTURE WITH."

THE REVIEW OF AGRICULTURAL CONDITIONS NOTED THESE FACTORS AS INDICATING AN IMPROVEMENT IN CANADIAN MARKETINGS IS POSSIBLE BEFORE THE YEAR ENDS:

1. DEMAND FOR BREEDING STOCK AND WEANLING PIGS IN RECENT MONTHS HAS BEEN KEEN.

2. THE MARGIN BETWEEN FEED COSTS AND HOG PRICES HAS REMAINED COMPARATIVELY WIDE AND HAS INCREASED RECENTLY AS HOG PRICES HAVE ADVANCED.

IF FEED CROPS ARE GOOD THIS YEAR, THERE WILL BE A FURTHER INCENTIVE TO KEEP HOG HERDS AT A HIGH LEVEL.

REASONS FOR THE DECLINE IN HOG PRODUCTION HAVE CAUSED WIDE DISCUSSION. GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS HAVE SOUGHT TO REASSURE FARMERS THAT THE END OF THE WAR IN EUROPE DOES NOT MEAN THAT THE DEMAND FOR BACON WILL EASE OR THAT PRICES WILL FALL AS A CONTINUING MARKET IS ASSURED AND FLOOR PRICES LEGISLATION WILL PROTECT PRODUCERS. ATTRACTIVE GRAIN PRICES HAVE CAUSED SOME FARMERS TO FEEL THEY COULD DO BETTER BY FIELD CROPS RATHER THAN HOGS AND OTHERS HAVE SAID THAT LABOR SHORTAGES MADE IT IMPOSSIBLE FOR THEM TO MAINTAIN THEIR HERDS AT FORMER LEVELS.

Enemy Combatant Vessels Found Hiding At Yokosuka Naval Base In Tokyo Bay—Poor Visibility Prevents Report On Damage Done

Guam, Thursday, July 19 (AP)—American carrier aircraft discovered combat ships, probably remnants of the Japanese Navy, hiding in Yokosuka naval base in Tokyo Bay and attacked heavily yesterday with bombs and torpedoes despite bad weather and accurate, intense antiaircraft fire.

Yokosuka, one of the empire's largest naval bases, is only about 18 miles southeast of Tokyo, near the head of Tokyo Bay. It might have appeared to the Japanese to be an obvious hiding place for remnants of its once great navy.

Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's communiqué today reported briefly that carrier pilots launched a heavy attack on combatant shipping off Yokosuka and added "no report of damage to targets is yet available."

Looking For Warships

Although he made no elaboration, it seemed highly probable that the combatant ships included some at least of the few warships left to the empire.

The world's greatest naval force, the combined United States and British Pacific fleets, has been bombing and bombarding Honshu and Hokkaido unchallenged—but hoping for a meeting with anything the Nipponese war lords dared send out. It is certain that carrier pilots were looking anxiously for Japanese warships. Nimitz's communiqué indicates they probably found them.

Nimitz reported that both American and British carrier planes, comprising the world's greatest striking force, carried their assaults on the Tokyo region into the second successive day yesterday and that an American cruiser-destroyer force steamed close inshore to shell Nojima Cape, only 50 miles southeast of Tokyo at the entrance to Tokyo Bay.

Third Day In Tokyo Region

The bombardment carried into the third straight day the fleet's attack on the Tokyo region. The shelling, begun at 11 P.M., Wednesday night, Tokyo time, continued until early this morn.

Nimitz also disclosed that while co-ordinating their attacks, American and British carrier planes struck separate targets in Tuesday's combined 1,500 aircraft assault.

British aircraft crossed Honshu to strike its western coast, north of Tokyo, in the first carrier plane attack on Western Honshu.

Hiding Under Camouflage

Remnants of Japan's once great navy—reduced by repeated defeats to one of the smallest—had been hiding desperately, under camouflage, since it was administered one of history's worst beatings off the Philippines last October.

In three separate actions October 24 and 25, the United States 3d Fleet under Admiral William F. Halsey, Jr., and the 7th Fleet under Vice Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid, sank or damaged 59 Japanese warships, including more than a dozen carriers and battleships, out of a total force of 61 warcraft which dared to attempt to smash the Philippines' invasion force.

Recently Vice Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, commander of famous Carrier Task Force 58, said the Japanese naval remnants were hiding "under camouflage," but gave no indication whether the United States Navy knew its whereabouts.

Estimates Of Jap Force

United States naval authorities have estimated that the Japanese have less than ten carriers, including escort flattops, four to six battleships, including old dreadnaughts, and not many cruisers or destroyers.

On March 18, Mitscher's carrier planes discovered some of the enemy ships hiding in the Inland Sea of Japan and in a daring raid sank the 45,000-ton battleship Yamoto, two cruisers and several destroyers and destroyer escorts.

The Japanese ships apparently moved after that and their whereabouts had been undisclosed until Nimitz's communiqué today reported they were brought under attack by Vice Admiral John S. McCain's Carrier Task Force 38 pilots.

Japs Scent Morale Move

Antiaircraft fire, intense and accurate, from the Japanese warships presumably was the only enemy resistance to any of the new American attacks.

Many hours later, Radio Tokyo, in a propaganda broadcast beamed to North America, scoffed at the carrier raids and bombardment as designed to boost American morale, which is described as unsatisfactory to United States war leaders.

"The enemy tactic . . . has been sized up by the Japanese command and was found not worth meeting," the unidentified propagandist said, adding that the Japanese command is determined not to act, no matter how great the 'enemy provocation.' He described this as a 'wait-and-see' policy."

Nimitz said adverse weather poor visibility prevented reconnaissance planes from reporting results of this audacious attack.

He also reported that American and British carrier planes raided the Tokyo and east Honshu coastal areas throughout yesterday and that light naval units—cruisers and destroyers—of the U. S. Third fleet, went close inshore to bombard the eastern Honshu coast last night and early today.

The shelling carried the attack in the Tokyo area into the third straight day.

JUL 20 1945

Rear Admiral Carl Holden commanded the cruiser-destroyer force which bombarded Nojima, south of Tokyo, and other coastal installations.

They created one large explosion, in an unidentified target.

Nimitz said the cruisers Topeka, Oklahoma City, Atlanta and Dayton, and the destroyers Ault and John W. Weeks were among those shelling the coastal city's military and industrial areas.

Lists Previous Damage

Nimitz gave this preliminary and incomplete report of damage caused by Tuesday's raids by American carrier planes:

Burned four seaplanes on the water; damaged five others.

Sank three small craft and damaged ten others.

Destroyed two hangars, two locomotives and oil dump.

Damaged factories, lighthouses, trains, three locomotives and an aircraft hangar.

British carrier planes, striking separate targets in co-ordination with the United States carrier force, reported these results:

Destroyed thirteen Japanese planes on the ground and a hangar at Matsuda.

Destroyed three locomotives and a railroad station, barracks and hangars.

So well did the Allies control the sky and waters that their fleets spent hours within easy fighter range of Tokyo yesterday without striking a single spark of opposition.

James Lindsley, Associated Press correspondent with the United States 3d Fleet, said the battlewagons moved to within 6 miles of shore, let go the first salvos at 11.10 Tuesday night and kept it up for 55 minutes.

—The American Third Fleet of Admiral William F. Halsey Jr. and companion British warships stalked the coast of Japan unmolested today as Radio Tokyo admitted their big guns had demolished their newest target—huge war plants north of Tokyo.

TODAY

The fleet has concealed its course behind radio silence since it broke off shelling at 12:05 A. M. today.

[But the Japanese radio chattered of new attacks. London reported hearing a broadcast that sixteen Allied warships bombarded Honshu's east coast again for an hour at noon today. Shelling was reported directed against "the coast of Kanto," which is the east-central part of Honshu embracing Tokyo and a considerable surrounding area. Specific targets were not named.

[Tokyo said American and British carriers sent 500 planes back over the capital area today, following up yesterday's raid by 1,500 carrier aircraft.

Japs Admit Helplessness

[The Japs admitted helplessness by stating that the Allied fleet is "liable to attack us at any chosen time and place."]

More than 2,000 tons of explosives were showered on targets for 20 miles along the Honshu coast in the midnight bombardment. The fleet went about the job leisurely and kept its radio working as it hovered only 6 miles offshore.

Steel, Copper Plants Ruined

Targets were picked carefully from Mito, 55 miles northeast of Tokyo and 10 miles from the seacoast, to Hitachi and Sukegawa, about 80 miles northeast of the capital. With no opposition, the results were devastating.

Associated Press Correspondent James Lindsley, with the United States 3d Fleet, reported that an engineering works, a steel plant, a copper refinery and an arms factory along the coast were destroyed.

He said the fleet was within range of enemy fighter planes for many hours but they failed to appear.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz in announcing the British battleship King George V and the 45,000-ton U. S. S. Iowa were among the attackers, had mentioned only the Hitachi area, which contains vital copper smelters as well as concentrated aircraft, electrical and engine plants.

Lindsley, aboard one of the bombarding warships, reported the rail and factory center of Takahagi near Hitachi also was a target as the great battlewagons opened fire with nine-gun broadsides. Despite an overcast sky which hindered aerial observation, ships' crews were able to watch the flashes of their big shells landing amid enemy war plant buildings. The thunder of their explosions drifted back clearly on the wind.

Shells from the King George V and lesser escorting warships of the British Pacific Fleet were the first fired from British guns against the homeland of Japan.

The fifty-five-minute bombardment followed a day-long attack yesterday on the Tokyo area by 1,500 British and American carrier pilots, launched from flattops of a combined fleet greater than any the world had seen.

The Jap Explanation

"It is vitally necessary that we preserve our strength," the Japs' Domei news agency said a few hours later. "We must not move until the time is ripe."

Results of yesterday's carrier assault have not been received. A Tokyo broadcast last night merely acknowledged the raids, giving no details of damage inflicted.

Acknowledging that shells of the combined bombardment force off Mito and Hitachi had struck their targets, the enemy radio said that "slight damage" resulted. The same broadcast said "a small number of Superforts" simultaneously were ranging over the Tokyo-Yokohama district "on a nuisance night raid mission."

A separate Tokyo broadcast referred, however, to a strike by four Liberators on the coast north of Tokyo, preceding the bombardment by a few hours.

"This is believed to be the first bombing attack on a land target on the Japanese mainland by Liberators," the dispatch said.

land-based attacks. Tokyo said Thunderbolt and Mustang fighters and three Liberators raided southern Kyushu while two navy patrol bombers hit southern Honshu.

Thirty superforts were reported over three Japanese islands yesterday and last night, presumably photographing previous damage, scouting for new raids and dropping propaganda leaflets.

Liberators and Black Widow night fighters from Iwo Jima were said to have hit the Hitachi area berfore the midnight naval bombardment.

The Midnight Shelling

Tokyo estimated that "six enemy warcraft" participated in the shelling, which was led by the superbattleship Iowa and its 16-inch guns and supported by British units. Domei said the shelling was on a "much smaller scale t' n the two previous ones at Kama i and Muroan," steel cities in northern Japan.

Nipponese broadcasts heard here warned that bombarding task forces from Admiral William F. Halsey's 3d Fleet are "liable to attack us at any chosen time and place," called on the Government to provide 'capable leadership and full information on air defense" and told coastal residents to defend their homeland "without fear."

Giving the Japanese a picture of what they have to look forward to, Domei described the fright of residents of Kamaishi when American warships shelled that city last Saturday.

"It was impossible to fight fires when the bombardment was in progress," the broadcast said. "Accordingly, the danger of the spreading fire was much greater than in the case of enemy bombings.

"Since there were many who had never before experienced the falling of shells, many remained in the shelters long after the enemy warships had retired, unable to shake off fear."

Japs Stick To Tokyo

While carrier planes roamed over the network of airfields encircling Tokyo, Domei reported that Japanese still in the capital wanted to stay in their underground air-raid shelters rather than flee to some other part of the country.

The agency told of repeated attacks on airfields and other installations in five prefectures—Kanagawa, immediately south of Tokyo; Chiba, between Tokyo and the ocean; Saitama and Tochigi, north of Tokyo, and Ibaragi, northeast of the capital.

British Bombers Due In Pacific

FARON

Guam, July 18 (AP)—British heavy bombers may join American flyers in the Pacific, increasing to ten the Allied air groups co-ordinating their devastating raids on the Japanese homeland.

Lieut. Gen. Barney M. Giles, deputy commander of United States Army Strategic Air Forces, has completed a series of conferences with British Air Marshal Sir Hugh Lloyd involving "the possible assignment of a British heavy bomber force to work under USASTAF," Giles's office reported today.

8th AAF Due In August

Already engaged in daily assaults on the Japanese homeland with fire, fragmentation and high-explosive bombs, rockets and strafing are the 20th Air Force's B-29's; Fleet Air Wings 1 and 18, with their Privateers, Liberators and Mariners; the 5th and 7th AAF's, with their Thunderbolt fighters and Liberator and Mitchell bombers; the Army's 7th Fighter Command, with its Mustangs, and the 2d and 4th Marine Aircraft Wings, with their Corsairs, Avengers and Mitchells.

Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle's 8th AAF, adding B-29's and possiby B-17 Flying Forts to the assault, is scheduled to begin operations from Okinawa about mid-August.

All But 20th From Ryukyus

All of these aerial commands except the 20th operate from the Ryukyus.

At least four other air forces also are attacking the Japanese Empire, but not the homeland. These are the 13th AAF and 7th Fleet aircraft, from the Philippines area, and the 11th AAF and the North Pacific Fleet Air Wing, which among them attack from the Solomons to the Kuriles.

Seven staff officers of the British and joint chief of staff accompanied Lloyd to the conference with Giles. Among them was Capt. J. G. Gordon-Finlayson, who was assigned to USASTAF as liaison officer.

Japan's Domei agency said 60 American Liberator and Mitchell bombers dropped explosives on Shanghai yesterday, hitting the industrial area and eastern part of the city. It reported several casualties but gave no report of damage.

On Sunday, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced in today's communiqué, 7th Fleet Mariner patrol planes wrecked more than 100 river ships in attacks at Amoy, Swatow and the Hong Kong area of China. A navy Liberator strafed Japanese troop concentrations 50 miles northeast of Swatow.

Warships' Attacks Like Fourth O' July In He!!"

By James Lindsley

With Halsey's 3d Fleet Japan, July 18 (AP)—The Hitachi s, who make up one of Japan's ing industrial families, reall took a beating from the powerful bombardment force of the United States 3d Fleet today.

Their name was over the front entrance of most of the vital war plants wrecked by the ships' big guns as they steamed leisurely along the Japanese coast to a point nearly opposite Tokyo, hurling more than 2,000 tons of explosives shoreward.

Four Plants Destroyed

Engineering works, a steel plant, a copper refinery and an arms factory are now only rubber in the Hitachi industrial empire.

The 3d Fleet, which apparently dares to go any place where it can keep a little salt water under it, started pumping its shells toward the shore at 11.10 o'clock last night and kept it up for 55 minutes. Firing ceased at 5 minutes after midnight today.

Only 6 Miles Off Shore

For hours we were within fighter-plane range of Tokyo. During the bombardment we were within 6 miles of the Honshu Island shore. Yet at no time was any attempt made by the enemy to molest us, either on the sea or in the air.

We had numerous reports of unidentified planes, but if they were Japanese they were just having a "look-see" because nobody has bothered us up to the time this is written. That includes the entire bombardment period, because the warships turned their prows seaward and got away from shore fast once they were through shelling.

Cold, Fog And Rain

The weather was cold. There was fog and rain. Visibility was almost nil whe nthe fleet went into action. Great flames belching from huge guns tore the night into crimson tatters.

This ship fired the first salvo and immediately afterward the other vessels cut loose with such fury it seemed that all the gods of war had gone made.

The best description I heard was uttered by Lieutenant Fullmer, of a machine gun officer of Dayton, Ohio, who said "It looks like the Fourth of July in hell, doesn't it?"

The night's first target was at T[illegible], about 55 miles north of Tokyo, in a hilly area abutting a plain region. Here was located new war industry. The industrial area extended from the coastline to about 2,000 yards inland and the bombardment was designed to give the entire region a thorough plastering.

TAKAHAGI

Right after the shelling started a dull glow ashore indicated that fires had been started. Then the weather closed down and it was impossible to see any more results.

Then Sitach And Densen

Sailing southward at a steady pace, the ships then turned their guns loose on the Shibauchi plant of the Hitachi Engineering Works, located at Sitach town, six miles from Takasagi. The next target was another plant of the Hitachi Engineering Works and the copper refinery at Densen, also six miles south of Takasagi.

Every place the fleet guns aimed they found some of the Hitachi boys' stuff. Their engineering works at Taga, two miles south of Densen, came to bat next. The night's last targe twas the Hitachi steel works and the Hitachi arms factory at Mito, 12 miles south of Taga.

Electronic Center

The Mito Airfield was believed to be the site of an elaborate military installation ofelectronic devices. It got a thorough and destructive pounding. Cruisers in the bombardment force concentrated on the airfield.

Many cities populated chiefly by war workers lay along the bombardment route. High officers estimated that more than half a million persons live in the attacked area. Census figures list Hitachi's population in 1940 as 8,285 and Mito's at 66,290.

Railroad May Have Suffered

The main trunk line of the Joban railroad extending along the bombarded area. Officers said it may have suffered considerable damage, further messing up Japan's already tangled communications.

The admiral in charge of the operation called attention to the fact that the attack brought navy units closer to Tokyo than ever before.

He explained that night was chosen for the attack to take the Japanese by surprise and make air opposition more difficult.

YANK FLYERS FROM EUROPE ATTACK JAPAN

Hutcheson

Former Mediterranean Unit Goes Into Action With Far East Force

JUL 19 1945

Manila, Thursday, July 19 (AP)—Airmen from the European theater joined in the Far East Air Forces attacks on the Japanese homeland for the first time Monday, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The raids covered the length and breadth of Kyushu, southernmost Japanese main island. They were made by more than 350 planes without the loss of a single aircraft.

Score Effectively

The communiqué announced the raiders scored effectively against enemy airfields, communications and industrial targets. There were no attempts at interception and no reports of serious enemy anti-aircraft challenge to the Okinawa-based planes.

The European veterans from the Mediterranean theater were led by Col. Joseph R. (Randy) Holzapple, of Peoria, Ill. They flew new Douglass-built A-26 Invader attack bombers in the first introduction of this aircraft into major action in this theater.

The Miyazaki area on southeastern Kyushu provided targets for over 30 of the American planes. They left craters and damaged installations on the Miyazaki airstrip, one of Kyushu's major fields, and possibly hit two of the four or five serviceable planes on the field.

Report Hits On Rail Lines

Direct hits also were scored on railroad lines, highways and bridges, the airmen reported. Miyazaki, a city of 60,000 population, is the center of Kyushu's southeastern farming region.

"The A-26 Invader has the best features of the A-20, the B-25 and the B-26," said Holzapple.

The A-20 is a Douglas-built Boston attack plane and the B-25 and B-26 are, respectively, Mitchell and Marauder medium bombers.

"It will be one of the most effective airplanes of the war if properly employed, and we are working on that little problem," the colonel said.

Planes and the Fifth and Seventh Air forces participated in the hammering of Kyushu. Holzapple's A-26 group, attached to the Seventh, won two distinguished unit citations in the Mediterranean fighting.

Numerous rail and highway bridges were hit in Monday's strike. Dive bombing Mustang fighter-bombers reported setting fires aboard two of six 500-ton coastal cargo vessels in Kagoshima bay, of southern Kyushu.

Captain Robert Mittelstadt, Eau Claire, Wis., strafed a locomotive and an eight-car train.

Blast Rails, Bridge

More than 30 Liberator heavy bombers of the Seventh A.A.F. hit Nabeoka, 50 miles north of Miyazaki on the east coast, blasting rail facilities and at least one bridge.

Nabeoka is a city of 80,000 population and the center of rayon, chemical and explosive factories. Mitchells and Mustangs scored direct hits on other railroad bridges, factories and an oil refinery in the Tsuma area, on Kyushu's east central coast.

More than 50 Thunderbolt fighters made an 85-mile sweep against assorted targets between Fukushima and Tomitaki on the west coast. They hit factories, two trains and power plants.

Fifth Air Force Mustang pilots reported setting three small freighters and a barge afire off Kanoya, southeastern Kyushu.

Other American aircraft continued delivering hard blows against Formosa, striking ammunition storage facilities at Mako and industrial installations and communications on other parts of the island. Factories near Tainan, on the Pescadores Island west of Formosa, also were bombed.

Other Liberators of the Fifth Air force scored hits with 500-pound bombs on factories at Canton, China, causing one large explosion and several smaller eruptions.

Two Mariners of the Seventh Fleet Air units sank or damaged several junks off Swatow and Hong Kong, on the China coast. Other Liberators hit rail targets in Indo-China and destroyed two small freighters at Kuching in [illegible], Borneo.

U.S. Planes Raid Islands North Of Okinawa

DAVIS

Manila, July 18 (AP)—Far East air force bombers and fighters in more than 200 sorties over southern Ja[illegible]pan made widespread duty calls Sunday on a string of enemy lookout islands on the direct line of flight from Okinawa to the southern tip of Kyushu.

More than a score of 7th AAF Liberators worked over air installations and probable air warning posts on Amami in the northern Ryukyus, only 190 miles south of Kyushu. They also hit the northeast coast of Tanega and struck Kuryo and Taku islands as well as an airdrome on Kikie, east of Amami.

Radio Tokyo in the past has fretted publicly about the fate of the now exposed chain of islands and speculated in possible invasion of Amami, only 110 miles north of Okinawa.

Usa, Tomitaka Hit

Other 7th AAF Liberators hit Usa on northern Kyushu, while Mitchells dropped fragmentation bombs on Tomitaka airdrome on the island's east coast. Thunderbolts and Mustangs strafed locomotive and rail installations; caught and downed one enemy aircraft as it took off from Kumamoto airfield, and strafed tugs and barges off Cape Mi harbor on Kyushu's west coast.

Neutralization strikes on Formosa and throughout the Indies and blockade patrols along the Asiatic coast kept the enemy sea and air traffic paralized throughout the southern portion of the empire.

U. S. 7th Fleet Shells Shore of BalikpapanBay

3 Enemy Gun Positions Are Destroyed; Australians Drive 7 Miles Inland

MANILA, July 19 (Thursday) (AP).—Units of the United States 7th Fleet have returned to the battle of eastern Borneo, bombarding Japanese shore positions deep in Balikpapan Bay, General Douglas MacArthur announced today.

Three troublesome Japanese gun positions and four barges were destroyed in the shelling, which high-lighted operations strengthening Allied control of the strategic bay area.

Australian troops across the bay west of Balikpapan pushed seven miles inland along the Riko River, clearing territory from which the enemy might harass operations in the bay. Patrols found the retreating Japanese were abandoning supplies and equipment.

There was nothing new from the front northeast of Balikpapan, where the Australians were believed to be marshaling their forces for a big push against the rich oil fields of Sambodja and Samarinda.

In western Borneo, rapid progress inland was reported by the original Australian invading force on the big island.

MacArthur's communique said that the forces drove thirty miles inland from the captured Miri and Seria oil fields and captured Marudi, a town of 6,000 population. The advance was unopposed.

Continued patrol action and mopping up was reported on Luzon and Mindanao in the Philippines.

AUSSIES FEEL OUT JAPS ON BORNEO

Manila, July 18 (A. P.).—Australian combat patrols felt out enemy strong points along the highway to Samarinda and in the Sambodja area, where the diggers are consolidating for a drive through derricks and oil installations, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique said today.

They had advanced yard by yard to a point seven miles northeast of Balikpapan, with Samarinda sixty miles distant. Sepinggang airfield near Balikpapan, meanwhile, was put into use, two weeks after its capture.

In one of the oldest battlegrounds of the Pacific, Australian troops on Bougainville in the Solomons also were meeting almost constant small-scale attacks by Japs who have held fast to their Kahili stronghold through three and a half years of war.

What Yanks Threw At Okinawa Japs

Okinawa, July 18 (A. P.).—A total of 1,750,000 artillery shells were fired by Americans at the Japanese in Okinawa's eighty-two-day battle, Col. Edmund B. Edwards, artillery officer of the Tenth Army, announced today.

The explosives weighed 132,000,000 pounds. This is exclusive of rifle, machine gun, grenade and mortar fire. It also does not include the thousands of tons of naval shells poured into the island by battleships, cruisers and destroyers.

Edwards estimated that the Japanese fired 100,000 rounds or about 6 per cent of the Yank total. Much of the Japanese artillery failed to explode because it had been stored in damp caves, Edwards said.

Besides explosives, United States artillery bombarded the Japanese with surrender leaflets.

Nonrecoil Guns Prove Worth

Hutchesen

JUL 19 1945

Sixth Army Headquarters, Luzon, July 18 (AP)—The troops who gave the revolutionary new nonrecoil 57 and 75 millimeter guns their combat baptism on Luzon declared today that they are "colossal."

"They can do anything a bazooka can and do it a lot better from three times the range," said Sergt. Thomas Kriner, of St. Louis. Others of the 43d Division's 103d Regiment echoed his expression.

The guns, recently disclosed by the War Department for the first time, carry artillery fire power without cumbersome weight. Infantrymen can pack them into combat for point-blank firing.

Work Better On Tripod

Bazookas backfire, but the principle of the new gun eliminates recoil. The 57 actually can be fired from the shoulder, but both the 57 and the 75 are more effective from a machine-gun tripod.

The 75 weighs 105 pounds and can fire a fourteen-pound projectile 2,000 yards with accuracy. The guns are especially effective in the cave and mountain fighting that abounded on Luzon and which is anticipated in Japan.

Sergt. John Latham, of New York, former Columbia Broadcasting System writer, who was in charge of first combat use of the weapons, described the inaugural vividly.

"We had only two days' training with the new guns near the end of the Ipo Dam campaign," he said. "But then came a pinch and we needed them badly.

Out Of Bazooka Range

"A rifle company got into a tough spot created by heavy machine-gun fire. The terrain was so bad it was impossible to move artillery pieces there. Bazookas didn't have enough range.

"We had to climb a muddy, slippery hill to reach the company. It took us two hours to make less than a mile. The Nips had the spot under artillery and machine-gun fire.

"We assembled a 75 in a few minutes and got our targets—several grass huts 1,400 yards away. We got three direct hits in our first three shots. We fired five more rounds and when we were done all we could see was a lot of grass. When the company moved forward there were dead Japs all over the place."

The twenty-one-year-old pilot, who was born at Ottawa but whose home now is in Beachwood, N. J., left the Pacific theater with a record of 532 hours' combat flying including seven-hour, 1,500-mile missions.

His score against the Japanese is three surface craft and five barges sunk, five planes destroyed on the ground, a share in the sinking of five other surface craft and the damaging of four more ranging in size up to 2,500 tons. His [illegible] also lists one enemy pedestrian [illegible] action.

FEELERS SEEN FOR INVASION

Japs View Naval Bombardment As Testing Out Coast

San Francisco, July 18 (AP)—Japanese broadcasts, declaring that Allied fleets again were shelling and bombing the island empire, asserted today that the attacks were feeling out the coastal defenses for an invasion which might come quicker than expected.

The Domei agency in a broadcast heard by the Federal Communications Commission said the naval raids were "reconnaissance in force" to test Japan's air power and to pick out likely landing points.

Surprise Landing Possible

The military correspondent of the newspaper Yomiuri Hochi thought the attacks did not presage an immediate invasion, but hedged and admitted the possibility of a surprise landing.

"There is a possibility," he said, "of the enemy's undertaking a direct invasion attack on our mainland by dispensing with interim steps of a landing on the continental (Asiatic) coast or island-conquering operations in case the enemy underestimated our air power as a result of the present operations."

Domei told the people they must expect further naval bombardments and must determine to defend the homeland "without fear" now that Allied task forces can "attack us at any chosen time and place."

Worse Than Bombings

It urged civilians along the coast not to succumb to fear, as had the people of Kamaishi, first of the homeland cities to be shelled when the United States 3d Fleet struck last Saturday.

"It was impossible to fight fires when the bombardment was in progress," Domei continued. "Accordingly, the danger of the spreading fire was much greater than in the case of enemy bombings.

"Since there were many who never before had experienced the falling of shells, many remained in the shelters long after the enemy warships had retired, unable to shake off fear."

Another dispatch said 1,000 residents of the northern home island of Hokkaido had been killed or wounded in shelling and bombings Saturday and Sunday.

Domei reported that the "great majority" of the residents of Tokyo, once the world's third largest city, now were living in underground shelters and wanted to stay underground rather than move elsewhere "for shelter from enemy air attacks."

By Japanese account, these raids were growing in scope and intensity, with Liberators and possibly Black Widow night fighters making their debut over the central home island of Honshu.

The Nippo[illegible]ted these air blows:

Airfields and military targets from the Tokyo area 140 miles northward hit by 1,500 carrier planes.

Four Liberators with possibly Black Widow escort hit Honshu, striking northeast of Tokyo in the area shelled by the British and American fleets.

Shanghai raided by 100 United States fighters and bombers in a quick followup to an initial raid by 60 bombers yesterday, causing "considerable" casualties among the Chinese.

The southern home islands of Kyushu and Shikoku attacked by 80 fighter planes and three Liberators from Okinawa, while two navy heavy bombers struck Shikoku.

The Tokyo radio said 30 Superfortresses made reconnaissance flights yesterday and last night over Honshu, Shikoku, Kyushu and the northeastern coast of Korea.

Fleet Raids on Japan 'Insane,' Tokyo Says

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18 — (AP) Tokyo radio tonight called the continuing Anglo-American fleet and air mauling of the Tokyo area "insane" and "spasmodic" and said it was just a trick to revive a lagging American war effort.

B-29s could be doing the job just as well, the Japanese commentator averred.

The broadcast, recorded by the Federal Communications Commission, was in English and beamed to North America.

"It is insane in the first place to think that one can effect a blockade of the air and sea completely and destroy the resources of a country like Japan by means of a spasmodic raid or bombardment," the unidentified commentator asserted.

Jap War Ministry Shake-up Reported

San Francisco, July 18 (A. P.)—Japan, now undergoing the most terrific naval and aerial lashing of the Pacific struggle, has a new Vice-Minister of War.

The Domei Agency, quoting the War Ministry, identified him as Lieut.-Gen. Tadaichi Wakamatsu, "one of the outstanding strategists of the Japanese Army." The broadcast, recorded by the FCC, said Wakamatsu, who replaced Lieut.-Gen. Kaneshiro Shibayama, formerly commanded an Army corps and served as Military Attache to the Legation in Hungary. Domei cited no reason for the change.

Kurusu Turns Farmer In Japan

San Francisco, July 18 (AP) — Saburo Kurusu, the special envoy who talked peace in Washington while Japanese planes were on their way to bomb Pearl Harbor, has turned farmer at his home in Japan, Radio Tokyo reported today.

He has three acres in the cool mountain town of Karuizawa, the broadcast said, and "generally prides himself on doing fairly good, achieving perfect self-sufficiency in foodstuffs."

Tokyo, recalling Kurusu's "peace" mission, said he "made a herculean effort to avert the current war situation between Japan and America." Interned at the start of the war, Kurusu later returned to Japan on a prisoner exchange ship.

Washington, July 18 (AP)—American and British forces have killed or taken prisoner some 1,500,000 Japanese to clear the way for what Admiral Nimitz calls the "preinvasion stage," official figures indicated today.

An estimated 600,000 others have been cut off or bypassed on Pacific islands. Still thousands of others have perished in China.

[Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek reported recently that 1,203,067 Japanese either have been killed or captured in eight years of fighting in China.]

From Army And Navy Data

Army and navy reports, based on actual counts and estimates, show that land fighting and transport sinkings in the American-British operations areas have accounted for 1,141,500 Japanese. The most recent estimate of Japanese naval losses adds 262,000 men to that figure.

In some cases, the figures are not quite up to date and full reports are expected to push the total beyond the 1,500,000 mark.

Despite these losses, the Japanese are still estimated to have five to ten million men, including the cream of the Emperor's army, for the defense of the empire. Little else is left, however. The air force has been whittled down to a first-line combat organization of probably 4,000 planes and the navy virtualy has ceased to exist as a re[illegible] combatant force.

Philippines Toll Biggest

The biggest dent in Japanese manpower was made in the Philippines where 419,000 of a force of 450,000 were reported to have been wiped out. The remainder are being hunted down and exterminated.

The conquest of Burma added 347,000 and the toll is still growing.

The fighting in the Solomons and New Guinea areas and the cleanup there in recent months eliminated approximately 120,700 Japanese.

Other campaigns include, in round figures, these enemy losses: Okinawa, 117,500; Marianas, 71,000; Iwo Jima, 24,000; Gilbert-Marshalls Islands, 23,000; Palau, 13,500; Borneo, 3,300; Aleutians, 2,500.

U.S. Again Denies Jap Peace Offers

Washington, July 18 (AP)—The State Department today reaffirmed a statement of July 10 that no official or unofficial peace offers have come from the Japanese Government.

The statement was made by department spokesmen in reply to newsmens' questions about reports that Generalissimo Stalin had brought a Japanese mediation request to the Big Three meeting now going on at Potsdam.

The questions submitted were:

"Is it still true that no peace offers have been received from Japan?"

"Has Marshal Stalin brought any Japanese peace feelers to the Big Three meeting?"

The spokesman's reply was that the statement by Acting Secretary Grew on July 10, denying any Japanese peace offers from responsible sources, still stands.

Other questions relating to the possibility of a definition of unconditional surrender for Japan were laid aside for the time being.

Victory the Pacific Is Goal of Big Three

Truman Holds Second Formal Conference with Churchill, Stalin.

POTSDAM, July 18—(AP) Three veterans of old battlefields—President Truman, Premier Stalin, and Prime Minister Churchill—conferred again late today, with Allied victory in the Pacific a pressing goal.

This second formal meeting of the Big Three was as heavily blanketed by security as yesterday's, but the trend of thought among the American and British delegations seemed to make it certain that the ways and means for Japan's defeat would be fully aired before the Soviet leader.

Confer Separately

Earlier in the day, Truman conferred separately with Churchill and Stalin.

The day's events indicated the leaders were agreed upon reaching as promptly as possible full agreement on the issues facing them—issues on which the speedier end of the war against Japan and the future peace of Europe may depend.

Truman, the presiding officer of the tri-power session, seeks as his chief goals a quicker triumph over Japan and the bulwarking of peace through solution of long-standing disputes.

He lunched today at 1 p.m. with Churchill, and then later with Stalin. He was accompanied at the second luncheon by Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, his close friend and an experienced negotiator.

Under cloudy skies, the President walked from his residence to the local equivalent of No. 10 Downing street, and was greeted at the gate by Churchill and his soldier-daughter, Mary, an announcement from the British delegation said.

Fifty troops of the Second Battalion of Scots guards formed an honor guard on the tree-shaded lawn, and a Royal Marine band struck up the Star Spangled Banner.

Truman and Churchill talked cordially on the terrace while photographs were taken, and then lunched inside at a table set for two. When Truman was leaving, Byrnes emerged from British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's house next, door, where he had lunched, and met the President at the entrance. The British delegation did not say how long Churchill and Truman conferred, nor was there any hint of their topics.

Cordial Session

Stalin was host to the President at 3 p.m. at a comparatively brief luncheon, but there were evidences that it was cordial Caviar, fish, and meat, apparently were on the menu.

Byrnes, Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, the President's military and naval aides, Brig.-Gen. Harry H. Vaughan and Capt. James K. Vardaman, Jr., and Charles E. Bohlen, State Department Russian experts, also were guests of Stalin.

Byrnes—like Truman—is an experienced veteran of compromises smoothly worked out on Washington's Capitol Hill, and now as Secretary of State brings that experience and diplomatic ability to discussions of vital international problems being worked out here. He was an advisor to President Roosevelt at the Yalta conference and other meetings.

Truman's calls today returned the visits paid him by Churchill on Monday and by Stalin on Tuesday. The President is understood to be planning a dinner soon at which Stalin and Churchill will be honored guests.

British and Russian officers seemed agreed that the Stalin-Churchill choice of Truman to preside, even though he is the "freshman" member of the Three-Power conference, was a cordial diplomatic handshake to the Missourian.

This is the first Big Three conference which has had a formal chairman. It was reported unofficially from Teheran in 1943 that the late President Roosevelt then was informal chairman most of the time. At the Yalta meeting, Stalin was understood to have fulfilled that office in fact, although some Americans said Roosevelt presided.

Review U. S. Division

During the afternoon, Gen. George C. Marshall, Field Marshal Sir Alan Francis Brooke, and other high-ranking U. S., British and Russian officers reviewed the veteran Second Armored "Hell on Wheels" Division, drawn up in a 2 1-2 mile-long column of men, tanks and vehicles along the Avus Autobahn.

Marshall declared after the 40-minute review that "it is a splendid looking outfit. It was most impressive."

The officers, who drove in from Potsdam where they are advising the Big Three conferees, also included:

Gen. H. H. Arnold, U. S. Air Chief; Air Chief Marshal Sir Charles Portal, Field Marshal Sir Harold L. Alexander, Admiral Ernest J. King, Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, Field Marshal Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Gen. Sir Hastings L. Ismay, Churchill's Chief of Staff; Gen. Brehon Somervell, Gen. Alexander Baranow, Soviet Military Governor of Berlin; Maj.-Gen. Floyd L. Parks, commander of the American sector of Berlin, and Brig.-Gen. John H. Collier, commander of the Second Armored Division.

SECOND SESSION OF BIG THREE IS UNDER WAY

Truman Is Luncheon Guest, First of Churchill, Then of Stalin.

BYRNES IS AT LATTER EVENT

Three Leaders Reported in Full Accord on Prompt Tackling of Major Problems.

Potsdam, July 18 (A. P.).—The Big Three conference swung into stride today with the second formal meeting of President Truman the chairman, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

A speedy victory over Japan and settlement of long-standing disputes to help preserve the peace in Europe were chief among the American President's aims as the three settled down to study pressing international problems.

At 1 P. M., Mr. Truman was luncheon guest of Churchill. Two hours later, Stalin gave him another luncheon. Other guests at the second spread were Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov, Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, Charles E. Bohlen of the State Department and the President's military and naval aids.

The Russian luncheon was comparatively brief with the menu including caviar, fish and meat. There were evidences of cordiality.

How long the three leaders met at the second formal session was not announced.

It was indicated that complete agreement existed among the three heads of government to proceed promtply toward seeking settlements of the many issues on which the future peace of Europe and a possible quicker end of the Japanese war may depend.

Potsdam skies were cloudy, but the parley atmosphere appeared considerably cleared.

The President first conferred and ate luncheon with the Prime Minister and then visited the Soviet Generalissimo for a similar personal session later in the afternoon.

Byrnes With Him

Mr. Truman was selected yesterday as conference chairman.

With him on at least the latter visit was Secretary of State James F. Brynes, the President's erstwhile Capitol Hill partner in many a compromise mission to smooth the congressional pathway for wartime commitments which President Roosevelt made at just such international sessions as this.

It was a new and far more spectacular setting to an old story for both of them, on an international basis now. Truman's swift step to get down to cases individually with both Churchill and Stalin indicated that the Missourian was taking the Potsdam program right in his stride.

Would Be True To Form

There was no definite information as to whether another formal conference was scheduled for later this afternoon. However, it would be true to Truman form promptly to call an official meeting to clinch any informal agreement which may be reached during his personal visits.

Truman's visits followed the order in which they had visited him—Churchill on Monday and Stalin yesterday—thus conforming to diplomatic protocol.

Announcement of the President's plans was made by an American officer after a conference with the Washington delegation.

Japan A Major Topic

Chief among Truman's aims were a speedy victory over Japan and settlement of age-old disputes to help preserve peace.

An unconfirmed report said Stalin had come to Potsdam ready to make definite commitments concerning the war in the Pacific. Churchill's lengthy conversations with United States military leaders indicated that the war against Japan was one of the major topics to come before the conference.

The first joint communiqué from the three leaders said:

"The Berlin conference of the heads of the governments of the United Kingdom, the United States of America and the Soviet Union met this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

Invited To Preside

"By invitation of his two colleagues, the President of the United States of America will preside at the meeting of the conference.

"The preliminary exchange of views took place on matters requiring decision by the heads of the three governments.

"It was decided that the three foreign secretaries should hold regular meetings with a view to preparing the work of the conference."

Reference to the foreign secretaries indicated that no time would be wasted by the three leaders.

It was reported that Stalin had nominated Truman to preside and that Churchill quickly approved.

Closed To Reporters

While Secretary Byrnes, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Russian Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov are scheduled to meet regularly, there were indications that their chiefs would get together often at meetings which will be closed to reporters, who may enter Potsdam but not the conference area.

Truman is known to be willing to operate to every reasonable extent to help stabilize and rehabilitate war-torn countries.

The President relaxed last night at a dinner with Gen. George C. Marshall, Gen. H. H. Arnold, Admiral Ernest F. King and War Secretary Henry L. Stimson. They listened to an army orchestra playing a Missouri waltz and selections from Chopin and Mozart, whose compositions the President likes to play on the piano.

Potsdam's News Exceeds Yalta's And Tehran's

By Daniel De Luce

Berlin, July 18 (AP)—Press rules for the Big Three conference were made by the Big Three themselves.

They are a carryover from the original tripartite conference at Tehran, but with the European war ended and President Truman occupying Roosevelt's place, they permit more day-to-day news than ever before.

Correspondents are living in the Zehlendorf district press camp, about 4 miles from Potsdam and less than that from the "Little White House."

One Saw Stalin

American and British public relations officers have access to the inter-Allied compounds in the Potsdam area, and at least one of them witnessed the arrival of Premier Stalin at President Truman's residence yesterday.

Soviet officers likewise circulate in Potsdam. They include official correspondents.

Soviet views on security are such that there is little or no likelihood that Allied civilian newspapermen, even though previously accredited as war correspondents, will be allowed to view the Potsdam conferees at work.

British and American newspapermen, however, may visit Potsdam except for the compounds. Several saw, from outside the fence, the planes which brought President Truman, Prime Minister Churchill and their parties into a west side airfield Sunday.

Monday night and yesterday morning when no one in authority could say publicly whether Stalin had arrived from Moscow, some resentment was expressed in the press camp that such details as how many blankets were supplied each American delegate should be known with exactitude, while a big point such as Stalin's presence should remain in doubt.

More Factual News

Yesterday President Truman's press secretary and his British opposite began to issue formal reports.

However, more factual news has been issued on the Potsdam meeting this week than came out of Tehran during a similar length of time. From Yalta there was silence until the final communiqué.

What the public will learn through the press and radio about the Potsdam conference in coming days represents an amicable compromise among the Big Three.

Parley Secrecy Hit In London

London, July 18 (AP)—London newspapers today attacked what they termed a blackout of news at the Potsdam Big Three conference and sharply criticized the luxurious menus and accommodations provided for conference delegates.

"We ask for the conference agenda," the Mirror said in an editorial. "We are offered the delegates' menu. It consists of choice steaks, strawberries—big and juicy—whisky, gin, bourbon, vodka.

"Is this the new diplomacy?"

"Preposterous Secrecy"

The Daily Mail said that "secrecy has gone to preposterous lengths where security is not involved."

The Herald said that "while over 50 British and American reporters were kept muzzled by the most rigorous censorship ever imposed, the Moscow radio broke the news of the conference opening."

The liberal News Chronicle quoted "queueing London housewives" in angry comments against the food served delegates in Potsdam's "dream community."

Women's Comments

Interviews with 40 British women brought from "all but one comments colored with bitterness, envy and astonishment," the newspaper said. It quoted one Ascot woman as saying:

"I think those stories of melons, strawberries and choice steaks at Potsdam are the most disgusting I have read in a long time. It makes you want to turn Communist."

The Star asked immediate action to "modify this irrational secrecy" in order not to "impair the confidence of the public in the ability of the Big Three to reach decisions."

Soviet Press And 'Big 3'

Moscow, July 18 (AP)—The first mention in the Soviet press of the Big Three meeting in Potsdam appeared in today's newspapers, which printed a Tass dispatch from Berlin announcing the arrival there of Premier Stalin and Foreign Commissar Molotov.

The army organ Red Star said the meeting in Berlin was "a great triumph for the victorious arms of the anti-Hitler coalition."

2 Trumans At Potsdam

Potsdam, July 18 (AP) — Two Harry Trumans occupied the "Little White House" in Potsdam today — the President and his 21-year-old nephew, Sergt. Harry A. Truman, of Grandview, Mo., who got off a United States-bound liner in order to make the visit.

Young Truman, a gunner of Battery C of the 157th Field Artillery Battalion of the 44th Division, was flown here yesterday after his unit, upon docking at Antwerp Sunday, remarked that he had a nephew on the Western Front and hoped to see him.

Located By General

Sergeant Truman's trip to Potsdam was arranged by Lieut. Gen. John C. H. Lee, commander of American Communications Zone Forces in Europe, who located him aboard the liner Queen Elizabeth, ready to sail.

Although returning to Germany meant a delay in seeing home again, the young sergeant was reported happy and excited over staying with the President, whom he last saw last August in Missouri during the presidential campaign.

To Stay "Several Days"

The sergeant, it was learned, will stay "several days."

He landed in Europe with his division last September and has battle stars for action in northern France, the Rhineland and central Germany.

Before entering the Army he was a student at the University of Missouri. He was promoted to the rank of sergeant on June 26.

Mickey Rooney Clowns In GI Show At Potsdam

Potsdam, July 18 (AP)—GI Mickey Rooney, former film actor, clowned tonight for Gen. George C. Marshall, United States Army chief of staff, and hundreds of American troops in the first "live show" within the American compound at the Potsdam conference.

Rooney, with the one-time child film singer, Bobby Breen, and Jimmy James's band and a troupe of sixty enlisted men, had been scheduled to open an engagement in Berlin. But the "high brass" called him here for two nights.

Most of the troops who witnessed the performance belonged to the 2nd (Hell on Wheels) Armored Division, which also was sponsoring the Berlin date.

BERLINERS CAN'T PEEP AT STALIN

Berlin, July 18 (A. P.).—Berliners found out that they had not seen the last of blackouts with the end of the war.

Russian authorities, preparing for Premier Stalin's arrival at the Big Three conference, decreed that the windows of all buildings along railway tracks leading out of Berlin to Moscow and Potsdam should be boarded up or blacked out so that the occupants could not peep out when Stalin's train passed.

Reds May Fulfill Sealane Quest At Potsdam

JUL 19

London, July 18 (AP) — Exchange Telegraph reported from Helsinki that Finland will pay Russia a war damage assessment of $50,000,000 in gold during the year beginning September, 1945, under terms of an agreement signed today.

Washington, July 18 (AP)—Russia's age-old quest for her own trade outlets to the open ocean may come close to fulfillment at the Big Three conference.

Diplomatic circles here believe the question of ocean-traffic bottlenecks which allow other countries to control all the best passages to the Soviet Union may occupy a prominent position at the Potsdam discussions.

These bottlenecks include the Yellow Sea approaches to Russia's Siberian back door. The prospect is that regardless of talk or lack of talk about Soviet participation in the war against Japan, there will be a fairly full exploration of Russia's political intentions in Eastern Asia.

Aspirations In Pacific

These intentions are believed to be dominated to a considerable extent by Russia's commercial aspirations in the Pacific. Involved directly is the question of Port Arthur. Russia once took a 99-year lease on that North China port, and Premier Stalin generally is expected to demand its use again.

But neither Port Arthur nor any other outlet that far south is likely to have any security unless the Russians control approaches to it.

For that reason, and several others, President Truman is anxious to find out Stalin's general ideas on the future of East Asia regardless of what Russia does about the war.

Disposition Of Jap Isles

Similarly, the question of disposition of Japanese islands in the North Pacific is likely to come up. Russia is expected to claim Karafuto, the southern half of Russian-held Sakhalin.

But ships moving to the Asiatic mainland have to go through passages in the Japanese chain or in the Kuriles to the north. As a result, there has been speculation that Stalin may want one of these passages to have Russian-held flanks.

The great key to Russian trade in the west is the Dardanelles, Turkish controlled under the treaty of Montreaux. This treaty, while it allows a free flow of Russian commerce, does not allow Russia or any other country to hold military positions on the Dardanelles. Also it prevents the passage of warships except under certain limited conditions.

May Seek More Advantages

Russia, which recently ended a commercial treaty with Turkey in order to get more favorable terms in a future pact, is expected to press for much more advantageous arrangements governing these straits which give her an outlet from the Black Sea to the Mediterranean.

This issue is one which brings into almost direct conflict the interests of Russia and Britain, because the Mediterranean outlets to both the Atlantic and Indian oceans are controlled by the British at Gibraltar and Suez.

Moreover, in past centuries the British have put forth enormous efforts to keep eastern peoples from obtaining powerful positions on the Mediterranean.

Changed By The War

In the north the situation has changed radically during the war. Britain formerly enjoyed rich trade in the Baltic Sea. But now much of the Baltic coast is completely Russian held and the Russians are reported to have possession of the Danish Island of Bornholm, strategically located between Germany and Sweden.

Yet the outlets from the Baltic, the North Sea and the rest of the world's profitable sea lanes are controlled by Denmark and Sweden.

The problem of Russian access to the sea is one which diplomatic authorities have anticipated as inevitable to arise at the war's end. The Berlin conference marks the first real effort to meet some of these issues squarely.

Denmark And Italy UNRRA Factors

London, July 18 (AP)—Denmark, a potential source of food supplies, and Italy, hungry and hoping for more aid, are expected to take their seats as full fledged members of the UNRRA shortly after that international relief organization opens its third major conference in London on August 7.

Denmark's admission was termed by UNRRA officials a virtual certainty. The question of Italy's admission, while ultimately almost as sure, appeared to hinge on the increasing likelihood that her status will be changed soon from that of cobelligerent to Allied partner.

Aid To Italy Held Sure

But even if a clarification of Italy's position fails to emerge from the Big Three conference, top British and American officials say, steps will probably be taken to insure additional aid for her.

These steps are expected to be one of two things—admission of Italy to the UNRRA on a provisional basis as was done in the case of General De Gaulle's National Liberation Committee, or advance action to give the country a seat automatically when she is officially recognized as one of the United Nations.

Military Control May End

Meanwhile the coming conference shapes up as the most important since the UNRAA's birth at Atlantic City in November, 1943. There is a strong possibility that a demand will arise for the organization's divorce from the stringent military control under which it has been operating in the greater part of Europe.

Under present plans, the greater part of the repatriation job—at least numerically—will probably be completed by military authorities in British-American controlled territory by September. The rest of the job will become the UNRRA's responsibility.

Other Problems

Other problems expected to come before the conference include:

The matter of putting pressure upon countries receiving UNRRA supplies to increase production while pegging prices of staples and eliminating black markets. This may involve the question of UNRRA guarantees of subsidies to stimulate food production.

The possibility of obtaining a larger amount of surplus army equipment, especially trucks for inland transportation.

Possible release of Liberty ships unfit for the long Pacific haul to hasten resumption of normal trade between countries in Europe.

LORD HAW-HAW'S TRIAL DELAYED

LONDON, July 18—(AP) William Joyce—better known as the one-time Nazi radio's "Lord Haw Haw"—gained postponement of his treason trial until September after pleading today for more time to investigate records bearing on his contention that he was born in the U. S. and was never a British subject.

Challenging Britain's right to try him as a traitor to the king, Joyce, through his counsel, argued that the "matter of nationality plainly arises in the strongest form in this case—not only the nationality of Joyce but that of his father."

Jersey Birth Claimed

Defense Attorney Curtis-Bennett sprang a surprise in revealing to the Old Bailey court that certain documents—their contents kept secret—had been found in Hudson County, N. J.

After today's introduction of the documents relating to Hudson County, Jersey City reported that a William Joyce was born there on July 26, 1906.

Defense counsel, however, suggested indirectly that the New Jersey records possibly related to the citizenship application of Joyce's father.

The U. S. Attorney General's office in Washington already has said it would "grab him quick" if Joyce gained freedom in British court.

HAW HAW CASE OFF UNTIL FALL

Plea of Birth in America Delays London Trial.

London, July 18 (A. P.).—The trial of William (Lord Haw-Haw) Joyce, accused of high treason in broadcasting propaganda for the Germans, was postponed today to the September term at the Old Bailey. The postponement came on a defense plea that evidence from the United States indicated that Joyce was an American citizen and owed no allegiance to the British crown.

Defense attorneys presented copies of "documents which we got from the State of New Jersey, sealed with the seal of Hudson county and concerning a man who may or may not be—we cannot prove it at the moment—Joyce's father." The attorneys claimed that one document appeared to be a record of Joyce's birth in New York city in 1906.

They asked time to check the signature on the document, which they said they believed to be that of Joyce's father, and to bring additional documents to Britain. The case originally was set to be tried in the term of court which opened yesterday.

Basis for Plea.

Joyce's attorneys suggested that at the time of Joyce's birth his father was an American citizen, that Joyce was born in the United States, and never was a British subject.

"Therefore," their plea added, "it will be our submission that if Joyce was born in the United States, he cannot owe allegiance to the King." Joyce claimed in a preliminary hearing that he was born in Brooklyn in 1906 of an Irish father and English mother.

Joyce himself appeared in court dressed in a blue suit. The small public gallery was jammed. When the judge announced his decision to postpone the trial, Joyce said: "Thank you," and, flanked by bailiffs, walked from the dock to his cell downstairs.

Guardian Assails Detention Of Spaniards

JUL 20

By Edward P. Morgan

London, July 18 (AP)—The Manchester Guardian today charged the War Ministry with "callous stupidity," if not with malignant intentions, in holding some 200 Spaniard republicans as prisoners of war.

Foreign Office officials who are trying to work out some kind of repatriation for the group said that the Guardian was wrong on a couple of technical points, but they agreed privately that some bad bureaucratic blunders had been made.

Prisoners Technically

These Spaniards found their way to England along with other men captured in western Europe in the uniforms of the German TODT organization and thus were technically prisoners of war. It was denied they came from concentration camps which the French had maintained for Spanish exiles.

The Guardian charged that they were given to understand that they would be released when they arrived here, but that they were not despite repeated appeals to the War Office. The paper said that they staged a hunger strike at a prison in Kirkham, Lancashire, and that one of them committed suicide by leaping from a seventh-story window. "So great is their depression that more suicides are feared," said the Guardian.

Mixing With Nazis Denied

The War Office denied the Guardian's implication that Spaniards are kept with German prisoners and said that they were separated.

It is learned that several of these Spaniards wanted to join the Pioneer Corps, the labor army which the British organized among refugees, but the War Office confirmed that it has stopped recruiting.

A Foreign Office source admitted that it was "outrageous" that a co-operator status has not been worked out for them, as it has for Italian prisoners, allowing them relative freedom and providing them jobs, and blamed the "stupidity" of certain officials in the War Ministry.

Mrs. Churchill Urges Healthy View On Russia

London, July 18 (AP)—Mrs. Winston Churchill, reporting on her recent visit to Russia, said tonight that "we cannot expect misunderstandings not to arise but I think it is the duty of everybody to take an optimistic and healthy and not a sentimental view of the Soviet Union."

Addressing the Women's British-Soviet Committee, the wife of the British Prime Minister said, "we must not come to a hasty conclusion until we know all the facts. I am certain if we persevere now that friendship will increase."

She said "Stalin said to me 'there are difficulties and there will be difficulties, but they will pass and friendship will remain.'"

GI's Offered Leaves In Switzerland

London, July 18 (AP)—Tourist leaves in Switzerland for United States troops beginning July 25 have been arranged in an agreement between American and Swiss authorities, the Swiss radio announced today.

The soldiers will enter Switzerland via Chiasso and Basel in groups, accompanied by Swiss guides; go to holiday camps for three days, and travel through the rugged lake and Alpine country for the remainder of the week.

Though in uniform, the Americans will be regarded as tourists, and each will pay $35 for his week's vacation.

Fluorescent Light Rays In British Night Fighters

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, July 18—Fluorescent light rays that can be turned on and off like a stream of water are the newest thing in illuminating cockpits of night fighter planes, the Ministry of Aircraft Production disclosed today. The rays help solve one of the big problems of night flying, supplying a lighted cockpit from which the pilot can see but not be seen.

The Ministry explained how two kinds of lighting are being used together in all new types of British night fighters—fluorescent for instrument panel and red lighting for general illumination.

Instruments are marked with a paint that emits orange light when violet lights are turned on them. As light beams increase, orange-colored markings become brighter, but without affecting the brightness of the cockpit. The Ministry added a pilot could arrange lighting to suit his needs, "and there is small risk of his cockpit lights being seen by the enemy."

FRANCE TO REBUILD WITH REICH LABOR

Paris, July 18 (A. P.).—The French Government today announced plans to use German labor in the reconstruction and rehabilitation of the country under a system providing revenue for the Government and maintaining the wage standards of French labor.

Edouard Maillet, director of man power in the Ministry of Labor, said it was expected that 1,750,000 Germans would be employed in France by next July. Of the German labor force it was estimated that 1,400,000 would work on the reconstruction of roads and bridges and the removal of mines.

Employers will pay for German labor at the French minimum rate of 100 francs daily ($2 under the American exchange rate). The Germans will receive from 5 to 15 francs daily and the remainder of the wages will be turned over to the Government by the employers.

When in full operation the project could net the Government more than $1,500,000 daily after deducting the cost of feeding, clothing and sheltering the Germans.

Vichy Information Attache Executed

Paris, July 18 (A. P.).—Andre Baillet, 34 years old, director-general of information in the Vichy Ministry of Information, was executed at Fort de Chatillon today. He was convicted on June 20 of testifying against Frenchmen in Nazi courts here during the occupation.

Former French Officer Indicted On Spy Charge

New York, July 18 (AP)—Paul Jean Cavaillez, 43, a former French Air Force officer, was indicted today by a Federal grand jury on charges of espionage, conspiracy to commit espionage and violation of the censorship code.

Cavaillez was arrested May 25 by FBI agents after they said Dieudonne Costes, former trans-Atlantic flyer, who they said became a German agent under pressure, provided information concerning Cavaillez's purported espionage activities.

Cavaillez has been held in the Federal House of Detention in default of $50,000 bail.

The indictment charged that Cavaillez, in 1943, conspired to injure the United States by attempting to transmit to Germany information relating to United States national defense.

2 GERMANS TO DIE FOR KILLING FLYER

Freising, Germany, July 18 (A. P.).—A United States military commission has sentenced two German policemen to hang for the murder of Tech. Sgt. Donald Ley Hein of Baltimore, who parachuted from a flaming bomber near Hanau on December 12, 1944. Four other Germans were acquitted in trials which lasted three days. The verdicts were announced yesterday, and are subject to review by Gen. Patton.

Policemen William Haefner test fied that he marched Hein to a woods on the edge of Hanau and shot him in the back with a single pistol shot. Police Chief Albert Bury told the commission that he had ordered the killing, acting on directions received last October from higher authorities.

Both will be hanged unless their sentences are commuted.

A seventh German, an SS officer, has been arrested in the British zone in Germany in connection with Hein's death and will be tried later. Hein's widow, Mrs. Melva M. Hein, lives in Baltimore.

32-Inch Gun Unearthed By Yanks In Germany

New York, July 18 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Stewart E. Reimel, chief of the New York Ordnance District, said today a superheavy 32-inch gun, which fired a five-ton shell, has been unearthed by American ordnance experts in Germany.

Ammunition with a 94-mile range and a rocket-firing gun also have been discovered in investigations under way at Hillersleben and Bad Blankenburg, Germany, he said. Both towns were identified as having been nerve centers of Germany's military research and development.

BELGIANS LEGALLY EXILE LEOPOLD

Parliament Bars Him From Country He Ruled

BALL

Brussels, July 18 (AP)—Belgium's Parliament today legally exiled King Leopold III and barred him from returning to Belgian soil without parliamentary consent.

The Senate, by a vote of 77 to 58, approved the measure previously adopted by the Chamber of Deputies. It becomes law with the signature of Regent Prince Charles, a mere formality.

NIGHT

The law makes the regency under Prince Charles, who has been serving in that capacity while his brother, the King, has been pondering steps to return to the throne at his St. Wolfgang (Bavaria) villa.

As in the lower chamber, Catholic senators championed Leopold's cause in today's debate. Prime Minister Achille van Acker, who introduced the "exile" measure, declared everything had been done for the King's return, instead of retarding him, as charged by the opposition. Foreign Minister Paul Spaak likewise said the Government had been helpful and at one point asserted the monarch's return now might cause bloodshed and a general strike.

Leopold, refusing to abdicate voluntarily, had informed Parliament that he was willing to bow to the people's will but wished that it be determined in a general election.

The next election, normally, will not be called until 1946.

LEOPOLD EXILED BY SENATE'S VOTE

BALL

Brussels, July 18 (A. P.).—Leopold III, King of the Belgians, who refused to abdicate voluntarily, was made an exile by law today by Parliament.

The Belgian Senate passed, 77 to 58, the measure already approved by the Chamber of Deputies which prevents the absent King from returning to the throne until Parliament consents.

It is still to be signed as a formality by the regent and brother of Leopold, Prince Charles. The bill continues the regency of Prince Charles, who has been serving in that capacity while his brother pondered in his Bavarian villa about what to do.

Unless there is a change of Government or a change of heart by Prime Minister Achille Van Acker's cabinet, Leopold will be unable to set foot on Belgian soil legally until Parliament consents.

OCCUPATION OF ITALY

Rome, July 18 (A. P.).—Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, commander of United States forces in the Mediterranean theater, said today that an American occupation force of approximately 28,000 men would remain in Italy after the inactivation of the theater scheduled for December.

The movement of all troops except occupation forces out of the Italian theater by the end of December is the American goal, but there may not be enough ships for the jobs.

"It is entirely possible there will be from 30,000 to 50,000 men who cannot be shipped until the early months of 1946," McNarney said.

Mob Destroys Library Of Italian Newspaper

Milan, July 18 (AP)—Several thousand men stormed the plant of La Stampa in Turin today, destroyed its library and burned 50,000 copies of the newspaper in the streets, police reports reaching here said.

Turin authorities said the demonstration followed a general strike in many factories and shops against the newspaper's publication under the name it bore during the Fascist era.

Brooklyn-Born Matador Wows Madrid's Public

Madrid, July 18 (AP)—Brooklyn-born Sidney Franklin, 39, made his bow to the Madrid public as a matador today and was carried on the shoulders of enthusiastic fans after his bull fight for the benefit of the Falangist youth camps.

Authorities said before the fight that the bulls were unsuited for the Madrid ring and offered to return the money, but few fans accepted as they were eager to see Franklin's first appearance as a matador.

Franklin's first bull was the worst of the lot and the American was unable to show much skill. However, he did much better with the next animal, the wildest of the lot.

After his kill, cheering fans demanded he be given the "ear tribute" for valor, but officials withheld the premium because Franklin required two swords to make the kill. A bull fighter rarely gets the bull's ear unless he makes a perfect kill.

U.S. Oil Concerns Get Lebanese Contracts

Beyrouth, July 18 (AP)—The Lebanese Government announced today it had signed an agreement with Socony Vacuum Oil Company, Inc., and the Standard Oil Company (N.J.) permitting them to build two refineries at Tripoli, about 40 miles northeast of Beyrouth.

The agreement provides that Lebanese labor must be employed, except in highly technical capacities, the announcement said.

Chinese Close In on Kweilin From All Sides

Kill Hundreds of Foe as They Gain Up to 12½ Miles, Fight Into the Suburbs

CHUNGKING, July 18 (AP).—Six Chinese Army columns, killing hundreds of Japanese troops in gains up to twelve and one-half miles, converged on Kweilin today, while spearheads fought through suburban gun positions protecting the city's three former American airfields, the Chinese high command reported.

Recapture of the biggest United States 14th Air Force base in south-central China appeared near as Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's troops swept toward the Kwangsi Province capital on a 140-mile front.

Three hundred miles to the east, on the eastern flank of the Japanese transcontinental corridor from Korea to Hong Kong, Chinese troops captured the Kiangsi Province highway center of Kanhsien yesterday, four days after rewinning its outlying air base, a communique said.

At Kweilin, 250 miles southeast of Chungking, a battle raged in the citys' outskirt near its three airfields as vanguards struggled to penetrate the Japanase defense lines, while major forces moved toward Kweilin from the south, southwest, west, north and northeast.

The Chinese command gave the following picture of the fighting for Kweilin:

From the south one column, apparently operating behind Japanese lines east of the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad, captured Liangfeng, fourteen miles below the provincial capital. Liangfeng is only a mile from the railroad and its occupation threatened to cut the retreat of Japanese forces in the Yungfu area, thirty-one miles southwest of Kweilin.

A second column was threatening Yungfu and yesterday was only two miles away after a gain of six and a half miles.

West of Kweilin a third force advanced within twelve and a half miles of the city, reaching the village of Liangkiangfu after bypassing Paishou, twenty-five miles west and one of the main Japanese strongholds. Rear guards of the 30.24-28491

Chinese force battled within [illegible] miles of Paishou.

A fourth column surrounded and killed 300 to 400 enemy remnants north of Ining, a highway center eleven miles northwest of Kweilin.

A fifth Chinese group, fifty-seven miles northeast of Kweilin, beat back a Japanese counter-attack against veterans who established a road block across the Kweilin-Hengyang railroad near Chaihsu, cutting the Japanese garrison's main escaped route.

A wide outflanking movement at the same time gained ground sixty-eight miles south of Kweilin, where a sixth column moved toward the Japanese supply base of Pinglo and drove to the approaches of Hsiujenhsien.

In Kiangsi province Chinese troops completely reoccupied Kanhsien, 250 miles north of Hong Kong, yesterday after four days of street fighting against rear guards which the Japanese left after the bulk of their forces withdrew from the city.

Late American and Chinese communiqués indicated that the Chinese still might be clinging to the recently rewon American airbase of Suichwan, 47 miles northeast of Kanhsien. The Japanese, in a "floating pocket" completely isolated and surrounded by Chinese troops, were advancing on Suichwan, but Chinese headquarters said their attacks had been repelled.

Veering Toward Wawan

Some enemy elements, a communiqué said, swung away from Suichwan and veered toward Wawan, site of an auxiliary airfield 16 miles west on the Kan River.

Supporting the Chinese ground forces, United States 14th Air Force fighters roared to the area and blasted enemy machine guns, artillery emplacements and quarters between Suichwan and Kanhsien yesterday.

Mitchell medium bombers Sunday, Monday and Tuesday nights attacked nineteen Japanese convoys pulling northward from the Kweilin area toward Hengyang and Changsha.

Mustang fighter-bombers also went to the aid of Chinese troops battling for possession of Shaoyang (Paoking), besieged former American airbase 140 miles northeast of Kweilin.

Stratemeyer Arrives

The Chinese command gave no report of fighting progress in the Shaoyang area and also was silent on the battlefronts in Indo-China and along the "invasion" coasts below Amoy and Shanghai.

Lieut. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer arrived in Chungking Monday and assumed command of the United States Army Air Forces in the China theater, Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's headquarters announced.

CHINESE CLOSE IN ON KWEILIN

Kill 300 Japs in Six-mile Drive Toward Base.

Moos A

Day

Chungking, July 18 (A. P.).—Killing between 300 and 400 Jap troops, Chinese forces in a sudden six-mile drive have driven to within eleven miles northwest of Kweilin, while other Chinese troops have closed in on the former American air base city from two other directions, the Chinese High Command reported today.

The Jap's were surrounded and killed at Ining, highway center 11 miles northwest of Kweilin. Another Chinese force advanced from the west to within 12 miles of the triple-field airbase, which was abandoned to the Japanese last October.

Liangfeng Taken

Chinese forces operating east of the Hunan-Kwangsi railroad captured Liangfeng, 15 miles south of Kweilin, on a subsidiary highway between Liuchow and Kweilin, Chinese reports said.

Liangfeng is only 2 miles from the railroad, and its possession by the Chinese would threaten a Japanese retreat along that route.

In the southwest, Chinese forces striking up the railroad from recently recaptured Liuchow advanced 7 miles and reached a point less than 2 miles from Yungfu, 31 miles southwest of Kweilin.

Kanhsien Capture Confirmed

The high command at the same time confirmed the Chinese capture of the city of Kanhsien, in southern Kiangsi province.

Chinese forces which drove a wedge into the Kweilin-Hengyang railroad at Chaishu, 57 miles northwest of Kweilin, cutting off the enemy's escape route from Kwangsi to Hunan province, turned back a Japanese counterattack, the high command said.

Chinese forces striking east of Liuchow, 90 miles to the southwest, along a roundabout subsidiary highway leading to Kweilin, were approaching the town of Hsiujenhsien, 47 miles from the liberated rail center.

GEN. STRATEMEYER ARRIVES IN CHINA

Chungking, July 18 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. George E. Stratemeyer arrived in Chungking Monday and assumed command of United States Air Forces in China, headquarters of Lieut.-Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, United States commander in the China theater, announced today.

Stratemeyer was formerly commander of the Allied Eastern Air Command, with headquarters in India and since dissolved. His new command includes the United States Fourteenth Air Force, whose colorful commander, Major-Gen. Claire L. Channault, has announced that he will retire, as well as the United States Tenth Air Force, famous for its "bridge-busting" assaults in Burma.

Mars Task Force Disbands

CHUNGKING, China, July 18 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's headquarters said today that the Mars Task Force, an American combat team that helped clear the Japanese from northern Burma and later was transferred to China, has been disbanded. General Wedemeyer's headquarters disclosed June 4 that the 475th Infantry Regiment and the 124th Cavalry Regiment of the Mars Task Force had been in China for several weeks after having been flown over the Himalayas.

Showdown in Burma Expected

CALCUTTA, July 18 (AP).—The Japanese massed troops and heavy artillery today on the east bank of the Sittang River bend in southern Burma in preparation for what Allied officers said might be the showdown battle in that area. The Japanese were expected to try to cross the river northwest of Pegu to rescue thousands of their troops cut off in the westerly section of Allied-occupied Burma.

Burma Japs Set For Big Attack Near Pegu

G. M. Kelly

Calcutta, July 18 (AP)—Allied officers said today that a climactic battle appeared imminent in the bend of the Sittang River in southern Burma, where the Japanese are massing troops on the east bank.

Signs pointed to a powerful artillery supported Japanese thrust across the river north of Pegu in an effort to unite with and rescue thousands of enemy troops cut off in Allied-occupied territory west of the river.

6,000 Troops

The enemy force on both sides of the river is divided into three units of approximately 2,000 men each. These men are hungry and disease ridden, but still are fully fight. The enemy objective apparently is to link up the southern most of these groups and apply such pressure on Allied troops that the entrapped northern group also can escape across the Sittang.

The Japanese on the east bank are equipped with artillery, mortars and heavy machine guns. Those trapped in the mountains to the west are armed with small arms and light machine guns.

Probe Allied Lines

As a prelude to the probable push across the river the Japanese are probing Allied lines for weak spots. There was no authoritative estimate on the Allied strength in the river-bend area.

Southeast Asia command headquarters said the Japanese had broken out with intensive artillery fire in the area southeast of Mandalay.

British reconnaissance troops in force, moving along the road from Heho toward Taunggyi, 117 miles east of Meiktila, drew sustained fire from enemy 75-milimeter guns located east of Taunggyi.

To Divert British

The Japanese action was apparently an attempt to divert British attention from the lower Sittang River bend front, where, the communiqué said, there was "nothing to report."

Twenty-six Japanese were killed and many others died of injuries after jumping off a cliff during an attack on their positions less than 40 miles southeast of Meiktila on the Rangoon-Mandalay railroad.

Aircraft supported ground action and bombed enemy positions and underground shelters. B-24 Liberators for the second straight day made a 2,500-mile round-trip flight and bombed Songkhla, Thailand.

...R NATIONALIZATION ...GHT IN AUSTRALIA

...ANBERRA, Australia, July 18 (AP)—The Australian Government asked Parliament today to nationalize the Commonwealth's airways.

Under a measure introduced in the House of Representatives by Air Minister Arthur S. Drakeford the Governor General would appoint a five-man National Airlines Commission with authority to expropriate the properties of private airlines and operate a system of national routes.

The commission would have an initial appropriation of £3,000,000 to carry out the program. It would be authorized to acquire planes and other necessary equipment, but not land.

The plan was opposed by the Opposition party and by private airlines. The Parliamentary opposition said that the bill was an example of the Government's aim to extend socialism and curb private enterprise. It contended that the Government had no mandate from the people for such nationalization.

Under the Drakeford bill the Government could also extend the commission's powers to the international aviation field, but such service would not be subject to the same restrictions as those imposed on domestic services.

The commission would appoint a general manager as its chief executive officer. Private owners would be compensated for all assets taken over by the commission.

Australia to Aid Americans

Will Waive Landing Permits to Let Veterans Settle There

CANBERRA, Australia, July 18 (AP).—Arthur A. Calwell, Minister of Information, told the House of Representatives today that American service men honorably discharged may receive a passport to come to Australia without obtaining the customary landing permit.

Because of the many inquiries received from American service personnel, the Commonwealth believes a considerable number are eager to settle in Australia after the war.

'Big News' On Pacific War Expected In Australia

JUL 20 1945

Sydney, Australia, July 18 (AP)—Newspapers in Sydney today published speculative reports that "big news" relating to Japan would be forthcoming soon.

One conjecture was that Japan may be suing for peace, another that Russia may have decided to enter the Pacific war.

[Acting Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew in Washington denied last week that any genuine peace overtures had been received from Japan.]

"The end of the war may come with dramatic suddenness," commented the Sydney Sun.

"Hirohito is still the God-emperor," the editorial said. "By one stroke of a pen he could relieve Japan's terrors and make peace. There is every reason to believe that United States policy is preserving him for that part in the drama."

The Morning Herald said that nothing short of the Allies' terms would be acceptable, but added that "Japan is without military hope and might seek to escape Germany's fate."

Headquarters selected two other 96th Division soldiers for special mention. They were Pfc. Glen R. Bohnstehn, of National City, Cal., and Sergt. Hitler Escape Tales Persist

[By the Associated Press]

Adolf Hitler, variously reported dead or escaped to one place or another, was brought back in the news again today by a report that he had taken up residence on an island in the Antarctic.

Following a statement by Cesar Ameghino, Argentine Foreign Minister, that there was no truth in a published rumor that Hitler and his alleged bride had reached Argentina by the German submarine U-530 and were living in Patagonia, the French Brazzaville radio relayed a report that the pair were in the Antarctic.

The broadcast, heard last night by NBC, quoted "the South American newspaper La Critica as saying that Hitler and Eva Braun had taken refuge on Queen Maude Island, a former base for German Antarctic explorers, after being landed by the U-530, which surrendered last week to Argentine authorities.

U-Boat To Allies

The Argentine Government announced that the U-530, which surrendered July 10 at the Mar del Plata naval base, would be handed over to the United States and Great Britain.

Meanwhile, Ameghino said, Argentine officials were investigating reports that one and possibly two submarines had been sighted off San Clemente del Tuyu.

The Argentine Navy Ministry said the undersea craft could not possibly be Argentine, since they were all at their bases.

The British Admiralty has announced that four German submarines have not been accounted for.

Count de Marigny In Canadian Army

Ottawa, July 18 (A. P.).—Defense headquarters said today that Count Alfred de Marigny, husband of Nancy Oaks, enlisted last week in the Canadian Army and was stationed temporarily at a Quebec city district depot awaiting posting to a training center. Count de Marigny was acquitted in 1943 of the murder of his father-in-law, Sir Harry Oaks at Nassau, but he was ordered to leave the Bahamas. It was assumed that De Marigny had volunteered for Pacific service with the Sixth Division.

Plans For 4 Overage Destroyers Announced

Ottawa, July 18 (AP)—The Canadian press said tonight that it had learned that four of the seven overage destroyers, originally built by the United States and which Canada received from Britain, on their way to Sorel, Que., to be handed over to the War Assets Corporation for disposal.

The ships are the Hamilton, Annapolis, St. Francis and Columbia. The United States traded a total of 50 overage destroyers to Britain in exchange for defense bases.

The Providence (R.I.) Journal said last night that six overage destroyers had been sold by the Canadian Government to a Baltimore scrap firm. Officials here said they believed this transaction was one conducted by British authorities and not the Canadian Government.

CHARTER WINS O.K. BY HOOVER

Former President Urges Senate To Ratify Document

San Francisco, July 18 (AP)—Former President Herbert Hoover stated tonight that the San Francisco Charter should be ratified by the Senate.

The Charter, he said in a broadcast, "is better than Dumbarton Oaks and is probably as good as could be obtained under the existing emotions, the present governments, the conflicting ideals and ambitions in the world."

But, he declared, "there are many weaknesses in the Charter," and he urged specifically that "somewhere along the line there must be a definition by the Congress of the powers'" of the United States representative on the World Security Council.

Describes Weak Points

The former President contended: "While there need be little worry about our representative using our military forces for minor police incidents, yet the Congress should never part with its powers to declare war. . . . His authority should be defined so that the delegate is in some way responsible to Congress before our country is committed to war."

These points Mr. Hoover described as weaknesses in the Charter:

"There is no positive bill of rights for nations and men, but only a mere suggestion that they should be promoted. . . .

"The Charter does not recover the principles of the Atlantic Charter, which were whittled away at Tehran and after Yalta. . . .

"The Charter fails to define aggression even in the admirable terms settled by the Soviet Government for inclusion in its treaties of eleven years ago. . . .

Suggests Amendments

"It does not even mention the new disintegrating forms of aggression of one nation upon another through propaganda and fifth columns."

"These weaknesses," the former President commented, "point the directions in which there should be amendment over the years to come."

"The plain fact," Mr. Hoover emphasized, is that peace rests upon continued collaboration of Washington, London and Moscow, "and it will rest there for many years to come.

"The Charter will offer a forum for world opinion and advice to these responsible powers. . . . This collaboration will require much patience; it will require great firmness; it will take time and much good will to find lasting solutions after the high emotions of war, of national ambitions, of differing national purposes.

Depicts Postwar World

"In any event," he continued, "for 25 years after the victory over Japan, all the nations of the world will be absorbed in restoring their internal economy and in re-establishing their standards of li

"During this period the should be able to work out problems of lasting peace."

For a lasting peace, Mr. Ho stated, "relations between natio and men must be founded upo positively agreed political, moral and spiritual rights.

"And there will be no peace unless these rights be applied to those peoples who have been deprived of them during this war, or who have not yet attained them. . . .

Quotes From Preamble

"Furthermore, peace can come only if we differentiate between the common people of the enemy nations and their criminal leaders, so that we do not transform stern justice to war criminals into general vengeance. . . . While they (enemy nations) cannot again be trusted to bear arms, yet they must be allowed to restore their productivity in peaceful industry if they, and indeed the rest of the world, are to recover decent living and to have enduring peace."

Mr. Hoover quoted from the preamble to the San Francisco Charter—"to reaffirm faith in fundamental human rights, in the dignity and worth of the human person, in the equal rights of men and women and of nations large and small"—and he said:

"The test of the war settlements and, indeed, of the Charter itself will be whether these ideas are applied to all peoples."

Army Defends 16 Listed as Former Reds

Says Men Named by House Committee Have Proved Loyalty to This Country

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—Sixteen commissioned and non-commissioned Army officers were listed by the counsel of a House subcommittee today as having backgrounds which "reflect Communism." The War Department immediately replied that the men have proved their loyalty to America.

The names were given a House subcommittee by H. Ralph Burton, its chief counsel, in private testimony. The subcommittee released them today without comment of its own.

"I have found certain persons who hold commissions and also some enlisted personnel in the Army whose backgrounds reflect Communism in some form," Mr. Burton testified.

After the names were released the War Department issued a statement saying thorough investigations "did not lead the Army to conclude that any of the individuals was disaffected or disloyal." It added:

Army Calls Them Loyal

"The performance of these officers and soldiers of their military duties during the last three years has clearly evidenced their loyalty to this country and the principles for which this country is fighting. . . . The Army has been vigilant to see that its military personnel have no overriding allegiance to Communism, Naziism, Fascism, Japanism or any other alien doctrine and are wholly loyal to the United States. Beliefs, sympathies and affiliations held in prior years are factors which are weighed in the scales, but the real criterion always remains: Is the individual at the present time wholeheartedly loyal to the United States."

Major General William J. Donovan, director of the Office of Strategic Services, also issued a statement in which he praised the "outstanding service" of four of the officers in organizing resistance groups in enemy-occupied northern Italy. These officers served with an O. S. S. unit of the 15th Army Group.

16 Listed by Burton

The names of the sixteen individuals as listed by Mr. Burton and his references to their past affiliations:

Captain Herbert Aptheker, 940th Field Artillery Battalion, "contributor to 'New Masses.' Contributor to 'Negro Quarterly'."

Captain Henry Clovis Collins, 2116 Base Unit, Napier Field, Ala., "panel member of National Action Conference for Civil Rights, April 19-20, 1940. . . . This conference was called by the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, which, since its inception in June, 1940, has perhaps been the foremost Communist-front organization in the United States."

Captain Horace Warner Truesdell, 7th Civil Affairs Unit, "member, American League for Peace and Democracy; president, Russian Reconstruction Farms."

Lieutenant Richard C. Corps of Military Police, Affairs Unit, "as Dick Cr helped handle California Y Communist League."

Lieutenant Irving Fajans, Office of Strategic Services, Washington, "on honor roll of Young Communist League members fighting in the Spanish civil war."

Several Fought in Spain

First Lieutenant Edward W. Finkelstein, 26th Field Artillery Battalion, "chairman, Philadelphia district, International Workers Order," which Mr. Burton called "a subservient instrument of the Communist party of the United States."

Lieutenant Irving Goff, Office of Strategic Services, Washington, "speaker, Communist school, New York City," and a member of "the Abraham Lincoln Brigade in Spain." Mr. Burton testified that "evidence shows that this organization was Communist-dominated."

Lieutenant Vincent Lossow Office of Strategic Services, W ington, "fought with Abraham Lincoln Brigade in Spanish civil war."

Lieutenant Jerry Trauber, 978th Field Artillery Battery, "editorial board, 'New Pioneer' (young Communist organization)."

U.S.S. Nevada Survives Blows By Kamikaze and Shore Guns

Veteran Battleship of Pearl Harbor Fame Suffers Damage Off Okinawa but Stays in Action Anyway.

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—Veteran of two wars, the battleship Nevada absorbed damage from a flaming suicide plane and five hits from an Okinawa shore battery but stayed in the fight.

The Navy told the story of the actions which occurred as the famous old ship was operating as part of a formation assigned to obliterate enemy installations on the island.

The Kamikaze struck before daylight March 27, causing sixty casualties, including ten enlisted men and one officer killed and thirty seriously injured. Despite her damage, the Nevada was back in action within four hours.

The next week, on April 5, while still pounding away at Japanese airfields, shore defenses, supply dumps and suspected troop concentration points, a coastal battery opened fire. The Nevada, which cracked the toughest installations the Nazis could provide at Normandy, Cherbourg and southern France, slugged it out for eighteen minutes. During the engagement the enemy fired an estimated twenty-four shells, five of which registered. They killed two men, seriously injured eight, and slightly wounded eight others.

Furious Duel Ranged.

Experienced gunners of the Nevada got off seventy-one rounds from her fourteen-inch main battery alone, and when the shooting was over, the Navy said "the target area resembled a gravel quarry after a week's blasting." The Nevada's damage was repaired overnight, and the next morning she was back on the firing line.

In the Kamikaze attack, the Nevada's antiaircraft guns assisted in splashing two of the attackers before a "Val" dive bomber streaked out of the haze apparently bent on striking the open bridge. Light machine guns scored hits on the plane, but too late to stop her.

Marine gunners of the twenty-mm. battery, however, managed to "saw off" the plane's right wing, which fluttered into the sea. Its course diverted, the plane crashed into the main deck beside a main battery turret. The seven Marines who saved the ship's superstructure died at their stations, their guns barking until the second the plane struck.

First Damage Since Pearl Harbor

Fires started by the Kamikaze crash were extinguished in three minutes, but not before considerable material damage was done to the main battery turret and one 20-mm. gun. It was the Nevada's first damage since Pearl Harbor, although she was "straddled" by German shore batteries during the bombardment of Cherbourg.

At Pearl Harbor she was the only capital ship to get under way during the attack. About forty minutes after the Japanese hit she cleared her berth unassisted and started down the south channel. Heavily damaged and drawing water, she was beached to prevent blocking the channel.

After permanent repairs and modernization at the Puget Sound, Wash., Navy Yard, she returned to the fleet in time to participate in the reconquest of the Aleutians in May, 1943. She later was refitted at the Norfolk, Va., Navy Yard, and arrived in European waters in April, 1944, to support the Normandy landings. She returned to the Pacific late last year after reconditioning again at the Norfolk Navy Yard. Her first new assignment was at Iwo Jima.

Nazi Agent, Brought to U. S. as Shell-Shocked Yank Veteran, Arrested by FBI Agents in Army Hospital at Camp Upton

NEW YORK, July 18—(AP) The FBI said today it had cleared up the mystery of "Pvt. William Walker"—the self-styled New York soldier who met American officers entering Berlin and told them he had fought his way into the capital with the Russians while suffering from "temporary amnesia."

"Walker" is Karl Horst Max Wacker, 20, a trained Nazi espionage agent, the FBI said in announcing his arrest Monday at Camp Upton, N. Y., where he had been hospitalized since July 19 as a battle-shocked veteran.

E. E. Conroy, agent in charge of the New York FBI office, said Wacker admitted he was recruited into the German espionage service after being repatriated from the United States with his parents in 1944. He denied, however, Conroy said, that he used the loss of memory ruse to reenter this country to commit espionage.

Wacker, while posing as "Pvt. William Walker," told Army officers in Europe that he lost his memory after serving in the Army two years, and that he didn't remember anything except his name and that he probably lived in New York.

He also told, Conroy said, of participating in a landing, of later working as a German prisoner of war, and of being made to run a gantlet of Nazi guards armed with clubs.

Conroy said Army officers were impressed. Wacker was flown from Berlin to France, admitted to an Army hospital and placed under observation as an apparent amnesia victim. He was returned to the United States June 16, landing at Boston with other military personnel then transferred to Camp

...ris last May, Wacker told ...ad Stripes that he killed ...ermans while helping the ...ns take Berlin. He stayed ...the Tempelhof airdrome until ...7 came in with sightseeing American pilots, he was quoted as saying, and then rode—on a horse given him by the Russians—back to the American lines.

Conroy said he was being held on Ellis island pending study of the case by the U. S. attorney to determine if any criminal action exists in his actions.

NO. 1 DRAFTEE IS BACK FROM WAR

WASHINGTON, July 18—(AP) Remember that woman's scream you heard over the radio nearly five years ago when Secretary of War Stimson stuck his hand in a big fish bowl and drew out the first number in the draft?

That was on October 29, 1940. The number was 158. The woman who cried out from the audience was Mrs. Harry S. Bell of Washington. Her son, Harry Robert Bell, was No. 158.

"I only want my boy to be as good a soldier as he has been a son," she told radio listeners that day.

Today, ex-Sergeant Bell was home again. And he slept late in a wide, soft bed.

"He's earned it," said his mother. "He is going to sleep as late as he wants to and I'll see to it that nobody disturbs him."

Bell didn't wait for his induction in regular turn—even though he was at the top of the District of Columbia list. He volunteered and reported at Ft. Meade, Md., on Nov. 27, 1940. A year later, he was back home again to readjust himself to civilian life, but then came Pearl Harbor and he was back in the Army again.

Came Sicily, Salerno, Naples and Rome. Then southern France, Munich and Nurenburg.

Twice Sergeant Bell was wounded. He came home with seven battle stars, Soldier's medal, Bronze Star, the Purple Heart with Oak Leaf cluster, and 103 points.

He's going to Palm Beach, Fla., soon to see his wife and their three-year-old son, Bobby. He and Sally V. Carter were married just three weeks before he entered the Army.

1,322 Warships Added to Fleet In Five Years

Navy Boasts Record Armada of 1,500 Fighting Vessels for Knockout of Japan

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—Marking the fifth anniversary of the two-ocean fleet, the Navy revealed tonight that 1,322 fighting ships have been added to its forces in these five years.

Thus the Navy now boasts a force of around 1,500 fighting ships, the biggest navy in history, ready to support the invasion and force the Japanese enemy to its knees.

Added to the 383 combatant ships on hand on July 1, 1940, and deducting the 140 announced combatant ship losses, brings the total to 1,565 fighting ships. From this must be deducted an undisclosed number transferred to Allied nations under lend-lease.

And the job is not yet done. Building yards, Navy and private, are still at work completing the building program now grown to a "five-ocean program," and a total of 223 ships remain on building schedules.

The record five-year construction program included 331 ships built in Navy yards and 991 in private shipyards. Navy yard construction included seven battleships, five aircraft carriers, seven escort carriers, a heavy cruiser, fifty-eight destroyers, 155 destroyer escorts and ninety-eight submarines.

Private yards built three battleships, thirteen aircraft carriers of 27,100 tons, nine carriers of 10,000 tons, 105 escort carriers, two large cruisers, nine heavy cruisers, thirty-three light cruisers, 312 destroyers, 393 destroyer escorts and 112 submarines.

The bulk of the remaining program is due for completion this year and next, with a few units carrying over into 1947. It includes two battleships, three 45,000-ton aircraft carriers, nine 27,100-ton carriers, two 14,500-ton carriers, twenty-six escort carriers, a large cruiser, twenty-two heavy cruisers, nineteeen light cruisers, eighty-seven destroyers, sixteen destroyer escorts including 11 eleven converted to high-speed transports and thirty-six submarines.

Pacific Rubber Needs Cited

Washington, July 18 (AP)—The retiring director of the Government's rubber programs today urged prompt military operations to liberate Far Eastern rubber-producing areas.

Citing a prospective shortage of natural rubber next year, John L. Collyer, president of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company, said "appropriate military authorities" should be told of the necessity of gaining new sources "in the very near future.

Once this has been accomplished, Collyer said in a report to Chairman J. A. Krug of the War Production Board, this country should assist liberated territorial governments with suppiles for gathering and preparing rubber for shipment.

Vital For Future Supplies

"Hope for essential natural rubber supplies some months hence lies in the prompt liberation of certain Far Eastern rubber producing territories," Collyer said.

"Operating supplies and incentive goods, which are vital to the resumption of rubber production, are ready for movement into liberated areas as soon as military progress warrants. . . . It is feared that prewar equipment of rubber-producing areas will have been destroyed or stolen by the enemy."

Collyer told Krug that by the ...l of 1945, this country's natural ...bber stockpile will be down to ...000 tons, considerably below the ...0,000-ton minimum recommended by the Baruch committee.

Expects To Fill Needs

He nevertheless predicted that military and minimum essential civilian requirements for tires and other rubber products could be met ...ring the rest of this year and in ...6.

United States consumption of ...ber reached a peak of 433,806 tons in the first half of this year, Collyer reported, or an annual rate approaching 870,000 tons. This compares with 711,000 tons in 1944 and the peacetime peak of 650,000 tons in 1940.

25,000,000 Tires In 1945

Collyer announced a production objective of 15,000,000 passenger car tires in the last half of this year, bringing the year's total to about 25,000,000 tires. This compares with estimated essential replacement requirements of 20,000,000 tires.

Collyer, who came to Washington in March to remain only three months, will be succeeded by Robert S. Wilson, vice president of the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co.

Two Fifth Infantry Uni... Home, to He... for Pacific

NEW YORK, July 18 — (AP) Two regiments of the combat-hardened Fifth (Red Diamond) Infantry division, first unit overseas in World War II, came home from Europe today—but not for long.

Both the Second Regiment, which debarked here, and the 10th Regiment, which went up the Hudson river to Piermont, N. Y., near Camp Shanks, are slated for further service in the Pacific.

Troops of the 10th were among 3,188 officers and enlisted men aboard the ship Sea Porpoise. There were 3,712, mostly Second Regiment members, on the Gen. A. W. Greely.

Arrival of three smaller ships tonight was expected to bring the day's total of returnees to 7,816.

Members of the 10th Regiment, debarking in a downpour, sang "My Old Kentucky Home." Many are Kentuckians.

Sgt. Woodward Wenney of Birmingham, Ala., said American army communications in Germany were hampered by saboteurs four to 15 years old.

The second had a double dous-

Not only was heavy rain falling along the North river but an accidental fire alarm set off a sprinkler system which drenched the men on the pier.

Thirty-eight officers and 676 men of the Second Regiment were killed in action while the 10th lost 30 officers and 668 men. The two regiments had 5,980 wounded.

Based in Iceland and later in Ireland and England, the Fifth division as part of the Third army, spent 10 months in combat and was in contact with the enemy 277 days.

Veteran river-crossers, men of the Fifth captured Reims, took part in the battle for Metz, and saw action in the Siegfried line, at Saarlauten, in Luxembourg, Frankfurt and Czechoslovakia.

Col. Graham said the division would be reactivated at Camp Campbell, Ky., for the fight against Japan.

Japs Sink 2 U.S. Mine Sweepers Off Borneo

Washington, July 18 (AP)—The Navy announced today the loss o... two motor mine sweepers in the Borneo area as a result of enemy action.

The ships, the YMS 50 and the YMS 365, had a normal complement of about 35 each.

There were none killed or missing, the Navy said, but no information was available on the number of wounded.

No Word On Skippers

There was no casualty status reported for either of the ships' skippers.

The YMS 365 was under command of Lieut. (j.g.) Fred C. Huff, Jr., New Orleans, Louisiana.

The YMS 50 was commanded by Lieut. (j.g.) Blake G. Stern, Logan, Iowa.

Loss of the two craft raised to 324 the total naval vessels of all types lost in the war.

The YMS-365 was built at the Wheeler Shipbuilding Corporation, Whitestone, Long Island, N.Y., and commissioned August 30, 1943.

Fought Off Planes

The YMS-50 was built at the Wheeler Shipbuilding Corporation, Brooklyn, N.Y., and commissioned August 4, 1942. She was engaged in convoy escort in the Solomon Islands area in September, 1943, and in one action against enemy aircraft helped to shoot down one plane and damaged three others.

Three months later she was attacked again by enemy aircraft while in patrol in the Arawa area and shot down another Japanese plane.

Japan's Losses in War Estimated at 2,700,000

U. S. and Britain Take Toll of 1,500,000, China 1,200,000

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—American and British forces have killed or taken prisoner some 1,500,000 Japanese, official figures indicated today.

An estimated 600,000 others have been cut off or by-passed on Pacific islands. Still other thousands have perished in China.

[Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek reported recently that 1,203,067 Japanese have been either killed or captured in eight years of fighting in China.]

Army and Navy reports, based on actual counts and estimates, show that land fighting and transport sinkings in the American-British operations areas have accounted for 1,141,500 Japanese. The most recent estimate of Japanese naval losses adds 262,000 men to that figure.

By areas, the Philippines accounted for losses of an estimated 419,000; Burma at least 347,000; the Solomons and New Guinea areas 120,700; Okinawa, 117,500; Marianas, 71,000; Iwo Jima, 24,000; Gilbert-Marshall Islands, 23,000; Palau, 13,500; Borneo, 3,300 and Aleutians, 2,500.

Despite these losses, the Japanese are still estimated to have 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 men, including the cream of the army for the defense of the empire.

Charge Chenn... Retirement 'Real Blow to United States'

WASHINGTON, July 18 — (AP) Rep. Mansfield (D.-Mont.) said today that the retirement of Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault from the Army Air forces there "will be a real blow to the United States."

Mansfield went to China last winter as a personal observer for President Roosevelt. He told a reporter that there could be no doubt that Chennault with his 14th Air force had held up nearly 400,000 Japanese troops who might have been employed elsewhere.

Senator Ellender (D.-La.) has make full use of his genius," Ellender told the Senate, "it seems inhuman for the higher-ups in the Army to take steps that have caused the general to follow the course now in contemplation."

Ellender supported his arguments with editorials from the Washington Star and the Washington Post. The Star said circumstances of the case indicate Chennault was disappointed by developments subordinating his 14th Air force to Lt. Gen. Stratemeyer. The Post commented that "It is no secret that Army brass hats while recognizing Chennault as a 'genius', took no more kindly to him than they did previously to that other great air genius, 'Billy' Mitchell."

called for an investigation of the causes of Chennault's retirement to be conducted by the Senate military committee.

8 NAZI PRISONERS GET DEATH TERMS

WASHINGTON, July 18 — (AP) Eight additional German prisoners of war accused of killing fellow prisoners whom they considered anti-Nazi have been sentenced to death by courts martial, the War department disclosed tonight.

Seven German prisoners were hanged last week at Fort Leavenworth, Kas., for similar offenses.

Seven of the eight now awaiting execution were convicted last August 16 of killing Werner Drechsler on March 12, 1944, at the Papago Park prison camp at Phoenix, Ariz.

They were listed at Helmut Fischer, Fritz Franke, Guenther Kuelsen, Heinrich Ludwig, Bernhard Reyak, Otto Stengel, and Rolf Wizuy, all former members of the Germany navy.

The other prisoner of war, Sgt. Edgar Menschner, was convicted in July, 1944, and sentenced to death on a charge of killing Hans Geller at the prisoner of war camp at Camp Chaffee, Arkansas, in March, 1944.

The War department said that the prisoners were tried under provisions of the Geneva convention which make prisoners of war subject to the laws, regulations and orders of the army which is holding them prisoner.

OPPOSES SENDING SOAP TO EUROPEAN NATIONS

WASHINGTON, July 18—(AP) Rep. Springer (R-Ind) opposes what he terms a "pernicious" government plan to send 10,000,000 pounds of soap to Europe.

The article is so scarce in this country, he asserted in a House speech yesterday, that many people have been injured in soap-buying stampedes.

Exporting of soap to Europe, Springer said, would force the American housewife to "present herself with an uncleansed face, an unbathed body and clad in her dirty clothing."

"It is high time to stop this pernicious practice," Springer said.

Department of Agriculture officials said that the 10,000,000 pounds of soap sought by various government agencies for shipment to Europe represents only a small part of United States production.

Herbert Lehman, director of UNRRA, which would distribute about 75 per cent of the total, said recently the soap was needed to combat the spread of disease. Lehman suggested the rationing of soap in this country but OPA and other officials said there were no plans for such rationing.

House Passes G.I. Rights Bill Despite Protest on Procedure

WASHINGTON, July 18 — (AP) A revised G. I. bill of rights skimmed through the House by unanimous voice vote today, although several members complained about the procedure which brought the measure up without advance notice.

Its major provisions are designed to liberalize the loan and education sections of the overall veterans' benefits measure enacted last year and to overcome difficulties that have arisen in administration of the original law.

Unexpected Move

Not scheduled for consideration until after the summer recess ending in October, the legislation was called up unexpectedly by Chairman Rankin (D.-Miss.) of the Veterans committee.

Most House members already have left Washington, and Rankin threatened to block adjournment plans by insisting on the presence of a quorum unless his legislation was considered immediately.

The new measure, which requires senate approval, makes only minor changes in the hospitalization, employment, unemployment compensation, and administrative titles of the original G. I. bill of rights.

In the education and loan titles it makes these major revisions:

Education: Extends from two to four years after discharge the time in which a study course may be started; extends from seven to nine years after the war's end the time in which education of training may be given at government cost; provodies for short intensive post-graduate or vocational courses of less than 30 weeks; permits the government to finance correspondence courses; increases from $50 to $60 the monthly educational subsistence allowance of a veteran without dependents, and from $75 to $85 the allowance for a veteran with dependents.

Extend Loan Section

Loans: Extends from two to six years after discharge or the end of the war the time in which a veteran may apply for a government-financed loan; permits a qualified veteran to negotiation with any established lending agency or any agency or individual approved by the veterans administrator for a loan for the purchase of a home, farm or business in any amount; retains the existing limitation of 50 per cent of the principal, or $2,000, whichever is less, on the amount of the loan the government will guarantee; prohibits the negotiation of loans until thirty days after a veteran's discharge; provides that the loan application need be approved only by the lender, instead of by the Veterans Administration; and provides that the reasonable value of property involved in a loan shall be determined by the lender's appraisal.

The overall purpose of the revisions, Rankin said, is to overcome complaints that have grown out of administration of the original law and to facilitate the return to civilian life of discharged veterans. Its enactment now, he said, was urgent because of large numbers of service men being discharged.

ATTACK IN SENATE ON BRETTON WOODS PLAN IS REPULSED

Taft's Effort to Postpone Action on Monetary Proposals Fails.

JUL 19

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—The Senate rejected 52 to 31 today a proposal by Senator Taft (R.-Ohio) to put off action on the Bretton Woods monetary legislation until a new international conference can be held. Taft proposed that consideration of the House-approved bill be delayed until November 15 to await the calling of a world trade conference by the social and economic council of the projected United Nations organization.

Democratic Leader Barkley said, however, that nations must make their commitments to the fund and bank proposed under the bill by December 31, or the international monetary agreement will lapse. "The motion made by the Senator from Ohio is, in effect, an effort to kill the entire Bretton Woods agreement," Barkley declared.

First Test in Senate.

Taft argued that emergency conditions in Europe would be met with an American outlay of $7,000,000,000 through the Export-Import Bank and lend-lease operations. He said that the proposed fund and bank would not begin operations for several months.

Today's vote was the first test in the Senate of opposition strength to the monetary legislation. Several amendments pend.

WAR OUTPUT DOWN 30 P. C. BY DECEMBER

Munitions Production to Be Only $3,400,000,000 in Year-end Month.

WPB ISSUES ITS SCHEDULES

Deepest Cut Is in Guns and Fire Control Equipment—Tanks to Drop 60 P. C.

JUL 19 1945

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—The War Production Board gave industry a munitions worksheet today calling for the gradual tapering down of 1945 production to $3,400,000,000 in December—70 per cent of the March wartime peak.

Arms output in July still is running about 85 per cent of the March highwater mark, despite cutbacks, the WPB said. By the end of August the level will be 80 per cent.

The schedules are intended, the WPB said, as "an aid to manufacturers by outlining roughly the size of the job still to be done to achieve final victory." The deepest cut in the one-front war schedule is in guns and fire control equipment, in which December production will amount to only one-third of the March output. Tanks and other combat and motor vehicles will drop 60 per cent. The smallest cut is in ammunition, which has declined 15 per cent from March levels and will be steady the rest of the year.

Plane Output to Soar.

Heavy cuts have been made in ammunition, with some types cut in half, but rockets will be increased to two and one-half times the present production rate. Similarly, the aircraft program as a whole is declining but jet planes face a steeply rising schedule.

The post-V-E-day production for 1945 now is estimated at 4 per cent below the original estimates for one-front warfare, the WPB said. Dollar value of production for the entire year has dropped from the $60,700,000,000 scheduled in March to a July schedule of $49,900,000,000.

By major munitions classes, production will show the following trends for the rest of the year:

Aircraft: July, $1,000,000,000; December, $800,000,000.

Ships: July, $700,000,000; December, $500,000,000.

Guns and fire control: July, $200,000,000; December, $100,000,000.

Ammunition: July $600,000,000, December, $600,000,000.

Combat and motor vehicles: July, $300,000,000; December, $200,000,000.

Communications and Electronic equipment: July, $300,000,000; December, $200,000,000.

Other equipment and supplies: July, $1,000,000,000; December, $900,000,000.

Senate Told of Cutbacks.

Munitions cutbacks since V-E day are proceeding at such a rate that the annual output will be down to $40,000,000,000 by December, the Senate heard today. J. D. Small, acting chairman of the War Production Board, told the Mead committee investigating the war effort that the $60,000,000,000 annual rate of production reached in March will be reduced by one-third at the current cutback pace.

The WPB agency handling the reconversion phases has dealt with 586 cases involving cuts of more than $500,000 a month, and 1,315 dealing with contracts between $100,000 and $500,000 monthly, Small testified. Almost 2,500 plants were affected, he said.

Small said that in only forty cases was it necessary to shut off production without at least seven days' notice to the producer. In these cases, he said, inventories on hand were enough for the Pacific war and the sole reason to continue the work would have been to keep up employment. The reconversion act forbids production for this purpose only.

"The two and one-half months since V-E day have not borne out forebodings of major dislocations of industries and workers," Small asserted.

Okay Of Surplus Czar Seen, But Not Till Fall

Washington, July 18 (AP)—Congress seemed generally favorable today to President Truman's recommendation that surplus property disposal be placed under one man.

However, despite a presidential warning that surpluses are mounting rapidly, there appeared little likelihood of final action before October.

The assumption of most legislators is that the job will go to W. Stuart Symington, St. Louis business man and Mr. Truman's one appointeee to the present three-member board.

Senate Opposed Single Chief

Lieut. Col. Edward Heller, of California and former Gov. Robert A. Hurley, of Connecticut, the other members, were appointed by President Roosevelt.

Any substantial opposition the presidential proposal may run into will be in the Senate. When the surplus property law was enacted last fall, the House voted for one-man administration but the Senate insisted on control by a board of five. The three-member group was finally agreed upon as a compromise.

Johnson Changes Mind

Senator Johnson (D., Col.), one of those who fought hardest for the board idea, told reporters he had about decided that as a practical matter it would have to be one-man control.

He wanted a larger board composed of representatives of agriculture, labor and other fields to supervise the job of disposing of an estimated $100,000,000,000 worth of surplus property.

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) said he thought the difficulty in the present board's operations had been due to restrictions placed on it by the executive department.

"Co-Operation" Assailed

"What Congress wanted was for the board to be in complete charge," he commented. "As it is, it has to go to other agencies under what they call co-operation."

Senator Maybank (D., S.C.), a member of the Military Committee, which would handle the legislation, said, "Certainly, I am for one man control." His comment was typical of many others.

However, House leaders said the matter would probably be deferred in that chamber until after the recess scheduled to start this week end.

30. 24-284 95

The present board's policy-making has been marked by disagreements.. Former Senator Guy M. Gillette of Iowa resigned as chairman when he found himself unable to go along with decisions by the other members. William L. Clayton quit earlier, terming the board setup, inworkable."

HOSPITAL MEASURE FOR VETERANS HIT

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—Legislation designed to "liberalize and clarify" laws pertaining to hospitalization of veterans was denounced by an American Legion spokesman today as "vicious" and "unnecessary."

The measure, approved by the Veterans Administration, would "wipe out every hospitalization right and benefit the legion has won for the veterans over the last quarter of a century," said John Thomas Taylor, legislative director of the legion, in a statement placed before a Senate Finance sub-committee.

In urging favorable consideration, Veterans Administrator Frank T. Hines asserted it would correct "inequalities in present laws" and effect administration savings.

Taylor declared that the bill, if enacted, would "cramp disabled veterans into inadequate existing hospital facilities" instead of providing for expanded facilities.

"It can be interpreted," he said, "only as an effort to save money at the expense of disabled men and women who served in the armies of our country. It would freeze inadequate facilities by tossing thousands of veterans to the tender mercy of State asylums, public wards and charity hospitals." Also, he said that the bill would permit the Veterans' Administrator to provide care and treatment "under regulations prepared at his own whim or discretion."

Civilian Train Travel To Be Cut Further

Washington, July 18 (AP)—Civilian train travel, already more of an ordeal than fun, soon will become "more uncomfortable than ever."

This prediction came today from the Office of Defense Transportation in connection with and order giving the military services first call on almost all passenger rolling stock.

All passenger coaches, baggage and express cars, parlor and club cars, lounge and observation cars and diner and diner-combination cars went into a pool to be available on demand for use of the armed forces. The only exception is sleeping cars, already eliminated on runs of 450 miles or less.

1,000 More May Be Taken

Further curtailment of civilian sleeper-car service is expected within th enext few months, with another 1,000 cars expected to be assigned for military use. About twothirds of all Pullman sleepers already in military service and the shift of another 1,000 would leave only about 1,500 in regular operation.

The order creating the new pool will result in further curtailment of civilian passenger service, ODT said ,but it was unable to say just how much until the military demands come in.

The agency emphasized that it might be necessary at times to cancel regularly scheduled passenger trains in order to provide cars.

Hope To Keep All Trains Going

C. H. Buford, vise president of the Association of American Railroads, said, however, an effort would be made to select the equipment in a way that would avoid the necessity of discontinuing trains outright.

ODT Director J. Monroe Johnson reiterated in a radio address last night that further steps to curtail civilian travel "will be taken when and if necessary," and asserted:

"We've got to stop this traipsing around the country on pleasure trips and get down to the job of winning the war."

Coast Guardsmen Saved 4,000 In Normandy, Reinburg Clai

NEW LONDON, July 18—(
Commodore LeRoy Reinburg,
mandant of the Coast Guard at Curtis Bay, Maryland, and er of the Navy Cross from the World War, declared here

that the Coast Guard rescue flotilla operating off the Normandy beaches in 1944 saved more than 4,000 drowning American servicemen, a number which compared favorably, he said, with the total loss of life on Iwo Jima.

Reinburg, principal speaker at graduation exercises for 19 former enlisted men at the U. S. Coast Guard Academy reserve training school here, paid tribute to the courage of the Coast Guard off Normandy and reminded the new officers that all who directed that operation had been graduated from the academy.

Today's graduation brought to 3,829 the number of men to be commissioned since the inception of the reserve training program in February, 1942. Most of the 19 have participated as enlisted men in active war theaters.

Reinburg told the new officers that "duty is the most sublime word in the English language. You fail many times", he continued, "but you are not a failure until you blame someone else." He urged them to "be ever alert to lend a helping hand in worthwhile public endeavors" and to build for themselves a reputation for thoroughness.

"Good ships," he asserted, "Can be made bad ships if bad men are on them, but a bad ship can become a good ship if good men man her".

In the absence of superintendent, Rear Admiral James Pine, who is at sea on a practice cruise, Captain Louis B. Olsen, acting superintendent, told the graduates:

"As former enlisted men you now enter a change in status with new responsibilities, duties, right and privileges. A good officer gives first thought to his responsibilities and duties, leaves his rights and privileges to come later."

fire disintegrated and sank her.

The group's latest cruise also recorded the destruction of 186 Japanese warplanes.

The leading scorer of the group was Lieutenant Eugene A. Valencia, of Alameda, Calif., with twenty-three planes to his credit.

Ickes Will Ask Clarification of Cabinet Status

Last Remaining Roosevelt Original Would Be 7th to Resign Under Truman

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—Harold L. Ickes, the many titled seventy-one-year-old Cabinet dean, will be the next member of President Truman's official family to ask for clarification of his status.

This was learned definitely today, together with the fact that if a satisfactory reply is not forthcoming there is little chance that Mr. Ickes will remain as Secretary of the Interior. There is only slightly more likelihood that he will go to London on an Anglo-American oil-treaty mission.

Despite Mr. Truman's recent announcement that Mr. Ickes would make the trip to work out the final draft of a new oil agreement, the Cabinet officer is known to have made no plans yet for a London visit. It is possible, however, that he will accept the assignment in any event because he also is Petroleum Administrator for War.

Mr. Ickes, last remaining member of the late President Roosevelt's original Cabinet, would be the seventh Cabinet officer to leave under Mr. Truman if the latter accepts the resignation that has been on his desk for three months.

Should Mr. Ickes step out of the government he would shed a flock of titles in addition to his secretaryship and post as Petroleum Administrator.

He also is Solid Fuels Administrator for War, president of the Petroleum Reserves Corporation, co-ordinator of Fisheries, chairman of the Capital Auditorium Commission, chairman of the Migratory Bird Conservation Commission, chairman of the National Power Policy Committee and a member of the War Production Board, Smithsonian Institution, National Archives Council, National Forest Reservation Commission and of the National Park Trust Fund Board.

Air Group 9 Is Home, It Sent the Yamato Under

Carrier Planes Sank Japan's Super-Battleship

WASHINGTON, July 18 (AP).—Carrier Air Group 9, officially credited with administering the death blow on April 7 on the crippled pride of the Japanese fleet, the 65,000-ton super-battleship Yamato, is home for a rest.

Although the Yamato actually was the victim of a co-ordinated carrier strike and several air groups shared in her destruction, torpedoes from Avenger bombers of Air Group 9 rolled the big ship over and plunged her under.

Six torpedo bombers, led by Lieutenant Thomas H. Stetson, of Albany, scored six hits on the giant ship, and seconds later t tremendous explosion and burst of

SEAMAN'S BONUS DOUBLES EARNINGS

JUL 19 1945

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—The Labor Department reported today that war risk bonuses for seamen, accounted for approximately half of their earnings.

Reduction in these bonus rates was ordered by the Maritime War Emergency Board, effective last Sunday, on the ground that the risk has been lessened since V-E Day and the National Maritime Union (C. I. O.) has been picketing War Shipping Administration offices in protest. The War Labor Board will start hearings tomorrow in seven cases involving wage adjustments to offset loss in take-home pay as a result of the bonus cuts. Approximately 100,000 workers were involved.

Secretary Schwellenbach, in making public the result of the survey of bonuses, said that the Bureau of Labor Statistics has found that bonuses constituted 46.1 per cent of all earnings for able bodied seamen during the year and 54 per cent of all earnings of ordinary seamen.

The average number of days work for non-officer personnel ranged from 278 for oilers to 300 for messmen, and average net annual income from $1,991 for messmen to $2,300 for oilers who worked part of the time on higher paid jobs. The conclusions were ...ed on seamen employed from ... to eleven months between ...ber 1, 1943 and September 1944.

Plan 30-Day Leaves For Veteran Sailors

WASHINGTON, July 18—(AP) The Navy arranged today to grant 30-day leaves to Navy personnel it can spare who have been outside the United States two years or more.

Leaves, plus travel time, will be subject to approval of commanding officers who will have sole discretion, an announcement said. Between 8,000 and 12,000 a month may benefit.

Personnel needs of the ship or station will determine whether a furlough is given.

Instructions which have just been issued to commanding officers of ships and stations outside the continental United States, provide that the number on leave at one time should not exceed 5 per cent of the total complement, and replacements will not be furnished.

May Abolish German Immigration Quota

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—A House sub-committee will hold hearings in New York next month to consider revising—and possibly abolishing — Germany's immigration quota to this country. Representative Dickstein (D.-N. Y.), chairman of the Immigration Committee, said that the sub-committee will meet in the Federal Building in New York city on August 6, 7 and 8, and will hold hearings "on the question whether the German immigration quota should be altered, abolished, reserved for the victims of Nazi prosecution, or left unchanged."

It also will consider whether a statute of limitations should be placed on deportation cases based on technicalities, or where hardships are involved.

NO U.S. SUGAR SHIPPED TO SPAIN THIS YEAR

WASHINGTON, July 18 — (AP) Aides of Secretary of Agriculture Anderson said tonight that no American sugar has been shipped to Spain or would be shipped to that country this year.

They explained, however, that about 60,000 tons of sugar produced in British possessions in the Caribbean area have been allocated to Spain this year by the combined food board. This is an agency representing this country, the United Kingdom and Canada in coordinating Allied food programs.

This allocation was made, they said, in connection with a trade agreement with Spain under which that country diverted strategic war materials from Germany before that country's defeat.

The United States is a deficit sugar producing area, normally depending on imports for more than two thirds of its requirements. Hence, Anderson's aides said, it has none to ship to other countries.

This statement on the Spanish allocation was made in explanation, they said, of one made earlier today by Rep. Delacy (D.-Wash.) quoting the Secretary of Agriculture as saying that no more sugar will be supplied Spain.

Trading With Russia Explained in Report

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—The Department of Commerce told American business men today how contracts are arranged and payments made for goods bought in the United States by Russia.

The report, "Doing Business With Russia," was written by Ernest C. Ropes, chief of the Russian Unit, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Business men can obtain the report for 5 cents from the Superintendent of Documents here, or any field office of the Department of Commerce.

1,625 In English Town Urge Convicted Yank Be Freed

Scranton, Pa., July 18 (AP) — A move seeking release of Private Donald Hicks, of Kingston, N.Y., serving a 25-year sentence on a charge of rape, was supported by 1,625 residents of Corby, England, where the attack allegedly took place.

Edward W. Warren, Hicks's counsel, asserted in United States Circuit Court yesterday that Hicks was convicted illegally by an army court-martial in December, 1943.

The articles of war, Warren said, provide the death penalty or life imprisonment for service men convicted of rape and also state that the court-martial's verdict must be unanimous.

Army Denies That

Records, Warren added, show that the court-martial favored conviction by a three fourths vote and hence Hicks received the lesser sentence.

Assistant United States Attorney Herman F. Reich, supporting the Army, said the interpretation of the articles of war did not require unanimity by the court martial.

Federal Judge John Biggs, Jr., said he considered it extremely unusual for a whole town to come to one man's defense. The petition of the British citizens maintained that Hicks was convicted unjustly.

Hicks's Lawyer Criticized

Hicks was furnished with an appointed counsel for court martial proceedings, Reich said, adding that it was up to that counsel to raise the question of the woman's reputation. This, Reich said, was not done.

"I think it's a peculiar thing that counsel for this man being tried for his life did not ask that question," Judge Bailey said. "I can't understand it." He reserved decision.

Hicks was transferred to the Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg, Pa., after he was sentenced by the court martial.

TO REVIEW CHINA CONVICTION OF G. I.

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—Under-Secretary of War Patterson informed Representative Clare Boothe Luce (R.-Conn.) today that the case of Pvt. John V. Brennan of Hartford, Conn., sentenced to life imprisonment, will receive a clemency review.

Brennan and Pvt. James F. Cooper of Norwood, Ohio, were found guilty by a court-martial in China of killing a 72-year-old Chinese woman and originally were sentenced to be shot. The death sentences were commuted to life imprisonment by the theater commander.

In his letter, concerned only with the Hartford soldier, Patterson told Mrs. Luce that Brennan will be returned to this country for confinement "as soon as practicable."

"When he is received in this country and sufficient time has elapsed for the preparation of the necessary papers, his case will come to my office for a clemency review," Patterson said.

PROPOSE EX-PRESIDENTS AS SENATORS-AT-LARGE

WASHINGTON, July 18 — (AP) A proposed constitutional amendment which would make ex-presidents of the United States senators-at-large was introduced today by Rep. Martin (Mass.) Republican leader.

The legislation was in line with a statement issued by Martin July 8 in which he urged limitation of the tenure of presidents to two terms of four years each and said the nation might well consider placing the presidents in House or Senate when they ended their terms.

As Senators or House members, he said, they could make important contribution to government.

OSRD Head Asks Science Publicity

Washington, July 18 (AP) — Dr. Vannevar Bush said today the lid should be lifted on most wartime scientific secrets as soon as possible within the limits of military security.

The director of the Office of Scientific Research and Development, declaring that industry and educational institutions have need for the still restricted information, asserted in a report to the White House:

"Some of this information must remain secret, but most of it should be made public as soon as there is ground for belief that the enemy will not be able to turn it against us in this war."

JUL 19 1945

Board Recommended

Bush, whose office has been credited with an important share in military successes, said "most of the information needed by industry and in education can be released without disclosing its embodiments in actual military material and devices."

"Basically," he declared, "there is no reason to believe that scientists of other countries will not in time rediscover everything we now know which is held in secrecy."

He recommended that a board composed of army, navy and civilian scientists be promptly established to select that portion of the information that should be made public, to co-ordinate its release with our military allies "and definitely to encourage its publication."

MINIMUM PAY BILLS FILED IN CONGRESS

Increase To 75 Cents An Hour Is Provided

Washington, July 18 (AP)—Legislation to raise the minimum wage under the Fair Labor Standards Act from 40 to 65 cents an hour today was introduced in Congress.

The amendment also provides an increase of 5 cents an hour each year until a minimum of 75 cents is reached.

Representative Hook (D., Mich.) estimated in offering the measure that some 10,000,000 workers might be affected. He said it "would be a real step toward maintaining and creating purchasing power in the postwar period."

Identical Bills Filed

Identical bills were introduced by Representatives Huber (D., O.), O'Toole (D., N.Y.), and Price (D., Ill.). Senator Mead (D., N.Y.) introduced a similar measure at the request of Senator Pepper (D., Fla.).

A Senate Labor subcommittee headed by Pepper recommended the first of the week that any wages below 65 cents an hour be considered substandard.

Would Raise Minimum

The legislation offered today would empower industry committees to raise the minimum in a particular industry to 75 cents an hour immediately and also would authorize them to set higher minimums for key occupations.

Another change would make wage-and-hour provisions applicable to seamen, persons employed in the processing of fish and allied products and individuals employed "within the area of production."

Plea For Jewish Refuge Issued

Washington, July 18 (AP)—Senator Brewster (R., Maine) and Representative Celler (D., N.Y.) called on President Truman today to insist that Britain permit unrestricted Jewish immigration into Palestine.

In a letter to the Chief Executive the two legislators said "the time has now arrived when the British Government must fulfill its pledge made to the Jewish people concerning Palestine."

The Palestine situation, Brewster and Celler asserted, "may go out of hand unless something immediate is done. . . . The moral inertia must cease. Otherwise an explosion will soon come. The restrictions against Jewish immigration will no longer be tolerated."

Cite Weighty Backing

Four hundred members of the House and Senate have expressed support of unrestricted Jewish immigration into Palestine, the letter said, and 30 State legislatures have demanded the eventual creation of a democratic Jewish commonwealth.

"Such cumulative support," Brewster and Celler wrote Mr. Truman, "should give you confidence to act summarily and to insist upon Mr. Churchill's carrying out of his country's pledge."

OPA ALLOWS INCREASE ON COTTON CLOTHING

WASHINGTON, July 18 — (AP) The prospect of more inexpensive cotton clothing led paradoxically today to a boost in retail prices for such items.

The OPA announced that because of "the c[ost] ued expansion of the low cost [clothing] ing program" it has become nec[essary] sary to allow retailers to add a larger markup to wholesale price ceilings, effective August 17.

Explaining, the agency said, that since merchants are handling an increasingly larger proportion of low and medium-priced merchandise, many "are less able" to get along on the lower markups.

The regulation applies to all cotton garments to which manufacturers are required to affix retail ceiling tags. These include women's and girls' dresses, slips, blouses and nightgowns; men's shirts, shorts and pajamas; boys' pants, wash suits and blouses; and children's sun suits and numerous other items.

At present, retail markups average 32 per cent. Under the new program they will be 34 per cent from garments made of carded or corsair cotton yarns and 36 per cent for clothing from better quality yarn. This is a markup increase of about six and 12 per cent respectively.

This means, for example, that men's shorts which currently sell for 55 cents will retail at about 60 cents under the new ceilings. Women's gingham dresses now retailing at $2.70 will sell at $2.90.

Senators Back Rise In Lending Powers

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—The Senate Banking Committee unanimously approved today House legislation to increase the lending authority of the Export-Import Bank from $700,000,000 to $3,500,000,000.

Chairman Wagner said he expected the bill to go before the Senate, where he forecast favorable action, after it votes on the Bretton Woods monetary agreements.

Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, testified that if the Japanese war lasted a "full twelve months" Congress would be asked for additional funds for lend-lease to supplement more than $4,000,000,000 already voted. He said the original lend-lease request was predicated on the war with Japan lasting less than twelve months.

LIQUOR-MAKING TIME EXTENDED

Grain Allocated For August To Keep Alcohol Plants Open

Washington, July 18 (AP)—Distillers will be permitted to continue manufacture of beverage alcohol during August under action taken by Clinton P. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture, today in allocating grain for that purpose.

Industrial-alcohol manufacturers previously were allowed to resume making beverage alcohol during July.

Anderson allocated 2,500,000 bushels of grain other than corn, but including malt, for distillers' use during August—an amount sufficient, department officials said, to permit them to operate between 20 and 25 per cent of capacity.

Notice of the allocation was made in a letter to J. A. Krug, chairman of the War Production Board.

No Corn To Be Available

No corn—used principally in making bourbon whisky—will be available, however, for manufacture either of industrial or beverage alcohol during August or until further notice.

The restriction on the use of corn and the limitation on the use of other grains were set up, the Anderson letter said, to conserve grain for food and live-stock feed. Present prospects indicate that this year's production of feed grains may be very short.

The Secretary said the allocation of grain and malt to the distillers was made to keep them from closing. It still is possible, he said, that they may be needed for the manufacture of industrial alcohol for war purposes. Consequently, the allocation of some grain for their use during August will keep them on a stand-by basis, it was explained.

Industrial-Alcohol Decision

The War Production Board, under whose supervision industrial alcohol is produced, had informed beverage-alcohol producers that they will not be needed for the manufacture of industrial alcohol during August.

Anderson said a decision will be made later whether additional grain will be allocated for beverage alcohol after August.

"In view of the tight grain situation in prospect, we have been reluctant," Anderson wrote, "to authorize the use of any grain for the production of beverage alcohol and have agreed to do so primarily because it might otherwise be difficult, if not impossible, to maintain sufficient distillery capacity — in stand-by condition—to meet potential requirements of the industrial alcohol program."

Friends Say Austin Would Like Court

Washington, July 18 (AP)—Friends of Senator Warren R. Austin, Vermont Republican, expressed confidence today that he would accept a Supreme Court appointment if it were tendered by President Truman.

Austin himself would not comment on the boom among his colleagues for his appointment to fill the vacancy left by the retirement of Justice Owen J. Roberts. His friends said, however, that the law has been his life since he first began reading it as a young man in his father's law office.

Hatch Backs Him

The boom for Austin received a big boost yesterday when Senator Hatch (D., N.M.) came out for him after previously indorsing Judge Sam G. Bratton, of the Tenth Circuit Court.

Hatch said it was his "considered opinion" that the appointment of a Republican "would be wise" and that Bratton agreed. Roberts's departure leaves Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone as the lone Republican on the bench.

Now 67, Austin has been in the Senate since 1931 and has been a vigorous advocate of international co-operation.

OPA Suspends Price Control Of Airplanes

Washington, July 18 (AP)—The OPA today suspended, effective immediately, price control of airplanes and most aircraft parts.

In suspending, rather than terminating, price control, the agency said controls would be re-established "if prices increase in an inflationary manner."

Administrator Chester Bowles said the action was in line with OPA's policy of suspending or ending price control over commodities as soon as inflationary dangers are over.

[SN]YDER IS CONFIRMED FOR VINSON'S OLD JOB

[SN]HINGTON, July 18—(AP) John W. Snyder, St. Louis banker, was confirmed by the Senate today as director of War mobilization and reconversion. He succeeds Fred M. Vinson who became Secretary of the Treasury.

Snyder has been serving as Federal Loan Administrator. Confirmation was given by a voice vote without debate.

Altmeyer Nomination Confirmed

Washington, July 18 (AP)—The Senate confirmed without dissent today the nomination of Arthur J. Altmeyer, of Wisconsin, to a new term on the Social Security Board. He has been chairman.

House Votes To Quit Saturday

Washington, July 18 (A. P.).—The House agreed today to adjourn for eleven weeks starting next Saturday. It adopted by voice vote a resolution calling for adjournment until October 8. While the resolution requires Senate approval, that was a foregone conclusion, in view of agreements between leaders. The Senate will remain in session until it has voted in the United Nations charter. The adjournment resolution provides that Congress may be recalled into session on three days' notice at the request of either the Democratic or the Republictn leaders of both the Senate and the House.

AMERICAN WAY BETTER, FRANKLIN CAPTAIN SAYS

JUL 19 1945

SAN DIEGO, Calif., July 18 — (AP) Capt. Leslie E. Gehres, 47, former commander of the Aircraft Carrier Franklin, today said the "American way" of dropping bombs and firing aerial torpedoes is far more efficient than Japanese suicide plane tactics.

In an interview on taking command of the San Diego Naval Air Station, Gehres pointed out that at the start of the war, Japan had more carriers and air groups than the U. S. Navy.

"Now they have virtually no fleet left, thanks to our naval aviation," he said.

"Properly placed bombs will do more damage than the most desperate Kamikaze suicide attacks, and the Franklin itself offered proof of that. Last October, a Kamikaze plane hit the Franklin in the Philippines, and caused one-tenth the damage suffered when a Jap plane surprised us with two 500-pound bombs dropped from 50 feet altitude near Japan's inland sea last March 19. x x x"

The Franklin suffered 834 killed and missing of its total complement of 3,343.

Zipper Ship Named

SOUTH PORTLAND, Me., July 18 (AP).—The Zipper ship Samuel R. Aitken, named for a former vice-president of the Moore-MacCormack Steamship Company, was sponsored today in a construction basin at the New England Shipbuilding Corporation yard. Mr. Aitken's widow, Mrs. Margaret E. Aitken, of 59 West Twelfth Street, New York, named the vessel, third of twelve modified Liberty-type steamers used for transportation of airplanes to be built at New England shipyards.

Pa. Has Miner Shortage

JUL 19 1943

Harrisburg, Pa., July 18 (AP)—A critical shortage of miners in Pennsylvania's coal fields is going to mean colder homes next winter, Richard Maize, states mines secretary disclosed today.

"Unless we can get former miners who are working in nonessential industries or returning soldiers back to mine pits," Maize said, "we are going to have the worst winter of the war as far as coal is concerned."

Householders, he said, should prepare now to get along on 80 per cent of the fuel they burned last year by shutting off extra rooms, insulating their homes or by planning to use substitute fuel such as wood.

"Make Every Pound Count"

"The man who heats his home with coal," Maize asserted, "must get every heat unit out of every pound of coal he puts into his furnace. I don't see much chance of catching up on production."

Pennsylvania coal, Maize said, not only heats homes and operates industries in this State but also those in New England, New York, New Jersey and parts of Maryland and Canada.

WORKERS WEAK, GROGGY DUE TO LACK OF MEAT

SEATTLE, July 18—(AP) Shipyard workers here are "stumbling, weak and groggy" on their jobs for lack of meat in their diet and the sick list and accident rate have increased heavily the past three months, Charles Berger, sick steward of Local 104 of the AFL-Boilermakers said today.

The sick list was about 300 in April, but now is over 400.

"Besides that," Berger told reporters, "the accident rate is up 30 per cent, the safety department tells me."

Berger and Joe Clancy, Union secretary, said the local's members have been bombarding the state's congressional delegation for three weeks with requests for additional red points for shipyard workers.

"Men just can't do that heavy work without good food," Clancy added.

Former WAC Leader Ill

New York, July 18 (AP)—Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby, former commanding officer of the Women's Army Corps who recently retired to private life, is ill at Doctors' Hospital, the institution said tonight.

Los Angeles Ready For Service

Philadelphia, July 18 (AP)—The heavy cruiser Los Angeles will join the United States' rapidly growing armada of fighting ships Sunday.

The 13,000-ton vessel, financed by war-bond purchases in the California city, will be commissioned at the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

Mrs. Fletcher Bowron, wife of the Mayor of Los Angeles, christened the ship. The cruiser carries a main battery of 8-inch guns and powerful secondary and anti-aircraft armament.

India Factories Keep Convoys Going To China

New York, July 18 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Stewart E. Reimel, chief of the New York ordnance district, said today that the army service forces had developed tire and automotive production facilities in India which he credited with keeping truck convoys rolling over the Stilwell road.

Reimel said the Army in a special arrangement with General Motors Corporation had built a truck-repair and assembly plant at Calcutta, where 2,000 unskilled natives were turned into effective mechanics.

The Calcutta plant, Reimel said, in one year of operation had reconditioned more than 160,000 automotive assemblies and made more than 200,000 hard-to-get parts.

In another instance, he said, the Army set up a tire-repair shop at the foot of the Himalayas in Assam, where 10,000 rebuilt truck tires are produced monthly.

Communist Convention Will Be Closed To Public

New York, July 18 (AP)—The Communist Political Association said today that its special national convention, to be held here July 26-28 to decide on a new "political line," would be closed to the public and press.

A publicity committee will issue statements after each session, a CPA spokesman said.

The last national gathering of Communists, at which the Communist party of the United States was dissolved and the CPA created in its stead, was in May, 1944. It was open to the press.

The national committee called the convention "in order that the membership shall be able to express itself conclusively and finally on the political line and immediate tasks confronting the CPA; review the present work and responsibility of the national board and national committee; and refresh and strengthen the national leadership of the CPA."

Marlene Dietrich Back From Long Trip

New York, July 18 (AP)—Marlene Dietrich, recently returned from an eleven-month USO tour of Germany, France, Belgium, Luxembourg and Iceland, said today: "When I walked out on the stage and said 'hello boys,' the GI's practically brought the house down. I don't know why."

Wearing an Army nurse's uniform, brown brogues and carrying a shoulder bag, Miss Dietrich said at a press conference she had been ordered back to the United States by her doctor because of an infected jawbone. "One thing is sure . . . that is, I'm going back," she added.

WITH BIG THREE (1ST)
BY RICHARD KASISCHKE

LONDON, JULY 18-(AP)-THE MAP OF EUROPE--ALREADY EXTENSIVELY RE-DRAFTED BY RUSSIAN EXPANSION WESTWARD FROM THE BALTIC TO THE BLACK SEA--IS EXPECTED BY WELL-INFORMED DIPLOMATIC SOURCES HERE TO BE FURTHER REDRAWN AT POTSDAM WITH THE AMPUTATION OF A HUGE SLICE OF EASTERN GERMANY TO SATISFY POLAND'S DEMANDS.

THE WARSAW REGIME, WITH BACKING FROM MOSCOW, HAS DEMANDED THE EXTENSION OF POLAND'S WESTERN BOUNDARY TO THE ODER AND NEISSE RIVERS AND TO A POINT WITHIN 60 MILES OF BERLIN IN COMPENSATION FOR TERRITORIES YIELDED TO RUSSIA EAST OF THEICURZON LINE. THE BIG THREE DECIDED AT TEHRAN THAT POLAND SHOULD BE GIVEN AMPLE CONSIDERATION FOR YIELDING TERRITORIES TO RUSSIA IN THE EAST.

EJ833PEW

BIG THREE INTERPRETIVE
BY DANIEL DE LUCE

BERLIN, JULY 18-(AP)-THERE ARE STRONG INDICATIONS THAT THE MAP OF BLOOD-STAINED ASIA IS DOMINATING THE POTSDAM CONFERENCE TONIGHT AND THAT MEASURES TO KNOCK OUT JAPAN HAVE PRIORITY NUMBER ONE IN THE DISCUSSIONS AMONG PRESIDENT TRUMAN AND HIS BRITISH AND RUSSIAN ALLIES.

VICTORY IN THE PACIFIC, AS SWIFTLY AND AS CHEAPLY AS COURAGE AND SKILL CAN ACHIEVE IT, IS PARAMOUNT TO ALL OTHER AIMS OF THE UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT NOW.

THIS, IT CAN BE SAID WITH ASSURANCE, IS MORE VITAL TO THE UNITED STATES THAN ANY CURRENT EUROPEAN ISSUE IS TO THE SOVIET UNION OR GREAT BRITAIN.

MAKE-SHIFT FORMULAS CAN KEEP EUROPE RUNNING, FOR BETTER OR FOR WORSE. BUT THE ASIATIC WAR ADMITS OF NO SUBSTITUTES FOR THE BEST POSSIBLE PLAN TO DEFEAT THE JAPANESE EMPIRE QUICKLY, OR THE PRICE WILL BE STEPPED UP IN TERMS OF AMERICAN LIVES AND TREASURE.

WHAT MR.TRUMAN'S HIGH MILITARY ADVISERS, WHO CONTROL THE WORLD'S LARGEST FLEET AND AIR FORCE AND ONE OF THE FINEST ARMIES, HAVE PROPOSED FOR CONSIDERATION AT POTSDAM IS THE KEY SECRET OF THE ENTIRE CONFERENCE.

BUT THERE IS GOOD REASON TO BELIEVE THAT THE PROPOSALS WILL BE DELIVERED AND DIRECT ANSWERS REQUESTED.

AMERICAN OFFICIALS, WHETHER IN MOSCOW OR WASHINGTON, HAVE FOR A LONG TIME DISCOURAGED SPECULATION AND RUMORS AS TO WHAT ROLE THE SOVIET UNION MIGHT ULTIMATELY TAKE AGAINST A POWER WHICH STALIN PUBLICLY SINGLED OUT LAST WINTER AS "AGGRESSIVE" AND A FASCIST PARTNER OF HITLERITE GERMANY.

THE U.S.GOVERNMENT IS DEFINITELY REFRAINING FROM STIRRING PROPAGANDA FOR A SOVIET "SECOND FRONT." BUT THAT THE SOVIET UNION, WHICH PROBABLY WOULD NOT YET BE ENJOYING A VICTORIOUS PEACE IN EUROPE WITHOUT AMERICA'S WAR EFFORT, COULD MATERIALLY ASSIST THE U.S.TO ENJOY THE SAME THING IN THE FAR EAST SEEMS UNDENIABLE.

AMONG AMERICANS IN MOSCOW THE VIEW HAS BEEN HELD BY A MAJORITY THAT THE SOVIET UNION WILL, AT THE MOMENT ITS LEADERS CHOOSE, LAUNCH A SMASHING BLOW AGAINST ITS TRADITIONAL ASIATIC ENEMY.

JUL 19 1943

A183

THE JAPANESE WAR FALLS INTO THREE MAIN DIVISIONS:

THE SEA WAR AGAINST IMPERIAL COMMUNICATIONS, WHICH THE AMERICAN AND BRITISH NAVIES HAVE ALREADY LARGELY DECIDED.

THE WAR AGAINST THE HOME ISLANDS, FOR WHICH AMERICAN AND BRITISH PLANES AND BATTLESHIPS ARE CARRYING ON THE PREPARATORY PHASE.

THE MOP-UP OF JAPANESE STRONGHOLDS ON THE ASIATIC MAINLAND, THE NERVE CENTER ING MANCHURIA, HALF FRINGED BY THE FRONTIER WITH THE SOVIET UNION.

MANCHURIA IS, IN SOME RESPECTS, THE POLAND OF ASIA AND OF VITAL IMPORTANCE IN SOVIET POLICY.

PREMIER STALIN'S TALKS LAST WEEK IN MOSCOW WITH THE CHINESE PREMIER, T.V.SOONG, ARE BELIEVED HERE TO HAVE DWELT NOT ONLY ON THE POSSIBILITY OF A FURTHER RECONCILIATION OF THE YENAN COMMUNISTS WITH THE CHUNGKING GOVERNMENT, BUT ON A CHINESE-RUSSIAN UNDERSTANDING ABOUT MANCHURIA TO BE PUT INTO EFFECT WHENEVER THE JAPANESE GRIP IS BROKEN.

THESE ARE THE THINGS KNOWN TO FRIEND AND FOE ALIKE IN THE FAR EAST:

THE SOVIET FAR EAST ARMY HAS BEEN STRENGTHENED CONTINUALLY SINCE LAST AUTUMN AND THE PROCESS IS BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN MUCH SPEEDED UP AFTER GERMANY'S COLLAPSE.

COLLABORATION BETWEEN THE NAVIES AND AIR SERVICES OF RUSSIA AND THE UNITED STATES IS BEING FOSTERED NOW BY THE SAME OFFICERS OF THE TWO COUNTRIES WHO DEVELOPED AMERICAN BOMBER BASES AROUND POLTAVA IN THE UKRAINE AND REHABILITATED UNITS OF THE RED BANNER FLEET AT KRONSTADT LAST YEAR.

THE ALASKA-SIBERIA FERRY ROUTE FOR THOUSANDS OF AMERICAN-MADE AIRCRAFT SENT TO FIGHT WITH THE RED STAR INSIGNIA ON THE EASTERN FRONT IS LIKELY TO HAVE FURTHER VALUABLE MILITARY USE.

JUL 19 1945

A184

WHAT DOES IT ADD UP TO?

A FUTURE FULL-FLEDGED CLASH OF ARMS ON THE MANCHURIAN PLAINS WITH RED ARMY MEN CRYING EXULTANTLY "ON TO PORT ARTHUR?"

A LIMITED HOLDING ACTION BY RED FORCES BUT WITH VLADIVOSTOK, KHABAROVSK OR--NAME YOUR SPOT--BASING MORE AMERICAN BOMBERS THAN EVER LANDED IN THE UKRAINE?

THERE ARE A NUMBER OF OTHER POSSIBILITIES AND NONE OF THEM IS SOOTHING TO JAPANESE FEARS.

SOVIET PRIDE AND SENSITIVENESS ARE SUCH THAT IT IS UNNECESSARY TO EMPHASIZE THAT RUSSIA'S NON-BELLIGERENCY IN THE FAR EAST IS PERHAPS A CONTRAST TO THE PAST RUSH OF SMALL POWERS OF THE UNITED NATIONS AND NOW EVEN ITALY TO DECLARE A STATE OF HOSTILITIES WITH JAPAN.

AS WITH MOST PEOPLE, THE RUSSIANS LIKE TO FEEL THAT THEY ARE MAKING UP THEIR OWN MINDS AND NOT DANCING TO TUNES CALLED BY OTHERS.

BUT THEY HAVE THEIR OWN SCORE TO SETTLE WITH THE MIKADO'S FANATICAL LITTLE MEN--A SCORE IN WHICH FIGURE THE JAPANESE VICTORY OF 1904-05, THE JAPANESE SIBERIAN INTERVENTION OF 1919 AND THE JAPANESE PROVOCATION IN MONGOLIA IN 1939.

THE OTHER DAY THE SOVIET INFORMATION SERVICE IN BERLIN SUPPLIED ALLIED CORRESPONDENTS WITH A BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF MARSHAL GEORGI K.ZHUKOV. PROMINENTLY NEAR THE TOP OF THE PAGE WAS THE STATEMENT THAT "IN 1939 HE DIRECTED THE CAMPAIGN ON THE RIVER KALKHIN-GOL IN MONGOLIA, WHERE HE SURROUNDED AND DESTROYED THE JAPANESE SIXTH ARMY."

IN HIS TALKS WITH HIS SOVIET ALLIES, MR.TRUMAN UNDOUBTEDLY IS LEARNING FOR HIMSELF THAT THE RUSSIANS HAVE LONG MEMORIES AND LONG RANGE PLANS TO OFFER FOR WAR-RIDDEN ASIA.

A191KX AERIAL
NIGHT LEAD BRITISH U.S.AIR (490)
BY HAMILTON W.FARON

GUAM,THURSDAY,JULY 19 (AP)-JAPAN MAY SOON FEEL THE CRUSHING POWER OF AMERICAN-BRITISH HEAVY BOMBING TEAMWORK WHICH FIGURED SO LARGELY IN BRINGING GERMANY TO ITS KNEES.

EVEN WHILE BRITISH NAVAL CARRIER PLANES STRUCK BESIDE U.S. THIRD FLEET FLIERS IN POUNDING THE TOKYO AREA THIS WEEK, AIR OFFICIALS OF THE TWO NATIONS STUDIED THE PROSPECTIVE TIE-UP OF BIG BRITISH BOMBERS WITH AMERICAN SUPERFORTS IN STRIKES AT NIPPON.

THE COMPLETION OF CONFERENCES BETWEEN LT.GEN.BARNEY M.GILES, DEPUTY COMMANDER OF THE U.S.ARMY STRATEGIC AIR FORCES (USASTAF), AND BRITISH AIR MARSHAL SIR HUGH LLOYD WAS ANNOUNCED YESTERDAY.

THEIR MEETINGS PERFORMED SPADEWORK FOR "THE POSSIBLE ASSIGNMENT OF A BRITISH HEAVY BOMBING FORCE TO WORK UNDER USASTAF," SAID THE ANNOUNCEMENT FROM GILES' OFFICE.

AMONG THE STAFF OFFICERS ACCOMPANYING LLOYD TO THE CONFERENCE WAS CAPT.J.G.GORDON-FINLAYSON, WHO HAS BEEN ASSIGNED AS BRITISH LIAISON OFFICER WITH USASTAF.

SHOULD THE BRITISH PUT A FORCE OF BOMBERS, SUCH AS THE GIANT LANCASTERS THAT HAMMERED GERMANY, INTO THE PACIFIC WAR, IT WOULD MAKE A TOTAL OF AT LEAST 10 ALLIED TACTICAL AND STRATEGIC AIR GROUPS ALREADY BLASTING THE JAPANESE HOMELAND, OR PREPARING TO DO SO.

MOST POWERFUL OF THE BOMBING FLEETS TO DATE IS THE U.S.20TH AIR FORCE SUPERFORT STRENGTH BASED IN THE MARIANAS. IT ALREADY HAS DESTROYED OR DAMAGED MORE THAN 150 SQUARE MILES OF JAPANESE CITIES' PRODUCTION AREAS.

SCHEDULED TO BEGIN OPERATIONS FROM OKINAWA IN MID-AUGUST IS THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE, LT.GEN.JAMES DOOLITTLE'S VETERAN SQUADRONS FROM EUROPE TO HIT JAPAN WITH SUPERFORTRESSES AND POSSIBLY FLYING FORTRESSES.

OTHERS OPERATING AGAINST JAPAN ITSELF, AND TO KOREA AND THE CHINA COAST, INCLUDE THE ARMY'S FIFTH AND SEVENTH AIR FORCES OF THE FAR EAST AIR FORCES, AND THE NAVY'S FLEET AIR WINGS ONE AND 18 AND THE SECOND AND FOURTH MARINE AIRCRAFT WINGS, ALL WITH BASES ON OKINAWA OR NEARBY ISLANDS OF THE RYUKYUS. THE ARMY SEVENTH FIGHTER COMMAND STRIKES JAPAN FROM IWO JIMA, MIDWAY BETWEEN THE MARIANAS AND NIPPON.

IN ADDITION, FOUR OTHER AMERICAN AIR GROUPS ARE BLASTING OUTLYING JAPANESE ISLANDS OR POUNDING THE ENEMY'S STOLEN TERRITORIES. THESE INCLUDE THE 13TH AIR FORCE AND AIR UNITS OF THE SEVENTH FLEET, IN THE PHILIPPINES AND SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, AND THE 11TH AIR FORCE BASED IN THE ALEUTIANS AND SQUADRONS OF THE NORTH PACIFIC FLEET AIR WING.

STRIKES BY RYUKYU-BASED ARMY AND NAVY PLANES, REPORTED FROM VARIOUS SOURCES YESTERDAY, SANK OR DAMAGED AT LEAST 36 SMALL JAPANESE CRAFT IN WATERS AROUND KYUSHU, SOUTHERNMOST JAPANESE MAIN ISLAND, AND KOREA.

JUL 19 1945

OTHER PLANES HITTING KYUSHU ITSELF AND SMALL ISLANDS BETWEEN OKINAWA AND JAPAN DOWNED AN ENEMY PLANE AND DAMAGED RAILROAD AND AIR FIELD INSTALLATIONS.

GUAM, JULY 18-(AP)-WHEN BRITISH MEN OF WAR JOINED THE THIRD FLEET BATTLESHIPS AND CRUISERS IN SHELLING HITACHI, 80 MILES NORTH-EAST OF TOKYO, IT WAS THE FIRST TIME BRITISH AND UNITED STATES NAVIES JOINED IN AN ACTUAL JOINT NAVAL OPERATION AGAINST THE JAPANESE HOMELAND.

AND WHAT'S BEEN DONE ONCE CAN BE DONE AGAIN.

THE FIRE POWER OF BRITISH AND U.S. BATTLESHIPS WILL BE COMBINED AGAIN IN WHAT FLEET ADM. CHESTER W. NIMITZ CALLED "THE NEW PHASE" OF THE PACIFIC WAR INTENDED TO EMPLOY ALLIED SEAPOWER TO DESTROY THE WILL OF THE JAPANESE PEOPLE TO CARRY ON THE WAR.

WITH THE DISCLOSURE THAT THE KING GEORGE V AND ESCORT SHIPS MOVED IN CLOSE TO NORTHERN HONSHU TO BATTER THE INDUSTRIAL CITY OF HITACHI WITH HER 14-INCH GUNS CAME THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT PLANS ARE UNDER WAY TO BRING BRITISH HEAVY BOMBERS INTO THE PACIFIC TO HELP BLAST JAPAN INTO SUBMISSION.

THE FIRST OPERATION OF BRITISH SHIPS AS AN INTEGRAL PART OF THE AMERICAN FLEET CAME IN THE 55 MINUTES LASHING OF COPPER, ELECTRICAL AND DIESEL PLANTS NOT FAR NORTHEAST OF TOKYO.

BRITISH SHIPS HAVE PARTICIPATED BEFORE IN ACTION AGAINST THE JAPANESE IN THE WEST PACIFIC -- SUCCESSFULLY -- BUT HERETOFORE THEY DID SO AS A SEPARATE TASK FORCE SUCH AS WHEN NEUTRALIZING THE SAKISHIMA ISLAND AIRFIELDS, WEST OF FORMOSA, DURING THE OKINAWA OPERATIONS.

EVEN WHEN BRITISH CARRIER PLANES JOINED THE PLANES OF TASK FORCE 38 IN ASSAULTING THE TOKYO AREA YESTERDAY, THE OPERATION WAS "COORDINATED" RATHER THAN "INTEGRATED."

THE ALLIED CARRIER FORCES ATTACKING THE SAME GENERAL OBJECTIVE MANEUVERED IN SEPARATE GROUP DISPOSITIONS.

ACTUAL COMBINED OPERATIONS CAN BE UNDERTAKEN ONLY IN SHELLING SHORE OBJECTIVES SUCH AS HITACHI BECAUSE OF DIFFERENCES IN RANGE AND LOGISTICS BETWEEN THE TWO FLEETS.

THE BRITISH LOGISTICS SYSTEM OPERATES INDEPENDENTLY OF THE U.S. FLEET WITH BOTH HAVING THEIR OWN FLEET TRAINS.

BRITISH SHIPS WERE DESIGNED AND BUILT WITH SHORTER FUEL RANGE THAN AMERICAN SHIPS SPECIFICALLY INTENDED FOR LONG-RANGE PACIFIC OPERATIONS. THEREFORE BRITISH PACIFIC FLEET UNITS MUST BE REFUELD AND REARMED MORE FREQUENTLY THAN THE THIRD FLEET SHIPS. BUT EVEN WITH INDEPENDENT AND SEPARATE REFUELING AND REARMING, AN OPERATION CAN BE COORDINATED SO THAT THE FULL WEIGHT OF THE COMBINED BRITISH AND

UNITED STATES MIGHT CAN BE THROWN AGAINST ANY SELECTED JAPANESE OBJECTIVE ANY TIME.

A137KX

THE COMMANDER OF THE BRITISH FORCE, VICE ADMIRAL SIR BERNARD RAWLINGS IS RECOGNIZED AS THE LEADING BRITISH NAVAL OFFICER IN PACIFIC EXPERIENCE. HE IS ALSO A DETERMINED ENEMY OF THE JAPANESE WITH WHOM HE IS WELL ACQUAINTED BY VIRTUE OF HIS ASSIGNMENT AS NAVAT ATTACHE TO TOKYO IN 1936-1938.

WHILE BRITISH SHIPS WERE COMBINED WITH AMERICAN FORCES OFF HONSHU, IT WAS ANNOUNCED THAT RAWLINGS, LT. GEN. BARNEY GILES AND AIR MARSHAL SIR HUGH LLOYD HAD CONFERRED CONCERNING THE "POSSIBLE ASSIGNMENT" OF A BRITISH HEAVY BOMBER FORCE TO THE U.S. ARMY STRATEGIC AIR FORCES.

PRESUMABLY THE BRITISH WING, IF ACTIVATED, WILL BE MADE UP OF THE FAMOUS LANCASTERS WHICH PLAYED AN IMPORTANT ROLE IN THE BOMBING OF THE EUROPEAN CONTINENT.

THE AREA WORKED OVER BY THE NIVE TO 16-INCH GUNS OF THE FLEET RANGED FROM MITO AND TAKAHAGI, 55 MILES NORTH OF TOKYO, TO THE MUNITIONSCITIES OF HITACHI AND SUKEGAWA, 80 MILES NORTHEAST OF THE CAPITAL.

AS THE NLASHES OF THE GUNS RIPPED THE CURTAIN OF NIGHT, A DULL GLOW FROM SHORE LIT THE MISTS, SHOWING OBSERVERS WHERE THE CASCADE OF EXPLODING STEEL HAD LANDED, LINDSLEY SAID.

"IT LOOKS LIKE THE FOURTH OF JULY IN HELL," DECLARED A NAVAL OFFICER AS THE FLEET STEAMED LEISURELY ALONG OFF SHORE, DUMPING 2,000 TONS OF SHELLS.

IN MOVING SO CLOSE INLAND, THE FLEETS RISKED MINES, SUBMARINES, BOMBERS, SUICIDE PLANES, SHORE BATTERIES, SUICIDE BOATS, THE ONE-MAN PILOTED BAKA BOMBS AND ALL THE OTHER DESPERATE WEAPONS OF THE JAPANESE ARSENAL WHICH INFLICTED CONSIDERABLE DAMAGE AT OKINAWA.

A130KX

BUT IN ALL THAT TIME, NOT A SINGLE RETALIATORY SHOT WAS FIRED. UNIDENTIFIED PLANES WERE REPORTED HOVERING OFF THE FLEET, BUT NONE DARED THE AWESOME FIREPOWER OF THE LINE OF SHIPS.

BY TOKYO ACCOUNT, 16 ALLIED WARSHIPS TURNED UP AGAIN TODAY IN THE SAME GENERAL AREA AND PLASTERED THE COAST OF HONSHU ISLAND FOR AN HOUR BEGINNNG AT 11:15 A.M. TOKYO TIME, SOME 11 HOURS AFTER THE NIGHT TIME STRIKE.

A FEW MINUTES EARLIER, SAID THE BROADCAST, 1,500 BRITISH AND AMERICAN CARRIER PLANES STRUCK AIR FIELDS AND MILITARY INSTALLATIONS AROUND TOKYO WHICH WERE RAIDED BY THE SAME NUMBER OF PLANES TUESDAY.

THIS IS THE SORT OF PULVERIZING ATTACK WHICH ADM.CHESTER W. NIMITZ SAID TUESDAY MARKED THE "PRE-INVASION STAGE" OF THE WAR IN THE PACIFIC.

IT CALLS FOR THE FIRST TIME IN THIS WAR FOR THE DESTRUCTION OF ENEMY WAR INDUSTRIES BY THE BIGGEST GUNS IN THE NAVY--THE 16 INCHERS WHICH ARE DESIGNED TO BLAST THROUGH ARMOR PLATE AND CANNOT BE STOPPED BY FACTORY WALLS.

BOTH IN THE WAR IN EUROPE AND IN TH PACIFIC, THE 2,700-POUND SHELLS HAVE WORKED OVER SHORE FORTIFICATIONS BUT THIS IS THE NAVY'S FIRST CHANCE TO TURN THEM ON VULNERABLE FACTORIES.

THE JAPANESE SAID THE NAVAL SHELLING INDICATED THAT "THE LONG-ANTICIPATED BATTLE OF THE MAINLAND HAS FINALLY STARTED."

AN ENEMY MILITARY COMMENTATOR SAW THE SHELLING AS DESIGNED TO TEST JAPAN'S DEFENSES AND SAID THEY "DO NOT IMMEDIATELY PRESAGE" AN INVASION.

A JAPANESE ACCOUNT OF THE ACTUAL SHELLINGS SAID CIVILIANS WERE SO TERRIFIED THAT MANY REFUSED TO COME OUT OF THEIR SHELTERS "LONG AFTER THE ENEMY WARSHIPS HAD RETIRED."

THE DOMEI AGENCY, ADMITTING THE ALLIED FLEETS NOW COULD STRIKE AT "ANY CHOSEN TIME AND PLACE," ASSERTED THAT THE JAPANESE MUST CONSERVE THEIR DEFENSIVE RESOURCES "UNTIL THE TIME IS RIPE."

600 Superforts Blast Jap Cities, Big Oil Refinery in Record Raid; Nip Chiefs Fear 'Quick' Invasion

BIG PLANES FIRE WAR CENTERS ON HONSHU ISLAND

Choshi, Okazaki, Hitachi and Fukui Pounded in Pre-Dawn Attack.

ONE B-29 MISSING

Raids Bring to 46 Number of Industrial Areas Hit with Incendiaries.

Guam, Friday, July 20 (AP)—A record force of more than 600 American Superfortresses struck four Japanese mainland cities and a prime oil refinery before dawn today with 4,000 tons of incendiary and demolition bombs.

It was the fifty-seventh fire raid on Nippon's war industry centers. The attacks on the four Honshu Island cities of Choshi, Fukui, Okazaki and Hitachi brought to 46 the number of Japan's industrial centers hit by fire raids.

Oil Plant Fifth Target

A branch of the Nippon oil company at Amagasaki, just north of Osaka, was the fifth target. It was the tenth oil plant singled out for precision bombing by the B-29's.

Once before more than 600 B-29's flew in a mission against Japan but the force in today's five-pronged raid was even larger. The 20th Air Force gives sizes of missions only in general terms and exact figures could not be used.

The record raid in the flaming campaign to wipe out all Japan's war-making industries came while the United States 3d Fleet still roamed Japanese waters after raiding and bombarding Tokyo area targets Wednesday and early Thursday.

Follows Hitachi Shelling

Hitachi, blazing for the first time from B-29 incendiaries, was bombarded by warships of the fleet Tuesday night and early Wednesday.

The attacks on the other cities and on the oil refinery also were the first by the B-29's.

As they split up to strike the targets, with the smallest force assigned to the oil refinery, the Superfortresses ranged over a wide area of Honshu Island.

Hitachi is 80 miles north of Tokyo, population 82,000, and is a new, large and complex industrial community.

Supplies Basic Food

Choshi, whose 61,000 population makes it the second largest city of Chiba prefecture, is a great fishing port only 60 miles northeast of Tokyo. It is estimated to supply one eighth of that basic Japanese food.

Fukui, population about 100,000, is near the west coast of Honshu, about 200 miles west of Tokyo, and is an important industrial and railroad center.

At Okazaki, about 150 miles southwest of Tokyo and near Nagoya, the B-29's were searching for "shadow" war industries, places where piecework is done in hundreds of humble homes to supply assembly lines. The city of 84,000 is old and its flimsy wood and bamboo structures are highly inflammable.

Refinery Important

The Amagasaki branch of the Nippon Oil Refinery, at the mouth of the Muko River, is considered the most important refinery in that part of Japan.

Today's raid was the first B-29 attack since the July 16 predawn strike at Oita, on Kyushu, and Hiratsuka, Kuwana and Numazu, all on Honshu. That strike was made by 450-500 of the big bombers with 2,500 tons of fire bombs. Returning crews reported large fires in all target areas.

Sink 11 Cargo Vessels

Navy Privateer and Liberator planes sank eleven cargo craft and damaged five in the waters off Korea and Honshu Wednesday in new blows at Japan's sea links with the Asiatic mainland.

The Privateers of Fleet Air Wing 1 sank eight small cargo ships, left one of medium size sinking, and hit four other vessels along the Korean coast in the biggest bag the wing has yet made in a single day's operations. They also set fire to a radar station on eastern Kyushu and damaged an enemy plane, one of the few seen in the air in recent days.

At the same time, Liberators of Fleet Air Wing 18 destroyed two medium cargo ships and a small coaster south of Honshu.

The 2d Marine Aircraft Wing, ranging over the Ryukyus, destroyed two enemy torpedo bombers and another airborne Japanese plane and damaged one parked on Tokuno Island.

MORE THAN 600 B-29S SET FIRE TO FOUR CITIES

Center Supplying Fish for Most Densely Populated Area Is Attacked.

WAR PLANTS ALSO TARGETS

4000 Tons of Incendiaries Are Dropped—Assault Is Biggest Yet.

Guam, Friday, July 20 (A. P.).—A force of more than 600 B-29s, the greatest Superfort fleet ever sent out against Japan, set fire to four more Nipponese cities early today.

The targets included Hitachi, shelled recently by American and British warships, and an oil refinery, the latter blasted with demolition bombs. Striking in the morning darkness, the giant bombers carried a load of nearly 4,000 tons of explosives in the fifty-seventh of their incendiary attacks, which have burned forty-six cities to date on the Japanese mainland.

Most of the Marianas-based planes attacked the Honshu island cities of Choshi, a primary source of protein for Tokyo, Yokohama and other large population centers; Fukui, one of the most important industrial cities on the west side of Honshu; Okazaki, which took the industrial overflow from nearby Nagoya, and Hitachi. A smaller force hit the Amagasaki branch of the Nippon Oil Company just north of Osaka. It was the tenth oil target singled out for destruction by the Twentieth Air Force.

Raid Aims at Jap Diet.

Once before more than 600 Superforts were assigned a single mission but more B-29s began today's 3,000-mile round-trip to the target areas than for any other previous strike. How many reached their goals with their clusters of incendiary bombs and demolition explosives was not known immediately.

The strike continued the program to burn and blast Japan's war machine and cut its ability to feed factory employees working in war plants.

Flames licked Choshi, second largest city in the Chiba prefecture and most important fishing harbor on the east coast of Honshu, and undoubtedly affects its output of food for the great cities to the south. One-eighth of the entire Japanese fish catch is estimated to enter this harbor for distribution to the Kanto Plain district, which has a fourth of Honshu's population. Situated on the prominent Choshi Peninsula, sixty miles north of Tokyo, Choshi is jammed with indudstries associated with the fishing fleet—boat building, canneries and net factories.

Choshi on Main Line.

Vital food is carried to Tokyo and points north and west by the Sobu main line. The city is also the southern terminus of the important Tone-Tido waterway to Tokyo. Choshi's own population totals 61,000.

Fires flared at Fukui, Honshu west side city of 100,000 persons. The industries which the Superforts attacked there included plants turning out aircraft parts, electrical equipment, machine tools, iron and other metal products, rubber goods, chemicals and textiles. Fukui, twenty miles inland from Japan Sea and Forty-five miles southwest of Kanazawa, also is an important rail center on the Hakariku main line.

Okazaki, old and highly inflammable, is on the Yahagi and Ohira rivers, eighteen miles southeast of Nagoya Castle. It is known to contain many "shadow factories" or backyard industries. It turns out war implements such as aircraft parts, ordnance, electrical equipment and light metal parts. The city's population is 84,000.

The Superforts spilled their incendiaries on Hitachi two days after this industrial center north of Tokyo had been hit by United States and British warships. The Nippon oil refinery is considered the No. 1 refinery in the Osaka-Amagasaki area. It is located at the mouth of the Muko River.

Guns Of Warships Hammer Defenses

Guam, July 19 (AP)—The relentless United States 3d Fleet shelled the entrance to Tokyo Bay today to carry the air and sea battering of the Japanese capital into its third straight day.

[Japanese broadcasts said the great Allied fleet "is believed to be still roaming off our Pacific Coast" hunting for potential invasion beaches, but it sent no carrier planes over Nippon today.]

American cruisers and destroyers went within less than 5 miles of shore to shell coastal installations on Chiba Peninsula—the eastern bastion of Tokyo Bay.

Attack Lasts Over Hour

One large explosion was seen, but Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said full reports were still lacking. He revealed that the cruisers Topeka, Oklahoma City, Atlanta and Dayton and the destroyers Ault and John W. Weeks were among the ships that struck the blow.

For more than an hour, beginning late last night and continuing today, their guns blasted shore defenses around Nojima Point. Nojima is 50 miles south of Tokyo.

The shelling followed by a few hours an attack by 3d Fleet carrier planes on the Yokosuka naval base, just inside Tokyo Bay on its west shore and only 18 miles south of Tokyo.

Bad Weather Braved

American flyers braved extremely bad weather to catch Nipponese men-of-war in hiding. The enemy warships were believed to range in size up to cruisers, but there was no report on how many were hit.

[Radio Tokyo quoted the naval station as estimating that 250 carrier aircraft made the attack and that 40 were shot down and 38 damaged.]

The three-day assault on the Tokyo area started Tuesday when 1,500 American and British planes wrecked numerous defense installations and war plants north of the capital. British planes struck 200 miles north of Tokyo and Americans struck closer and to the south.

900 Raiders Over Tokyo Area

The same night, 3d Fleet ships shelled a 20-mile strip of coast north of Tokyo.

Carrier planes renewed the attack yesterday. [Tokyo said 900 raided the general Tokyo area. It claimed 85 shot down.]

Admiral Nimitz announced only the assault on the Yokosuka naval base, one of Japan's greatest, and on the warships lying in her harbor.

Remnants of the Japanese Navy have been in hiding for nine months—since their decisive defeat of the Philippines October 24-25. They have ignored repeated American and British challenges to come out and fight.

While American pilots were seeking survivors of the Japanese fleet—already reduced to one of the world's poorest—the Navy Department in Washington disclosed that 1,322 fighting ships have been added to the two-ocean fleet of the United States in the last five years. This increase to around 1,500 the number of warships in the United States Navy, which counted 383 combatant vessels on July 1, 1940, and has reported loss of 140 since. An unreported number was transferred to the Allies under lend lease.

From Washington also came official word that 1,500,000 Japs have been killed or taken prisoner by American and British forces and 600,000 others have been cut off or by-passed on Pacific islands. In addition, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek said recently that 1,203,067 Nipponese have been killed or captured in eight years of fighting in China.

Nevertheless, Japan still has 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 men, including the Emperor's best troops, to defend their homeland. The enemy has little else, however. The Jap air force has permitted the combined American and British Pacific fleet to bomb and shell its war industries and military targets at will for more than a week without sending so much as a squadron to counterattack.

The Japanese Navy is in hiding —"camouflaged" in some haven, Vice-Admiral March A. Mitscher of Carrier Task Force Fifty-eight fame said recently. The United States Pacific fleet discovered some remnants in the Inland Sea on March 18 and carrier pilots promptly sank the 45,000-ton dreadnaught Yamato, two cruisers and several destroyers.

Since then, the United States Navy has sought to find it—either for a finish fight at sea, or to blast it from its hideout.

Tokyo Minimizes Blow.

Radio Tokyo, many hours after Nimitz announced the attack on Yokosuka naval base, said the High Command had no intention of making even a token defense. The Jap command is determined not to act, no matter how great the provocation, said a propagandist who described this as a "wait and see" policy.

"The enemy tactic (Yokosuka attack) has been sized up and found not worth meeting," he added.

British flyers crossed the Island of Honshu to attack the airfield at Niigata, 160 miles north of Tokyo, in the first carrier-plane raid upon the western coast.

Flyers Do Much Damage

In this sweep, which also took in airfields at Matsushima, 200 miles north of Tokyo, and Masuda, 180 miles north of the capital, the British flyers destroyed thirteen planes on the ground. They also destroyed three locomotives and damaged railroad stations, barracks and hangars.

The main efforts of American carrier flyers Tuesday were concentrated on the Tokyo area.

Still incomplete reports credited Yank airmen with destroying four seaplanes on the water at Shioyasaka, 110 miles northeast of Tokyo, and damaging five, sinking three small craft and damaging ten; destroying two hangars, two locomotives, an oil dump and a dock, and damaging factory buildings, radio stations, lighthouses, warehouses, a train, three locomotives and a hangar.

TOKYO WORRIED OVER WHERE NEXT BLOW WILL FALL

Fleet Continues Destructive Rampage Along Japanese Coast.

NIPS 'SAVING' PLANES

No Reports of Results from Raid on Naval Base Yet Available, Nimitz Says.

GUAM, Friday, July 20 — (AP) Bombarding guns of the U. S. Third Fleet carried Admiral William F. Halsey's battle challenge right to Tokyo bay Thursday and the Japanese, still declining the challenge, worried over where the next blow would fall.

NIGHT

The fleet was continuing its destructive rampage along the homeland's Pacific coast into the 11th day, Tokyo radio assumed.

Tokyo speculated nervously on whether the series of damaging attacks were "spasmodic" or preludes to a "quick" invasion.

11 Cargo Ships Sunk

Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' regular communique this morning gave the Japanese no hint of the answer. It was limited to reporting harrassing and neutralizing air strikes by far western Pacific forces which sank 11 small coastal cargo ships and damaged five others off Korea and Honshu on Wednesday.

The Admiral made no mention whatever of either Wednesday's carrier strikes or the Wednesday midnight bombardment of Nojima Cape by a cruiser-destroyer force. Presumably he still was awaiting reports of results from Adm. William F. Halsey, commander of the combined American-British naval force.

American cruisers and destroyers, which started shelling Nojima cape at the entrance to Tokyo bay Wednesday at 11 p.m. continued the bombardment into the early hours of Thursday.

This fourth bombardment of the Japanese mainland by American and British warships of the Third fleet in six days followed by a few hours the fleet's carrier aircraft raid on remnants of the Japanese navy at Yokosuka naval base in Tokyo bay.

Fleet Admiral Nimitz' communique said no report of results was yet available from the strike at the naval base.

Both the bombardment and aerial targets were within 55 miles of Emperor Hirohito's palace in Tokyo. It was even possible that, with favorable atmospheric conditions, Hirohito and his aides might have seen flashes across the night sky from the American salvos.

Nimitz's communique said one large explosion was observed in the target area.

Tokyo claimed the reason no planes or ships have yet been sent against the Third fleet, now the greatest attacking naval force of history, was that the Japanese command had found Halsey's challenge "not worth meeting."

Prepare for Invasion Battle

Inference to all Tokyo broadcasts were that Japan was saving every bit of air and sea power she has left for the expected invasion battle.

Tokyo radio claimed that 40 of 250 planes it said made the raid on the Yokosuka base were shot down. There was no American report on losses.

Admiral Nimitz said the "heavy attack" was launched under "extremely difficult weather conditions" and that the raiding planes encountered accurate and intense anti-aircraft fire.

The bombardment of Nojima cape, at the tip of the Chiba peninsula, carried into its third straight day, the fleet's aerial and gun battering of the Tokyo area.

Bombs and shells have fallen progressively closer to the Nippon capital since Tuesday, when 1,500 carrier planes hit targets just to the north. Tuesday night American and British naval guns hurled shells at vital industrial plants for 25 or 30 miles along the Honshu coast, from Takahagi to Mito, the latter about 55 miles north to Tokyo.

The fleet was then moving southward after shelling Muroran on Hokkaido island July 15. It had bombarded the steel center of Kamaishi on the Honshu coast July 14, on the way north.

The latter bombardment had followed carrier raids on the Tokyo area July 10, starting the series of raiding blows.

Japs' Morale Shaken, Tokyo Radio Admits

DAY

San Francisco, July 19 (AP)—Tokyo radio admitted today that air and sea bombardments have shaken Japanese morale, and unofficial spokesmen debated whether the Allied fleet was preparing the way for a quick invasion or merely making "spasmodic" attacks unworthy of being met.

One analyst termed the action merely an "insane" effort to pep up the American home front. The Domei news agency speculated that the warships might be feeling out coast defenses for an invasion that might come sooner than expected.

Money Being Hoarded

Other evidences of Nipponese fear came in these broadcasts, recorded here:

Takeo Irumano, managing director of the Imperial Bank, bemoaned the "general feeling of insecurity" that is causing the Japanese people to hoard their funds instead of banking them. He pleaded for immediate deposits.

The Tokyo newspaper Asahi exhorted the Government to forget cliques and conventions in the nation's crisis and take a "world-shaking" step to give the people a greater role.

Even small towns are feeling the effects of Allied fire raids. Domei reported that Kouchi, a little community on southern Kyushu, had to move its 40,000-book library to safety.

Plane Statements Conflict

Brighter words came from Lieut. Gen. Saburo Endo, director of aircraft ordnance. He boasted that plane production had made remarkable progress, despite frequent raids and would soon be "numerically superior" to that of the Allies. An hour later this was reduced to "numerically equivalent."

Apparently, Endo and his right-hand man, Vice Admiral Minetaka Sakamaki, got their signals crossed, because Sakamaki, wrote a newspaper article declaring there was an aircraft-production "bottleneck." He said the tense situation was making it worse and called on all workers to show a fighting spirit.

The Pooh-Pooher

The Tokyo commentator who termed the fleet attacks on the Honshu coast "insane and spasmodic" contended that the results were so trifling that they could better have been achieved by B-29's. He asked: "How did they understand the fact that the Japanese command did not send out a single special attacking pilot to meet the obvious challenge?

"What other explanation can be possible than that the enemy tactic, both in its political and military sense, has been entirely sized up by the Japanese command and was found not worth meeting?"

Blockade Minimized

The unidentified radio strategist said the action was intended to counteract "a general slack in the public support" which he said was becoming unsatisfactory to America's war leaders.

He heaped scorn on Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's statement that one of the reasons for the surface attacks was to extend and tighten the blockade around and over the Japanese home islands. The commentator said this thought was "insane."

In fact, he added, the Japanese command is determined not to act no matter how great the "enemy provocation." This he termed a "wait-and-see" policy.

The China Situation

In another broadcast, Tokyo quoted Gen. Yasuji Okamura, supreme commander of Japanese forces in occupied China, as saying any withdrawal of his forces from China would take two years.

"Of course," the general said, "should the American air force attempt to disturb our rear communications, the withdrawal period would be inevitably prolonged."

200 OKINAWA PLANES POUND SHANGHAI AREA

Record Attack Strikes At Airfields Near City And Jap Shipping

PARTS

Manila, Friday, July 20 (AP)—The greatest Japanese airdrome in China, just outside the northern limits of Shanghai, was hit with 290 tons of bombs in a record raid on that sector Tuesday by Okinawa-based tactical planes.

Other Far East Air Force raiders severed rail communications to the Japanese industrial city of Kagoshima on Kyushu, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced the action today.

Fighters In Force

More than 200 heavy, medium, attack and fighter bombers participated in the Shanghai assault.

The medium and heavy bombers of the 7th Air Force spanned the East China Sea and dropped bombs on Kiangwan airdrome at Shanghai. Their escorting fighters started fires at Tinghai airdrome, damaged installations on a near-by island, and swept south for attacks on enemy shipping off Taishan Island.

One plane was definitely lost on the raid and another was listed as missing.

Simultaneously MacArthur announced that other 5th and 7th Air Force planes temporarily severed rail communications between the munitions and submarine manufacturing center of Kagoshima and the rest of Kyushu. The attacks sealed off two vital rail tunnels.

Harbor Area Strafed

A third tunnel was damaged and the harbor area of the city itself was strafed, damaging railroad cars, trucks and coastal shipping.

Near Miyazaki on the east coast of Kyushu numerous small vessels were damaged and fires were set in the dock areas.

MacArthur reported a 10,000-ton freighter was destroyed off Amami Island in the northern Ryukyus, halfway between Okinawa and Kyushu, by twelve direct bomb hits.

The series of air attacks on Formosa was interrupted by bad weather, but 7th Fleet planes ranged down the Asiatic coast, destroying or damaging 27 small cargo vessels and sinking a freighter-transport off Hainan Island at night.

Fire Storage Facilities

In daylight planes of the same force set fire to storage facilities and hit motor transport near Canton while 13th Air Force medium bombers attacked Itu Aba Island, in the South China Sea.

Kiangwan airdrome is just north of Shanghai, where the Japanese have built a network of four concrete bomber runways, two fighter strips, fifteen major hangars and many shops, barracks and storage dumps to accommodate their largest aircraft concentration in China.

The 7th Air Force Mitchells, Liberators and new A-26 attack bombers, escorted by 50 Thunderbolt fighters, dropped their bombs through heavy cloud cover which prevented accurate observation of results. The one plane definitely lost was a Liberator which exploded from unknown causes.

AUGUST

On Shu Shan Island

The other airdrome hit, Tinghai, is on Chu Shan Island, in the mouth of Hangchow Bay south of Shanghai. The Thunderbolts dropped 500-pound bombs there in low-level attacks.

In the simultaneous raids on Kyushu, more than 30 Thunderbolts flew through intense flak and sealed the Kagoshima tunnel mouths with 500 pounders while other Thunderbolts started oil fires in the Kagoshima refinery district.

The sinking of the 10,000-ton enemy freighter off Amami Island was the work of more than a score of Mustangs led by Capt. Gordon Franklin, of Wyalusing, Pa. They slammed five 500-pound bombs into it in the morning and left it listing. They returned that afternoon and scored seven more direct hits leaving the ship afire and settling by the stern.

Other Fifth Air force Mustangs led by Capt. Ernest O. Johnson of Daisetta, Tex., bombed and strafed shipping off Tosaki, on the southeast coast of Kyushu.

Planes Range Over Entire War Area

Manila, July 19 (AP)—American airpower, reinforced by units from Europe, is sweeping Pacific skies from Paramushiro to Borneo and from Yap, in the Carolinas, to the China coast.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today that on Monday the first airmen from the European theater joined Far Eastern Air Forces in attacking the Japanese homeland.

Monday's sweep crisscrossed the important southern island of Kyushu as more than 350 planes attacked without encountering any interception or losing a single plane to anti-aircraft fire.

Fifth And 7th AAF Strike

Airstrips, warehouses, locomotives, power plants, factories, bridges and coastal shipping were among the targets of the 5th and 7th AAF units which roared in to strike the east coast cities of Miyazaki and Nabeoka; Kukushima and Tomitaki on the west, and the Kagoshima Bay area on the south.

Among the 7th AAF planes in the Kyushu strike was a unit manned by veterans of the Mediterranean theater and led by Col. Joseph R. Holzapple, of Peoria, Ill. They flew new Douglas-built A-26 attack bombers in the first introduction of this plane into major action in this theater.

Holzapple predicted that the A-26, which he said has the best features of the A-20, B-25 and B-26, would be "one of the most effective airplanes of the war if properly employed, and we are working on that little problem."

Two Amami Islands Hit

[Admiral Chester W. Nimitz's communiqué today from Guam reported that planes of the 2d Marine Aircraft Wing struck targets at Tokuno and Okinoyerabu Islands in the Amami group north of Okinawa on Tuesday. The next day Corsairs and Hellcats of the 4th Marine Aircraft Wing worked over enemy installations in the Palaus. Helldivers ranged far eastward to strike Yap in the Carolines and Mitchells of the 11th Army Air Force struck installations and damaged two small coastal cargo boats near Paramushiro Island in the Kuriles.]

Meanwhile, other American planes kept up the steady pounding of Formosa and the near-by Pescadores.

Fifth Bombs Canton

Liberators of the 5th AAF scored hits on factories at Canton, China, while two Mariners of the 7th Fleet sank several junks off near-by Swatow and Hong Kong. Other Liberators bombed railways in French Indo-China and ranged southward to sink two small freighters at Kuching, western Borneo.

[The Japanese Domei agency reported last night that 60 American Mustang fighter planes raided central Honshu for an hour Thursday morning (Japanese time). The dispatch, heard in San Francisco, claimed the attack caused "only negligible damage to our ground installations" and said the Mustangs strafed "mainly airfield and transportation facilities" in south central Honshu.]

Jap Airfields Hit

Guam, July 19 (AP)—Okinawa-based Marine fighter and torpedo planes almost 100 strong strafed and blasted with rockets Japanese airfields from east of Formosa to the Amami islands Tuesday.

Corsairs teamed with fighter-bombers in a strike on Miyara airfield on Ishigakishima Island east of Formosa.

On Tokuno Island near the Amami group, Corsairs attacked bridges and buildings with rockets and riddled a Japanese "Zeke" fighter plane.

Sambodja Taken By 7th Division Without Battle

Schaefer

Manila, Friday, July 20 (AP)—Australian troops in a 5-mile thrust seized the rich Sambodja oil fields Wednesday, and the refining center of the same name without a fight, it was announced today.

The Australians quickly spread over the oil field, one of the three major producing areas of eastern Borneo feeding the now-wrecked refineries of Balikpapan.

Fires Rage In Field

Fires started in various parts of the field as the veteran 7th Australian Division drove northward into the oil-producing region, whose approaches had been bitterly defended by the enemy.

The general condition of the wells was not known, but from the reports of the fires it was apparent that the Japanese had taken a cue from the Dutch and put the field to the torch.

The Dutch turned the Borneo fields into an inferno when the Japanese swept southward in their conquering march in 1942.

28 Miles From Balikpapan

Sambodja, with a normal population of 1,500, is 28 miles northeast of Balikpapan. Situated on a pipeline, Sambodja also maintained a refinery and a pumping station.

The other fields are the Louise, about 30 miles north of Sambodja, and the delta near the mouth of the Mahakam River, about 40 miles northeast of Sambodja. In all there are about 400 wells.

Production in the Sambodja field ran to about 7,000,000 barrels a year.

Three days before the Japanese invasion in February, 1942, the Dutch destroyed the tank farms which had a storage capacity of 3,500,000 barrels of fuel so pure that it could be burned in nearly every ocean-going vessel without refining.

Only Two Japs Found

When the Australians entered Sambodja at noon Wednesday they found only two Japanese. These were promptly dispatched.

Fighting along the inland highway to Samarinda, a second major oil center 36 miles north of Sambodja, other Australian forces smashed an enemy attempt to infiltrate their lines and cut the Japanese to ribbons.

Dutch East Indies troops repulsed a Japanese counterattack south of Soengawain, north of Balikpapan.

West of Balikpapan across the bay, Australian troops knocked out a platoon of Japanese and occupied the village of Sapari, 5½ miles west of Cape Penadjam. The cape is 3 miles west of Balikpapan.

Troops poking through Balikpapan's ruins found a makeshift 200 millimeter mortar which the Japanese made from oil-field pipes, and an attached 1,000-pound bomb, apparently intended for a booby trap. The mortar never had been used.

It is to be expected that the Allies in trun will follow the example of the Japanese in getting the Sambodja field back into production.

Japs Repair Damage

In this area, the Japanese repaired the damage wrought by Dutch demolition, drilled new wells and boosted production beyond prewar levels in a hasty scramble to build up a stockpile of aviation and bunker fuel.

The capture of Sambodja's field—second objective in the eastern Borneo invasion after the fall of Balikpapan—brought to three the number taken on the big island rich in petroleum. The others are the Miri and Seria fields of western borneo.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique reported advances were scored in all sectors of the Balikpapan area as the Japanese fell back deeper into the inland hills and marshy coastal region.

Light naval units for the second straight day roved along the coast, blasting Japanese shore positions and starting numerous fires.

Search planes patrolling the winding Mahakam river sank a freighter and left another burning at Samarinda, another oil center on the stream's north bank about 36 miles north of Sambodja.

Other planes far to the south set another freighter afire in the south Borneo port of Bandjermasin.

AUSSIES ADVANCE IN 2 BORNEO AREAS

Hutcheson

JUL 19 1945

Manila, July 19 (A. P.).—Australian infantry advances on both sides of the vital oil island of Borneo were reported today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.

In western Borneo the Aussies occupied Marudi south of Miri oil center without opposition. Gains around Balikpapan Bay on the east coast tightened their grip on that important refinery and oil shipping harbor. While one group extended control six miles along the south coast of Balikpapan Bay another advanced seven miles up the Riko River across the bay from Balikpapan town.

Monday night the Aussies caught a fifty-foot Jap launch towing five small craft on the river and destroyed the launch with an unknown number of enemy casualties. United States Seventh Fleet units returned to the battle of eastern Borneo. Smaller units shelled Tempadoeng Point a dozen miles up the bay from Balikpapan port. They destroyed three gun positions and three barges.

In a pre-dawn strike against North Borneo on Monday PT-boats strafed Telur Island northeast of Jesselton after lighting up the area with flares. They drew machine-gun fire from a minor enemy base there. Other PT-boats operating around the Halmahera islands far to the east reported the destruction of twenty-one beached native-type craft which the Japs had been using.

M'ARTHUR VISITED BY MOUNTBATTEN

Barnes

Conference To Co-Ordinate Actions Made Known

Manila, July 15 (AP—Delayed) Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, Allied East Asia commander, and his staff returned to India by air today after a three-day conference with Gen. Douglas MacArthur which was officially announced as intended "to arrange complete coordination between their respective commands."

Mountbatten spent several hours with MacArthur and also visited Gen. Walter Krueger, Admiral Thomas C. Kincaid, Gen. George C. Kenney and Lieut. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead, commander of the 5th Air Force, and received a call from Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger. He also exchanged visits with President Sergio Osmena of the Philippines.

Closest Liaison Needed

It was understood the conferences, which brought the two commanders together for the first time, had long been planned but postponed by military campaigns.

Observers, however, pointed out that future operations probably will be decided at the Berlin Big Three meeting, creating the necessity for the closest liaison between MacArthur and Mountbatten, whose theaters are contiguous.

Mountbatten arrived July 12 in his personal military plane, which made the overwater flight from India. His accompanying staff included four Americans—Maj. Gen. Horace H. Fuller, deputy chief of staff; Brig. Gen. T. S. Timberman, Major W. H. Skielvig and Capt. F. S. Habecker, of the United States Navy.

Inflation Growing In Philippines

Manila, July 19 (AP)—Despite all efforts of American and Filipino control agencies, inflation is growing in the liberated Philippines.

President Sergio Osmena's Economic Control Administration reported today that the buying power of the peso, pegged at two to the United States dollar, has declined to 7 cents.

Such scarce items as clothing sell for 1,369 per cent above prewar levels. Building materials went up 754 per cent and house rentals jumped 363 per cent.

A Fortune In Paper Money

A suitcase full of dime-store cosmetics is worth a paper fortune.

ECA, which the Filipinos promptly nicknamed "Eat Camotes" (sweet potatoes), in memory of similar Japanese efforts, is trying to lower prices by securing trucks and boats from the Army to encourage the bringing of farm products into Manila.

But even in country districts, rice planters complain that wages are soaring.

The United States Foreign Economic Administration said it will bring 60,000 tons of consumer goods monthly from America to improve the situation.

Army Profiting

Army officers, finding that Filipinos preferred food, clothing and store privileges to cash, have enlisted nearly 10,000 young men in a construction corps to rebuild their smashed country.

This semi-military organization plans to enlist 125,000 Filipinos to build bases, repair roads and bridges and clear debris.

SOLDIER KILLED 75 JAPS IN AFTERNOON

Barnes

Paratrooper Awarded Posthumous Medal Of Honor

With 11th Airborne Division, South of Manila, July 19 (AP)—Throughout the weary afternoon Pfc. Manuel Perez kept up his one-man banzai attack against the Japanese.

Ducking and twisting beneath heavy fire, he threw dozens of hand grenades into strong pillboxes the enemy had erected to protect the approaches to Fort McKinley. He returned to his own lines only for more grenades.

When he had finished, the little paratrooper from Chicago had killed an estimated 75 Japanese and wrecked 12 pillboxes. At the end he defended himself with his rifle and bayonet against the last fanatics in the enemy garrison.

Posthumous Medal Awarded

This story was told for the first time today when the 23-year-old Perez was awarded posthumously the Medal of Honor for his almost incredible feat.

He died one month later on another front, protecting the withdrawal of his advanced patrol, an action for which he was awarded the Silver Star.

Soldiers of this division paid tribute today in a full-dress review to Perez and eighteen other medal winners, including Private Elmer Fryar, 32, of Denver, also posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor. Both fought with the 511th Parachute Infantry Regiment.

In Camp Perez was a quiet little fellow who seldom entered the robust fun of his fellow paratroopers yet became one of the most popular men in the regiment. In combat a streak of fire ran through him and he repeatedly was in hot spots.

McNutt Reaches Manila; Greeted By MacArthur

Manila, Friday, July 20 (AP)—Paul V. McNutt, War Manpower commissioner, arrived today and was greeted at Nichols Field by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

The former United States High Commissioner to the Philippines, here on an economic and health survey, was accompanied by a staff of health and relief experts.

Philippine political circles professed no knowledge of the exact purposes of McNutt's visit. In some quarters, it was thought probable that McNutt might become the first Ambassador to the free Philippines after independence is established.

The party includes Gen. William C. Rose, vice chairman of the War Manpower Commission; Dr. B. K. Westfall, consultant for the commission's Medical Procurement and Assignment Service; Dr. Robert Honstott, medical director for the Public Health Service, and Robert W. Beasley, relief expert.

SOME JAPANESE HELD RESENTFUL OF WAR DUTIES

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19—(AP) A Japanese naval ministry official today admitted some Nipponese were showing resentment toward their war duties.

The broadcast remarks of Navy Vice Minister Takeo Tada followed a radio attempt to explain to America why Japanese planes have failed to oppose Allied fleet bombardments of the Nipponese homeland.

Domei, Japanese news agency, in a broadcast recorded by the FCC, said Tada told employes of the Navy Ministry that "it is regrettable" that some of their countrymen have become "discouraged by the real facts of this fierce war."

People Are Resigned

These people have "become resigned to an attitude of aimless and destructive disinterest and abandonment" and "neglect their duties and become idle and resentful," Tada was quoted as saying.

The Tokyo newspaper Mainichi, in a broadcast beamed to America, said the Allies' bold naval attacks on Japan—four of them so far this week—were only a "feeble attempt at enticing the Japanese air force which is now biding its time for action."

Failure of Japanese airmen to fight was explained as "preservation" of the air force in line with the Nipponese high command's "elastic tactics" in preparation for the "decisive struggle."

"By patiently biding our time, we are taking the strategy of preserving our aircraft for the coming decisive battle of the homeland," Mainichi said.

Hammered from the air and sea, and with their food supply, lines blockaded, the Japanese government expects to mobilize 1,500,000 school children next month to reclaim 25,000 acres of land and increase food production, Domei reported.

The agency added that plans for the Junior Land army were made today by regional officials who met under the auspices of the Ministries of Education and Agriculture and Commerce.

Urges Cash Deposits

Takeo Irumano, managing director of the Imperial Bank of Japan, issued a radio appeal to the Japanese people "to deposit all your cash immediately, tomorrow," instead of hoarding it.

The banker said villagers as well as city people were "retaining cash on hand" instead of putting it in banks to "aid the circulation of money and help the manufacturing of new weapons."

Money kept at home "may be destroyed in fire raids," Irumano added, and he assured the people that the Japanese government was "seeing to it that banks and security organizations do not go bankrupt.'

Lt. Gen. Saburo Endo, director of Aircraft Ordnance in the Japanese Munitions Ministry, told his countrymen the nations plane production rate had progressed despite frequent raids.

But a newspaper article by Vice Admiral Minetaka Sakamaki, Endo's assistant, told a darker tale. A broadcast of the article said the production of planes was up against a bottleneck and "the more the war situation is intensified, the greater the effect of the bottleneck will be."

SUBMARINE LURKED UNDER FOE'S FLEET

Skipper Tells of Exploit Deep in Japanese Waters That Netted Enemy Carrier

Rembert JAMES

SAIPAN, Marianas Islands, July 2, 1944 (Delayed in Censorship) (AP)—Roving the far western Pacific, an American submarine ran into one of the strangest naval adventures of the war when she encountered the major part of the Japanese Imperial Fleet and torpedoed a large enemy carrier.

Most of the enemy ships passed over her one night as she lay in the black depths and counted the whirring of their screws.

Before the adventure ended, enemy destroyers jarred her with depth charges, but the submarine's lean black hull was unharmed.

The story of the forty-eight-hour experience of the submarine was told here today by the submarine's insouciant young skipper, Lieut. Comdr. Herman J. Kossler, 32 years old, of Los Angeles, Calif.

Twice the submarine had a bead on a big Japanese carrier, but the first time she withheld her torpedoes because she wanted to keep her presence a secret from the enemy, and relay information about the Japanese fleet to fleet headquarters.

Delayed Attack on Carrier

"She looked as big as the Empire State Building, and we had a perfect set-up on that carrier," said Commander Kossler.

"I feel sure we could have hit her. But I hadn't heard of that Jap force being around, so I thought our primary task was to get back the word about it—to report rather than to attack. It was a tough decision to make."

Later the submarine got its sights on a carrier of the same big class—perhaps the same carrier.

This time the submarine got off her torpedoes.

"She was heading into the wind, taking on her planes," Commander Kossler related. "There were thirty or forty on board, and four to go. I almost fainted—it was such a beautiful target. In broad daylight.

"We headed in on her. At first I thought it might be one of our own carriers. I let my executive and gunnery officers look at her. All agreed it was Japanese. Then we saw the Rising Sun flag on her. We were sure. Meantime, a Jap destroyer kept coming for us.

Three Torpedoes Hit Mark

"We fired torpedoes. The first three hit. Depth charges started jarring us as we dived. There were a lot. They kept coming for a long time.

"Then we heard loud water noises in the direction we had made our attack—four loud explosions. 'There goes the carrier—sinking,' I said."

Later the submarine surfaced and found no sign of the carrier. The Navy put her down as a probable, but Commander Kossler is convinced he sank her. [A report on the probable sinking was issued at Pearl Harbor on June 23, 1944.]

Commander Kossler, one of the best third-basemen the Naval Academy at Annapolis ever had, was graduated in 1934 and took his first submarine training in 1937. He was an officer on the famed submarine Guardfish that earlier in the war stood off Japan so closely that its officers watched Japanese horse races through the periscope.

Lieut. T. B. Denegre [no address given], the executive officer, is a naval reservist.

13,932 KILLED ON 3 ISLES

Japanese Wiped Out Since Conquest on Guam, Saipan, Tinian

GUAM, Friday, July 20 (AP)—The Navy reported today that 13,932 Japanese have been killed in the Marianas since the islands were secured.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced that organized Japanese resistance ended on Tinian, the last of the important Mariana islands captured, on July 31, 1944.

This brings to 51,849 the total of Japanese killed in action on the three main islands of Guam, Saipan and Tinian.

The totals of Japanese wiped out in the hills and caves on the three islands since they were secured now come to 7,353 for Guam, 5,642 for Saipan, and 937 for Tinian.

ETO Flyers Raid Japan.

Manila, July 19 (A. P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today that on Monday the first airmen from the European theater joined Far Eastern Air Forces in attacking the Jap homeland.

JUL 19 1945

Monday's sweep crisscrossed the important southern island of Kyushu as more than 350 planes attacked without encountering any interception or losing a single plane to anti-aircraft fire.

Among the Seventh Air Force planes in the Kyushu strike was a unit manned by veterans of the Mediterranean theater. They flew new Douglas-built A-26 attack bombers in the first introduction of this plane into major action in this theater.

Meanwhile, other American planes kept up the steady pounding of Formosa and nearby Pescadores. They hit munition dumps at Mako tories near Tainan.

Philippine Inflation Check

F. E. A. Will Import 60,000 Tons of Consumer Goods a Month

MANILA, July 19 (AP).—Confronted by a mounting problem of inflation in the Philippines, the Foreign Economic Administration will bring in from America 60,000 tons of consumers goods a month to help relieve the situation.

Clothing costs are up 1,369 per cent over pre-war levels, building materials are up 754 per cent and house rentals are 363 per cent above peace-time figures, the Filipino Economic Control Administration said today.

Jap Society Holds 'Bomb America' Rally

San Francisco, July 19 (AP)—The Japanese Society for Bombing America held an enthusiastic "Bomb America" rally in Tokyo yesterday.

Domei agency told of the rally in a broadcast directed to America and recorded here.

The hall was "packed to capacity," Domei said, adding that speakers included Shaichi Noyori, identified as publisher of a business magazine, and Rear Admiral Toshio Matsunaga, retired, vice president of the Society for the Defense of the Fatherland.

Jap War Till Close Of '46 Planned

Washington, July 19 (AP)—Army and navy leaders are planning for the war against Japan to run at least until the last months of 1946.

This is the blunt truth, as of today, despite a flood of rumors here that some significant development is imminent in the Pacific conflict.

Military leaders, assuming that the Japanese will fight to the bitter end, also are planning cleanup campaigns in China, although what happens there specifically depends on Russia.

Asiatic Outlook

If Russia comes into the war fairly soon, a development the chiefs of staff at Potsdam could plan, the Western Allies may have very little fighting to do on the Asiatic mainland.

[Dispatcnes from Potsdam continue to emphasize the part the war with Japan may be playing in the Big Three talks.]

The military plans here, disclosed by both army and navy officials of unquestioned authority, all are based on the view that the Japanese will do as the Germans did—fight on until they are thoroughly defeated in battle.

The recent waves of "peace talks" have left this view unshaken, although officials point to the ever-present possibility that Japan may decide to surrender at any time.

Terms Unchanged

Should the enemy wish to take that step, the terms still are "unconditional surrender" as explained by President Truman to mean the end of Japanese militarism but not the utter destruction of Japan.

The State Department reaffirmed yesterday that it still has no peace offers from Tokyo.

The department was asked several questions, including these two:

1. Is it still true that the United States has received no peace offer from Japan?

2. Did Premier Stalin take any peace offer to the Big Three meeting at Berlin?

Grew's Statement

The answer to both was that Acting Secretary Grew's recent statement still stands. In a word, it is still true that none has been received through Stalin or in any other way, according to the department.

Hopes that the Japanese may decide to surrender have been based on the terrific beating they are taking from surface ships and aircraft, the confused line of their radio propaganda and the fact that while the overwhelming majority fought to the death on Okinawa several thousand soldiers did surrender.

However, officials recall that they let themselves and the country in for a bad disappointment last fall in counting on a German surrender at that time.

Timetables Failed

That was what the European timetables called for. Yet the German high command, despite blasted cities, ruined war plants and faltering troop morale, was able to keep Nazi armies fighting until May.

The estimate of the Pacific war continuing at least until the end of next year actually is based on the expectation of being able to win a surrender by force of arms at that time.

It takes into account the time required to redeploy sufficient troops from Europe as well as weather limitations, which in the Pacific are very severe.

However, it does not allow for much major fighting in North China and Manchuria.

Reason For Emphasis

Hence, the heavy emphasis on the possibility of Russia's entering the war. This is fed, of course, by Moscow's denunciation, effective next April, of the Soviet-Japanese neutrality treaty.

The impression here for many months has been that the high commands have known their respective intentions toward the Far Eastern war for some time.

TRUMAN IS HOST TO HIS CONFEREES AT STATE DINNER

JUL 19 1945

President Entertains Stalin, Churchill at 'Little White House' in Potsdam.

MEET THIRD TIME

Private

American Executive Believed Stressing Need for Quick Pacific Victory.

POTSDAM, July 19 — (AP) President Truman entertained Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill tonight at a state dinner, the first such function of the Big Three conference now proceeding on a workmanlike timetable.

The dinner at the "Little White House" climaxed a day in which the three leaders presumably met formally [illegible] sittings.

NIGHT

Under conference procedure, the foreign secretaries pass problems on to the Big Three for final decision as soon as they reach some generalized agreement.

Quick Jap Defeat Urged

There was speculation that the President was stressing the necessity of a quick victory in the Pacific, arguing that the sooner Japan falls the sooner the United States can aid in the stabilization of European economy and the reconstruction of shattered industries.

It was officially announced that the three leaders are meeting regularly with their agenda prepared each morning at 11 o'clock by the foreign secretaries. Thus the burden of the preliminary work falls upon Secretary of State James F. Byrnes, Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

These three held their first session Monday, with Byrnes presiding under a system of daily rotation of the chairmanship.

The top-ranking diplomats of the three nations turned out for tonight's state dinner, but Eden did not attend. An official announcement said he was indisposed.

The American delegation was headed by Byrnes, the Russian by Molotov. The President wore a new brown suit.

The Americans attending, besides Byrnes, were Admiral William D. Leahy, presidential Chief of Staff; W. Averell Harriman, U. S. Ambassador to Moscow; Edward W. Pauley, chairman of the American section of the Allied Reparations commission; Joseph E. Davies, special presidential emissary, and Charles E. Bohlen, State Department Russian expert.

Churchill, wearing the fawn-colored uniform of the Lord Warden of Cinque Ports, was accompanied by Lord Cherwell, an Oxford professor; Clement Atlee, leader of the British Labor party; Sir Alexander Cadogan and Maj. Arthur Birch, his interpreter.

Wears Single Star

Stalin was attired in a light summer gabardine uniform, his only decoration a large star on his left breast. He attended with Molotov, Andrei Vishinsky, deputy People's Commissar for Foreign Affairs; Andrei Gromyko, Soviet ambassador to the U. S.; F. A. Sobolev, member of the Soviet Foreign office, and V. M. Lavlov, interpreter.

The distinguished guests met President Truman at 8:30 p. m. and went in to dinner 15 minutes later. American army bands played on the lawn which slopes down to a cameo-like lake in front of the "little White House."

The genial Truman bowed to the dictates of international diplomacy in allowing the affair to be called a state dinner. He never has been one for "high hat" affairs.

A cheerful host, the President likes his guests to be in good humor. He is known for his wit and has a story-telling gift. Dinnertime is one of his favorite hours.

Just how long the conference might last appeared to be undecided, but it seemed likely it would continue through most of next week at least.

Observers said the Russians and British apparently had many more proposals to submit than did the American delegation, but that this would be natural since they had more detailed policies concerning European issues.

Russian-controlled Berlin newspapers today printed on their front pages a dispatch in Red Star, Army newspaper in Moscow, which declared:

"It is easy to think how complicated are not only the European, but the world problems that must be discussed and solved. All depends on good will, understanding and a realistic view on all sides of the deep changes which have occurred in Europe and other continents as a consequence of the historic victory over the dark forces of Fascism."

President Truman, keeping up with domestic affairs at his headquarters here, scheduled a conference tomorrow with Gen. Omar N. Bradley on Bradley's new duties as head of the Veterans Administration.

REPORT TRUMAN URGES SPEEDY PACIFIC VICTORY

JUL 19 1945

Sees It as Important to Europe's Reconstruction and World Economy.

HOST AT BIG THREE DINNER

Will Entertain Churchill and Stalin Tonight—Calls for Bradley.

Potsdam, July 19 (A. P.).—President Truman was believed emphasizing to his Russian and British allies today the necessity of winning a quick victory in the Pacific in order to speed the reconstruction of Europe and allow the world economy the benefit of global peace.

The third meeting of the Big Three presumably was scheduled for this afternoon. The President will give a state dinner tonight at the Little White House for Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill and five other representatives of each Government.

An official announcement said that the Big Three were meeting regularly with an agenda prepared each morning at 11 o'clock by the three foreign secretaries. Secretary of State Byrnes presided at the first foreign secretaries' meeting on Monday, with Anthony Eden and V. M. Molotov rotating the chairmanship on succeeding days. The agenda they prepared was a top secret.

Russian and British proposals at Potsdam were believed to be much more numerous than those offered by the United States, in view of the more detailed policies of the two countries regarding Europe.

Mr. Truman summoned Gen. Omar N. Bradley for a conference tomorrow regarding his new duties as head of the Veterans Administration.

Soviet-controlled Berlin newspapers gave front-page prominence to a dispatch in Red Star of Moscow on the urgency of clinching post-war inter-Allied cooperation at the Potsdam conference.

"It is easy to think how complicated are not only the European, but the world problems that must be discussed and solved," the Red Star dispatch reprinted in Berlin said. "All depends on goodwill, understanding and a realistic view on all sides of the deep changes which have occurred in Europe and other continents as a consequence of the historic victory over the dark forces of Fascism."

The Moscow Government newspaper Izvestia said that the Big Three were seeking the quickest liquidation of the terrible consequences of the war and the establishment of close co-operation among peace-loving nations. Izvestia added that some speculation concerning concrete problems up for discussion were not built upon firm foundations.

Note of Harmony.

The conference swung into its third day to all appearances on a note of harmony. The chief American interest centered in what steps the three statesmen might take to expedite the unconditional surrender of Japan, and if the report of the President's offer is true, much has been accomplished to speed the work of the conference.

The President was reported to have told Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin that the United States would give full support to any reasonable settlement of boundary disputes, stabilization and rehabilitation.

[In London, well-informed diplomatic sources expected the Big Three to arbitrate a huge slice of eastern Germany for the benefit of P[illegible]

There have been strong indications that Asia and Japan already have been under discussion.

President Truman is understood to be contending that the saving of American lives is of paramount importance.

Some American observers in Potsdam consider the Japanese war and Russia's possible role therein the major points of discussion. Admiral William D. Leahy, the President's adviser; Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff; Admiral of the Fleet Ernest J. King and Gen. H. H. Arnold, air chief, are reported to have prepared impressive data.

There is speculation here on Russia's possible activities on the Asiatic mainland. The Soviet Far Eastern army has been strengthened continually since last fall, and observers believe that Russia could hurl great strength against the Japanese on the Manchurian plains, could participate through a limited holding action while providing bases for great numbers of American bombers, or could throw its weight into the decision in a number of other ways.

Biographical Sketch

Recalling the various scores the Russians have to settle with the Japanese, great significance is attached to a release to Allied correspondents in Berlin by the Soviet Information Bureau of a biographical sketch of Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov, in which his direction of the 1939 campaign in Mongolia, which destroyed the Japanese Sixth Army, was mentioned prominently.

Still another report is that President Truman apparently is willing to leave up to the other two, should they find basis for reasonable agreement, much of the decision on administration of Germany and other European problems.

Meanwhile the President was making the most of his talent for cementing friendships. Yesterday Churchill and his daughter, Mary, met the President at the gate of their residence when he called for luncheon. Mr. Truman, seizing the opportunity for a bit of exercise, had strolled to the residence, stopping on the way to chat with several Scottish soldiers. Later he lunched with Stalin.

Capt. James K. Vardaman and Brig.-Gen. Harry H. Vaughn, military and naval aids, accompany the President whenever he leaves his official residence—the Little White House.

Advisory Setup For Far East Is Hinted

JUL 19 1945

London, July 19 (AP)—Possibility that an Asiatic advisory commission, a Far Eastern counterpart of the European agency which drafted plans for Germany's control and occupation, would emerge from the Big Three conference was seen today in diplomatic quarters.

It was taken for granted here that Russia would seek a seat on such a commission to safeguard its interests and influence in the East, regardless of whether Russia changes from a passive to an active ally in the Pacific.

Strong Evidence

Premier Stalin's recent conversations with China's Premier T. V. Soong, plus the presence at Potsdam of top-ranking American and British military leaders, offered strong evidence that the Japanese war would be a subject of discussion.

This view appeared to be strengthened by a Moscow radio report that Big Three discussions would not be confined to European problems.

This may well be the basic reason for tight restrictions on the press coverage of the conference, to prevent any possible leak of military information to Japan through communication channels between the Contient and neutral countries under relaxed censorship.

Allied Strength Growing

In usually conservative diplomatic quarters here it was accepted as almost a certainty that Prime Minister Churchill and President Truman would lay before Stalin a full picture of imposing and still mounting British-American military might.

But these sources maintained that military problems were closely allied with war-eastern diplomatic and political issues, those which presumably would come up for study by the envisioned Asiatic advisory commission.

The European commission started work a year before Germany's defeat.

Equally Complex Problems

Problems in the Far East appear equally complex, with one of the most important being that of stripping Japan of all territory acquired since before World War I.

There has been some speculation that Joseph W. Grew, assistant Secretary of State and former United States Ambassador to Japan, would be named American representative on such a commission.

Sen. Wiley Protests Big 3 News Blackout

Washington, July 19 (AP)—It is high time, Senator Wiley (R., Wis.) said today, that delegates to the Potsdam conference stop being treated like "indiscreet maidens who talk too much."

Protesting the news blackout at the Big Three meeting, Wiley, in a Senate speech, called the censorship a "ghastly example of dictatorial behavior."

"Correspondents are being spoonfed a dish of trivial mush," he declared. "Handouts about such things as how much wine, alarm clocks and refrigerators have been flown to the conferees.

"As a result," he added, "they are being forced to write many of their stories of the conference's progress on the basis of sheer conjecture and rumor."

"Because of this censorship," he said, "correspondents are being forced to cool their heels outside the official compound. Within the compound, the entire group of delegates are locked up like indiscreet maidens who might talk too much."

SECOND GI CITES ARMY 'TORTURES'

Says He Was Beaten In Guardhouse In Britain

London, Friday, July 20 (AP)—A second letter from an American soldier charging that United States soldier prisoners were "tortured" and "beaten" in the Army's Lichfield (England) guardhouse, was published in Stars and Stripes today as army headquarters began investigating similar complaints by two other soldiers.

"I was in the 10th Replacement Department (Lichfield) guardhouse," wrote "Pfc. Infantry," who was not otherwise identified. "I was not beaten myself but I have seen brutal treatment given our American prisoners. In December in freezing temperatures they ran us into supposedly hot showers and then turned on ice-cold water.

Blood In The Latrine

"I have also seen guards beat and lash fellows with naked bodies in the latrine, which was so cold that toilet seats had a layer of ice on them. Blood could be seen on the walls of the latrine at any time. At all times there was more than one guard applying torture. . . . The guards—often drunk—said they had been given authority by their C.O. (commanding officer)."

Stars and Stripes earlier had printed a letter signed "Dough, Company M, 310th Infantry," who said he was beaten four times while confined in the guardhouse and that he had seen other soldier prisoners beaten with clubs "for minor misbehavior." "Dough" also quoted the guards as saying that they "had orders from the C.O." and "could do anything they wanted with prisoners."

Other Report Cited

"If the allegations are true, someone will be punished," an army spokesman said, adding that "another report along similar lines" had been received directly from a soldier.

Of its second letter, Stars and Stripes wrote "this and a number of similar letters have been sent directly to the inspector general."

2 U. S. Soldiers Charge Beating in Guardhouse

Army Investigating Officer and 3 Enlisted Men in England

LONDON, July 19 (AP).—American Army headquarters said today that an officer and three enlisted men were being investigated on charges of beating two American soldiers, who alleged they were beaten while serving time in a guardhouse.

"Stars and Stripes" published a letter today from a soldier who said he was beaten four times while confined to a guardhouse at the 10th Replacement Depot, Litchfield, England. The soldier identified himself only as "Dough, Company M, 310th Infantry." He said he saw other soldier prisoners beaten with clubs for "minor misbehavior."

An Army public relations officer said: "Another report along similar lines" had been received directly from a soldier, who charged that he was beaten about Jan. 1.

Big 4 As Friends Aim Of Dean Of Canterbury

London, July 19 (AP)—Dr. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury, was quoted in the Soviet News today as declaring in Tashkent, Russia, that "upon my return to Britain I shall be happy to dedicate myself to the consolidation of friendship" between the Soviet Union, the United States, Great Britain and China.

The Soviet News, a publication of the Soviet Embassy, quoted him as saying:

"Everything I have seen in your country goes to prove that friendship between the Soviet Union, Great Britain, the United States and China creates the firm basis for lasting and stable peace.

"The foundations of the Soviet state seem to me deeply moral and scientific. That is why everything I have seen in your country satisfies me as a man, scientist and Christian."

London Hears Winant May Be Replaced

JUL 19 1945

London, July 19 (AP)—Diplomatic quarters heard reports today that John G. Winant might be replaced as the United States Ambassador to London soon after President Truman returns to Washington from Potsdam.

One informant said Winant, former Republican Governor of New Hampshire, might be offered a post as American representative on the Economic Council of the new World Security League. It was noted that Winant was not included in the list of Presidential advisors for the Potsdam conference.

Workers Of Trieste Reported In Strike

London, July 19 (AP)—The Yugoslav Telegraph Agency reported today that workers throughout Trieste and the Anglo-American Military Government administrative zone in the Slovene Littoral had begun a general strike in protest against the arrest of "political prisoners."

"All work is being brought to a complete standstill," the agency said.

Earlier the British news agency Exchange Telegraph said the Swiss radio had reported a general strike in Trieste alone because of the arrest of a Communist. This report said all public utilities and traffic in the port city were paralyzed.

UNRRA SEEKS TO BUY SURPLUS ARMY GOODS

LONDON, July 19 — (AP) The purchase of more than $2,000,000 of U. S. army property — including 2,813 mules of the 10th Mountain division in Italy and medical supplies—is being negotiated by the UNRRA for use in Greece and Yugoslavia, Robert L. Cochran, UNRRA surplus procurement agent for the Mediterranean theater, disclosed today.

It is the first transaction of its kind in that theater. The property transfer is being arranged between Cochran, a former governor of Nebraska, and Brig. Gen. B. A. Johnson, acting field Army-Navy liquidation commissioner.

Sale of Army properties to UNRRA in the field is part of a two-way plan to clear the shipping space bottleneck which has obstructed the shipment of goods from the United States to liberated countries and to consummate such transactions in American dollar values.

British Ease Curbs Upon Toy Making

London, July 19 (AP)—A merrier Christmas for toy-hungry British children was in prospect today as the result of an increase in toy-manufacturing quotas by the Board of Trade and lifting of a wartime ban on the use of metal in toys.

Some manufacturers, however, questioned whether boosting the quota from 25 to 37.5 per cent of the 1939 output would help much, because, they said, no more materials were made available.

The same applies to leather and photographic goods, for which quotas were increased from 12.5 to 25 per cent of 1939 output.

If toy makers can get materials, small boys will once again be able to buy tin soldiers and model planes, tanks and guns made of metal. But little girls will not be so fortunate. Reports were that materials for dolls would still be scarce and expensive.

The price limit per toy was retained at $4.90.

De Valera Gives Reason For Hitler Condolences

Says It Was an Act of Courtesy in Accordance With Custom

DUBLIN, July 19 (AP).—Prime Minister Eamon De Valera told the Dail Eireann (Parliament) today that his visit last spring to the German Minister to Eire to express condolences on the reported death of Adolf Hitler was an "act of courtesy."

De Valera declared that his visit was in accordance "with the procedure and practice that has been here established and which is almost universal." He said it did not involve any question of approval or disapproval of the policy of the German people or the Reich. He said no publicity was given the fact that the Dail adjourned on the death of President Roosevelt.

Concluding a foreign policy debate, De Valera said that all the members of his Cabinet "were democrats whose attitude toward totalitarianism was in evidence long before the war."

Boy, 12, Awarded Croix de Guerre

Avignon, France, July 19 (AP)—Twelve-year-old Rene Steve was awarded the Croix de Guerre with bronze star today for having held a German patrol at bay during the final Maquis battles in the Alps a year ago.

He is believed to be the youngest Frenchman ever to receive the award.

The accompanying citation said that all of Rene's comrades were wiped out when the Germans attacked FFI positions in the lower Alps, July 8, 1944.

The youthful Maquisard manned the one remaining machine gun and held the Nazis off for several hours until he was taken prisoner, the citation said.

Later the Germans released him and complimented him on his bravery, the citation added.

German Patent Office Seized

JUL 19 1945

Berlin, July 19 (AP)—American authorities have seized the 700 room German Patent Office in Berlin and found "almost all" the patent records intact in a deep sub basement, it was announced today.

Two hundred German officials still were on duty when the United States officers, led by Col. Ernest McLendon, of Baltimore, arrived. The Germans were held for questioning. It was stated that the Berlin Inter-allied Kommandatura eventually would take over control.

Germans Crop Hair Of Fraternizing Girls

With British Occupation Forces in Germany, July 19 (AP)—German men have cropped the hair of several German girls for talking with British soldiers.

The girls reported many newly discharged German soldiers said they had been told by their superior officers to cut the hair of girls they found fraternizing with Allied troops. Partisans in France, Belgium and other countries so marked some women accused of associating with the Germans.

A lot of man hours have been lost in getting in the harvest because hundreds of Germans working on farms have been quitting early to be with their girls at "promenade time" between 6 P.M. and 10 P.M. curfew.

Russians Print Hitler Rumor

Moscow, July 19 (AP)—Reports published abroad to the effect that Adolf Hitler is now hiding in Argentina were reprinted today in the Soviet press, together with a cartoon in the army organ Red Star showing a seaful of rats wearing Nazi swastikas swimming to a shore labeled "Argentina."

The cartoon showed an Argentinian standing on the shore and pointing to a sign reading "Shelter for war criminals" in large letters and underneath—in very small letters—"not given."

Deemed Surrender to Germans Best for My People, Says Leopold

ST. WOLFGANG, Austria, July 19—(AP) King Leopold of Belgium said today he surrendered himself to the Germans in May of 1940 "because I felt I should stay with my people and also because I felt that with me in Belgium the Germans would rule the country on a military instead of a civilian basis."

In an interview with Stars and Stripes reporter Joe Western, the 43-year-old monarch also declared that he surrendered his country because it was impossible for it to fight any longer at that time.

Leopold has been sharply criticized by some Belgians for surrendering both himself and his forces. Some Belgian groups have demanded that he abdicate. After conferences with government leaders, he has decided not to give up his throne but to remain away from Belgium temporarily.

He told Western today he would not quit the throne until the Belgian people have "a democratic opportunity" to select their own leaders in "a free and honest election."

Denies "Evil Stories"

Leopold reiterated that "there is no truth in the evil stories spread in the early years of the war that my surrender was premeditated and pre-arranged with the Nazis."

"I am human and I have made mistakes," he said, "but they were mistakes of method, not of principle.

"I have a clear conscience, which I believe, cannot be said of many people whom I trusted."

"I surrendered myself with the words 'I am your prisoner' just like any other soldier," he said.

"I did this instead of fleeing to France or England with some of my ministers," he continued, "because I felt that I should stay with my people and also because I felt that with me in Belgium the Germans would rule the country on a military instead of a civilian basis.

"This happened, and I believe that it was for the best interest of my people."

"As a matter of record, the government was changed from military to civil soon after I was sent to Austria by the Nazis.

Taken to Austria

"I was taken to Strobl, Austria, by the Nazis at 8 p. m., June 6, D day, from a castle at Slaken near Brussels where I had been held by the Nazis since the Belgian surrender.

"I was a prisoner of war and I was treated like one."

The interviewer said the king looked harried and did not smile often. He talked slowly and betrayed nervousness by a twitching of his hands.

Asked about his graying hair, Leopold said "it became like that in the past five years."

He emphasized that after his rescue from the Germans he was treated as a "guest" by United States soldiers and was not detained in St. Wolfgang.

Allied Tribunal Deems Italian Must Die

JUL 19 1945

Milan, Italy, July 19 (AP)—A three-man Allied military tribunal condemned 20-year-old Fermo Lini to death today and sentenced four other men to varying prison terms after convicting them on charges of banding together to kill Fascists or to seize their property.

Lini, accused of being the leader of the group, broke into sobs as Lieut. Col. William F. Waugh, former Chicago attorney, pronounced sentence in a tense courtroom in Milan's Palace of Justice. Lini's sister screamed and collapsed.

Others Sentenced

Andrea Colombo and Achille Lovati, convicted on a charge of aggravated homicide, were sentenced to 30 years imprisonment due to mitigating circumstances. Albert Biserli and Emilio Garibaldi, who were not implicated in killing two Fascists early in June, were convicted on a theft charge and sentenced to ten and six years imprisonment, respectively.

Waugh said all the sentences were subject to review by the legal sub commission of the Allied commission in Rome which will recommend final disposition to Rear Admiral Ellery Stone, chief commissioner. If the death sentence is upheld Lini will be executed by a firing squad.

Weapons Charge Minor One

The factional press represented the case, the first of its kind in northern Italy, as a trial merely for the illegal possession of weapons in violation of an Allied Military Government proclamation. Waugh said that charge actually was merely a minor count.

Witnesses testified that two Fascists were killed by a man named Forti, who was a member of the band, upon direct orders of Lini. According to the testimony, Forti then robbed the bodies of both victims and paid Lini, Colombo and Lovati 1,000 lire ($10) each out of the proceeds. Forti still is at large.

"The Mustache" In Custody

Waugh said that the accused men originally belonged to a legitimate Garibaldi Partisan brigade but upon the order of a leader known as "The Mustache" they failed to obey an Allied proclamation to disband. "The Mustache" now is in custody and will be tried separately, probably by an Italian court.

Waugh said the defendants "banded themselves together to commit a series of crimes—to kill Fascists and illegally and unlawfully to enrich themselves by appropriating the property of those so killed."

Lehman Denies He'll Quit UNRRA Post

Athens, July 19 (AP)—Herbert H. Lehman denied today that he planned to resign as director of the UNRRA. A report to this effect had been circulated by the United Press and conveyed here by the Army News Service.

"I've not given any consideration to resigning," Lehman told a press conference. "So long as I can be of assistance I shall continue to fight with the utmost spirit to obtain additional supplies for liberated Europe from supplying countries, because I have seen in Athens and in other countries the great need of the people and the necessity of bringing assistance to them."

Bulgarians Attack Britons

ATHENS, July 19 (AP).—An authoritative source reported today that a band of Bulgarians had fired on a British car near Florina, killing one occupant, wounding two others and seizing the remaining four, who were released after having been robbed of their clothing. An official investigation was begun.

FINNISH ARMY OFFICERS ARE SEIZED BY POLICE

HELSINKI, July 19—(AP) A communique said tonight that police had arrested a number of Finnish army officers on charges of concealing stored weapons and ammunition with a view of using the arms against the Helsinki government.

The number of arrests was not stated but among those listed were operations Staff Generals Airo, Nihtoila and Haathi.

The first cache of weapons was discovered in the Uleaaborg district last May, the communique said, and the investigation is still in progress.

Minister of Interior Yrjoe Leino first announced alleged plans for a military coup in parliament recently.

Franco Reported Ready To Alter Whole Cabinet

Monarchists and Clericals Said To Be in New Ministry

MADRID, July 19 (AP).—High government informants said today that Generalissimo Franco would announce a new Spanish Cabinet tonight, changing virtually every minister.

Names were not announced. It was learned, however, that the slate will include a number of persons known as Don Juan monarchists and civilian spokesmen of the Catholic Church of Spain, rather than Falangists.

JUL 19 1945

The new cabinet was said to be designed to bridge what Franco called the "preparative period" between the present regime and the monarchy he has promised to restore. How many months or years Franco expects the new cabinet to serve until a king is enthroned still is vague.

Drive Back 3 Columns Pushing Across Indo-China Border

Chungking, July 19 (AP)—Thirteen hundred Japanese troops, striking across the Indo-China border in three columns, have been beaten back by Chinese defenders in a two-day battle, the Chinese high command announced today.

Aided by Indo-Chinese puppets, the Japanese attacked last Saturday from a point 13 miles northeast of Caobank, driving at three towns on the Chinese side of the frontier, but by Monday all had been knocked back across the border, a communiqué said.

Battle Near Road Junction

The enemy, apparently nervous over [illegible] thrusts into Indo-China, launched the assault from Tra Linh, 2 miles south of the frontier. The battle raged at points south, southwest and southeast of Tsingsi, Chinese road junction 15 miles north of the frontier.

This action flared 140 miles northwest of Moncay, port city in the extreme northeast corner of Indo-China.

To the northeast, Chinese forces seized a point 14 miles northwest of the great airbase city of Kweilin on Tuesday and pressed on toward the city, the high command said.

Kweilin's fall is "imminent," said a central news dispatch from Yungning quoting Gen. Chang Fah-kwei, commander of Chinese forces in Kwangsi province.

Set For Attack On Coast

Chang declared the war picture is "very encouraging," and that "by using bases in Kwangsi our troops can attack Japanese forces on the coast," the dispatch added. It said he predicted the fall within ten days of Tsangwu (Wuchow), a West River port 150 miles southeast of Kweilin and 115 west of Canton.

Six Chinese columns are closing on Kweilin, and advance units already are fighting in the southern suburbs by Chinese account. A Chinese communiqué said at least 226 Japanese were killed earlier in a battle 23 miles northwest of Kweilin, before the new advance carried to within 14 miles or less from the city.

Another Chinese force, pushing toward the city from the south on a circuitous highway from Liuchow, bypassed Hsiujenhsien and advanced toward the junction city of Laipo, 60 miles east of Liuchow and about 58 south of Kweilin, the communiqué said.

Japanese Take Junction

In new actions along the China coast, the high command said Japanese forces fighting from Amoy toward Swatow had captured Yunsiao, road junction 60 miles northeast of Swatow, and then had pushed on another 6 miles against Chinese opposition. But Japanese remnants some 20 miles farther northeast near Changpu were being mopped up, it added.

Along the South China Sea, the communiqué said, Chinese forces pushed 9½ miles eastward from Tinpak. Fighting also broke out some 80 miles northeast of Tinpak, where isolated Japanese troops on the Canton-Yeungkong highway tried to break out.

The high command also announced that Chinese forces on July 5 recaptured Pukiang, 150 miles southwest of Shanghai and 55 south of Hangchow. Chinese at Pukiang can threaten the Japanese-operated section of the Chekiang-Kiangsi railroad south of Hangchow, a spokesman explained.

Japs Retreat From Kanhsien

Inland, more than 100 enemy troops were killed in a retreat along the Kan River north of the rewon airbase city of Kanhsien, the Chinese said. The Chinese declared they destroyed fifteen river craft and damaged sixteen loaded with troops and loot. The Japanese, however, advanced farther toward Wanan on the Kan River 45 miles north of Kanhsien, the communiqué admitted.

United States Mustangs supported Chinese ground troops fighting in the Suichwan area near by.

[A Yenan broadcast declared Chinese Communist forces in the north in Shantung province had captured two towns—Chanhua, 75 miles northeast of Tsinan, and Shanhsien, 140 miles southwest of Tsinan. The FCC recorded the broadcast.]

American headquarters declared 14th Air Force fighters and bombers destroyed or damaged 87 locomotives in sweeps from July 11 to July 17 over railroads in northern China above the Yellow River.

Nips Driven Back Over Frontier Of Indo-China

MOOSA

Chungking, July 19 (AP)—In a new outbreak of fighting along the Indo-China frontier, Japanese and puppet Indo-Chinese troops who launched attacks against three points inside China have been driven back across the border, the Chinese high command reported today.

About 1,300 Japanese, aided by puppet forces, launched the attacks July 14 from Tra Linh, some 13 miles northeast of Caobang. On July 16 the enemy troops were driven out of China, the high command said.

To the [illegible] other Chinese forces continued [illegible] pronged drive on the former United States 14th Airbase city of Kweilin. One column, driving along a subsidiary highway leading from Liuchow to Kweilin, bypassed the enemy-held town of Hsiujenhsien, 47 miles east of Liuchow, and headed for the highway junction of Laipo, where the road swings north to Kweilin.

Situation Of Laipo

Laipo is about 60 miles south of Kweilin and about the same distance east of Liuchow. This force had previously been reported at the approaches of Hsiujenhsien.

A Chinese column pressing toward Kweilin from the northwest captured a point 14 miles from the former American base and pushed on toward the city.

[Meanwhile, to the far northeast, Chinese Communist forces have driven the Japanese from two towns and are advancing on another, according to a Communist Yenan radio broadcast heard by the FCC.

Chanhua Captured

[The broadcast said the 8th Route Army had captured Chanhua, 75 miles northeast of Tsinan in the northern province of Shantung, clearing out Japanese and puppets and the town of Shanhsien about 65 miles northwest of Tungshan, about 165 miles south of Tsinan. Tsinan is 180 miles south of Tientsin.

[The broadcast added that Communist troops were now pressing toward Hweimin, about 20 miles southwest of Chanhua.]

The high command admitted that part of the Japanese garrison from Amoy which was heading overland toward Swatow had captured the highway junction of Yunsiao against Chinese resistance. Yunsiao is on the costal highway 65 miles northeast of Swatow.

Chinese Forces Mop Up

In the meantime Chinese forces mopped up the enemy east, south and west of Changpu, on the highway 20 miles northwest of Yusiang.

The high command belatedly announced that Chinese regulars aided by local militia, on July 5 recaptured Pukiang, 150 miles southwest of Shanghai and 55 miles south of Hangchow, the main enemy base in Chekiang province.

The Japanese, however, scored gains in the drive toward Wanan on the Kan River, 45 miles north of Kanhsien, the high command said.

Japanese troops which were menacing Kanhsien from points 5 and 9½ miles to the southeast were counterattacked by Chinese forces on July 16, the high command said.

BIG LANDING NEED DOUBTED BY CHIANG

General Says Chinese Troops and American Air Force Could Oust Japanese

CHUNGKING, China, July 19 (AP)—In the first interview that he ever granted to an American soldier, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek told Sgt. Walter E. Peters of Yank that he believed that a huge American land offensive in China would not be necessary to defeat Japan.

"Given proper equipment and supplies, the Chinese Army—together with a strong American air force—can defeat the Japanese on the continent," Sergeant Peters quoted the Generalissimo as saying. Sergeant Peters, a recent luncheon guest of the Generalissimo at the latter's summer home south of Chungking, wrote that he had told General Chiang that there was an impression among Americans in China that he had said that one Chinese soldier was equal to three Americans.

"It is an erroneous impression," Sergeant Peters quoted General Chiang as declaring. "The American soldier is much better equipped. I hold much admiration for the great accomplishments of the American soldiers.

"The point that I wanted to bring out was that where it takes $10 for one American soldier, only $1 is necessary for ours.

"We must remember that the Chinese soldier is fighting in his own homeland. He knows the topography better than anyone else. He is more suitable to the climate and conditions of fighting. To send American troops where we can employ Chinese troops is not very logical. It would be a big strain on the line of communications."

General Chiang told Sergeant Peters that he was looking forward to visiting the United States before the end of the war to meet President Truman.

CHIANG URGED TO GET REDS IN UNITY REGIME

CHUNGKING, China, July 19 (AP)—A resolution favoring postponement of the scheduled Nov. 12 meeting of the National Assembly, called to introduce a constitutional government in China, was passed unanimously today by the People's Political Council.

The resolution suggested that the session be put off until not later than the end of this year.

The same resolution urged that the Government of China, meanwhile, exert the utmost effort to achieve a settlement with the Chinese Communists for the sake of national unity. It also requested the immediate granting of civil liberties to the people.

The resolution requires the approval of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang before it can be put into effect.

Rope Is Urged For Hirohito

Chungking, July 19 (AP)—The English-Language National Herald, mouthpiece of the Chinese Foreign Office, announced its support today of proposals by the Peoples Political Council that Emperor Hirohito be proclaimed a war criminal and hanged by China and her allies.

"Hirohito should be held responsible for Japan's policy of aggression, as well as for innumerable atrocities perpetrated by Japanese militarists on different battlefronts," the publication said.

"After Japan's defeat, unless Hirohito cheats justice by committing suicide, he must be brought to book, together with other Japanese warlords. If he is unable to disprove the charges brought against him—and we do not think he can—let him be hanged with the rest of the gang."

Japs Shell Gurkha Troops In Burma

Calcutta, July 19 (AP) — Gurkha troops who occupied Laya railway station, 26 miles northeast of Pegu, have been shelled by Japanese artillery massed in the lower Sittang River bend area for what Allied officers said might be the showdown battle of that area.

Other enemy forces in the area of Myitkyo, 29 miles north-northeast of Pegu, have "reacted vigorously" to British attempts to probe their positions, Southeast Asia Command headquarters said today.

Canadian 1st To Disband

JUL 19 1945

Ottawa, July 19 (AP)—The Canadian 1st Army which campaigned to victory under General Eisenhower's supreme command will be dissolved July 31, the Defense Minister, Gen. Andrew McNaughton, announced today. Gen. Henry Crerar, its commander, will sail for Canada on that date.

Canadian troops remaining on the Continent will be commanded by Lieut. Gen. Guy Simonds, former commander of the Canadian 2d Corps, and will be known as "Canadian forces in the Netherlands."

Lieut. Gen. Charles Foulkes, commander of the Canadian 1st Corps, will become chief of the general staff, succeeding Lieut. Gen. John Murchie, who will go to London as chief of staff at Canadian military headquarters.

Writer Accuses Argentine Agents

Rio de Janeiro, July 19 (AP)—John Nasht, traveling correspondent for the magazine Newsweek, reiterated today that three Argentine Government agents told him July 14 in Buenos Aires that he would not be permitted to leave the country unless he signed a Government-prepared statement correcting a dispatch he sent to Newsweek.

Nasht said he signed the statement and left the next day. On his arrival here he publicly described the incident. The press office of the Argentine Ministry of War then issued a formal communiqué yesterday accusing him of "bad faith."

The correspondent said the Argentine agents had objected to his report that the deaths of three Argentine colonels were announced several days after they died, that mutual aid societies rather than the families made the announcement, and that there was no indication that they were buried with military honors.

The corrective statement which he signed, he said, declared that "my story was wrong inasmuch as the families of the three colonels announced their deaths."

The War Ministry communiqué said Nasht "apparently forgot" he had signed the statement when he announced that he had been "menaced" by the Government agents, who visited him in his hotel room.

The correspondent asserted today that the agents had refused to permit him to inform the United States Embassy of their statements and that his principal objection had been to the manner in which he was approached.

SENATE APPROVES BRETTON WOODS MONETARY PLAN

System to Stabilize Postwar Monies of World Passes 61 to 16.

BUCK TO HOUSE

U. S. Is Set Down for $2,750,000,000 Share of Total Fund.

WASHINGTON, July 19 — (AP) The Senate today voted its approval of the Bretton Woods plan to stabilize the postwar monies of the world and help finance reconstruction.

The vote, 61 to 16, returned the measure to the House. Expected agreement there on minor technical amendments will give final Congressional approval of the administration-backed program intended to steady the economy of a world recovering from war.

U. S. Share is Large

The plan puts the United States down for a $2,750,000,000 share of a proposed $8,800,000,000 fund to stabilize world currencies and a $3,175,000,000 capital subscription to a $9,100,000,000 bank to make loans for reconstruction and development.

With administration forces in easy control of the final day's debate, the Senate rejected every attempt to alter the plan. It apparently took its cue from Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky.) who argued an amendment to the agreement would kill the entire proposal and force the world into another monetary conference such as last year's Bretton Woods meeting of 44 nations which produced the international bank and fund proposal.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), leading opponent of the agreements, sought in vain to limit the use of the stabilizing fund and to eliminate entirely U. S. participation in the bank.

His test amendment—denying any nation access to the world stabilization fund if it retains trading restrictions on its own currency—was voted down after Barkley declared:

"The effect of this amendment is to kill the entire agreement."

From there on it was smooth sailing for the Bretton Woods supporters. They even turned back, 49 to 26, a proposal by Senator Ball (R-Minn.) which would have authorized the United States representative to propose an amendment under which participating nations would have to abolish currency restrictions three years hence.

Barkley told the Senate that the House will accept minor amendments already written into the bill, but he had no assurance it would approve the Ball proposal—and he doubted if that adjournment-bound chamber could get a quorum together for a record vote anyway.

Warn of Delay

The result, he said, might be that the plan would be stymied by a minor amendment until the House returns from recess on Oct. 8.

The vote against Taft's proposal was 53 to 23.

Urging the amendment, Taft said the United States, through its proposed contribution to a world fund, was preparing to turn its money over to Great Britain whose present "policy is one of economic isolationism."

"All I propose," he said, "is that countries which deal with this fund show they have the ability to reimburse it."

"The effect of this amendment is to kill the entire agreement," declared Barkley. "It would amend materially the agreement itself and make it necessary to hold another world currency conference."

The present proposals came from a 44-nation conference at Bretton Woods, N. H., a year ago.

Senator Tunnel (D-Del.) asked if the practical effect of the Taft amendment would be "to notify Great Britain that she ought not to become a member of this organization?"

Barkley replied that Britain certainly would not be able to remove currency restrictions as long as the war with Japan lasts.

"It would be saying to Great Britain that, under present conditions, you can't join," he said.

Wouldn't that be a death knell to the whole proposition?" Tunnel demanded.

"Oh, of course," Barkley said. "I think that's what the senator from Ohio wants."

With the Taft amendment out of the way, the Senate rolled rapidly toward a final vote on the agreement for a world stabilization fund and reconstruction bank, rejecting by voice votes a number of amendments submitted from the Republican side of the aisle.

U.S. FOR FREE POLISH NEWS

State Department Advocates Self-Determination For Poles

Washington, July 19 (AP)—The State Department promised today to seek full publicity for the situation in Poland and reiterated that it stands for self-determination for the Polish people.

Acting Secretary Joseph C. Grew stated the department's position in response to a letter from Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.), who said that to him and to millions of other people, the Polish settlement seemed "inadequate and unconvincing."

"There still seems to be no clear assurance," Vandenberg wrote, "that the Polish people will themselves have the final opportunity of untrammeled self-determination under this new provisional government which is imposed upon them by Britain, Russia and the United States, within Polish boundaries similarly dictated by these external powers."

U.S. To Keep Close Watch

Grew replied that the new Polish Government was set up by the Poles themselves, but indicated the United States would seek to keep close watch to see that actually free elections carry out the rest of the Yalta agreement on Poland.

"It is clear . . . that the creation of the new government does not alone discharge us from the responsibilities we assumed at Yalta," Grew wrote.

His letter laid stress on the proposed elections by numerous references, and pointed up continuing American interest by two separate mentions of the assignment of Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane to keep this Government "informed about the situation in Poland."

The Questions And Answers

The questions raised by Vandenberg and the replies given by Grew follow, in brief:

1. Will the Poles themselves have "the final opportunity of untrammeled self-determination under this new provisional government imposed upon them by Britain, Russia and the United States?"

REPLY—Members of the Russian-sponsored Polish Government "and other Polish democratic leaders from within Poland and from abroad" agreed on the new "government of national unity." Therefore, "the new government was not imposed upon the Polish people" by the Big Three.

2. Is American responsibility under the Yalta agreement "presumed to have been discharged by the creation of this new provisional government?"

REPLY—No. The Yalta agreement provides that the Big Three ambassadors "shall keep their respective governments informed about the situation in Poland."

3. "Will the United States be permitted to send full diplomatic and consular representatives into Poland?"

REPLY—The Polish Government has asked for diplomatic relations and Ambassador Arthur Bliss Lane and aides "are making arrangements to proceed to Warsaw as soon as possible."

4. "Will the American press be permitted to send its uncensored correspondents into Poland?"

REPLY—"The United States Government will use its full influence" to see to it that American correspondents "be permitted to enter Poland in order that the American public may be informed of the situation in that area." The Government likewise is pressing Russia for authorization for American correspondents to enter eastern and southeastern Europe in order to be in a position to report accurately to the American public on developments there.

5. Will the United States participate on an equal basis in supervising free elections in Poland "to make certain they are 'free' in fact as well as name?"

REPLY—The United States has been promised by the Polish Government that elections will conform with the Yalta decisions. This was one of the vital points of recognition. If it is decided to supervise the elections, the United States will "insist upon its right to participate on an equal basis with the other powers."

Concluding, Grew said that President Truman, like President Roosevelt, has called for "a strong, free and independent Polish state" as agreed on at Yalta and American policy continues unequivocally on that base.

JUL 19 1945

Questions and Answers on Poland

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—An exchange of letters between Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Republican, Michigan) and Under-Secretary of State Joseph C. Grew, as made public by the Senator:

Hon. Joseph C. Grew,
Under-Secretary of State,
Washington, D. C.

My Dear Mr. Secretary:

In the absence of the Secretary, I take the liberty of addressing this inquiry to you.

It is clear that the settlement of the Polish question thus far made is inadequate and unconvincing to millions of our citizens, among whom I may say that I am numbered.

There still seems to be no clear assurance that the Polish people will themselves have the final opportunity of untrammeled self-determination under this new provisional government which is imposed upon them by Britain, Russia and the United States, within Polish boundaries similarly dictated by these external powers.

Asks Three Questions

I wish to inquire whether our responsibility, under the Yalta Agreement, is presumed to have been discharged by the creation of this new provisional government or whether the three-power obligation continues until the promised "free elections" have actually occurred. If the obligation continues, as would seem to be our own unavoidable share of this responsibility, I wish to ask the following questions:

1. When the new provisional government begins to operate, will the United States be permitted to send full diplomatic and consular representatives into Poland?

2. Will the American press be permitted to send its uncensored correspondents into Poland?

3. Will the United States participate, on an equality with the other powers, under their Yalta obligation, in a general supervision of these "free elections" to make certain they are "free" in fact as well as name?

I am sure you will agree that we can not be guilty of default in any of these directions; and that the greatest measure of realistic self-determination for the Polish people, including the members of the Polish Army which has played such an heroic part in our victory over the Axis, is the only course consistent with the Atlantic Charter, the Moscow Declaration, the Yalta Agreement, and the San Francisco Charter. I respectfully urge that the full weight of our American influence should be exerted in behalf of final determinations which will clearly serve the ends of justice in behalf of Poland, not only for the sake of Poland but also for the sake of all the great powers concerned (and our unity) and for the sake of the international peace and security which we are unitedly seeking to stabilize.

I shall welcome any information you can give me upon this subject in response to my questions.

With sentiments of great respect and with warm personal regards, I beg to remain

Cordially and faithfully,
A. H. VANDENBERG.

Mr. Grew's Reply

My dear Senator Vandenberg:

I have received your letter of July 9, 1945, in which you raise several questions concerning the new Polish Provisional Government of National Unity, recently established in Warsaw, and the United States Government's policy toward that Government. For greater convenience to you, I have considered individually, in the order of their appearance in your letter, your several statements and questions:

1. "There still seems to be no clear assurance that the Polish people will themselves have the final opportunity of untrammeled self-determination under this new provisional Government which is imposed upon them by Britain, Russia and the United States, within Polish boundaries similarly dictated by these external powers."

Since the rival Polish groups in Poland and in London were unable to settle their differences, it was decided at Yalta to set up a commission, composed of Mr. [Vyacheslaff M.] Molotoff, People's Commissar for Foreign Affairs of the U.S.S.R., Sir Archibald Clark-Kerr, British Ambassador to the U.S.S.R., and Mr. W. Averell Harriman, American Ambassador to the U.S.S.R., which would be empowered to bring these groups together in order that members of the Polish Provisional Government then functioning in Warsaw and other Polish democratic leaders from within Poland and from abroad would consult with a view to the reorganization of the provisional Government on a broader democratic basis, and the formation of a new Polish Provisional Government of National Unity with which the Governments of the United States, the United Kingdom and the Soviet Union could establish diplomatic relations. Arrangements were finally made to bring the three groups of Poles together, and they met in Moscow between June 17 and 21 to discuss the composition of the new Government. On June 21 the leaders informed the commission established by the Crimea Conference that complete accord had been reached by them regarding the formation of a new Polish Provisional Government of National Unity. After studying the report submitted by the Polish leaders the three commissioners concluded that the Polish groups represented had set up a Government in conformity with the Crimea decisions. The commission's decision was accepted by the Government of the United States, the United Kingdom and the Soviet Union.

Regime "Not Imposed"

Thus, since this government was set up by the Poles themselves, the new government was not imposed upon the Polish people by the United States, Great Britain and the Soviet Union.

2. "I wish to inquire whether our responsibility, under the Yalta Agreement, is presumed to have been discharged by the creation of this new provisional government or whether the three-power obligation continues until the promised 'free elections' have actually occurred."

The formation of the new Polish Provisional Government of National Unity constituted a positive step in the fulfillment of the Crimea decisions. The decisions will be further implemented when the new government carries out its pledge to hold free and unfettered elections as soon as possible on the basis of universal suffrage and the secret ballot. In this connection the Crimea decisions also provide that the Ambassadors in Polond of the three powers shall keep their respective governments informed about the situation in Poland. It is clear, therefore, that the creation of the new government does not alone discharge us from the responsibilities we assumed at Yalta.

3. "When the new provisional government begins to operate, will the United States be permitted to send full diplomatic and consular representatives into Poland?"

Mr. [Edward] Osubka-Morawski, Prime Minister of the new Polish Provisional Government of National Unity, in his message to President Truman requesting the establishment of diplomatic relations with his Government stated:

"I have the honor in the name of the Provisional Government of National Unity to approach the Government of the United States of America with a request for the establishment of diplomatic relations between our nations and for the exchange of representatives with the rank of Ambassador."

On the basis of the assurances given by the United States at the Crimea Conference, President Truman established diplomatic relations with the new government and informed the Prime Minister that he had chosen as Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to Poland the Honorable Arthur Bliss Lane. Ambassador Lane and initial members of his staff are making arrangements to proceed to Warsaw as soon as possible and, thus in accordance with the Crimea decisions, the Ambassador will be in a position to keep this Government "informed about the situation in Poland."

Asks Freedom for Press

4. "Will the American press be permitted to send its uncensored correspondents into Poland?"

In the discussions relative to the recognition of the new Polish Provisional Government of National Unity, the United States Government made it clear that it expected American correspondents to be permitted to enter Poland in order that the American public may be informed of the situation in that area. You may be assured that the United States Government will use its full influence to attain this desired end.

In addition to these conversations regarding the entry of American correspondents into Poland, the Department of State has for some time been pressing the Soviet authorities for authorization for American correspondents to enter Eastern and Southeastern Europe in order to be in a position to report accurately to the American public on developments there. The department will continue its efforts to obtain permission for American correspondents to operate freely in all areas.

5. "Will the United States participate, on an equality with the other powers, under their Yalta obligation, in a general supervision of these 'free elections' to make certain they are 'free' in fact as well as name?"

President Truman in his message to the Polish Prime Minister stated that "I am pleased to note that Your Excellency's Government has recognized in their entirety the decisions of the Crimea Conference on the Polish question, thereby confirming the intention of Your Excellency's Government to proceed with the holding of elections in Poland in conformity with the provisions of the Crimea decisions." This undertaking with regard to the holding of free and unfettered elections was one of the vital points considered in connection with the establishment of diplomatic relations between this Government and the new Polish Provisional Government of National unity.

As indicated above, the American Ambassador and his staff will make reports on the situation in Poland and on the basis of these reports this Government will give consideration to the question of whether supervision of elections would be advisable. If it is decided to supervise the elections, the United States Government will, of course, insist upon its right to participate on an equal basis with the other powers.

In conclusion, I wish to point out that American policy with regard to Poland continues to be based on the decisions of the Crimea Conference. Both President Roosevelt and President Truman have gone on record that the United States Government stands unequivocally for a strong, free and independent Polish state.

I welcome this opportunity to exchange views with you, since I believe it is of vital importance that the members of the Congress be afforded a clear understanding of questions relating to our foreign relations and policy. Under such conditions the State Department can best carry out the foreign policy of the United States as determined by the President and the Congress.

Sincerely Yours,
JOSEPH C. GREW,
Acting Secretary.

The Ticonderoga Fights Again, Suicide Raid Jan. 21 Killed 144

Carrier Badly Damaged by Two Kamikaze Blows in Hour; Ballast Tanks on One Side Filled to Give Vessel a List, Pour Off Flaming Gasoline

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The aircraft carrier Ticonderoga suffered 337 casualties and terrific damage when struck by two Japanese suicide planes near Formosa on Jan. 21. Disclosing this today, the Navy said casualties included 144 killed or missing.

A comparative newcomer to the fleet—she arrived only last November—the Ticonderoga nevertheless amassed a record that included the sinking of one heavy cruiser, a light cruiser, two destroyers, four destroyer escorts, four large oilers, five freighters or freighter transports and fourteen miscellaneous craft.

Even as she was struck, her planes were busy lashing enemy installations on Formosa.

Despite the heavy damage, her crew brought her back to the Bremerton, Wash., Navy Yard, where workers put in 135,000 man-days repairing her. Now she is back in the fight, better equipped than ever.

During her first tour her aircraft, in addition to enemy ships sunk, destroyed or damaged 207 enemy planes, probably sank four more destroyers, one more destroyer escort, four more large oilers and twenty more freighters or freighter transports and damaged sixty-seven ships of various categories. Her planes also destroyed and damaged ground installations on Formosa, in Indo-China and on the South China coast, including Hong Kong, and pounded Luzon to support the invasions and assist in the elimination of enemy air power in the Philippines.

At the time she was attacked the Ticonderoga had just returned from the 3d Fleet's daring sweep into the South China Sea. A minute after noon on Jan. 21 a single-engine Japanese plane, apparently a Zeke, came out of the sun and through a cloud bank to crash through the flight deck. The bomb exploded between the gallery deck and the hangar deck, which was packed with aircraft being refueled and rearmed. Main girders in the vicinity of the explosion were twisted by blast and heat. The fire, fed by gasoline, spread swiftly to the wardroom passage and the staterooms.

On the bridge, her skipper, Commodore (then Captain) Dixie Kiefer, of Kansas City, changed course to keep the wind from feeding the fire. Below decks, her executive officer, Commander William O. Burch, of Norfolk, supervised the flooding of magazines to prevent explosions and of other compartments to give the ship a 10-degree list. This dumped flaming gasoline overboard from the hangar deck.

Under Commander (then Lieutenant Commander) Francis Mallory jr., of Norfolk, the crew fought the flames and jettisoned bombs. Loaded gasoline tanks were punctured and drained overboard to avoid explosions. Fire fighters and plane handlers removed smoldering and burning planes and shoved them overboard while the flames were confined to the forward portion of the hangar deck.

Skipper Had 65 Wounds

Then, while all this was in progress, the crippled ship was hit again. Overhead, her planes had shot down five of the enemy, and her anti-aircraft gunners had accounted for three more. But through the curtain of A-A fire the second Kamikaze, although hit, crashed his plane and bomb load into the ship's superstructure. One of his two bombs exploded just outside the island, and the other just inboard of the island, ripping holes in the flight deck and starting more fires.

Among those caught in the second attack were Commander Burch, who was seriously wounded, and Commodore Kiefer, wounded in sixty-five separate places.

Despite his injuries, however, Commodore Kiefer continued for twelve hours to direct his ship and refused treatment until midnight, when he was assured that all injured men had been cared for.

The second plane struck just before 1 o'clock, and by 2:37 all fires were under control without assistance from other ships.

At the end of her struggle, the Ticonderoga still was able to launch and land aircraft.

Calls Kamikazes Effective

CHICAGO, July 19 (AP).—Japanese Kamikaze or suicide planes obtain "four to five times" as many hits on naval craft "as can be accomplished in normal dive bombing or horizontal bombing," Commodore Dixie Kiefer, captain of the aircraft carrier Ticonderoga, said today.

The commodore told a press conference that suicide bombing was effective "because it is fairly easy for a ship to maneuver away from other types of bombing but impossible to maneuver away from a plane that is being steered."

"I believe the Jap air force and factories have been so badly battered they just don't have any planes to send out," he said. "Some of the suicide planes are old, obsolete crates. If they had any planes up their sleeve there would be no better place to use them than off the coast of Japan right now."

The Baka bomb—a pilot-driven suicide bomb carried under the belly of another plane—is not in wide use by the Japanese, Commodore Kiefer stated.

"If we'd been six months slower in our offensive, I believe our task would have been ten times as hard," he declared, "because they were just building Baka bombs when we went in. By the time they had perfected the bomb we had shot down most of the planes capable of carrying that type of bomb."

Commodore Kiefer still has one arm in a cast. He lay on a mattress outside the wrecked bridge and directed the ship's emergency repairs, refusing medical aid for twelve hours after the Japanese plane struck, then walked down eleven decks to the sick bay.

The veteran Navy man, in Chicago for a Navy broadcast, attributes the fact that all fires were extinguished before any of the carrier's own bombs exploded to a quick starboard turn, made four minutes after the hit.

The commodore, a bachelor, is now commanding officer of the Naval Air Station at Quonset, R. I., and has command of twenty-nine naval air bases in the 1st Naval District, comprising the New England states. He's been promised sea duty again, he said, as soon as his arm heals.

Suicide Hit Rate '4 Times Normal'

Chicago, July 19 (AP)—Japanese Kamikaze or suicide planes score "four to five times" as many hits on naval craft "as can be accomplished in normal dive bombing or horizontal bombing," Commodore Dixie Kiefer, captain of the aircraft carrier Ticonderoga, said today.

The Navy disclosed today the Ticonderoga suffered 337 casualties and extensive fire and bomb damage when struck by two Jap suicide planes near Formosa last January.

The commodore told a press conference that suicide bombing was effective "because it is fairly easy for a ship to maneuver away from other types of bombing but impossible to maneuver away from a plane that is being steered."

Jap Air Force Battered

"I believe the Jap air force and factories have been so badly battered they just don't have any planesto send out," he said at a press conference. "Some of the suicide planes are old, obsolete crates. If they had any planes up their sleeve there would be no better place to use them than off the coast of Japan right now."

The Baka bomb—a pilot-driven suicide bomb carried under the belly of another plane—is not in wide use by the Japs, Kiefer stated.

"If we'd been six months slower in our offensive, I believe our task would have been ten times as hard," he declared, "because they were just building Baka bombs when we went in. By the time they had perfected the bombs we had shot down most of the planes capable of carrying that type of bomb."

Arm In A Cast

Kiefer, wounded in 65 places by bomb fragments when the Ticonderoga was hit, still has one arm in a cast. He lay on a mattress outside the wrecked bridge and directed the ship's emergency repairs, refusing medical aid for 12 hours after the Jap plane struck, then walked down eleven decks to the sick bay.

The veteran Navy man, in Chicago for a Navy broadcast, attributes the fact that all fires were extinguished before any of the carrier's own bombs exploded to a quick starboard turn, made four minutes after the hit.

WAR CASUALTIES RAISED BY 3,997 DURING PAST WEEK

WASHINGTON, July 19—(AP) Combat casualties reported by the armed forces since Pearl Harbor reached 1,053,101 today, an increase of 3,997 in the past week.

The rise was one of the smallest in weeks. The Army reported losses of 917,442, an increase of 1,724, and the Navy listed casualties of 135,659, a gain of 2,273.

Undersecretary of War Patterson also reported that Army casualties in the Philippines from the time of the landings on Leyte last October until July 7 totalled 59,656 including 12,035 killed, 46,425 wounded and 1,196 missing.

Patterson said that he did not have exact figures on enemy losses in the Philippines but that the campaign had cost the Japanese "well over 450,000 troops."

He also reported that total Army casualties in the Okinawa campaign through July 7 amounted to 18,412. This included 3,761 killed, 14,415 wounded and 236 missing.

A breakdown on Army casualties as reported and corresponding figures for the preceding week:

Killed 194,447 and 193,508; wounded 568,976 and 567,674; missing 36,303 and 37,323; prisoners 117,716 and 117,213. The decline in the number of missing apparently represented transfers to other categories.

Patterson reported that 348,196 of the wounded are back in service and that 94,742 of the prisoners have been exchanged or returned to military control.

A similar breakdown on Navy casualties:

Killed 50,363 and 49,657; wounded 70,072 and 68,165; missing 11,431 and 11,454; prisoners 3,793 and 4,110. The reductions in the missing and prisoner classifications for the Navy also apparently reflected transfers to other categories.

RANKIN CONDEMNS STIMSON AND AIDES

Demands They Resign Over Commissioning of 'Communists'—His Attack Assailed

JUL 19 1945

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP)—Representative Rankin of Mississippi, charging that "Communists" had been commissioned in the United States Army, suggested in the House today that Secretary Stimson and his two chief aides should resign.

Democratic and Republican members of the House immediately went to the defense of the War Department leaders, one of them calling Mr. Rankin's remarks deplorable.

Mr. Rankin's suggestion that Mr. Stimson, Under-Secretary Robert P. Patterson and Assistant Secretary John J. McCloy leave office was the aftermath of publication yesterday by a House Military subcommittee of testimony in an investigation of Army policies concerning persons alleged to have Communist backgrounds.

The subcommittee made public the names of sixteen officers and enlisted men its chief counsel, H. Ralph Burton, said had backgrounds reflecting "communism in some form."

The Mississippian touched off the brief but lively discussion by expressing hope that President Truman would continue "his policy when he gets back of cleaning house, and I hope he begins next with the War Department and puts a stop to the commissioning of Communists in the United States Army."

He then named Mr. Stimson, Mr. Patterson and Mr. McCloy as the three men charged "with responsibility for these commissions."

"If they are responsible for this condition then they ought to resign," he added.

Reporters in the press gallery understood Mr. Rankin to say that Messrs. Stimson, Patterson and McCloy "are using their offices to indoctrinate men with communistic philosophy."

Later, however, Mr. Rankin revised his speech for the Congressional Record. The final version said the House Committee on Un-American activities had been "getting constant protests from men in the armed forces to the effect that these Communists who have been commissioned are using their power to try to indoctrinate the men in the armed forces with Communist philosophies."

His claim that the military subcommittee had "found that many Communists have been commissioned" was disputed by Representative Thomason of Texas, head of the subcommittee.

"We have not charged anybody with being a Communist and we have not charged anybody with being a Fascist," Mr. Thomason told the House. "We are not defending them, we are not prosecuting them; we are simply stating the facts."

Mr. Thomason said he believed some of the sixteen men named by the subcommittee had "outstanding, even brilliant, military records."

He asserted the intention of his group to continue its investigation but not "to smear anybody or to whitewash anybody."

"I do not share in that criticism," he said in reply to Mr. Rankin's reference to Messrs. Stimson, Patterson and McCloy. "In my judgment, there are no more outstanding, more patriotic and more efficient Americans than those three men. The results prove that they knew what they were doing."

Any mistakes the Army had made, he added, were "mistakes of the head and not of the heart."

Representatives Short of Missouri and Arends of Illinois, military committee members, said they concurred in Mr. Thomason's remarks and believed the entire committee did.

"These men have performed a very valuable service to their country and it is indeed unfortunate that the gentleman should attack them," interposed Chairman Sabath of the rules committee.

Representative Folger of North Carolina termed Mr. Rankin's remarks "deplorable."

Chennault Move 'Military'

Washington, July 19 (AP)—Under Secretary of War Patterson was reported to have told senators today that purely military motives dictated command changes in China that preceded the retirement of Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault.

Chennault announced his retirement when the 14th Air Force, which he had headed, was grouped with the 10th Air Force under the command of Lieut. Gen. George C. Stratemeqer in the Southeast Asia theater.

Patterson testified at a closed session of the Senate Military Committee. Senators said he was asked about reports that Chennault—as one senator put it—was "eased out" because of opposition from Chinese Communist quarters. Chennault has been a close friend of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Decision By Wedemeyer

Patterson was said to have denied this specifically, replying that Chennault was superseded in command by Stratemeyer for purely military reasons. He said the decision to elevate Stratemeyer to command of the two air forces, including about 100,000 men, was made in the field by Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, theater commander, and approved in Washington.

Patterson was also reported to have said the decision turned on the fact that Chennault was recognized as an expert tactical commander but it was believed that Stratemeyer was more capable of handling the logistics of the combined forces.

ARMY DEFENDS 16 LABELED AS REDS

Washington, July 19 (A. P.).—The War Department came to quick defense yesterday of sixteen Army officers and men described on Capitol Hill as having backgrounds which "reflect Communism in some form."

A department statement said thorough investigations of the commissioned and non-commissioned personnel listed "did not lead the Army to conclude that any of the individuals was disaffected or disloyal."

The statement was issued shortly after a House Military Subcommittee made public the names as compiled by the committee's chief counsel, H. Ralph Burton.

Still later, Major-Gen. William J. Donovan, director of the Office of Strategic Services, issued a separate statement voicing praise of the "outstanding service" of four of the officers described in the list as assigned to the OSS.

The War Department statement said the performance of all sixteen "during the last three years has clearly evidenced their loyalty to this country." The statement added:

"Beliefs, sympathies and affiliations held in prior years are factors which are weighed in the scales, but the real criterion always remains: Is the individual at the present time wholeheartedly loyal to the United States?"

Of the four OSS lieutenants, Donovan said Irving Goff, Milton Wolff and Vincent Lossowski each voluntarily enlisted for overseas service and that each while serving overseas as an enlisted man was awarded the Good Conduct Medal and later commissioned.

The fourth, Irving Fajans, Donovan said, was inducted in April, 1942, sent to Officers Candidate School and later was wounded in action and received the Purple Heart.

OPA OFFERS RECONVERSION PRICING PLAN

Intent Is to Eliminate Any Uncertainty on Ceilings for New Products.

ALLOWS FOR COST INCREASES

Proposal Gives Formulas That Enable Companies to Figure Their Own Prices Quickly.

Washington, July 19 (A. P.).—The OPA is ready to put into effect a streamlined pricing program designed to help speed reconversion to the production of consumer goods.

James F. Brownlee, Deputy Price Administrator, announced a news conference for late today to outline a plan which the OPA hopes will eliminate any business hesitancy traceable to uncertainty about price ceilings for new products.

The program retains the agency's goal of holding most retail ceilings to 1942 levels, although under certain conditions producers will be allowed increases. Wholesalers and retailers, in many cases, probably will be required to absorb all or part of those increases.

The pricing plan, it is understood, provides formulas to enable individual companies to determine their ceilings quickly, rather than waiting for the OPA to work out industrywide scales. The new system also calls for speedy approval of company ceilings to avoid production bottlenecks.

The program is designed solely for manufacturers and provides for an increase over 1942 ceilings to compensate for higher costs. Those who put 1942 price tags on products are not required to clear with the OPA.

The new system of interim individual adjustments is reported to be set up like this:

1. Manufacturers who did $200,000 or more annual business in 1941 will be allowed to adjust their October, 1941, costs to take into consideration any increase in basic wage rates and in prices for materials and parts. To this adjusted cost they may add one half of the industrywide profit margin for 1936-39. For example, a company might qualify for a cost increase of 20 per cent. If it had a profit margin of 10 cents on the dollar in 1936-39, it could add half of that to adjusted costs to derive a ceiling. When the OPA figures industrywide scales it plans to add full 1936-39 profit margins to adjusted costs.

2. Firms that had an annual business volume of $50,000 to business volume of from $50,000 to $200,000 may follow the same procedure or substitute half of their own 1936-39 profit margin for half of the industry margin.

3. Manufacturers who did less than $50,000 of business may add to all their current costs—wages, materials and all others—their own 1939 profit margain. If that margin is not available, 1940 or 1941 figures may be substituted.

Ceilings will be submitted to OPA field offices where manufacturers are located. In the case of the first group of producers, applications probably will be passed on by the OPA national office. The other two groups may consider their ceilings approved if they do not hear from the OPA field office within fifteen days.

Kaiser Predicts Post-War Era of U.S. Prosperity

Pictures West in Van With Vast Projects Providing Jobs for Thirty Million

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19 (AP).—Henry J. Kaiser today sketched his vision of a post-war Western industrial empire which would stimulate employment for 30,000,000 people in housing, transportation, highways and public health alone.

In a talk before the Commercial Club and Chamber of Commerce, the industrialist declared his belief that the West could take the lead in prepaid medical health centers, arterial highway construction, shipbuilding, steel, light metals, aircraft and automobiles. He exhorted San Franciscans to build the greatest international airport in the world.

Mr. Kaiser pointed out that mass production techniques in shipbuilding were developed on the West Coast and predicted that present shipbuilding activities may well continue through 1946. "We can produce ships in this area in competition with any shipbuilding industry in the world," he said.

Turning to his recently announced proposal for a Western steel syndicate, Mr. Kaiser said, "We can have an all-Western steel industry if we fight for it—and make no mistake, we will have to fight for it."

The Orient will be a good post-war customer for West-Coast industries, and rebuilding Europe will make a "tremendous demand for America's goods," Mr. Kaiser declared.

Mr. Kaiser also disclosed today his support of a program for nation-wide voluntary prepaid medical care.

He said he has prepared a bill for introduction in Congress by Senator Claude Pepper, Democrat of Florida, permitting establishment of group medical facilities through the Federal Housing Agency. It is planned to file the measure as an amendment to the national housing act.

SENATE PASSES TAX AID BILL

Corporation Levy Revised To Help Business Reconvert

Washington, July 19 (AP)—The Senate approved tonight revision of the corporation tax laws intended to make about $5,000,000,000 available to business to hasten reconversion to peacetime manufacture. Passage was on a voice vote.

The measure, which goes back to the House for action on amendments, increases the specific exemption on excess profits taxes from $10,000 to $25,000, effective in the 1946 tax year. This is designed to make it easier for small business to accumulate reconversion funds.

Rejects Aid To Railroads

Senator Wherry (R., Neb.) offered an amendment to apply the new exemption to 1945, but it was defeated on a roll call, 31-30.

The Senate struck out on a standing vote a House-approved provision which opponents charged would give reorganized railroads an undeserved windfall. Chairman George (D., Ga.) of the Finance Committee, said under the House plan reorganized railroads would have been allowed a tax credit on the accumulated interest of the old company. He explained that the Senate committee intends further study of the House provision.

What Measure Provides

As approved by the Senate, the measure would:

1. Make about $1,540,000,000 available to corporations by permitting the ten per cent credit on the excess profits tax to be used currently as of 1944 and subsequent years.

2. Fix January 1, 1946, as maturity date for outstanding postwar tax refund bonds, involving about $1,300,000,000.

3. Make $1,000,000,000 available by speeding up refunds from carrybacks of net operating losses and unused excess profits credits.

4. Hasten refunds from recomputation of deductions made for amortization of emergency facilities, involving about $1,700,000,000.

Senator La Follette (Prog., Wis.), criticizing the House-approved railroad provision, asserted that it would return $8,500,000 to five railroads, and the Wabash would get $6,000,000 of this sum. He did not name any other roads.

George Opposes Wherry Move

Wherry, urging the increased exemption from the excess profits tax be applied to this year's income, said the Senate had "just voted billions for Europe" in the Bretton Woods agreement. Approval of his amendment would provide $235,000,000 spread among 45,000 small business men, he contended.

George argued that as a practical matter the Senate should not approve it since a similar amendment was rejected by the House. If the Senate took Wherry's amendment, George declared, final enactment of the tax measure would probably be delayed until fall. As it is, congressional leaders expected the House to accept the Senate amendment tomorrow and send the bill to the President.

LEND-LEASE HALT IS URGED BY ELLIS

WASHINGTON, July 19—(AP) Immediate abolition of lend-lease was urged today by Representative Ellis (R-W Va).

"Let us stop this senseless operation now," Ellis told the House. The congress should do this, before we are compelled to do so by an incensed public opinion."

Ellis declared that other nations are taking advantage of the United States under lend-lease. He added:

"The story of our Allies in the Middle East being swamped with American cigarettes, beer, and precious canned goods, while our men were without, is a sickening revelation.

"Gasoline sent them on lend-lease in U. S. tankers, delivered to the gasoline dumps of our Allies in U. S. trucks, was later purchased by our forces—cash on the barrelhead—at excessive prices.

"We pay $1 per head to the French-British company for U. S. troops passing through the Suez canal to the Far East to drive the Japs out of the possessions of our Allies.,

"Up until December, 1944, we had delivered $3,523,684,000 in lend-lease to the Mediterranean area. The consumer goods sent to the absolute monarchs, such as in Arabia and Egypt, add to their personal fortune. The goods are sold in the markets.

"Poverty and disease are prevalent and 99 per cent of the population receive nothing and know nothing about lend-lease."

There was no immediate comment from lend-lease officials.

DUKE OF WINDSOR TO SEE BROTHER, PRIME MINISTER

WASHINGTON, July 19—(AP) The Duke of Windsor said today he expects to confer next month with his brother, King George, and the British prime minister.

The former King Edward VIII told reporters he was "out of a job" since he resigned after five years as governor-general of the Bahamas. The presumption was that he will ask what he can do next in the empire administration.

The Duke said his American-born duchess, the twice-divorced former Wallis Warfield Simpson for whom he gave up the throne Dec. 10, 1935, will accompany him to England. He has been there only twice, and that briefly on war business, since his abdication.

The erstwhile king asserted he has no plans for either "a future home, nor occupation."

He shook his head when asked whether he might be appointed governor general of Canada, but admitted he would accept if the post were offered to him.

Not Very Probable

"I don't think it's very probable," he said. "That rumor wasn't 'official,' you know."

Following their visit to England, the duke said, he and his duchess will go to France to look after some of his property there.

Arriving in Washington from New York yesterday evening the duke found his attempts "to get acquainted" with some U. S. Senators and government agency heads impeded by Senate roll calls on proposed amendments to the Bretton Woods international monetary agreements.

The former king waited an hour in a private dining room of the Statler hotel before enough senators could join him at luncheon held by Hugh Fulton, Washington attorney who formerly was counsel for the Senate War Investigating committee when President Truman was committee chairman. The senatorial guests checked out again in 45 minutes to answer another roll call.

In addition to the here-again, gone-again senators, luncheon guests included Surplus Property Board Chairman William Stuart Symington, acting War Production Board Chairman John D. Small and Thomas B. McCabe, who as Army-Navy liquidation commissioner for SPB supervises sales of surplus U. S. property abroad.

The duke said that among other appointments he has in Washington is one with former Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius.

Woman In Bellevue Hospital Had Secret U.S. War Documents

New York, July 19 (AP)—A Supreme Court case revealed today the story of a 35-year-old woman, former employé of the Office of Strategic Services, who was found to have in her possession a briefcase containing copies of several secret war documents when she was committed to Bellevue Hospital as "an incompetent person."

The woman was identified by Stuart Z. Krinsley, assistant United States attorney, as Miss Anna Hutchinson, of New York city. Krinsley obtained from Justice Bernard Botein approval of an application directing Dr. William J. Jacobs, hospital superintendent, who had impounded the documents, to return them to the OSS.

Krinsley said Miss Hutchinson, when committed to Bellevue, had in her possession "carbon copies of eleven OSS reports as well as official papers of the OWI, the Office of Lend-Lease Administration, the military intelligence and other Federal agencies."

He added that the woman left the employ of the OSS "during 1944." She was taken to Bellevue last May 15 and was committed to the institution last June 1.

Krinsley did not say under what circumstances the woman was taken to the hospital.

While with the Government agency, Krinsley said, "Miss Hutchinson was called upon to transcribe certain secret and confidential reports."

FORMER CONVICT RELATES EFFORTS TO KILL SENATOR

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., July 19—(AP) A former convict calmly related from the witness stand today cold-blooded details of two futile attempts to kill the late State Senator Warren G. Hooper.

Sam Abramowitz, a key witness in the trial of four Detroit men charged with conspiring to murder the former legislator, described two automobile trips to Albion, Mich., Hooper's home town, to commit the murder.

He said Sam Fleisher, one of the defendants, drove him there on about Dec. 28 or 29 and again on about Jan. 2.

Hooper, a principal witness in the Circuit Judge Leland W. Carr's one-man grand jury investigation of corruption in Michigan government, was shot to death last Jan. 11. Authorities have said he was killed to keep him from testifying before the grand jury.

Abramowitz testified that on the first trip they failed to see Hooper.

On the second trip, he testified, that "after we drove by the (Hooper) office at least ten times I saw him from the top of the shoulders up, leaning back as though his head was resting against the window and he was pretty bald.

Woman in Room

"Sam Fleisher said to me that it looked like someone was sitting across the desk from him and I said 'Yes, it was a woman.'

"As we drove slowly by we saw some kids playing in the office. Sam Fleisher said that the man was Hooper. We drove around and thought maybe she'd leave. We thought it would be a bad time to do anything with the kids there."

Abramowitz testified the plan to kill Hooper was made in O'Larry's bar in Detroit last Dec. 26 when he talked to three of the defendants, Pete Mahoney, Mike Selik and Harry Fleisher, brother of Sam.

Selik "asked me if I wanted to go on a certain job. He said Henry Luks (a state witness who appeared on the stand Wednesday) was going to go."

"Harry Fleisher or Selik suggested that if we went to Albion I could walk in and have him examine my arm which was bad then, and Luks would hit him over the head and then we could kill him anyway we saw fit," he declared. We were told we could do whatever we wanted to."

"Was any other method suggested?" Sigler inquired.

"Shooting him," the witness testified.

"Was anything said about the possibility of strangling him?" Sigler asked.

"Yes, but we didn't want to do that way," he replied calmly.

Curb On Council Delegate From U.S. Asked

JUL 19 1945

Washington, July 19 (AP)—Senator Moore (R., Okla.) proposed in the Senate today that Congress limit the authority of the American delegate to the proposed World Security Council to carrying out orders of the President.

In a resolution referred to the Foreign Relations Committee, Moore asked the Senate to define what it considers constitutional use of armed forces that would be made available to the Security Council under the pending United Nations Charter.

President Report To Congress

His resolution would direct the American delegate use "all powers in accordance with directions first had and obtained from the President." In addition, the President would be required to report to Congress on the decisions.

Moore told a reporter he thought the proposed definition of policy should be made as soon as the Charter is ratified, so that other nations would know immediately where the United States stands on the question.

Under his resolution, he said the President would retain the discretion to use American armed forces for policing the peace without altering Congress' power to declare war.

G. I.s Bound for Pacific To Get 8 Weeks' Training

44-Hour-a-Week Schedule Is Set Up for Redeployed

WASHINGTON, July 19 (AP).—European veterans bound for Tokyo will be given eight weeks of "intensive" training before leaving the United States, the Army Ground Forces reported today.

A forty-four-hour-a-week schedule of drills, lectures and orientation courses and moves has been set up. Training subjects will include Japanese tactics, identification of Japanese weapons, uniforms and insignia; employment of weapons used extensively in the Pacific and prevention of tropical diseases.

The 21st Bomb Wing, with headquarters at Topeka, Kan., is to be the over-all staging unit for most of the crews and aircraft being redeployed through the United States to the Pacific. The Army Air Forces said today the wing will include six fields, the names of which are not disclosed.

The 21st, operating directly under the Continental Air Forces, 6will handle the crews and aircraft of strategic bombardment outfits, including B-29s, all tactical planes except fighters, and other aircraft including cargo planes used by the troop carrier command.

ARMY DELAYS PLAN

WASHINGTON, July 19 — (AP) Selective service today deferred inauguration of a point discharge system for conscientious objectors pending disposition of legislation prohibiting such a plan.

The House Military Affairs committee has reported favorably a bill providing that "no point system shall be applied in the release of men assigned to work of national importance under civilian direction."

The point discharge system planned by Selective Service was announced in May and was to have been put into effect next month. Patterned after the Army's point plan, it called for discharge of about 850 conscientious objectors over the period of a year. It was based on length of service, marital status and number of dependents.

'Hate Campaign' Against Jap-Americans Assailed

Stockton, Cal., July 19 (AP)—Fifteen discharged veterans of the South Pacific war, now students at College of the Pacific, today denounced what they termed the "hate campaign" against Japanese-Americans and have restored a desecrated Japanese graveyard here.

"I thought we were fighting against this sort of thing, not for it," Marine veteran Bob McDannold, Los Angeles, said.

Upon discovering that tombstones had been knocked over and holes dug in graves, the group restored the cemetery and announced that they would act as caretakers during their off-hours.

Jack Vineyard, Stockton, former navy medical corpsman attached to a Marine raider battalion at Guadalcanal and Saipan, declared, "I didn't see how anyone who calls himself an American could pull anything like this. I know how I'd feel if my parents were buried in another country and I came home and found their graves desecrated because they had foreign names."

RELEASE IMPOSSIBLE

WASHINGTON, July 19—(AP) Undersecretary of War Patterson said today it is impossible for the Army to release men to civilian industry because that would force abandonment of the point discharge system. In the past month, 50 industrial and professional groups have asked for discharge of soldiers, Patterson told a news conference. The requests, he said, "have ranged from 110,000 men for the coal mines to three men for breeding mice.

JAPS HAVE PLANES

WASHINGTON, July 19—(AP) The Japanese have plenty of planes, says Under Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson. He made this cautionary statement during a news conference discussion of the surprising absence of air opposition to American attacks on enemy homeland. This absence of opposition, he said "should not be taken as an indication that the Japanese are without the power to retaliate."

Heads New Veteran Group

Milwaukee, July 19 (AP)—John C. Schafer, former Republican representative from Wisconsin's Fourth district, has been elected commander in chief of the United American War Veterans, a new veterans' organization.

WAC HEROINE HOME

OSWEGO, N. Y., July 19—(AP) Blue-eyed WAC Corp. Margaret Hastings came home today to the arms of her father and the cheers of her townsfolk, completing an 18,000-mile trip from "Shangri-la," New Guinea valley from which she was rescued.

As music sounded and 1,500 eager friends cheered, Corporal Hastings, 30-year-old ex-general duty soldier, left the train platform as if bewildered.

"Every girl dreams of having a band play when she comes home," she said, "but I never thought I would have that thrill."

ALTITUDE RECORD BROKEN

P-47 Pilot Went to 44,930 Feet With New Oxygen Mask

BURBANK, Calif., July 19 (AP)—With a new type of pressure oxygen mask, a P-38 Lightning fighter plane has unofficially broken the American altitude record, the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation said today.

The test was made April 30, 1943, but was kept a secret until today.

The plane, flown by Chief Test Pilot Joe Towle, reached a height of 44,940 feet. Col. Randolph Lovelace, chief of the Army's aeromedical laboratory at Wright Field, Ohio, rode in the piggyback seat.

"We took off in an attempt to test the mask at 45,000 feet," said Towle. "Just 60 feet short of our goal trouble developed in the outside temperature gauge."

The official previous mark was set at 43,165 feet by a special Army plane in 1930. The world's altitude record is 56,046 feet, set by a specially built Italian Caproni plane in 1938.

44TH INFANTRY DUE HOME TODAY

NEW YORK, July 19—(AP) The men of the 44th Infantry division, with memories of bitter fighting from the snow-clad Vosges mountains to the heart of Hitler's Germanic fortress, are due home tomorrow (1 p. m., E.W.T.) on the superliner Queen Elizabeth.

A gala harbor welcome awaits them and Army officials promised today that within 24 hours after their arrival at Camp Kilmer, N. J., they would be enroute to Fort Dix. From Fort Dix they will be sent to their homes for furloughs.

Throwing back a larger force of Germans in the mountains north of Schalbeck, France, last November is perhaps their greatest achievement.

It was in that engagement that the Second battalion repulsed the enemy on a 40-foot front and, credited with saving the entire division as an effective fighting force, won the Distinguished unit citation.

The division was composed originally of New York and New Jersey national guard units.

Its members have won 13 distinguished service crosses, 277 silver stars, 1,749 bronze stars and a large number of purple hearts. Battlefield commissions were won by 180 officers. The division insignia is a circular patch with two blue 4's back to back on an orange field.

8,663 SOLDIERS REACH NEW YORK ON 3 TRANSPORTS

NEW YORK, July 19—(AP) The British troopship Aquitania arrived today with 7,576 servicemen from the European theater of operations, including 6,663 Eighth Air force veterans.

The 44,784-ton British liner was the third vessel to disembark returning troops at this rain-drenched harbor today. The big, 31-year-old, four stacker left Scotland six days ago for an uneventful Atlantic crossing.

In spite of the heavy downpour, returning soldiers jammed open deck spaces and cheered wildly as passing ships whistled in salute. And at the North river pier where the former liner docked, an Army band was on hand to serenade the men.

The Aquitania's passengers included 735 U. S. naval personnel, 558 Army nurses, 147 Netherlands marines and 31 American Red Cross workers.

Two Others Arrive

Earlier, the transports Edward Richardson and Thomas R. Marshall had arrived with 1,087 mixed troops.

The Navy group aboard the British ship were from shore bases in England, France and Germany, including 200 Seabees and sailors who helped ferry the Army across the Rhine.

The Dutch marines, who said they were among a group of 10,000 to be trained in this country for service in the Netherlands East Indies, were en route to Camp Le Jeune, North Carolina, for a six-months training course.

Top ranking officer aboard was Brig. Gen. Milton W. Arnold, 38, a native of Hogansville, Ga., and a resident of Washington, D. C. Arnold, who commanded the 95th combat bombers wing of Eighth Air force, said his unit had flown 754 combat missions.

The general said the wing would re-assemble at Sioux Falls, N. D., for training in Pacific warfare, when the men had completed their furloughs.

Lt. Marvin Horne of Dearborn, Mich., formerly naval security officer at Bremen, said the German liner Europa probably would be ready for American navy use in October. He said the Navy now was reconditioning and manning Nazi ships captured after the armistice.

The Richardson brought Maj. Gen. Albert E. Brown, commanding officer of the Fifth (Red Diamond) Infantry division, two regiments of which arrived yesterday.

Ex-Italian Flyer Held By FBI

JUL 19 1945

Boston, July 19 (AP)—As his 19-year-old fiancée, whom he was to marry July 29, continued her efforts to raise enough money for his release, a former Italian Air Force lieutenant remained in jail today on charges of impersonating an American army sergeant.

Arrested by FBI officials yesterday, Enrico di Nino, 22, pleaded innocent to the charge when he was arraigned before a United States commissioner and was held in bail of $5,000 for a hearing August 1.

Met In School

The fiancée, Miss Mary Maldera, of Boston's North End district, said she first met di Nino when both were pupils in a Boston school and that she was due to accompany the former air force lieutenant yesterday to buy an engagement ring.

Efforts of Miss Maldera's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vito Maldera, to post bond for di Nino were delayed when a technical error was found in the deed to their property. However, another attempt will be made today, the girl said.

E. A. Soucy, Boston FBI head, said di Nino was arrested after collecting $500 through false claims for back pay, which led to the discovery of the impersonation.

According to Soucy, di Nino came to the United States in 1937 at the age of 14. Three years later he returned to Italy and fought as a member of the Italian Royal Air Force until that country's capitulation.

Shot Down Over Athens

While flying as an escort to Allied bombing planes after the surrender, he was shot down by the Germans over Athens, Greece, and assumed the identity of an American soldier, Soucy said.

He posed as a staff sergeant in the 12th Air Force and was repatriated to the United States as an AAF member, receiving army pay of approximately $500.

When he sought further army pay, the 1st Service Command was unable to identify him by the army serial number he used and the FBI was notified, Soucy added.

The FBI chief said that di Nino has been living around Boston and has been spending part of his "30-day furlough" flying planes at the East Boston airport.

SHIP UNIONS ASK BASIC WAGE RISE

Washington, July 19 (A. P.).—Representatives of maritime unions claiming to represent 240,000 seamen urged the War Labor Board today to grant basic wage increases to make up for wartime bonus reductions. Ship operators will be heard tomorrow in opposition.

Howard McKenzie, vice-president of the National Maritime Union, reaffirmed the seamen's no strike pledge and said, "The last bullet fired in this war will have a union label on it."

Asserting that thousands of men are leaving the merchant marine each month, McKenzie said:

"We do not have the responsibility of maintaining seamen in the industry when there are factors over which we have no control." This responsibility, he testified, rests with the board.

The men are asking a minimum wage of 55 cents an hour against present pay of 34 to 42 cents, and time and a half for over forty hours instead of straight time now paid for a fifty-six-hour week.

Even with the $100 a month bonus, which last Sunday was cut on order of the Emergency Maritime Board to $80 in some areas and $40 in the Atlantic and part of the Pacific, the seamen recruited since the war started have not been able to maintain the same status as men in shoreside industries, McKenzie declared.

U.S. Would Swap Surplus Goods For Trade Rights

Washington, July 19 (AP)—This Government is willing to consider trading its overseas war surpluses for foreign "rights and concessions" that would foster postwar world trade and amicable relations.

Thomas B. McCabe, Army-Navy Liquidation Commissioner, says such trades will be "thoroughly considered" in disposing of the vast array of surplus war goods remaining in countries that might find it difficult to obtain American dollars for outright cash deals.

McCabe filed his report on foreign surplus disposal with the Surplus Property Board's new chairman, William S. Symington, shortly after the latter stated his own policies on domestic surplus sales yesterday.

Symington's Views

In his first news conference here, Symington declared:

That he would prefer to take less money in sales of surplus plants or property if the cheaper sales would open up more postwar job opportunities. The entire surplus question must be approached, he said, "from the standpoint of social vision."

That local buyers in each section should get preference over outside capital in the purchase of Government factories; for example, Henry J. Kaiser would be preferred over United States Steel in buying the new Western steel plants, if Kaiser were backed by local capital.

4,000,000 Items Abroad

McCabe's report was the first declaration of policy on surpluses left behind by the expeditionary forces. Eventually, he said, these will embrace "all the 4,000,000 items it takes to fight a war—enough to fill 50 mail-order catalogs."

The Office of Army-Navy Liquidation Commissioner was recently authorized to handle surpluses of United States civilian agencies abroad as well as those of the armed forces.

The ANLC's first duty is to get the best net return for the American taxpayer, which means "selling as much surplus as possible for immediate cash payment," said McCabe.

"The availability of dollars in most countries is, however, rather uncertain," he added. "Where much of our surplus is located, dollar exchange may exist only in limited amounts. . . . It is possible that rights and concessions—certain intangibles that will lead to trade developments and friendlier relations with foreign countries—may prove to be of greater value than financial obligations that would have to be paid off over a period of years."

McCabe said agencies helping to reconstruct the liberated countries would get first claim on the surpluses.

'Yank With Amnesia' Turns Out To Be A Nazi Spy

New York, July 19 (AP)—When "Private William Walker" arrived in the United States as a battle casualty—feigning amnesia—he accepted press and radio publicity as a hero in the hope, he said, someone might clear up his identity.

All he could remember of his life before D-day was his name, he said, and that he probably was from New York. . . .

The FBI said last night it had solved the mystery. "Walker's" true name, agents said, was Karl Horst Max Wacker, 20, a trained Nazi espionage agent, and his "amnesia' was a fraud.

Sent Back From U.S.

E. E. Conroy, New York FBI chief, said Wacker admitted he was recruited into the German espionage service in 1944 after he and his parents were sent back to Germany from the United States aboard the exchange ship Gripsholm.

In newspaper interviews in New York and Paris, the youth was quoted as saying he had been liberated by the Russians and aided in the capture of Berlin—"I shot three krauts in a cemetery."

The FBI said Wacker was arrested Monday at Camp Upton, N.Y., where he had been hospitalized as a battle-shocked veteran. He had been flown to Boston from Berlin June 16.

Ruse Is Denied

Conroy said he was being held on Ellis Island pending study of the case by the United States Attorney to determine if any criminal action exists in his actions.

The FBI chief said Wacker denied using the loss-of-memory ruse to re-enter this country in order to commit espionage.

He said the youth first approached American officers in Berlin and told them he had lost his memory but did recall landing in Normandy, being captured by the Germans and being made to run a gantlet of prison-camp guards armed with clubs.

Newspaper interviews quoted him as saying he became an "honorary lieutenant" in the Red Army after the Russians liberated him from his prison camp and later rode to American lines on a horse donated by the Russians.

"I hope this amnesia is temporary," he told reporters in Europe. "Suppose some good-looking babe dashes up to me and says, 'Darling, you're back!' and I don't even recognize her!"

SOME BILLBOARDS ALSO DISAPPEARED FROM THE AMERICAN SECTOR, BUT

THERE WAS NO STATEMENT THAT THE AMERICAN AUTHORITIES WERE OFFICIALLY FOLLOWING BRITISH EXAMPLE.

THE BILLBOARDS, MADE OF LIGHT VENEER AND PAINTED IN RED, WHITE AND BLACK, WERE AMONG THE MOST STRIKING SIGHTS IN BERLIN WHEN BRITISH AND AMERICAN TROOPS ARRIVED. LOCATED PROMINENTLY ALONG THE MAIN BOULEVARDS, THEY BORE STALIN'S PRAISES OF THE RED ARMY, HIS DENIAL OF RACE HATRED TOWARD THE GERMANS AND HIS ASSERTION THAT "HITLER HAS COME AND GONE, BUT THE GERMAN PEOPLE AND THE GERMAN STATE REMAIN."

THEY CITED AS AN EXAMPLE THAT THE COST OF PRODUCING BLEACHED AND EASY BLEACHING PULPS WHERE CHLORIDE IS NEEDED HAS ESPECIALLY RISEN. ON THE OTHER HAND, THE OPA PRICE CEILING ON KRAFT PULP IS CONSIDERED RELATIVELY BETTER. NEVERTHELESS, TRADE SOURCES EXPLAINED, SOME PULP MANUFACTURERS HAVE BEEN WILLING TO TAKE THE RISK OF LOSS, REALIZING THEY WERE WORKING ON A VERY CLOSE MARGIN.

ALTHOUGH THE SITUATION IS NOT CLEAR AFTER THE FIRST 200,000 TONS HAVE BEEN DELIVERED, THE REST OF THE RESERVES EARMARKED FOR THE UNITED STATES IS UNLIKELY TO GO ELSEWHERE, THESE SOURCES SAID. 1945

THE CURRENT ISSUE OF "PULP & PAPER INDUSTRY" NATIONAL INDUSTRIAL MAGAZINE PUBLISHED IN SEATTLE, SAYS SWEDISH CELLULOSE MANUFACTURERS ARE RECEIVING WHAT AMOUNTS TO A HIGHER THAN CEILING PRICE FOR THEIR PULP IN THE FORM OF A LOWER FREIGHT RATE.

THE WAR SHIPPING ADMINISTRATION HAS ANNOUNCED A SPECIAL RATE FOR SWEDISH PULP AND CELLULOSE TO DESIGNATED UNITED STATES PORTS OF $6 PER LONG TON, A REDUCTION OF $12.50 A TON.

"THE DECREASE IN FREIGHT RATE MAY ELIMINATE THE NEED FOR ANY FURTHER ACTION ON THE PART OF OPA, ALTHOUGH THE SWEDES HAVE NOT GIVEN UP ATTEMPTS TO GET A HIGHER THAN CEILING PRICE," THE MAGAZINE SAID. "THROUGH THE $6 RATE, THE SWEDES RECEIVE APPROXIMATELY THE SAME ADVANTAGE AS WOULD HAVE BEEN OBTAINED HAD OPA SOFTENED."

THE MAGAZINE COMPARED THE RATE SET UP [illegible] SWEDISH PULP WITH

THAT OF [illegible] PER LONG TON FOB U.S. GULF TO BRAZIL AND OF $13.50 PLUS A 25 PER CENT SURCHARGE FOR CANADIAN PULP TO THE EAST COAST OF SOUTH AMERICA -- IN BOTH CASES OUT OF NEW YORK. SOUTH AMERICA IS THE PRINCIPAL EXPORT MARKET FOR PACIFIC COAST MILLS, WHICH ARE THE BIG PULP PRODUCERS ON THIS CONTINENT.

IT SAID PACIFIC COAST MILLS HAD BEEN OF PRODUCTION DESPITE MANPOWER SHORTAGES BUT MEMBERS OF EAST COAST PULP AND PAPER INDUSTRY, THEIR ABILITY TO SERVE DOMESTIC PAPER MILL CUSTOMERS HAS BEEN CURTAILED.

THESE WOULD NOMINATE ONE MEMBER OF THE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT EXECUTIVE COUNCIL AND THE REMAINING COUNCIL SEATS WOULD BE FILLED BY THE ELEVEN NOMINEES RECOMMENDING REPRESENTATIVES OF MINORITIES, SUCH AS THE SIKHS, PARSEES, "UNTOUCHABLES" AND CHRISTIANS.
RAJOGOPALACHARI SAID THIS WAS THE OBVIOUS ADVANTAGE OF EMPLOYING A PROVINCIAL, RATHER THAN A PARTY OR COMMUNAL BASIS, AND ONE WHICH HE HOPED THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT WOULD RECOGNIZE.

HOOVER PMS

SAN FRANCISCO, JULY 19-(AP)-THE SAN FRANCISCO CHARTER SHOULD BE RATIFIED BY THE SENATE, IN THE OPINION OF FORMER PRESIDENT HERBERT HOOVER, ALTHOUGH HE FOUND "MANY WEAKNESSES" IN THAT FORMULA FOR PEACE.

MR.HOOVER EXPRESSED HIS IDEAS ON THE WORLD SECURITY CHARTER IN A BROADCAST OVER THE CBS NETWORK LAST NIGHT.

"THERE ARE MANY WEAKNESSES IN THE CHARTER," HE SAID, BUT HE CONCEDED IT PROBABLY WAS "AS GOOD AS COULD BE OBTAINED UNDER THE EXISTING EMOTIONS, THE PRESENT GOVERNMENTS, THE CONFLICTING IDEALS AND AMBITIONS IN THE WORLD."

HE EMPHASIZED THAT THE POWERS OF THE U.S. DELEGATE TO THE WORLD SECURITY COUNCIL SHOULD BE DEFINED BY CONGRESS; THAT, "WHILE THERE NEED BE LITTLE WORRY ABOUT OUR REPRESENTATIVE USING OUR MILITARY FORCES FOR MINOR POLICE INCIDENTS, YET THE CONGRESS SHOULD NEVER PART WITH ITS POWERS TO DECLARE WAR."

IN THE FINAL ANALYSIS, HE SAID, "THE PLAIN FACT IS THAT THE MAKING OF POLITICAAL AND ECONOMIC PEACE SETTLEMENTS BETWEEN THE UNITED NATIONS AND WITH THE ENEMY STATES, AND THE PRESERVATION OF LASTING PEACE, STILL REST UPON THE SUCCESSFUL COLLABORATION OF THE THREE CENTERS OF POWER-THAT IS, RUSSIA, BRITAIN AND THE UNITED STATEE.

JUL 20 1945

"AND IT WILL REST THERE FOR MANY YEARS TO COME."

THE COLLABORATION OF WHICH HE SPOKE "WILL REQUIRE MUCH PATIENCE, IT WILL REQUIRE GREAT FIRMNESS," MR. HOOVER SAID. "IT WILL TAKE TIME AND MUCH GOOD WILL TO FIND LASTING SOLUTIONS AFTER THE HIGH EMOTIONS OF WAR, OF NATIONAL AMBITIONS, OF DIFFERING NATIONAL PURPOSES."

AMONT THE "MANY EWAKNESSES" THE FORMER PRESIDENT FOUND IN THE SAN FRANCISCO CHARTER, HE LISTED:

"THERE IS NO POSITIFE BILL OF RIGHTS FOR NATIONS AND MEN, BUT ONLY A MERE SUGGESTION THAT THEY SHOULD BE PROMOTED.....THE CHARTER DOES NOT RECOVER THE PRINCIPLES OF THE ATLANTIC CHARTER.....WHILE THE SECURITY COUNCIL HAS THE POWER TO STOP MILITARY AGGRESSION AMONG SMALL NATIONS, YET THIS IS NOT ASSURED AMONG THE GREAT NATIONS BECAUSE OF THE VETO POWER.....THE CHARTER FAILS TO DEFINE AGGRESSION .....IT DOES NOT EVEN MENTION THE NEW DISINTEGRATING FORMS OF AGGRESSION OF ONE NATION UPON ANOTHER THROUGH PROPAGANDA AND FIFTH COLUMNS.....THE REGIONAL ORGANIZATION, THE METHODS OF REVIEW OF OUTMODED TREATIES, AND THE LACK OF COMMITMENT TO RELATIVE REDUCTION OF ARMIES AND NAVIES, LEAVE MUCH TO BE DESIRED."

JUL 20 1945

A67FX

AS HE SURVEYED THE ROAD TO ENDURING PEACE, MR.HOOVER REMARKED: "IN ANY EVENT, FOR 25 YEARS AFTER THE VICTORY OVER JAPAN, ALL OF THE NATIONS OF THE WORLD WILL BE ABSORBED IN RESTORING THEIR INTERNAL ECONOMY AND IN RE-ESTABLISHING THEIR STANDARDS OF LIVING. DURING THIS PERIOD THE WORLD SHOULD BE ABLE TO WORK OUT THE PROBLEMS OF LASTING PEACE."

TO ACHIEVE PEACE, HE SAID, "RELATIONS BETWEEN NATIONS AND MEN MUST BE FOUNDED UPON POSITIVELY AGREED POLITICAL, MORAL AND SPIRITUAL RIGHTS. AND THERE WILL BE NO PEACE UNLESS THESE RIGHTS BE APPLIED TO THOSE PEOPLES WHO HAVE BEEN DEPRIVED OF THEM DURING THIS WAR, OR WHO HAVE NOT YET ATTAINED THEM."

TRUMAN SAYS WE WANT NO TERRITORY, ASK ONLY PEACE AND WORLD PROSPERITY WITH 'MANKIND'S GREATEST AGE' AS GOAL

JUL 21 1945

U.S. SEEKS NO GAIN IN LAND OR MONEY TRUMAN DECLARES

We Fight Only for Peace, Welfare of Mankind, He Says

SPEAKS IN BERLIN

Witnesses Raising of Stars and Stripes in Former German Capital.

POTSDAM, July 20—(AP) President Truman told the world today that the United States does not propose to trade its sacrifices in the bloodiest of wars for territorial conquest or monetary gain.

Speaking only a few miles from the former Kaiser's palace where he is working with Prime Minister Churchill and Generalissimo Stalin on a formula for preserving Europe against future war, he declared point blank:

"We are not fighting for conquest. There is not a piece of territory or one thing of a monetary nature we want out of this war."

The words were spoken at the historic occasion of the raising of the Stars and Stripes over the capital of Germany—"our greatest adversary." Picked infantrymen from the Second ("Hell on Wheels") Armored Division then heard this solemn warning:

"We must not forget that we are fighting for peace and for the welfare of mankind."

Expounds U. S. Position

This was interpreted as an exposition of the American position, not only as relates to present negotiations for settlement of Europe's age-old territorial and other problems, but as new advice to the Japanese people that the war in the Pacific is not aimed at the people themselves.

"We want peace and we want to see the time come when we can do the things in peace that we have been able to do in war," the gray-haired Missourian assured the victorious outfit.

"If we can put this tremendous machine of ours which has made this victory possible to work for peace, we can look forward to the greatest age in the history of mankind.

"That," the President concluded firmly, "is what we propose to do."

Flanked by War Secretary Stimson, Gen. Eisenhower, Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Gen. George S. Patton, Lt. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, and Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks, the President spoke extemporaneously for about two minutes in the cobblestoned central court of what had been the headquarters of the German air force district commander.

Leaves Potsdam for Program

He had hurried to the ceremony by auto direct from formal discussions with Churchill and Stalin.

When the President concluded, the historic flag which flew over the Capitol at Washington the day the U. S. entered the war against the Axis and which will be taken to Tokyo, was raised over the quarters of the American control forces occupying Berlin.

The flag, which belongs to Maury Maverick of Texas and Washington, was previously raised as a sign of victory at Casablanca, Algiers and Rome.

Mr. Truman reminded the troops it was being raised in the name of the people of the United States, who are "looking forward to a better world, a peaceful world, a world in which all the people will have an opportunity to enjoy the good things of like, and not just a few at the top."

Wilbur Richard, of Portland, Ind., and Frederick J. D'Angelo, Wilmerding, Pa., handled the flag lines, while two other combat corporals, Charles Magnifico, Jersey City, and Abraham Liberman, Cambridge, Mass., stood as color guard.

Looking well and slightly heavier than when he left Washington on July 6, the President walked about 200 yards from his auto to the ceremony. It was his second trip into Berlin from the Potsdam meetings, which are continuing regularly. His speech was the first formal address of the Big Three conference.

Eden Returns to Parley

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden returned to work today with his opposite numbers, James F. Byrnes and V. Y. Molotov, after an indisposition which prevented his attending President Truman's state dinner last night for Churchill and Stalin.

The dinner apparently was a big success, climaxed by the President playing Beethoven's Minuet in G on the piano at the joint request of his top two guests.

An American sergeant pianist, Eugene List, scored a complete triumph when he won two toasts from Stalin and a hearty handshake from Churchill. A violinist, Pvt. Stuart Canin of the Bronx, shared the musical honors.

List played a Tchaikovsky selection, Chopin's A-flat Polonaise, and three preludes by the Leningrad composer of current fame, Dimitri Shostakovich. Springing from his chair, Stalin toasted the sergeant's health and asked him to play more.

Later Stalin and Truman, speaking through an interpreter, talked animatedly over their respective preferences for folk music. At Churchill's request, List played the "Missouri Waltz," theme of Truman's vice-presidential campaign and one of his old favorites.

No Official "Big 3" News

Official news was lacking on the progress of the conference. It was hoped that communiques of a generalized nature would be issued as progress of the conference warrants.

Steady progress was indicated by word that the foreign secretaries were going into a daily huddle and forwarding their recommendations to the leaders as fast as they complete their study of the various phases of the conference.

As the presiding officer, Truman was reported to be doing everything possible to expedite these considerations, and the Big Three themselves are meeting virtually every day.

The President also found time to talk with General Bradley, who soon is to take over as Veterans Affairs administrator in Washington. They discussed plans for modernizing the veterans set-up.

With Admiral William D. Leahy, presidential chief of staff, and other military advisors, Truman went over hourly reports received from the Pacific battle front, using maps similar to those in the map room at the White House.

opportunity of enjoying peace and opportunity," Mr. Truman said.

Historic Flag

The Stars and Stripes raised over the United States group council headquarters, in the former headquarters of Germany's air defense, was the flag that flew over the Capitol in Washington the day the United States entered the war against the Axis.

It flew over Algiers when that city was General Eisenhower's headquarters and over Rome when the first Axis capital was captured. It is destined to be raised over Tokyo.

The text of President Truman's address follows:

"General Eisenhower, officers and men:

"This is an historic occasion. We have conclusively proved that a free people can successfully look after the affairs of the world.

"In The Name Of The People"

"We are here today to raise the flag of victory over the capital of our greatest adversary. In doing this, we must remember that in raising this flag we are raising it in the name of the people of the United States who are looking forward a better world, a peaceful world, a world in which all the people will have an opportunity to enjoy the good things in life and not just a few at the top.

"Let's not forget that we are figthing for peace and for the welfare of mankind. We are not fighting for conquest.

"There is not one piece of territory or one thing of a monetary nature that we want out of this war. We want peace and prosperity for the world as a whole. We want to see the time come when we can do the things in peace that we have been able to do in war. If we can put these tremendous machines of ours, which have made this victory possible, to work for peace we could look forward to the greatest age in the history of mankind. That is what we propose to do."

Peace For World, Not Territory, He Says In Berlin Speech

JUL 21 1945

Potsdam, July 20 (AP)—President Truman, speaking at a symbolic flag raising over conquered Berlin, said today that the United States wanted not one piece of territory, but "peace and prosperity for the world as a whole."

The speech had great significance against its background of the Big Three conference, where the President is joining Britain and Russia in helping to settle European boundary and other problems. "We are raising this flag in the name of the people of the United States, who are looking forward to a better world, a peaceful world, in which all the people will have an

British Indicate Task No. 1 Is Jap War

London, July 20 (AP)—Britain's stake in the Pacific war, almost as important strategically as that of the United States and perhaps even more so economically, is believed here to guarantee support for the American viewpoint that the defeat of Japan must take precedence over Europe's headaches on the list of the world's woes.

Prime Minister Churchill is counted upon here to give President Truman 100 per cent support at Potsdam in urging upon Generalissimo Stalin that a piecemeal solution of global problems is impractical and to insist, as he insisted in his recent political campaign, that task No. 1 is to "beat the Japs."

Patchwork Job Likely

This does not mean that Europe's mounting problems could be overlooked in the Big Three deliberations. But even the most optimistic in diplomatic quarters have discounted hopes that anything more than a patchwork job can be done at this time.

It has been expected generally that Mr. Truman, with Churchill's support, would argue that Europe's stability, and the extent of American contribution toward that stability, depends in a large measure upon how soon Japan is beaten.

The President, it was said, could support that argument by citing the question of food, which is one of Europe's biggest problems.

Ships, Men Needed For War

The support of a huge force in the Pacific requires a vast number of ships. Men manning guns cannot produce. Therefore, the lack of ships and lack of production means less food for Europe.

That also is true of machinery which the Soviet Union wants for reconstruction, fighting men and gar-geared economy cannot produce a quantity of mechanical harvesting equipment for export. Nor would a nation spending billions for arms be likely to provide billions in credits to develop the economy of a country at peace.

Diplomats say these are powerful talking points and are discussed privately as a potent factor in the possible shift of Russia from a passive to an active role in the Pacific, as well as the added insurance of full British effort in the Pacific.

Other British Reasons

Britain has reasons of her own for regarding Japan's defeat as her problem. Thousands of her troops, vital to solving reconstruction and reconversion to peacetime production, are fighting in the Orient.

She had colonies she hopes to recover. She had trade routes she hopes to restore in rebuilding economy, dependent in a greater degree than that of the United States upon globe-girdling import and export business.

And Britain has taken the position that a number of the toughest problems of Europe, those involving boundaries, must wait anyway until the general peace conference.

Mr. Truman told the soldiers, picked infantrymen from the Second Armored Division, that they had proved conclusively that a free people can look after the affairs of the world. The President, Secretary of War Stimson and Gens. Eisenhower and Patton reviewed the division.

The President spoke after Vice-Admiral Emory S. Land, chief of the United States Maritime Commission and War Shipping Administration, arrived with his staff in response to a special request from President Truman.

Gen. Omar Bradley, new Veterans Administrator who also had been summoned here for a conference, accompanied Mr. Truman to the site from the Little White House in Potsdam. Stimson, Eisenhower, Patton and Major-Gen. Floyd L. Parks, American member of the Berlin Kommandatur, were in the President's party. Lieut.-Gen. Lucius D. Clay, head of the United States Group Council, received Mr. Truman.

The President's brief message was interpreted by some of his listeners as meaning that the United States insisted that the peace and welfare of the average man were more important than territorial disputes and boundaries.

The ceremony took place in the cobblestoned central court of what had been the German air craft command for Middle Germany. All Germans had been cleared from the area before the President arrived. He drove up in his open car, accompanied by military and naval aids and a small secret service detail.

Speeds Back to Potsdam.

Immediately after the flag raising the President sped back into Potsdam to resume his deliberations with Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill—deliberations in which possible Russian aid in the war against Japan is believed to be playing an important part.

The President was described as eager to return to Washington as soon as possible after the conference here closes. He has all but abandoned plans for even a brief visit to London.

Fleet Held Bargaining Factor

He is keeping in close touch with congressional considerations of the United Nations Charter and Bretton Woods proposals, and is receiving hourly reports on the Pacific war.

The shipping experts arrived late yesterday amid indications that postwar world shipping and the role of the United States' greatest merchant fleet in history would play a large part in the discussions.

Land attended the Roosevelt-Churchill Quebec discussions and furnished advice at later Big Three meetings.

It was disclosed that Churchill dined alone Wednesday night with Stalin at the "Little Kremlin." The conference lasted several hours. Only Stalin's and Churchill's interpreters were present.

Eden Back At Work

British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden returned to work today and fulfilled all of his regular appointments with Soviet Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav M. Molotov and United States Secretary of State James F. Byrnes.

He had been too ill last night to attend a state dinner tendered by President Truman.

Eden's absence had caused some concern in the Soviet and American compounds. Apparently, however, he now is ready to plunge back into the task cut out for the foreign secretaries who, under conference procedure, reach generalized agreement on problems and pass them on to the Big Three for final decisions.

The British statesman, whose impaired health forbade his campaigning in the recent British election, obviously was not too strong when he arrived here last Sunday.

President Truman underlined the informal air of the state dinner by wearing a plain brown suit. Stalin wore his fawn-colored generalissimo's uniform of gabardine, decorated by a single star on the breast, and Churchill wore the light tan colonel's uniform of Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports—Dover, Sandwich, Hythe, Romney, Rye, Winchelsea and Hastings.

The President was surrounded by Americans likely to be social successes with his Soviet guests.
